Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader, said Prime Minister St. Laurent had insisted he should not be "any better off" for moving into an official residence and had insisted on payment of $5,000 a year for himself and his wife.

Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative leader, said the whole thing was a "gigantic mistake." The official residence of the Prime Minister should be a private home, not a "castle" for entertaining. The Prime Minister should not be charged for occupancy and in fact he should get more money.

CBC Operations Criticized and Stoutly Defended

Ottawa, June 15 (CP) —The Commons Committee on radio broadcasting yesterday heard the operations of the CBC in Toronto both criticized and defended.

Joel Aldred of Toronto, former CBC announcer, appeared before the committee at his own request and said that in his opinion there was wastage in the Toronto offices because of a large staff turnover and the uneconomical use of recording discs. He also criticized the handling of a promotional campaign started a couple of years ago to win more listeners for CBC station CJBC in Toronto, but confessed he did not know whether the campaign was profitable.

He criticized the CBC's treatment of announcers. The time they work for commercial sponsors is deducted from the time they are supposed to work for the CBC. In addition they are charged a 15 percent agency fee. He said the CBC was dangerously inaccurate in its statement to the committee that 83 percent of its radio programs are of Canadian origin. CBC officials stuck by their figure.

Dismissed in 1949

Mr. Aldred told the committee he had been dismissed by the CBC in May, 1949, following an article in the Montreal Standard in which he had discussed alleged grievances of CBC announcers.

Dr. Augustin Frigon, general manager of CBC said that for salary purposes the CBC deducted the time worked by announcers for commercial sponsors. The agency fee of 15 percent was charged because announcers had use of CBC staff and facilities.

Dr. Frigon said that in 1948 the CBC staff turnover in Toronto amounted about 30 percent. The turnover now totalled about 18 percent.

Should Use Both Sides

Mr. Aldred estimated that between $15,000 and $20,000 a year could be saved in Toronto if the recording studio used both sides of expensive discs. John Kannawin, in charge of the CBC's record library in Toronto, said that less than 10 percent of the discs are used on one side only.

Mr. Aldred, who clashed several times with members of the committee, indicated he felt he had not been given a fair hearing. It was evident that what he would say would be classified as hearsay unless he was willing to name CBC employees as the sources of his information. That he would not do now or in the future.

COWS DON'T KNOW ABOUT THE STRIKE

With no market for their milk due to a strike of milk truckers, farmers around Pittsburgh, Pa., are feeding it to the pigs rather than see it go to waste. Here is William Ziegler giving his hogs some of the precious stuff. As Ziegler explained: "The cows don't know about the strike. They're still producing." The milk famine neared a crisis in a seven-county western Pennsylvania area where mothers, fearing for the health of their babies, begged the drivers and dairies to settle their dispute. — Central Press Canadian.

Early Japanese Peace Will be Topic in Parley

(By DEWITT MACKENZIE)
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Defence Secretary Louis Johnson and Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the United States Joints Chiefs of Staff, are due to arrive in Tokyo in a few days for a conference with Gen. MacArthur. The red-hot question of an early Japanese Peace Treaty is expected to feature the discussions.

One uses the term "red-hot" advisedly. The dominating influence of the United States in this island empire, and Washington's obvious determination to continue protection of U.S. interests, is a circumstance which has been causing bitterness in Russian quarters.

At this writing there is small chance indeed that any treaty can be drawn up to suit both the United States and Russia. And the answer to that would seem to be that the western allies will have to go ahead on their own.

MacArthur has insisted that an early treaty is essential. He does not propose the complete withdrawal of United States troops. On the contrary it is understood he believes that the military defence of Japan calls for the presence of U.S. forces.

The Japanese government is reported willing to have American troops stay on after the projected treaty is signed. Moreover, informed sources in the Japanese capital say the government would also agree to maintain bases required by American forces.

Naturally Russia can be expected to battle any such set-up to a finish. Just as the U.S. and the Western Allies need Japan for Defence against the communist offensive in southeast Asia, so do the Russians need it if they are to succeed in their conquest of the far east.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WHAT IS YOUR U NIVERSE LIKE?

There was a news story recently of how in a western city a gang of teen-age boys, armed with tire irons, had gone through the city smashing everything they could lay hands on and injuring a number of pedestrians. When asked why they had done this their reply was, "We're just mad at the world, that's all."

The psychiatrist may have all sorts of explanations for this grievous phenomenon. The present writer, who lays no claim whatsoever to psychiatric knowledge and even less to wisdom in general, would venture the belief that these youngsters were suffering from a lack of home discipline. Not because they had not been sufficiently held down, but because they had not been given that sense of security which every disciplined child posesses and which undiciplined children almost invariably lack.

For the object of parental discipline is not to keep children out of mischief but to give them a sense of inner cohesion and security which will stand in good stead through life. The child that is never corrected and made to toe the mark grows up without knowing that life is undergirded by certain moral and spiritual principle which never budge an inch for individual, nation or race. Without this knowledge, anyone —young or old—is liable to go beserk. With this knowledge, children, and later men and women, are sustained by a sense of the stability of the universe.

HOW TO BE HAPPY ON A DIET

Take it easy and it won't be so difficult as you think. It is the hammer-and-tongs plan that defeats so many persons who should moderate their every-day diet but instead of doing so by intelligent correction of the bad eating habits they have acquired in the course of the years try to make radical and usually unhealthful changes in their eating. These zealous but uninformed or misinformed persons seldom attain success with their dieting. After a few days of it they begin to hedge or cheat a little here and there and soon give up the whole thing because they can't stand it any longer. Perhaps that is just as well for their health. The few fanatics who restrict themselves to the freak diet for weeks or months are quite likely to end up in a sanitarium or a sanatorium.

Dr. Joslin and associates have found that 25 per cent of our entire population are potential diabetics—that is, about 35 million persons have the inherited tendency to develop diabetes and may pass the tendency along to their children whether they themselves ever develop the disease or not. Whether or not depends, I believe, primarily upon the amount of refined carbohydrate food they consume and secondarily upon the amount of exercise they get every day. I say I believe these two factors determine whether the individual with the potentiality shall develop the disease. Some good physicians agree with this; others may not. Further I believe the almost universal vitamin B complex deficiency of modern Americans contributes to the development of diabetes in persons with the tendency. Most good physicians do not believe so. In any case I am sure my teachings regarding these questions can do no harm, as set forth in the booklet Training for Diabetes —for which send twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope.

Most persons who develop diabetes have been ten per cent or more overweight for many years before the diabetes is diagnosed. What proportion of them have had or imagined they had liver trouble while they were training for diabetes I do not know, but probably a good many of them have. After all the liver is the principal storehouse for sugar (glucose, glycogen) and the organ would naturally become congested or enlarged or disordered if the body's capacity to burn up or use sugar (glucose, dextrose, glycogen) to produce energy began to fail.

Gently but firmly I am leading up to the fifth remedy or preventative I have to suggest for persons with chronic liver or gall-bladder trouble In previous talks I suggested four other prophylactic or preventative measures, namely, massage of liver and gall-sac by belly breathing; improving the circulation by a dozen somersaults a day; keeping 28 to 32 teeth (your own or dentures provided by your dentist) in good working condition; moderate reduction in total caloric value of daily food intake.

The fifth remedy is, as you will have guessed, exercise—two miles of oxygen on the hoof three times a day or the equivalent in any other general exercise you prefer.

Moderate restriction in total caloric value of daily food intake, particularly refined carbohydrate foods (items containing principally starch and/or sugar), is the secret of successful dieting either to reduce or to relieve chronic liver trouble or to prevent development of diabetes.

Moderate restrictions in total caloric value does not mean "cutting out all starchy food." That is seldom necessary even for diabetes. It means rather eating one slice of bread or toast at a meal instead of two slices; or eating one-half of a potato instead of the whole potato; or omitting "breakfast food" or cereal from your menu if you take bread, toast or roll or cake or cookie or other cereal or flour product for breakfast.

CAMERA FUN

I cannot understand how anyone can leave for a vacation without a camera. You can write most interestingly about any trip you may take, but to return with a pictured story of that trip will enable you to live it over time and again, in realistic fashion.

Never has there been so much interest in owning a camera and learning all the many things that can be accomplished with it. A good camera these days can be purchased for a very small sum, and as you learn the basic principles you will want a better one —growing with the camera as you become more experienced.

For more than half my lifetime I have owned one or more cameras, and the happiness I have gained thereby cannot be adequately expressed in words. Now that color films have been wonderfully perfected, there is an added joy to the taking of pictures. The study of flowers, birds, and animals grows in intensity as one hunt with his camera.

Picture taking makes one observant, teaching composition, and odd effects, indoor as well as outdoor. Some of the most wonderful pictures of bird and animal life have come about with the camera. It often takes hours of patience and study to get the results desired, but they come in time. Mistakes constanly teach.

Posed pictures are far less interesting than those taken when the objects are unaware of the process. Increasingly, movie cameras are becoming the vogue, for there is interest in action and in color effects. Your friends can thus be enabled to see exactly what you saw. That is why it is important for you to see good views and study them out before taking.

We never realize how human the faces of animals are, as well as babies, until the recent flood of pictures of them in our newspapers. With one's own camera we can make our own interpretations, and get personal fun as well. Don't leave for that vacation, or trip abroad, without a camera! You'll regret it if you forget to do so.

After Probing Whole Problem Recreation Council Decides To Fix Hole in Park Screen

Trenton— (Special) — Grandstand umpires will soon be able to return to their favorite spot behind home plate at Bayshore Park.

So far this season, there has been a gaping hole in the backstop screen. The whole problem centres around the fact that this hole has been a serious threat to the safety of the bleacherites seated behind the backstop. Every time a catcher missed a fast pitch, there was some lively ducking as the boys who call them, as the umpire doesn't see them, tried to avoid the ball as it whistled through the opening. The last few games, the cheering section that usually haunts this vantage point has been noticeably thinner.

As a result of Tuesday night's meeting of the Recreation Commission, this hazard to bleacher athletes will soon be eliminated. The commission gave Park Committee Chairman Jack Goldberg permission to have the screen fixed.

During the meeting, the commission was unable to agree as to just what should be done about the matter. Several alternative proposals were put forward such as writing a new regulation into the softball rule book requiring all teams to supply a grandstand catcher to protect the cash customers. After the routine business was cleared up, the minutes read and adopted and several cigars had gone up in smoke, the commission adjourned to Bayshore Park to investigate the hole situation before making a definite decision.

Recreation Director Jack Dean explained that the backstop knothole could not be patched satisfactorily and that it would be better to replace the present screen with new wire netting. After examining the hole thoroughly and giving due consideration to the mathematical chances of any given pitched ball being missed by the catcher and hitting the hole in the screen, the commission decided unanimously to patch the hole for this year. The commission is confident that this will solve the whole problem.

Favor Parking Motors

The majority of Trentonians appear to be in favor of the new parking meters that went in to operation officially last Thursday.

Mayor Couch reports that he is receiving more compliments than complaints because now downtown shoppers can find a place to park on Dundas Street.

Parking meter attendant James Fox who looks after the meters and hands out tickets for violations agreed that most motorists were glad to pay for parking space handy to the main business section.

WANT CLUES TO AIR CURRENTS

London, June 15 (AP) — The Air Ministry is going to try a new card trick.

It'll be done with postcards and airplanes.

Its weather experts are trying to track down the effect of turbulence at high altitudes. They will dump pre-paid postcards from weather planes at high altitudes. Finders are asked to record the location where the cards are picked up and mail them in.

The postcard pattern is expected to give some new clues on air currents.

Optimists Hear Kin Cleo Colling On Pool Project

Too many citizens demand the privileges of a city without considering it their duty to help provide these privileges. Kinsman Cleo Colling, in an address to the Optimist Club told the story of the efforts of a service club to provide more privileges for the citizens of Belleville.

A past president of the Kinsmen Club, the speaker traced the history of his organization from its chartering in 1933, through early tribulations and successes to their present thriving membership of seventy-five. Organized during the depression years, when service club work was most urgently needed, the Kinsmen plunged into the activities of the Soap Box Derby, and sent four Canadian champions to the Akron races.

The young club then proceeded to form an eye-clinic for school children, and put two eye testing machines into the public and separate schools. Mr. Colling told of the Kinsmen's war effort, when they sent 3,000,000 quarts of powdered milk and 5,000,000 cigarettes over-seas.

After the war, the club donated $2,600 to the ice plant for Belleville Memorial Arena, and presented two portable iron lungs to the city.

Pool Great Need

A few years ago, the Kinsmen project committee took notice of the city's great need of a community swimming pool. The project, while still in its early stages, was turned over to the Inter-Service-Club Council, but little progress was made, and at the beginning of this year its funds amounted to only $1,900. The Kinsmen therefore took over the project once again.

Since then, the tourist camp has been selected as a site, and $2,500 paid for additional property required. The sum of $18,000 has been raised to date. Construction will begin when the $25,000 mark is reached, since this amount will pay for installation of the main pool and its filters.

In conclusion, Mr. Colling stated that once the pool is completed, the Kinsmen have no intention of monopolizing its operation. The pool will be turned over to the citizens, and will be controlled by a civic committee.

The speaker was introduced to the club by past president John Ryan, and thanked for his most informative address by Optimist Frank Foley.

Past president Don Boyce initiated into Optimism Douglas Robertson and Pete Wills, assisted by their sponsors, Optimist P. K. Bradley and membership chairman Ken Campbell.

Optimist Frank Foley was appointed chairman of the Optimist Island Development Committee. Sam Cowan acted as song-leader, and Roy Robinson as sergeant-at-arms.

Following the meeting a farewell party was held for Optimist Gerry Simpson, on the eve of his departure for St. John's Newfoundland.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Nothing to do in your town. Teen-agers?—Here's an idea

I have a lot of faith in modern teen-agers. I believe they have initiative, intelligence, independence and a lot of other things in greater degree, perhaps, than boys and girls of any generation preceding this.

That's the reason I sometimes wonder why more of them don't go after what they want when nobody else has done anything about it.

What I am thinking of at the moment is this sort of thing.

"We are two girls, 15 and 16 years old," a recent letter begins. "In our town there is absolutely nothing for teen-agers to do. All the main street is made up of beer joints. There is a movie twice a week, and we also have a swimming hole about two and a half miles away. But that is all."

Now, what these girls were concerned with was not what they could do about getting more recreational facilities in their own town. All they wanted to know was if it would be all right for them to go out with two boys from another town whom they had seen at this swimming hole and who had asked them for dates.

It is a very unfortunate thing that there still are so many towns where the adults take no responsibility whatever for providing the young people with proper opportunities for fun. But I believe that in such cases, if the boys and girls themselves would show some intelligent interest in getting such facilities, something could be done about it.

Why for instance, can't these two girls get together with some of their friends of both sexes, form a committee on Recreation for Teen-Agers, and make it their business to call on local ministers, doctors, school principals and teachers, the leading businessmen of the town, and anybody else who might be able to help, and put their problem right up to them. They might ask for an adult committee on Recreation for Teen-Agers to be formed, which would work with the young peoples' committee in planning an adequate recreational program.

There is no town so small that something of this kind can't be accomplished in it. There are plenty of activities that can be started by anyone ready and willing to devote a little time and energy to the project. Never have there been so many interesting things to do as there are today. There are hobbies to suit every taste, and one of the best ways in the world to get an activity program started is to organize a hobby group or two.

There must be a vast number of other young people who feel, like the two girls from whose letter I quoted, that there is "absolutely nothing for teen-agers to do" in their towns. I wish some of them would take up my suggestion and see what they can do with it; then let me know how they make out.

MADOC

Community Club Enjoys OES Banquet

Madoc—Madoc Community Club held their June meeting in the O.E.S. Hall on Monday night. Seventy-six members and guests sat down to a banquet tendered by the members of the O.E.S.

C. I. Ross, president, welcomed the guests and acted as chairman for the evening. The program consisted of two vocal duets by Mrs. M. Rankin, and Mrs. G. Lewis with Mrs. Fraser as pianist.

Major Joe Nayler, M.B.E. proposed the toast to the ladies with Mrs. Stickwood responding.

Mr. Arthur McCarey of Tweed, ex-warden of Hastings county, brought greetings from the village of Tweed, and spoke briefly on "Courtesy" and service clubs in regard to the tourist trade.

Mrs. McKinley Rankin contributed two solos which were well received.

The club held a short business session with the secretary reading the minutes of previous meeting. the matter of the sponsoring a Community Hall for Madoc was laid over for further discussion.

The guest speaker was Mr. Homar Bland, sales manager of the Belding Corticelli Co., of Montreal, who was introduced by C. I. Ross. Mr. Bland gave an interesting talk on some of his experiences while travelling from coast to coast, and the method of doing business in the various provinces. He gave a history of the knitting of hosiery from its inception to the present time. Mr. Rothwell, principal of Madoc Public School, screened two reels of films, one on the different articles made from nylon and the other the manufacture of nylon hose by Corticelli.

Mr. Bland introduced Mr. Dave Adams, salesman, for eastern Ontario, who presented each lady present with a ticket for a pair of nylon hose.

Percy Holland on behalf of the club thanked the speaker and all who took part in the program for an evening of fine entertainment. W. E. Connor thanked the members of the Eastern Star for the fine banquet with Worthy Matron Mrs. Theressa Kilpatrick replying. The singing of "Good Night Ladies" concluded the evening's program.

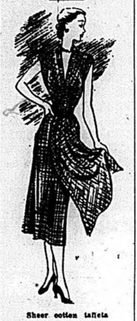
Cool Checks



Sheer cotton taffeta

By VERA WINSTON

FROTHY, filmy sheers, crisp, paper-weight fabrics in cotton silk, rayon, nylon and nylon mixtures all lend variety and charm to warm weather wardrobes. Crisp, paper thin cotton taffeta is used for a pretty print in green and blue check. Turnback cuffs finish off what sleeve there is, and the fitted bodice is draped through the midriff. A gathered fly-away panel lends animation to the slim skirt of this slim, cool and pretty daytime dress.

White in Summer for City

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THAT'S a new fashion notion . . . . white for summer, even if you live in the city, breathlessly; and at that, you will look nice, and soap and water is an easy medium when it comes to cleaning up.

This white pique, with Hope Skillman's new needlepoint weave, makes this all-white frock: only the non-tarnishing gilt thread embroidery bedizens its pristine snowiness. And of all American fashions, it is the tops . . . a shirtmaker, perennial pet for all day, every day.

BEAUTY

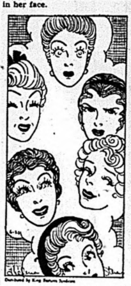
By HELEN JAMESON

Bouquets to the eloquent face.

If girls only knew it, one of the greatest destroyers of good looks is the deadpan face. It is affected by some girls who like to appear bored, as if they had seen everything, done everything. If the feminine countenance isn't beautifully alive and expressive, it will never win beauty laurels.

When a woman does with her face makes it interesting or otherwise. What do your eyes say? Are they bright with animation? Do they carry a radiance that bespeaks good humor and a nice disposition? Do your lips curve upward or do you let them droop? Just little things, but by them others will judge you.

Perfect features and a peaches-and-cream complexion are not the whole story. They can look cold as ice. Though they be of cameolike loveliness the features can carry a keep-your-distance look that is anything but attractive. If a girl is really a sweet person, nice to know, she will look the part; you will read her character in her face.



Distributed by King Features Syndicate

The use a woman makes of her .... face makes it interesting ... or otherwise

Observe the austere woman with the frozen expression. You guess that she is intolerant, bigoted or suspicious and, chances are, you are right. She carries a chip on her shoulder. You can't imagine anyone putting an arm around her, saying, "I love you".

The faces of some charming women are as interesting to watch as a scene in an absorbing play. Their emotions and intellectual reactions are registered—gayety, animation, pleasure. They have a radiance that is more attractive than physical loveliness.

Their eyes never shift off into space when you are talking to them. Their eyes smile at you; you realize that they are friendly and understanding. The lives of these women are made happier by their charm. People love to be with them.

If you would have an eloquent face keep in mind this one important rule; let your facial curves be upward, never down. Carry your facelift with you all the time, and you will never need the kind the surgeons give.

Drooping lips will soften the tissues of the chin and jawline —a defect that no cosmetic magic will erase.

GOOD MANNERS

Do not display or use the flag improperly.

Just as there are reverent and logical rules of etiquette on how-to-display-our-flag, there are reverent and logical rules about how-NOT-to-display-and-use the flag.

The first rule (and really all-inclusive) is: Do not permit disrespect to be shown to the Flag of Canada.

Do not let the flag touch anything underneath it: the ground or the floor, water, merchandise.

Do not place any other flag or pennant above, or (if on the same level) to the right of the Canadian flag.

Do not dip the flag to any person or any thing. (The regimental colors, and organization or institutional flags may be dipped as a mark of honor.)

Do not carry the flag flat or horizontally. . .but always aloft and free.

Do not use the flag as a covering for a ceiling.

Do not place on the flag, or attach to it, any mark, insignia, letter, word, figure, design, picture or drawing of any nature.

Do not place any object or emblem on or above the flag.

Do not use the flag for advertising purposes in any manner whatsoever. And advertising signs should not be fastened to a staff or halyard from which the flag is flown.

Do not embroider the flag on such articles as cushions, handkerchiefs, and the like; or print on paper napkins or boxes.

Do not use the flag as any portion of a costume or athletic uniform.

Do not drape the flag over the hood, top, sides, or back of a vehicle, or a railroad train, or a boat. When the flag is displayed on an automobile, it may be flown on a small staff at the right end of the front bumper (as se from the driver's seat), the st long enough so that the fl clears the radiator hood; or small flag may be flown from th radiator cap.

Do not use the flag as a rece tacle for receiving, holding, carry ing, or delivering anything.

The flag should never be u as drapery of any sort whatev never festooned, never dra back or up in folds, but alw allowed to fall free. Bunting the national colors should used for covering a speake desk, draping over the front o platform, and for decoration general.

Do not display, fasten, use, store the flag in such a mann as will permit it to be easily to soiled, or damaged in any way.

When not in use, the flag shou be kept carefully rolled folded.

When the flag is in such a co dition that it is no longer a fittin symbol for display, it should b destroyed as a whole, privatel preferably by burning or some other careful method i harmony with the reverence an respect we bestow on the emble representing our country.

Women's Activities

SHANNONVILLE W.A.

The monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of Shannonville United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Houston on Thursday last with 23 ladies in attendance. Mrs. K. R. Vivian, first vice-president, was in charge and Mrs. L. Scott presided at the piano.

Mrs. Orval Stratton had charge of the devotional, the theme for the month being "God is a spirit and they that worship Him must Worship Him in spirit and in truth." Mrs. Raymond Clarke gave the scripture reading from John 4, followed by a reading of "Hymns That Never Die," by Mrs. Orval Stratton, with Mrs. E. Stratton contributing on some of the best loved hymns and their authors.

Mrs. Orval Stratton extended thanks to her group for their help during her term of office. Mrs. Robert Little sent thanks for the card of sympathy at the time of her brother's death, and thanks were also received for the card sent to Mrs. George Osborne, at the time her baby girl was born, as well as for the plant sent Mrs. Osborne, senior, and for the card sent to Mrs. McDonald. Mr. Gordon Currie, the baker, sent his thanks for the appreciation for the rolls he donated to the teachers' banquet held at Belleville on May 31st.

Mrs. Claude Clarke, treasurer, reported that $145 had been raised at this supper and that $69.58 for the lunches served at Scott's sale of livestock. Mrs. Lorne Uens and Mrs. W. Houston kindly made two more choir gowns and it was decided to pay Mrs. Elliott for the material for them.

Mrs. C. Howard returned the aprons she had made since last meeting. Plans were made for the supper on June 19th to raise funds for paying for insul brick for the new church hall. Mrs. S. MacDonald reported for the parsonage committee that painting had been done in one bedroom and it was decided to pay for the paint.

Mrs. Scott read a letter from the moderator of the church regarding the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund, and the quilts made by the Red Cross were offered to be sent. Mrs. W. Robertson gave her report of the W.A. convention held at Stirling on May 25th for which she received a hearty vote of thanks.

A vote of appreciation was extended to the hostess for her hospitality, followed by refreshments being served by Mrs. Houston and her assistants, and a social time enjoyed.

WOOLER W.M.S. AUX.

On Tuesday afternoon 22 members and five visitors gathered at the home of Mrs. W. G. Fletcher for the June meeting of the afternoon auxiliary of the Woman's Missionary Society. Mrs. S. L. Terrill presided and conducted the worship service with Mrs. C. Dunn at the piano. She also gave a short report of the conference held in Peterborough, last week.

No delegates were appointed to attend the sectional rally at Warkworth on Wednesday but as many members as could were urged to go.

Mrs. L. H. Rowe gave a short reading on temperance and later contributed a piano solo.

A playlet "People Grow Older" was presented, those taking part were, Mrs. M. Waite, Mrs. L. Dorland, Mrs. A. Arthur, Mrs. L. H. Rowe, Rev. W. G. Fletcher, Mrs. E. McMaster, Mrs. R. Putnam and Mrs. J. J. Way. This gave suggestions by which the increasing number of older people in Canada today might be helped.

Mrs. Douglas R. Fox rendered a vocal solo "Song My Mother Used to Sing", and Mrs. A. G. Austin gave a most interesting talk on her recent trip to Florida, illustrated by many pictures.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. Herb Wessels and the hostess.

Christ Church Guild

3rd Hillier—The June meeting was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Warner McFaul, with a grand attendance of 13 members and over 17 visitors.

Rev. C. P. Heaven led in prayer. Secretary and treasurer's reports were given. For roll call each membe handed in a miscellaneous gift towards the bazaar. It was decided that all bills be paid. Mrs. Delbert Boyle invited the Guild to her home for the July meeting, when roll call is "tell about your grandmother".

A reading, "A Cup of Tea", was given by Miss Sheila Terry. A few kindly words by Mrs. H. B. Anderson, of how she felt at home with the Guild along Consecon Lake; also readings by Mrs. Warner McFaul, and Mrs. Albert Weir. Interesting contests were won, one by Mrs. Sherman Weir, and the other by Mrs. Warner McFaul.

The hostess served delicious refreshments and a social time was enjoyed by all.

MELROSE W.M.S.

Melrose.—The Melrose W.M.S. met at the parsonage, Shannonville, for their June meeting on a previous invitation from Mrs. Scott.

The president, Mrs. R. Macfarlane conducted the worship service, with Mrs. Scott at the piano for the hymns.

The treasurer reported $12 from quiltings and $67.77 on hand. Business period.—chairman and officers of church board requested that the ladies of the W.M.S. be asked to make arrangemnets for the annual church social. Program Committee, President, Mrs. R. Macfarlane, Mrs. E. Badgley, Mrs. A. Rieley, Miss M. Bailey, Miss B. Macfarlane and Mrs. E. Pascoe; Lunch Com., President, Mrs. Macfarlane, Mrs. J. Milligan, Mrs. W. McMeachan, Mrs. C. Osborne, Mrs. W. Embury, and Mrs. R. Fox.

A program, "People Grow Older", on problems of older people was presented by five members, Mrs. William McMeachan, Mrs. J. Milligan, Miss B. Macfarlane, Mrs. C. Osborne, Mrs. W. Embury, Mrs. E. Badgley.

Rev. L. W. Scott acted as local minister. This play proved interesting and informative. Older people turn naturally to the church whose function is to interpret the deeper meaning of life. They long for companionship and a need to associate themselves in groups.

The group leader, Miss M. Bailey, gave a splendid reading on Christian Stewardship.

The offering of $4.05 was received. There was an attendance of 19.

Mrs. J. Milligan moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Scott for her kind hospitality.

Mrs. Scott assisted by her sister, served dainty refreshments and a social half hour was enjoyed.

St. Paul's Holds Memorable Silver Jubilee Service

Stirling. — St. Paul's United church was filled to capacity Sunday evening last, for an outstanding service in honor of the 25th anniversary of Union.

The guest speaker, Lt.-Col. the R[illegible] Sidney Lambert, O.B.E. now r[illegible]d, but well known as the beloved padre of Christie Street, and Sunnybrook Veterans Hospitals, and Dominion president of the "Amps" Association, gave a worthwhile message. He urged everyone to carry their Bibles daily, read and study the words of Jesus, and challenged the young people to give their lives in service to mankind and try to follow in the steps of the Master. "Truly our God is marching on, and He needs loyal followers to continue His great work here on earth."

Mr. Lambert based his message on "The Unlimited Christ" and his great range of thought on a subject so dear to his heart held the close attention of his listeners. He closed with the motto of the Canadian Legion, "They served till death why can't we??"

Mrs. A. E. Baker, A.T.C.M., rendered "Sonata" as a prelude, and the "Trumpet Fanfare RCAF" was given by AC 1 Taylor and LAC. Shine, Trenton.

Eighty Veterans Attend

Over 80 veterans entered the church and were seated in a body at the right with several visiting Legions represented. Three Silver Cross mothers, Mrs. Oliver Stapley, Mrs. Frank Woods and Mrs. Harold Martin, had been previously seated immediately in front of the Legion group.

The District Zone and Branch Commanders of the Canadian Legion, held a special service at the cenotaph previous to the church parade, and Marmora Branch furnished a distinctive Color party, which officiated in the special service of "We Honor Our War [illegible]", followed by the Last P[illegible], and "Reveille", during the church service.

Reeve Harold J. Wells, of Stirling, gave a "Civic Welcome". Memorial flowers were placed in the floral pedestal vases by Mrs. Russell Stapley, in memory of her son, Ralph Stapley, who paid the supreme sacrifice on June 7th., 1944.

Rev. A. E. Baker, U.E., pastor of St. Paul's-Carmel churches, read the Bible lessons and ably presided over this memorable service.

Fine Choral Music

The junior choir seated in the gallery, sang for the first time from that position and gave a splendid rendition of "Come Loyal Hearts". Later Col. Lambert named them "The Royal Choir of Stirling".

The senior choir rendered "Festival Te Deum", which was a work of artistry in singing and they were highly complimented on this masterpiece.

Mr. William Reynolds sang "The Lord's Prayer", while Mrs. Baker rendered, as an offertory voluntary "Wake Awake, a Voice is Calling", and as a postlude, "The Son of God Goes Forth".

Approximately 100 charter members of St. Paul's were seated in a body at the left and after the rendition of the soldiers' hymn, "The Day Thou Gavest, Lord is Ended".

Awards Presented

A special ceremony was held when Rev. A. E. Baker read the names and Messrs. George Carlisle, clerk of the Session, and Harold Hagerman, recording steward, congratulated each recipient as they passed by, and made the presentation to them of the Silver Jubilee award.

Three special awards were made —to Rev. and Mrs. Sidney Lambert, of Toronto, who were guests on this auspicious occasion and to Mrs. Percy MacMullen, of Mount Pleasant,Rawdon, for her assistance to St. Paul's in this jubilee year.

At the close of the service, all were invited to the Sunday School rooms where the ladies of the church served tea and anniversary cake and everyone greeted Mr. and Mrs. Lambert and son, George.

Mr. George Carlisle gave a special message of appreciation to all who had helped to make the Silver Jubilee so successful and Mrs. MacMullen voiced her thanks for the unexpected gift.

Guests were in attendance from many nearby points.

In closing the Friendship Circle Mr. Lambert led the groups in singing "God Be With You Till We Meet Again".

Morning Service

St. Paul's was also filled to capacity for their special morning service commemorating 25 years of Union.

The service opened with Mendelssohn's organ prelude, "Finale 6th Sonata", and Rev. A. E. Baker officiated using a processional hymn.

Two lovely floral pedestal vases were dedicated by the pastor in a solemn service.

One, presented by Robert A. Patterson, in loving memory of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Patterson, and the other, presented by Mr. Will Pearson and family, of Camrose, Alberta, and Mrs. Catherine Hanna and family, of Provost, Alberta, in loving memory of their sister-in-law, the late Annie Carr.

The junior and senior choirs each rendered selections and the organ voluntary was by Chopin.

Dreams That Remain

Rev. A. E. Baker based his message on the theme "Dreams That Remain", and pictured to his audience the ideals and visions to be fulfilled in the United Church in the coming 25 years.

A special dedication service was held for all adherents of the church and two new members were received into church fellowship. The Sacrament of The Lord's Supper was followed by "Bread of the World in Mercy Broken", and this great service closed with an organ postlude, "Coronation".

Sunday, June 11th., is a day that will long be remembered in the history of St. Pauls United Church, Stirling, and great credit for the success of these Silver Jubilee services go to the Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Baker; to the choirs and to the church officials, who have worked untiringly to make this celebration memorable.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about Food . . . What's Cooking?

The most expensive eggs in the United States were sold last Fall in Red Wing, Minnesota. This is the town where the egg show was held and where the winning dozen brought $102.50.

You want strictly fresh eggs but they needn't cost you a hundred dollars a dozen, to make poached eggs benedict, the classical glamorized version of ham and eggs.

In the most expensive clubs and hotels poached eggs benedict are a staple daily dish. This fact needn't deter you from making your own poached eggs benedict and doing just as well as those turned out by high powered chefs.

Actually the dish is quite simple consisting of grilled ham and poached egg on a toasted English muffin, topped with Hollandaise sauce.

The Hollandaise sauce is tricky to make but with reasonable care and attention you can do it successfully. In the recipe below Hollandaise sauce is prepared in the top part of a double boiler. Special care should be taken to see that the water does not boil but merely simmers and that the sauce is stirred constantly until finished.

Poached Eggs Benedict. Serves 2

Beat 2 egg yolks slightly. Add 1 teaspoon lemon juice and 1 teaspoon water. Place in top part of a double boiler over simmering water. Be sure water does not boil and does not touch bottom of upper pan. Add 1-4 cup butter to beaten egg yolks. Beat constantly with wire whip or rotary egg beater until butter has melted. Then add another 1-4 cup butter and beat until melted. Continue to cook, stirring constantly, until sauce has thickened. Keep in a warm, not hot, place until needed. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Margarine may be used in place of butter.

Order enough raw smoked ham to cover four halves of English muffins. Ham should be cut 1-4 inch thick. If raw ham is not obtainable, use boiled ham. Broil ham under a moderate broiler flame 3 minutes on each side.

Split 2 English muffins and toast.

Prepare 4 poached eggs.

Place muffins in serving plates. Place a slice of ham on each muffin. Place eggs on ham. Spoon Hollandaise sauce over eggs. Serve at once.

ZION HILL

WMS Entertains Forty Members Of Auxiliary

Zion Hill—Zion Hill, W.M.S. recently entertained about 40 former members of their auxiliary in remembrance of church union.

Mrs. Ralph Sills had charge of the program and Mrs. Roy Sills prepared the music for the day. The program from the Missionary Monthly was followed throughout with Mrs. Percy Ray, Mrs. Wm. Ray and Mrs. Cecil Ketcheson, taking the various parts.

Mrs. J. G. Sills brought highlights from recent conference in Peterborough.

A resume of the W.M.S. and its inception on the Plainfield charge was given by Mrs. Percy Ray, stating the fact that the first organization took in the three appointments with Mrs. J. V. Ketcheson of Bethel, as president and Mrs. J. G. Sills as treasurer.

Later, this organization broke up into three parts, and Zion had as its president, Mrs. H. K. Denyes and Bessie Sills, (Mrs. Erle Denyes), as treasurer.

Names of deceased members were read and honored and several spoke of their connection with the society in years past and present.

Mrs. Clifford Ketcheson was called upon to accept a life membership given by her daughter Irene, (Mrs. D. E. Bateman of Tweed). The presentation of the certificate was made by Mrs. Laurison Ketcheson and a membership pin was presented by Mrs. William Ray on behalf of the society.

A lovely solo was contributed by Mrs. Vernon Hamilton "Do You Know the World is Dying for a little bit of Love." The accompaniment by Mrs. W. A. Cranston.

Dainty refreshments were served by the ladies and Mrs R. E. Bunnett, on behalf of the visiting friends, extended thanks.

County to Further Consider City's Suggestion of Settling Hospital Surcharge Issue

Recommendation of the Belleville City Council that a contractual relationship be established between the city and Hastings County Council with regard to hospital accounts, was met with a cold shoulder and hot discussion at the county council session yesterday.

After two hours' discussion the matter was laid over for further consideration. A decision is expected to be reached before the county body concludes the session.

The controversy between the city and county is the result of the assessment of a hospital surcharge on patients residing outside the city.

It was reported to council that the Board of Governors of the Belleville General Hospital had "lifted the surcharge."

This was denied and labelled a press error by Warden Clarke Rollins who presented the recommendation of the city body given the county public relations committee at a meeting with the city committee on Tuesday night.

Nothing Accomplished

The recommendation read "that if a contractual relationship can be established between the city and county, providing on behalf of each a satisfactory contribution for all parties from within their own limits unable to pay hospital charges, and provided further that such agreement declares a proper interpretation of such patients, then it would recommend to the Board of Governors of the hospital that all existing differential rates be terminated."

Deputy Reeve Lee Grills, Sidney township, member of the County Public Relations Committee, said that nothing had been accomplished last year with the city, and thus far "nothing but argument has ensued." He said the warden had fought an uphill fight and was discouraged over the outcome.

May Get Somewhere

However, Lee Grills felt that the county could get somewhere if it "keep on plugging."

"Surcharge amounts, based on a year's operation would amount to $23,000 cost to people outside the city," he said. "We apparently owe the hospital so much, but we cannot find out the true amount.

He wondered, he said, why reeves of the county had not been "jumped on" by their constituents, but he answered his own question by stating that the majority of the people who paid the surcharge did not know anything about it.

Warden Clarke Rollins charged that press reports had been misleading and that people thought the surcharge had been discontinued. The county public relations committee had asked for actual costs. He said that there was no dollar value between the hospital board and the city, and, he added, the county is in the "squeeze" between them to offset some of their expense.

"It is not our position to tell them what to spend on the hospital," he said

Grant Not Appreciated Claim

The warden charged that the hospital had not appreciated the $3.000 grant given it. He felt it had been ignored and not taken into consideration in any way.

The county hrd waited for the agreement on the sale of the Home for the Aged, and after negotiations had been completed, the city slapped on the hospital surcharge.

"All consideration was given the city with regard to the securing of the site for the new Home for the Aged," the warden said. He felt that if the site selected was closer to Belleville it would be better for all concerned. After negotiations were completed, the city showed no interest in subcontracts until a non-member of the council got some action.

Council Must Recommend

"The surcharge", he said, "was not intended to be taken off until the city council recommended it."

"This was done," he charged, "with a view to smoothing over the County Council till their opinion was aired."

He read a petition from the Rednersville Women's Institute asking the hospital to remove the surcharge. "The reply", he said, was "that every avenue had been explored to find a solution."

"The city of Belleville," the warden said, "is in a position to recommend that the surcharge be taken off. But it does not intend to take it off until we plead with them and sign a contract."

When the surcharge was put on, he continued, county council was not taken into consideration. "Now they want us to come back and sign a contract. We have no control over the hospital and if their revenues, and I understand the hospital is filled to capacity, do not meet expenses it is no fault of the county."

50 P. C. County Patients

The warden said the fifty per cent of the indigent patients of the county are in the Belleville hospital. "We must be careful in what we pay the city hospital in order to prevent repercussions from other institutions.

Personal - paid patients of the hospital, he went on, were 61 per cent outside the city, and this should be termed an asset. He doubted if the hospital could operate without this large percentage of paid patients from outside districts.

"The city," he charged, "did not seem to be sincere about taking off the surcharge and putting all patients on an equal basis. It wants everything and gives nothing. Belleville has long been noted as a railroad centre but it has other methods of railroading than on tracks."

Should Not Blame County, Claim

Warden Rollins said that he felt the only way to get anywhere is to have people of the county bring the matter to the city's attention through the medium of the county press. The County Council should not be blamed for everything and it is only fair that the responsibility should rest on the shoulders of those responsible.

Deputy Reeve Lee Grills, Sidney township, said "that he was of the opinion that Warden Rollins was disappointed over the issue. He had worked hard and it showed in his attitude.

"I agree with nearly everything he has said, but I do not agree with the way in which he says it," the Sidney official said. "We as a county council should not go to the city body with chips on our shoulders.

He was of the opinion that the giving of a grant to the hospital in the first place was not "good business." Right now, he felt, it is a matter of who moves first. Both are jockeying for position.

Must Get Together

"If this council and the city could get together and discuss matters, and if the city council could give us some idea as to what they want, I think we could do business," he said.

Warden Rollins said that the county was still willing to cooperate with the city, "but they have shown no signs of co-operation, just discrimination."

County Council was not in a position to reach a decision now, Reeve C. H. Buskard, Deloro, said. He felt that the body should be given 24 hours to consider the question.

At this point Warden Rollins injected the statement that the Medical Association of the city, "was upset over the surcharge to county patients. The association "he said "was holding a meeting and would forward a report to county council.

Many Had Benefits

Reeve A. Sauer, Deseronto, told council that the reason so many county residents were not aware of the surcharge was because they had benefits of the Blue Cross.

He suggested that the matter be brought to the attention of the Blue Cross and further suggested that that organization be advised to pay the hospital bill only, and the surcharge be debited to the patient separately. "In this way," he said, "county residents would be aware of what was going on."

"The Blue Cross," he said, "might take some action and shake an admonitory finger at the hospital 'naughty boys'."

After Reeve Wells, Stirling, suggested that the county council had never been able to get actual costs of indigent patients, the warden said they were not available, but the hospital was endeavoring to get some sort of system under way. "To his knowledge," he said, "it had no system of breaking down accounts."

Not Fault of Hospital

County Treasurer Ross Bailey at this point said that this was not the fault of the hospital but due to governmental requirements regarding audits.

He was sorry to see the fine relationships that existed between the county council and the hospital broken down, Reeve W. J. Davis, Bangor, Wicklow and McClure told council. "In those days when the Women's Auxiliary operated the institution we had no trouble. I suggest that the hospital be transferred back to the ladies so we can move back to better relationship.

"We in the north are not worried about Belleville," he went on." Peterborough and Pembroke are handy and a lot of our business is going there. Our people, in fact, are being urged to patronize these places."

Better Cool Off

"We had better cool off and consider this matter carefully" suggested Reeve George Spencer, Frankford. He reminded council that the Trenton Hospital would soon be in operation and would attract a lot of patients from the Belleville area and the county.

Warden Rollins stated that he, with a party, had toured the Trenton Hospital and was delighted with what he saw. "It is nice to know," he said, "that soon a number of county patients will be accommodated there and not be victims of the Belleville hospital surcharge.

Suggestion that the Ontario government be approached with regard to passing legislation prohibiting hospitals from making two separate charges for the same services, was voiced by Reeve Theodore Tryon, Bancroft.

"I don't think we (county) can make them (city) take off the surcharge. They are holding the whip and we are the horse," he said.

The warden, concluding the discussion said "Hastings County has never failed to pay its rightful bills. I hope you gentlemen have considered this matter from all angles. The county's public relations committee has been very co-operative and after due consideration, and the co-operation of this council, we might yet be able to arrive at a fair solution."

Marmora Wins Over Havelock By 14-4 Score

Marmora — High school examinations and thirteen strikeouts were more than enough to give Marmora a 14-4 win over Havelock in a Trent Valley Juvenile Baseball League game played at Marmora, Wednesday evening.

The Havelock squad, not at full strength due to the absence of some of their players who were studying for their examinations, found the slants of Havelock ace, Drummond, a big mystery, as he struck out 13 men while limiting the opposition to five hits. Several costly errors by Havelock added to the carnage as Marmora romped to the win.

Juvenile Offences Headed By Car Thefts Probation Officer Tells County Council

Car-theft leads the type of juvenile offences in the city, Probation Officer Ian McKinnon told county council in his first report to that body yesterday. Second in line is theft of money from milk bottles.

The work of the Juvenile and Family Court here has increased and court has been held in Bancroft, Tweed, Belleville and Deseronto.

Cases are heard, Mr. McKinnon said, with the least possible delay. no matter where the court is held.

"Amounts stolen from milk bottles are not large", he said, "but the culprits must be brought to task and the fact they cannot make their own rules of behavior pointed out to them.

Helped With Guidance

The court has juvenile probationers, boys charged only with delinquency. These are helped with guidance. There are exceptions however, and flagrant lawbreaking usually lands them in the Bowmanville Training School.

Domestic cases are on the increase, Mr. McKinnon said. In March there were 23, April, 20, May, 50 and to the present time in June, 20. These have occurred in Belleville, Tweed, Sidney township and Deseronto.

A number of cases have been those of husbands for non-support. He had been assisted by the various police departments in locating the erring husbands.

Some Report Weekly

There is also a number of probationers from the magistrate's court, some of whom report weekly and others monthly. A number of these men would never be in court had they had adequate jobs. His office has been instrumental in securing jobs for some of these men.

A number of reconciliations has been brought about, the probation officer said. He cited one case of a man who had been a heavy drinker for 15 years, and who habitually beat his wife in front of his children. He could have been given prison terms on two counts, but was brought to court and placed on probation.

Now, Mr. McKinnon said, he has given up drinking and is back at his job and happy with his family.

Travel Minister Predicts Another Big Tourist Year In Speaking At Hawkesbury

Hawkesbury, Ont., June 15 — (CP)— Ontario's travel minister Hon. L. P. Cecile, predicts another big tourist season for the province this year.

Without quoting any figures, he told a conference of eastern Ontario boards of trade yesterday that one of the signs that point to a heavy traffic is the fact that Ontario tourist resorts are showing a big increase in reservations.

In this town, 60 miles east of Ottawa, he pledged his support to a United States proposal to build a highway bridge across the St. Lawrence River between Prescott, Ont., and Ogdensburg, N.Y.

He also had something to say about Canadians who fly United States flags in preference to their own. He believed that Canadians not only should give their own flags a little more play but that U.S. tourists travelling in Canada, prefer to see it that way.

"They don't appreciate seeing their flag flying and not ours," he said.

As for the bridge, Mr. Cecile said it would be of great help to eastern Ontario communities and he "most certainly will back the proposal when it comes up."

F. R. Little of Ogdensburg, named by Governor Thomas Dewey of New York as vice-chairman of the Ogdensburg bridge authority, said a site for the bridge already has been selected and that [illegible] of costs now was in the [illegible] of completion.

Would add to Prosperity

The construction, he said, which would add to the prosperity of Ontario and New York, would be financed entirely by the United States, but it required the approval of Canadian authorities before the go-ahead signal could be given.

"This bridge cannot be built unless your governments agree to co-operate," the publisher of the Ogdensburg Journal said. "When our surveys are completed, this matter will be brought to the attention of the Dominion and Provincial government and we hope they will co-operate, for it will mean much to all of us."

For example, said Mr. Little, it would help the tourist trade. The present Prescott-Ogdensburg ferry service was "antiquated and limited," and not capable of carrying the "real volume" of tourist traffic available.

The conference agreed to give the proposal consideration and asked that its executive investigate the proposal and bring their findings before the conference's next session in Kemptville, Ont., next September.

Along with Mr. Cecile, immediate support of the bridge was voiced by Henry Walter, president of the Brockville, Ont., Chamber of Commerce, and by Donald A. MacDonald a representative for the Alexandria, Ont., Board of Trade.

Two Brothers Escape Jail, Take Cell Lock

Aylmer, Que., June 15 — (CP) — Police Wednesday night broadcast an appeal for district police aid in a search for two brothers who not only escaped from the four-cell town jail Wednesday night, but took the cell lock with them as well.

Police said Ernest and Martin Vilon, both of nearby Ottawa, were arrested on charges of creating a disturbance. During the jailer's brief absence, one of the brothers apparently broke out a wooden panel over the cell door, got through and then broke open the door of the cell where his brother was retained.

When the jailer got back, the pair as well as the cell lock were missing.

Falls Will be More Beautiful Than Ever Before

Ottawa, June 15 — (CP)—Old Niagara, the scenic wonder, the honeymooner's delight, is getting her face lifted and will end up more beautiful and more supreme in her beauty than ever before, the Commons was told Wednesday.

Stanley Knowles (CCF — Winnipeg North Centre) raised the suspect of peril to the falls' majestic beauty as the House approved a 50-year treaty with the United States that will permit permanent regulation of the diversion of Niagara waters and allow a substantial increase in power production.

Said Mr. Knowles in discussing what will happen when the engineers begin to tamper with Niagara's flow:

"We certainly need the power but I think all members would agree it would be a tragedy if our interest in the power were to lead us to the point of spoiling in any way this scenic wonder of North America."

To that External Affairs Minister replied:

"I can assure you that this will not be the case. We hope the contrary result will be achieved and that the treaty will make more secure and enhance the value of what is after all a great national asset . . . the scenic beauty of Niagara Falls."

Even more emphatic was Harry Cavers (L — Lincoln) who comes from the Niagara country. He said "This development will not detract in any way from the falls' beauty, in fact it will enhance that beauty."

From Rodney Adamson (PC—York West) came word of a permanent face-lifting that will stop a steady sabotage of Niagara's physical charms. Said he:

Will Preserve Beauty

"First of all, the treaty preserves the beauty of the falls. By a series of underwater weirs the flow of the falls is made continuous from one edge of the river to the other. The geological history has been that a great volume of the water was concentrated in a comparatively narrow trough and the edges of the falls were beginning to be left a little bit bare.

"This had an unfortunate effect in that as the volume of water over the narrow trough increased the erosion of the central part of the falls also increased. The centre part, particularly the Horse Shoe Falls, was eating back at the rate of many feet a year and intensifying the percentage of water which went over the narrow central trough.

"For that reason alone the work envisaged is desirable because it will not only stop the increased erosion but will preserve the beauty of the falls from now on."

Swoose Family Has Swooselets In Zoo Gardens

Philadelphia, June 15—(AP)—The swoose family has swooselets.

Announcing the double blessed event, zoo officials said today it is believed to be the first instance of coscorobas being hatched in captivity in the United States.

The coscorobas, a rare South American bird, was described as the closest approach to the mythical "swoose" — a swan-goose combination. Some scientists say it is a swan, other a goose, and a third group classifies it as a giant tree duck.

The only other record of coscoroba egg-hatching in a zoo was recorded in Britain shortly before the First World War.

Montreal, June 15 (CP)—Five men and two women, suspected of being members of the United States underworld, were arrested Wednesday in a surprise raid at nearby Plage Laval, Que.

Acting on a tip-off from Chicago relayed here through Toronto police, a squad of provincial police detectives swooped on a summer home at Plage Laval early in the morning and arrested the seven unidentified persons.

Police said the seven were at first believed to be linked with the May 25 shooting of R.C.M.P. Constable Alexander Gamman during a bank hold-up attempt here. Later they were transferred to the custody of city police.

Police said the seven are believed to be wanted in the U.S., one of the men being suspected of jumping a $40,000 bail recently.

Counterfeit Rings Active in N.Y. And Chicago

Washington, June 15 (AP) — A warning went out Wednesday that New York and Chicago counterfeit rings are turning out bogus money at the rate of $100,000 a month.

The disclosure came with the release of testimony by the United States Secret Service Chief, U. E. Baughman, who recently told a Senate appropriations sub-committee:

"More and more criminals are turning to counterfeiting. Additional men and equipment are urgently needed to fight this criminal activity to prevent cashiers and storekeepers from losing hundreds of thousands of dollars."

Baughman said most of the counterfeiters are the black marketeers who turned out phony ration stamps during the war.

The S. S. chief asked Congress to authorize 31 new agents to bolster his staff of 176 operatives in hunting down counterfeiters and forgers.

Tent Caterpillars Invade Large Sections of Ontario

Toronto, June 15 (CP)— Tent caterpillars have invaded large sections of Ontario and are stripping leaves from trees, the lands and Forests Department said Wednesday.

Latest outbreak of the destructive pests was reported east of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., in a 30-mile-wide stretch of forest land.

The department predicted the caterpillars would spread to the region surrounding Bracebridge and Huntsville. Earlier reports located infestations to the south in a 150 mile stretch from Parry Sound to Peterborough.

A third area affected is in the Gatineau Hills in Quebec, north of Ottawa, the department said.

Department specialists said the caterpillars are difficult to control over large areas, but landowners can effectively combat them with hand-operated sprays of DDT.

Frank MacDougall, Deputy Lands Minister for Ontario, said Monday the province cannot help with spraying because it is already fighting "far more destructive" forest worms and insects that do not die off every few years as tent caterpillars do.

Paris, June 15 —(Reuters) — France reduced her dollar gap by more than a half last year, Finance Minister Maurice Petsche said in a report Monday. France's trading account with the United States last year showed a debit of $857,000,000 compared with $1,737,000,000 in 1948.

More Money in Country Banks Than Ever Before and Average Account Higher Says Banker

Montreal, June 15—(CP)—J. U. Boyer, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association, said today that more Canadians have more money in the chartered banks than ever before and the average account is higher.

In an address to the annual meeting of the association, Mr. Boyer said that at March 31, 1950, the public had $6,971,000,000 in nearly 8 000,000 deposit accounts. This was an increase of $426,000,000 or 6½ per cent, in a year.

Savings were up $308,000,000 and current accounts $118,000,000. The number of accounts increased 365,000 between Sept 30, 1948, and Sept. 30, 1949, and the average deposit was $873 compared with $828 in 1945.

In savings alone, the average account moved up from $532 in 1945 to $637 in 1949.

Deposits Reach Record

Total deposits in chartered banks reached a record at March 31 of $8,307,000,000, a gain of 5½ per cent in a year. Bank assets also set a record at $8,838,000,000, an increase of nearly five per cent over those at March 31, 1949.

Current loans in Canada, an index of business activity, stood at $2,218,000,000 at March 31, up $192,000,000 in the year and more than double the corresponding figure for 1940.

Debits to individual accounts, an indication of the high level of business, reached $28,460,000,000 in the first four months of the year, compared with $27,040,000,000 in the same period of 1949.

Chartered bank investments in securities of all kinds were $4,453,000,000, up $168,000,000 over the same date last year.

Risk Money From U.S.

Referring to job-creating investment opportunities in Canada, Mr. Boyer gave as an illustration the $150,000,000 in venture capital being spent by 240 Canadians in oil development in western Canada, particularly in Alberta, this year.

Much of this risk money came from outside Canada and in its wake flowed jobs, people, new industries and the expansion of old industries, he said.

There will be $125,000,000 in new buildings in Alberta this year as a direct result of the oil investment—stores, houses, churches, schools—all making jobs and production.

"In the new discoveries of oil in western Canada," continued Mr. Boyer, "the mineral finds of Chibougamau, the iron and titanium of Quebec and Labrador, in the uranium of the great northwest, the gold and copper and other minerals of northern Ontario and Quebec, British Columbia and Newfoundland and also in the farms of the prairies, the forests and fisheries elsewhere in Canada, are opportunities almost fabulous. . ."

Central Mortgage To Build Septic Tank on Project

Stirling—After months of waiting, during which time proposals and counter proposals have been bandied back and forth between council and Central Mortgage Co., a final settlement has been reached on the question of sewage disposal for the 17 wartime houses north of the railway tracks.

An ultimatum from Dr. E. A. Carleton, local medical officer of health, that the water services would be cut off June 15th unless some action was taken to correct the present unsatisfactory system of sewage disposal, apparently brought matters to a head.

At the regular meeting of council held Monday a new agreement calling for the construction of a large septic tank in a field just north of the tracks used by the Central Mortgage Co., and payment to the village for its maintenance was tabled and Reeve Wells and the clerk were authorized to sign the same on behalf of the village. The present guarantee of yearly payments in lieu of taxes by Central Mortgage remains the same but the village will receive an additional $2 per house (when occupied) per month to provide for additional expenses incurred in connection with the project.

Work on the construction of the new system is expected to start at once and will be completed by September 1st.

Communications Tabled

Communications were tabled from the Ontario Department of Highways requesting a monthly statement of all monies spent on the village streets, from Kingston General Hospital re. an indigent account, and from the Department of Highways approving an expenditure of $3,500 on village streets in 1950.

Clerk Mallory reported receipt of a cheque for $424.99 from the Ontario Government as a grant to the Recreation Council and $516.99 in lieu of the one mill subsidy.

Estimate Received

An estimate of $2,000 was received from International Water Supply Co., on fixing the village well. Any action by council was deferred until a later date when a special meeting will be called to deal with the matter.

On motion of Councillors Bradshaw and Bailey the services of Cedardale Tree experts will be procured to trim a number of trees in the village.

The parking question came up for discussion and it was decided to have angle parking lines painted on the north side of Front and Mill Streets in the business section.

The purchase of a flag for the Community Building and the installation of a street light on the free parking lot north of C. Davidson's feed store were authorized. Several accounts were presented for payment.

Beyond The Law

Mary Imlay Taylor

As she spoke she turned to fling the letter into the fire but O'Hara caught her hand and herecovered it. Brought into contact thus, her face flashing with sudden anger against the man who had wronged her, and her warm wrist quivering in the sergeant's grip, he all but lost his head. Words rushed to his lips, foolish words of sympathy, which would have left him disarmed against this woman. Then he snatched the paper from her and retreated across the room, furious. Was he going to let this Circe be his ruin?

He turned on her cruelly. "You've no need to blame the girl the fault was Gharian's. He'd made love to her; he admits it."

She faced him defiantly, her face still flushed and that wonderful light in her eyes. "Oh, the fault never is altogether the man's m'sieur! You see, even in the grip of fever he remembered how he had treated his wife."

"The cry of a guilty conscience madame," O'Hara flashed back at her. "He had pursued this girl so openly that her brother shot him. She was a trained nurse doing her best to help the sick, and didn't know he was married until she heard it from him. He never spoke of a wife!"

She faced him, proudly still, but the color ran out of her face again and left it white. "He forgot me, m'sieur; that was easy! But she turned with that poignant gesture and pointed again toward the window. "There's a little black cross out there—alone and desolate. How could he forget that? Oh, mon Dieu, that I can't forgive!" Her voice broke. She hid her face in her hands.

O'Hara felt again that inexplicable dangerous rush of sympathy. but he held himself in hand. It was his business to try her, to probe the wound until he got the truth. "He was to blame, madame, I admit it; but the girl, the nurse, her end was pitiful, unjustified. You know that; she was innocent."

"Innocent?" she cried, all woman in her anger against the other woman, her voice rising with sudden penetrating passion. "No" m'sieur, she knew when she came here to care for him! She knew it all! She saw that little cross! I. Jean Gharian's wedded wife, am not afraid to tell the truth; she knew what he was!"

Suddenly a sound sharper than the wind shook the little cabin. The door of the inner room rocked under the rain of blows upon it. The sergeant turned quickly on the woman "whom have you there?"

"I found a young man here, m'sieu, searching my dead husband's room. I locked him in. There's no window, so he's safe unless he breaks down the door."

"Do you know who he is?"

She shook her head. "No but I am certain he has no right here."

Again the pounding shook the door and a voice called up on police for help. O'Hara flung aside the barricade, undid the bolt and the door fell open. A youth, blinded by the sudden flood of light after the darkness of his prison, almost staggered into the room, straightened himself and stared furiously at his liberator and the woman. He wore the rough dress of the voyageur, his shirt was open at the thoat, his disheveled black hair hanging down over his wild eyes, and his face distorted with passionate anger.

"You, you she-devil!" he cried panting his gaze fixed on Laure Gharian.

But it was the Sergeant who answered him, cold of voice. "So you're here, Nicky Creuse. I don't have to search for you."

As he spoke Laure caught his arm with a shaking hand. "Is that Creuse—her brother?" she whispered.

The young man heard, and stretching out his hand, he shook his finger in her face. "Yes!" he cried huskily. "I'm Nicky Creuse the brother of the girl you've dared to malign tonight! You murdered her, you. O'Hara," he panted catching his breath "I accuse this woman of the murder of my sister and Gharian."

Involuntarily Laure shrank toward O'Hara. There was mute appeal in the hand that caught at his sleeve and held it. Yet it was she who answered Nicky's accusation. "You don't know me," she said in her low voice. "You've never seen me in your life before! How dare you make this awful charge?"

"I know you. I heard you tell O'Hara. You're Gharian's wife!" Nicky grated fiercely, his accusing finger still pursuing her. "No one in the world but a jealous woman would have killed my sister. You're the kind to be mad with jealousy. You did it!"

Laure Gharian shrank farther back, using the sergeant as a shield, her trembling hands busy with his sleeve. "He's mad," she whispered with white lips, "quite mad! Take him away; he'll kill me!"

The young man answered with derisive laughter. "Mad? I'm not mad. She's guilty! Look at her O'Hara; she's guilty!"

"Stand back, Creuse," said the sergeant sharply, "and leave Mrs. Gharian to me. You've something to answer for, yourself. How did you come here? What are you doing here in Gharian's house? Why were you absent from your sister's funeral—to be here?"

Young Creuse drew back, panting, fury in his eyes. "She's got you and she'll break you!" he sneered. "Oh, she's beautiful she's the kind to plead off and let an innocent man hang for her!"

Laure's trembling hands still held O'Hara's sleeve.

"He'll kill me," she whispered "I can see it in his eyes. Don't let him kill me!"

Creuse heard her and gave her a scornful look. "So you're afraid you'll get your just deserts, are you?"

O'Hara made an impatient movement, his hand dropping involuntarily on the holster of his pistol. "Answer me Creuse," he demanded sharply. "What brought you here?"

The young man lowered his head casting another fierce glance at the woman from under scowling brows. "I came here to find a clue to my sister's death, to hunt down her murderer. I knew I'd find something here!" he cried bitterly. "And I did; I found her! Do your duty, O'Hara, arrest her. I charge her with my sister's death."

"On the contrary, I have my orders to arrest you, Nicky Creuse," the sergeant replied coolly. You're charged with the murder of Gharian and your sister."

"I charged with their murder?" Nicky cried furiously. "Bosh and claptrap! It's a foul invention of yours to shield this woman!" As he spoke he took step backward, facing Laure, and his hand went to his hip.

Instantly O'Hara's pistol was at his breast. "Up with your hands! None of that!" he said sharply.

"Oh, you'll find two guns!" Nicky sneered as the sergeant's free hand searched him quickly.

O'Hara put the big one in his pocket the smaller one he held in his hand, examining it, then he looked up at the younger man and laughed harshly. "The twenty-five automatic that did the deed, two chambers empty! A clumsy piece of work to get caught with the goods on you Creuse."

Nicky drew back scornfully, measuring his accuser from head to foot with flashing eyes, his French blood. boiling in rage. "You're a great detective! I found that gun here when I came —just where she'd hidden it!"

Again his accusing finger was shaken in Laure's face, but she said nothing, only her beautiful eyes fixed on the pistol with horror in their look.

O'Hara pocketed the weapon. "You'd better be quiet, Creuse. You're under arrest; I wouldn't advise you to talk. We can't start in this storm tonight, Mrs. Gharian, so we must trespass upon your hospitality. Tomorrow. if it holds up, my Cree will be here with the dogs. Tonight—" He glanced about him, wondering if there was any food except the rations he carried swung across his shoulders.

She seemed instantly to understand the thought in his mind. "There's food here. I'll get you some supper, but there's hardly a place for you to rest—" She hesitated, eyes still on the young man who accused her so furiously.

Nicky Creuse had fallen silent. He was leaning back against the log wall of the cabin with hands thrust into his empty pockets and his sullen eyes fixed moodily on the floor.

O'Hara smiled grimly. "I'm on duty. Creuse and I will bunk here. I hope the inner room has some comfort for you."

A shudder ran through her, she put her hand to her throat with a gesture of suffocation, and he saw again that look of wide-eyed terror that he had seen first at French Pete's. Suddenly he realized all it must mean to this woman; in that room her husband had suffered from his wounds. and the girl, Ninon Creuse, with her Cree had nursed him. From this house the two, Gharian and the girl, had gone out mysteriously to meet their tragic end.

O'Hara understood and for an instant, thought she swayed. Her eyes almost closed. Then she rallied, and lifted her head bravely. "Thanks, m'sieur," she said simply. "And now I'll make you a supper here."

He swung the food pack from his shoulder and spread out its contents, offering to help her; but she refused aid, moving about quickly composed and deft. In a little while the cabin was filled with the fragrance of hot tea and the sizzle of bacon. She spread the table and set out Gharian's stock of china with steady hands. In some way this intimate view of her, this aspect of the woman in the common tasks of home, stirred O'Hara's pulses with a new and puzzling emotion. She was a lovely creature, of course and she was friendless here, in the room with a man who had just accused her of murder and who stood now lowering at her, hatred in his glance. Still, that far from explained the difficulty O'Hara experienced in snatching his glance from her.

Unconsciously he moved between them, hiding her behind his broad shoulders. "Better sit down, Creuse, and take it easy .You'll have to eat and sleep just the same, until this thing is settled."

"I'll eat nothing she's touched!" the young man answered chokingly. "I've got a pack; it'll do for me. If you've a mind to eat with a murderess!" he shrugged, flinging himself upon a stoll and undoing his pack with hands that shook with anger.

O'Hara saw to it that he had no weapon concealed there, nor would he allow him a knife. Creuse fell upon his food and ate ravenously, much as a hungry dog might tear it apart, his back turned sullenly upon the woman.

Meanwhile, Laure was pouring out the hot tea and setting the crisp bacon on a little table near the stove. "Your supper is ready m'sieur," she said in her low voice, and turned toward them for the first time.

O'Hara was almost startled by her radiance; her pale face had grown flushed with the heat of the fire and her deep eyes glowed in the flame light. She had rolled up her sleeves and he saw the perfect symmetry of white arms; she seemed, at that moment, made for the presiding goddess of a home, and he thought with wonder and mystification of Gharian's treatment of her. Could the man have been insane?"

"He must have loved her at one time anyway!" he thought. What man could help it?

But he came grimly to the table. He held the scales of justice balanced between these two and he could not quite forget the object which lay hidden in his pocket; the thing that might yet damn one of them—or both. They ate in silence; he was hungry and the food was well cooked and daintily served. He noticed, too, that she tried to eat; at French Pete's food had choked her. Here she made a pretense of tasting it, lifting the cup of hot tea to her lips and trying to force it down her throat.

The heat flush faded from her cheeks and left her ivory pale. He saw she avoided looking at Creuse; but once her eyes turned in his direction with a flash of horror, and her hands shook so she had to lay down her knife and fork and give up her play at eating. It flashed upon O'Hara's once that she was hiding something; that she looked as women do who dread discovery. But there was no crevice where she could have hidden anything. The bare log walls of the hut defied concealment; there were but two rooms and Nicky already had searched them.

The storm had been increasing steadily. Now the wind seized the little cabin and rocked it; snow drove in through the crevices about the windows. One gust nearly extinguished the lamp upon the table, and the cold grew so intense that they shivered even in the small heated room. Then came a sound so sudden and so uncanny in that place that it made even O'Hara start; low at first it rose shrill and penetrating. like the cry of a little child in deadly pain or fear!

The woman started to her feet her trembling hands pressed close against her breast. "Oh, God!" she cried. "What's that?"

O'Hara tried to quiet her. "It's nothing—the wind howling over the snow barens north of us; we're in the wilderness."

"No!" she cried. "No, it's like the voice of a little child!" Suddenly she covered her face with her hands and sank down, weeping bitterly. "My little child died here!" she sobbed.

She was all woman now, lovely and distraut, a mother. O'Hara his jaw jutting grim, rose involuntarily and thrust his big figure between her and the sneering, implacable Creuse. It was not fitting that her enemy should see her thus disarmed.

But he had no need to think of Creuse as dangerous at that moment. The young man, all in a moment had staggered to his feet His teeth were chattering. "My God, did you hear that!" He gasped thickly. "It was Ninon's voice! O'Hara, if you don't get me out of this accursed place, I'll go mad!"

O'Hara looked coldly at him, dispassionately, shielding the weeping woman. "So!" he remarked deliberately, "it haunts you, Nicky?"

"Yes," he cried bitterly, "just as it haunts her!"

The sergeant seized him by the shoulder and almost shook him "Sit down!" he thundered. "Hold your vile tongue and mind your business; you're my prisoner, Creuse!"

But Creuse fought to break away. "Listen!" he cried hoarsely. "Listen, I've got a right to defend myself. She was here before I came! I found her footprints at the door and came in to search. I'd stumbled on her pistol, hidden there—under her pack — when she caught me and locked me in the inner room."

"A likely tale; save it for evidence, Creuse," O'Hara gibed.

"Mon Dieu, listen!" the young man took an unsteady step toward the table where the weeping woman sat. "Look up, Laure Gharian and answer me! Dare to say it again to my face, that I was here first!"

O'Hara waited; for an instant he stood silent, expectant, looking at Laure, waiting for her answer to Nicky's passionate challenge. There was a terrible pause broken only by the shrill wailing of wind across the frozen wastes, the rattling of the door and windows, the rocking of the tiny house.

Then she lifted her white face and her beautiful tear drenched eyes and looked at them both for one long moment; she rose to her feet and faced them, quivering from head to foot. "You're both my enemies!" she whispered white-lipped, "but the good God is my judge!" And she turned, went quickly into the little inner room and shut the door.

Nicky laughed bitterly, mirthlessly. "You see, m'sieur? She's guilty."

"Sit down," O'Hara commanded sternly, "you gain nothing by accusing her. It's an old trick, Creuse, for a guilty man caught with the goods to try to fasten his crime on another. I've been down over the trail. Why did you take to the ice in the creek and then leave tracks in the snow beyond? A bad bit of evidence against you, that!"

The young man stared at him his face whitening suddenly. "You're trumping up a charge against me, O'Hara, and it's false false as hell! I did go down on the creek, but I went today, before snow fell, and I tried to track the prints there, her footprints! I was too late to see the dog team that fetched her here; it was going back beyond the creek."

O'Hara's involuntarily start made Creuse turn sharply on him "You know there was a team there, must have been! No one could cross that wilderness on foot. It took her here the day of the murder; you find that team and the man who drove it, and you'll see!"

The sergeant smiled cruelly. "You shouldn't admit that you went down that creek, Nicky, and had a dog team waiting!"

Young Creuse swore below his breath. "You'll hang me yet to save her!" he cried bitterly. "I've nothing more to say."

Ebbie Goodfellow Signs Contract To Coach Hawks

(By The Canadian Press)

Ebenezer (Ebbie) Goodfellow Wednesday signed a three-year contract to coach Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League.

The new Hawk pilot, who managed St. Louis Flyers of the American Hockey League for the last two years, succeeds Charlie Conacher, who resigned to devote his time to business affairs at his home in Toronto.

Goodfellow, 44, is a native of Ottawa, where he played amateur hockey as a youngster. He was a star in the NHL for 14 years, playing centre and defence for Detroit Red Wings. He won the most valuable player trophy in 1939-40 and was twice chosen for all-star honors. Later he served as assistant to Jack Adams, manager of the Red Wings, who won two successive Stanley Cups.

Last season Goodfellow's St. Louis team finished third in the league but lost out in the playoffs to Indianapolis, which went on to capture the post-season championship.

A Toronto meeting July 22 may decide whether Canada's five high-priced senior hockey league stay within the pale of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, CAHA President Doug Grimston intimated Wednesday at Vancouver.

The CAHA will meet with representatives from the five — Western Canada, Ontario Association, Quebec, Maritime and Cape Breton—to iron out details of the contract clause introduced to senior hockey during the annual meeting at Banff, Alta.

The contract system proposed by the CAHA is that body's answer to a "new deal" requested by these leagues.

Their specific complaint was that under the old system players were costly to obtain and maintain, yet they had no permanent hold on them.

The CAHA will insist on a termination clause in the contract system. The leagues probably will insist on a contract giving their teams protection in holding players from one season to another.

An all-time crowd of 24,809 for sports in Canada apart from horse racing, saw the English Internationals defeat Manchester United 4-2 in an exhibition soccer game Wednesday night.

It was the best exhibition of football ever seen in Toronto.

The two old country teams dazzled the huge crowd at the Canadian National Exhibition Sports Field with a brilliant exhibition. It was a "prestige" game for both clubs and the spectators were kept in an almost continual uproar as they played it for keeps throughout the 90 minutes.

Kemp Meredith, Toronto racing driver, was taken unconscious to hospital Wednesday night after his automobile turned over in a race at Toronto's Speedway Park.

Driving in an open heat for European stock cars, Meredith was pinned in his seat when the car rolled over four times. His brother Paul was driving in the same race.

N.E. Lassies Handed First Defeat of Year

Trenton Spotless Cleaners handed the Northern Electric Ladies Softball team their first defeat of the season last evening as they pounded out a 21-17 win in a regularly scheduled Lakeshore Ladies Softball League game played at the Alemite field.

It was the first home appearance of the Northern team and appropriate opening ceremonies were held. Mr. Fraser F. Fulton, manager of the Northern Electric Company threw the first ball.

The locals used 12 players in a vain attempt to halt the carnage and preserve their unbeaten record but a five-run outburst in the top of the seventh chilled any hope of victory.

Line up: Trenton: Whitley ss; Carswell cf; B. Robertson lf; J. Robertson 3b; B. Jeffery c; Woodward 1b; Twigg p; Thornhill 2b; M. Jeffery rf.

Northern Electric: B. Reeves c; B. Young 1b; I. Seguin 2b; K. Mills cf; S. Day rf; B. Robson ss; M. Hillier lf; H. Reeves 3b; A McGrath p; P. Colden p; J. Seguin c; A. Acheson lf.

Chatham Voters Against Sunday Sport by 374

Chatham, June 15 (CP)—Electors of Chatham Wednesday voted against Sunday sport by a majority of 374 in a light vote, 2,400 opposed Sunday sport, with 2,026 in favor. Only 37.8 per cent of the eligible voters cast their ballots.

City council sent the question to the electorate after the Ministerial Association had protested against Sunday afternoon skating at the arena which they claimed interfered with Sunday School attendance.

Ministers and laymen campaigned strongly against the by-law which they interpreted as meaning a question as to whether the city favored commercialized sport. There was no organized campaign for the by-law.

FRANKFORD

Sidney Softball Loop Stages Double Header

Frankford— (Special) — The Sidney Softball League was officially opened with a double header staged Tuesday night in Frankford Lions Park.

In the first game Wallbridge edged Frankford 15-14. In the final frame, with the tying and winning runs on base and the clubs heavy hitter at the plate, an attempted steal of home by Roberts backfired to nip a five run rally just short of victory.

Latta and Shorey hurled for the winners with Ketcheson doing the catching. Frankford used three hurlers, Courtney, Hearns and Bates with Roberts doing the receiving.

In the second game Frankford Legion trounced an under strength Johnstown squad 20-12. Johnstown, though minus several of their stars, carried on anyway.

Huffman went all the way on the hill for the Legion, with Montgomery and Chard doing the catching.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

We met Broda for the first time last evening. He is a likeable cuss, as are the rest of the Leafian gang, friendly as the family kitten and possessed of a warm personality that is anything but forced. Broda is a natural. There is nothing of the fakir about him. You know him exactly ten seconds after he vises your hand in a strong clasp. He smiles, speaks, and you've had it.

"No," he said, "I'm not through with hockey yet. Figure I have at least one good season left. After that, well — young Rollins can take over. He'll be groomed with the Leafs next winter and probably play several games between the posts."

The Turk figures Danny Lewicki and Armstrong are surefire major league material. "Terrific" was his description. "They've got what it takes to make the majors. Horton and Hugh Bolton will be up there too, next year. What a foursome for the Leafs."

"There is" quoth the Turk (Broda, that is) "nothing like getting out in the country where one can throw aside his girdle, unlax, and bring happiness to the best guys in the world, the kids."

The Turk looked over his brood (Harry Watson, and Cal Gardner will like that) as they sat and quaffed beakers of ginger ale in the hotel prior to being dined and hero-worshipped by guys their own age and then going on to display their diamond calisthenics at the Exhibition Grounds.

Broda and company had a busy day. They visited the OSD, the hospital and entertained a gang of youngsters and oldsters on the Market Square (and had they been a half-hour earlier, they would have met triple the number) and signed autographs until their right and left flippers were pen-drunk.

They liked Belleville. They liked the folks here. They liked the friendliness and hospitality accorded them. The well-known hockey stars, after all, are only human, and in their role as themselves and softball players or baseball players, are just plain everyday fellowmen enjoying a huge kick out of life.

They dislike being fawned over. They don't like to live or appear in reflected glory of their hockey past or present. They like to be just ordinary Joes who, after all, are just common guys, as the phrase goes, and utterly dislike being placed on a pedestal because of their hockey ability.

But he did not want to talk shop. He was on holiday and wanted to enjoy himself. He did as did the rest of the Broda brood. He got a huge "kick" out of his visit to the Ontario School for the Deaf and the hospital. And he loves kids. And the kids like the Turk because he wins them over the minute he meets them. He's that kind of a "guy".

We liked the Turk just because he is Broda. He doesn't like to talk of his exploits between the National Hockey League posts, although when reminiscing with his Leafian pals his eyes light up as he relives the ice-lane past.

Conny Smythe could not have picked a better good-will ambassador, although the Turk is not travelling in that capacity. Indirectly he is doing the little major a good turn, not to mention Mr. Labatt for whom he works.

More Brodas in the sports world would not do any harm.

Tonight the undefeated Sixardee team expects to extend its winning streak at the expense of the Cannifton Clippers in a Belleville and District Baseball League fixture at the Exhibition Grounds. The air laddies are riding high at the top of the loop heap and figure they can take the Clippers in their stride. But Lawrenson's lads might throw the well-known monkey wrench into the smooth-working Sixardee machinery. They are not feeling too well after the 13-9 defeat at the hands of the Belleville Club the other night, and it just might happen that an upset is in the making. In any event it should be a good pastime. Starts at 8:30.

Loop Enjoying Best Pennant Race in Years

(By The Associated Press)

The International League is en-oying one of its best pennant attles in years.

Only five games separate the ixth place Jersey City Giants rom the pace setting Rochester ed Wings.

The Wings and Giants divided doubleheader Wednesday, one f three played. A total of 25 ome runs were socked during e three doubleheaders and one ingle game.

Jersey City crushed the Wings 4 in the first game, pulling out with a seven-run blast in e seventh and final inning ainst Bill Reeder who went the stance. Marv Blaylock featured e uprising with a three-run omer.

The Wings pounded out a 15-8 ctory in the nightcap as Del ilber, Lou Ortiz, Russ Derry and Ed Nietopski led the bombardment with home runs.

The second game was marred by a free-for-all in the third inning. Red Wing Larry Ciaffone was "dusted off" by Giant pitcher Roger Bowman. Ciaffone grounded out but ran towards the pitchers box instead of first base and began slugging it out with Bowman. Players rushed into the melee and police were forced to restore order.

Springfield's second-place Cubs remained a game behind the Wings by splitting with Toronto Maple Leafs. The Leafs took the first game 6-5 scoring three runs in the last frame after the Cubs had tallied four in the top half on home runs by Ed Ehlers and Carm Mauro.

The Cubs grabbed the nightcap 5-3 in 11 innings. Jack Wallaesa homered for one of the runs in the 11th.

Syracuse moved from fourth to third place 2 1-2 games off the pace by scoring a 6-4 victory over Montreal Royals.

Baltimore Orioles dropped from third to fourth by splitting with Buffalo Bisons. The Orioles took the first game 14-1 but lost a 16-12 slugging match in the finale.

Recent Ineffective Work Of Fireman Page Has Yankee Fans, Manager Stengel Worried

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

What has happened to Fireman Joe Page of 1949 — the greatest relief pitcher ever?

The recent work of New York Yankees' bullpen artist reminds fans of the Page of 1948 — an in-and-outer who flopped after a glorious pennant year in 1947.

Highest priced of all Yankee pitchers with $30,000-plus, Page failed the world champs Wednesday for the second day in a row.

Allie Reynolds was one out away from victory Wednesday when the White Sox caught up with him. With two gone in the ninth and New York leading 2-1, a single and a walk by pinch hitters Floyd Baker and Luke Appling and a single by Chico Carrasquel tied the score.

Manager Casey Stengel waved in Page. Joe's third pitch to Dave Philley sailed into the lower left field seats for a three - run homer and the ball game.

Page's failure cost the Yanks a chance to gain on Detroit. The Tigers clung to their half-game lead despite an 8-2 defeat by Philadelphia.

Trout Handed First Loss

The Athletics handed Dizzy Trout his first loss with Elmer Valo and Eddie Joost hitting home runs.

Five homers featured a night game between Cleveland and Boston, won by the Indians 7-3. Larry Doby, Al Rosen and Lou Boudreau were the long-distance clouters for Cleveland, Vern Stephens and Ted Williams for the Red Sox.

Conrad Marrero held St. Louis to four hits as Washington thrust the Brownies into the cellar with a 4-1 victory. The Senators had lost seven straight to St. Louis.

National League activity consisted of one night game. Rain washed out the rest of the schedule.

The onrushing St. Louis Cardinals racked up their seventh straight win behind Max Lanier. The chunky southpaw let down the Phillies 4-2 with six hits as St. Louis stretched its lead to 3½ games over idle Brooklyn.

Two runs in the eighth broke a 2-2 tie, handing Ken Heintzelman his fifth loss.

Kingston Leafs Play 9-9 Tie With Brockville

Brockville, June 15 (CP)—Kingston Leafs and Brockville Memos tied 9-9 in a Central Ontario Baseball League game here Wednesday night that was called after six innings because of darkness. The Kingston team was an hour late in arriving.

Brockville had nine hits off two Kingston pitchers, including a perfect night for the Negro catcher Bob Turner. Turner hit four for four, including two homers and a double.

Leonard, pitching for Kingston yielded six hits, four walks and had one strikeout before being replaced by Rank in the third. Rank gave up three hits and a walk, with no strikeouts. Proctor, going the route for Brockville, was nicked for eight hits and gave four walks, but struck out four.

Batters Show No Respect For Reputations

(By The Canadian Press)

The batters showed no respect for pitching reputations Wednesday night when Stratford Nationals and Kitchener Legion hooked up in a Senior Intercounty Baseball League game.

Veteran Arnie Jarrell of Stratford faced young Yank Lipka of Kitchener to start the game. Both are rated well up among the loop's moundsmen, and the spectators settled back to watch a pitchers' duel.

Neither lasted three innings. By the time the game was over, eight pitchers had paraded to the mound and Stratford had nosed out Legion by 11-10 in a wild, see-saw battle.

George Boniface paced Stratford at bat with three hits, including a triple. He scored the winning run in the bottom of the ninth. Vern Richardson toiled the last four innings for Stratford and got credit for the win.

In London, the Majors scored all their runs in the eighth inning to best Guelph Maple Leafs 7-1. Waterloo Tigers increased their league lead by defeating Brantford Red Sox 5-2 at Waterloo.

The London-Guelph game started out as a pitchers' game. Jack Cabot of Majors and Bill McCarthy of Maple Leafs pitched beautiful ball until the fatefull eighth, when five hits, a walk, to errors and a wild pitch gave London their tallies.

Cabot went the route for Majors to take down the victory. He allowed but three hits.

Righthander Joe Yosurak chalked up his sixth win without a loss for Waterloo Tigers when he set Brantford Red Sox down 5-2. Yosurak spaced eight Brantford hits, one a home run by Tommy McGrattan in the fifth. McGrattan also walloped a triple for Brants.

First baseman Red Kane was the batting star for the winners, banging out a two run homer in the fourth. Billy Gibbs, who started for the Sox was charged with the defeat.

Gerry Kesserling Outclasses Field In Tourney

London, Ont., June 15 (CP)—Gerry Kesselring, 21, of Kitchener, outclassed a field of the best amateur golfers of Ontario Wednesday in the London Hunt Club Invitation Golf tournament when he took fire to shoot 137, three under par for the 36 holes.

With Nick Weslock of Windsor Essex breathing down his neck after the morning round, Kesselring shot a 69 in the afternoon leaving Weslock behind. Nick fired a 71 in afternoon to go with his morning 69.

Hitting the greens with excellent iron shots, for which he is noted, Gerry didn't show a six in his score and shot only five fives in the 36 holes.

The top 30 finishers in the tourney, including ties, are eligible for selection to Ontario's team in the Willingdon Cup competition. They are invited automatically to the next Willingdon test at Toronto Thornhill June 26.

Phil Farley of Toronto was third with 144 and Bobby Fair of Toronto carded 145.

Playing a steady game all day long Kesselring made sure of the title when he closed with birdie threes on the last two holes of the course. Weslock who played a few threesomes behind Kesselring didn't have a chance to catch him after that.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT
(For Hugh Fullerton, Jr.)

New York, June 15 —(AP)— Writing about Ben Hogan and, at the same time, remaining on good terms with the wonderful litile golfer has become something of a problem.

The man who made the greatest comeback in sports history by winning the United States Open championship in a play-off at Merion last Sunday does not wish his old friends of the press to mention his legs—crushed in an auto-bus crash in Texas 17 months ago.

After he won the title he was emphatic, not to say sulphuric, in his demand that the assembled members of the press, "lay off" his legs.

A Tall Order

But great as was their admiration for the slight Texan, both for the magnificent golf he had just played and for the courage he had exhibited, the reporters knew there was no possible way of capturing the magnitude of Hogan's feat without telling of the dreadful injuries he had overcome.

So they wrote it, and Ben doubtless became a little more angry each paper he picked up. Why he feels so strongly about the matter is not clear, for there never was a suggestion that he wished or would accept sympathy, nor that he would cop an alibi in the event of defeat.

Long experience with athletes does not recall a close parallel. To be sure, there have been those sweaty heroes who smiled through their pain and said "it dont amount to nothing." But never one before this who became downright red-necked at the suggestion he wasn't in prime physical condition.

Outside this strange fixation, which is enough to get him tossed out of the A.I.U. (Athletes' International Union), the bantam who came back from the shadows is a more engaging personality than he was before the accident.

He smiles more readily, exhibits a new-found sense of humor and generally acts like a man who is happy to be alive— as indeed, he probably is.

Old Strategy

He might even be a greater golfer than he was before he was injured. His stroking could not have improved, but during those months in an El Paso hospital he might have thought up some refinements in golfing strategy.

In mind is the way he went about beating Lloyd Mangrum and George Fazio in their play-off. Nowadays the touring money pros almost invariably "go for the flag' on every approach shot. They know that pars are not good enough—that it takes birdies in large numbers to win nowadays.

But Ben in the play-off went back to the old formula—made famous by Bobby Jones — of merely shooting for the green and making certain he hit it. He knew Merion was dangerous, so he shot for his pars and got 15 of them. It was brainy golf and it paid off.

Turk Broda's All-Stars Win Against Similar Aggregation From City League by 8-3 Score

Playing before a standing-room-only overflow crowd at the Belleville Fair Grounds last evening the Belleville Commercial Softball League all-stars, overcame a bad case of first inning jitters to give Turk Broda's National Hockey All-Stars a good game as they went down to an 8-3 defeat.

The locals committed five costly errors in the first two frames that gave the hockey-gone-softball National Leaguers a six-run lead and the ball game.

Both teams were introduced at the plate prior to the commencement of the game.

The white-and-blue clad hockey stars were reinforced by former Montreal Maroon ace "Toots" Holway and a Leaf of yesteryear, Jim Fowler. Both men, who reside in Belleville, saw action in left field.

Diamond action was a perfect foil for the off-the-diamond antics of Cal Gardner, whose every move drew comment over the loud speaker system and laughs from the fans.

Mackell's single in the first inning and two subsequent errors, gave the visitors a two-run lead. Broda started the parade in the second inning by getting a life on an error. Fowler walked, and pitcher Harris went down pitcher to first as the runners advanced. Harrison singled, Mackell got on on an error, and Gardner doubled as four runs poured over for the National League. Smith struck out and Watson went down second to first to end the inning with the damage being done.

Garner Two in Sixth

The Commercial League all-stars garnered two runs in the sixth on an error to Gardner, a double by John Hurrie, a fielder's choice and a long fly to the outfield. They added their final counter in the eighth on singles by Spafford and Ed Donovan.

The National League All-Stars counted their final two runs in the ninth on a walk, a double, and an error.

The hockeyists left only four potential runs stranded while the locals let 10 possible counters wither on the vine.

Don Harris of the Beaches Major Fastball League in Toronto went all the way on the hill for the winners, striking out six, walking one, and being tagged for five hits and three runs.

Bob Hunter started for the Commercial League and in three innings walked one, and gave up three hits for six runs as his mates booted the ball behind him. Lum Carson went the rest of the way for the locals limiting the All-Stars to two hits, and two runs.

Joe Nolan Helps Petes Defeat Mimico by 10-9

(By The Canadian Press)

St. Catharines Athletics, long a power in Ontario Lacrosse Association combat, are showing that the 1950 version of the Athletics rates a place right up there with its predecessors.

Athletics continued their winning ways Wednesday when they defeated Weston Lions 19-15.

The high-scoring McNulty Brothers paced the winners. Joe netted five goals and Jimmy got two. Frank Bird scored three times, with Jim McMahon, Ken Croft and Don O'Hearn adding a pair apiece.

Gimpy Gray was the big gun for Weston, potting four counters. Jesse James, Ted Downer and Pop Chard had two each.

At Brampton, the Excelsiors completely outclassed Toronto 27-7, with Browning and Severson each scoring six goals in the slaughter.

Graham got four counters, and Ferri, Cruikshanks, Ashbee, and H. Madgett each scored two.

Needham performed well for Toronto in a losing cause, and paced their scorers with four goals. Campbell, Facto and Howse garnered one each.

Peterborough Lumberjacks edged Mimico Mountaineers 10-9 at Mimico in the third game of the night. Nolan and Kinna each scored three goals for Peterborough and Ashbee had two, with Vitarelli and Lewis getting the others. For Mimico, still winless after four tries, George Hayes scored three goals. Jack Japasky had two and A. Dixon, McPhail, Hewitt and Rankin got the others.

Jake LaMotta Actually Cheered By Gym Fans

Monticello, N.Y., June 15—(AP)—Jake Lamotta perked his ears. Somebody actually was cheering.

"J for Jake. L. for Lamotta."

"Yea, yea. Jake Lamotta."

The Bronx bull usually hears "cheers" starting with B and ending with ooooooooo. An old Bronx custom.

Jake seemed a little out of place in the Monticello high school gym, his emergency indoor training quarters. Rain had forced him downtown from his swanky retreat at Lake Kiamesha.

Some 300 'teen-agers watched the middleweight champion of the world—except Pennsylvania.

A wiry little grey-haired man stepped to a microphone. He was Mike Wittenberg, Jake's "press representative."

"You lucky people," he said, "are going to get a chance to see the champion.

"Foist boy to box with the champ is Jimmy Taylor."

Six or eight large mats, normally used for tumbling and wrestling in gym classes, provided a makeshift ring. No ropes. No canvas. No nothing. Just Jake, three sparring partners and his handlers.

A right by Jimmy Taylor shook up the champ. He made Al Fischer and Leon Daughtry, his other sparmates, pay for the punch.

Later, Jake talked about his June 28 title defence at the polo grounds against ex-champ Rocky Graziano.

"Am I worried about Graziano? Naw.

"Of course, he might get lucky with a punch and rip open an eye. I know Rocky has a terific right if he can land. But he telegraphs it."

Edmonton Grads, Perennial Champs Hold Reunion

Edmonton, June 15—(CP)—The team that was finally beaten by too much success after ruling the women's basketball world for almost two decades — Edmonton Grads—holds a reunion today.

Ten years ago the Grads, lacking support, packed up their basketball gear. They had won so often—96.2 percent of the 522 official games they played in Canada, the United States and Europe from 1915 to 1940—that even their Edmonton fans lost interest.

Some 35 former Grads, including nearly every girl who played on any of the championship teams fom 1921, when they first won the Canadian title, until 1940, when the world championship team disbanded—will again meet at a banquet tonight. They will go on a picnic Sunday.

The celebration marks the 35th anniversary of the club's founding.

Most of the girls are married. About one-third of them have settled in other cities—at Vancouver, Victoria, Winnipeg, Kitchener, Montreal, Calgary, Banff and Lewiston, Idaho.

Riding hard on them tonight will be the coach of these famous Grads teams which were a household name to most of this generation—J. Percy Page.

The Grads were graduates of the Edmonton Commercial High School. In their first six years they were Alberta champions. In 1922 they won the Canadian title and the following year took the world crown against Cleveland. Then the Grads wrote basketball history.

During their 25 years the Edmonton girls lost but one provincial championship and after winning the world title they never relinquished it.

In 1940 they were awarded permanent possession of the Underwood Trophy.

The Grads won four successive Olympic titles—Paris 1924; Amsterdam, 1928; Los Angeles, 1932 and Berlin. 1936—and never lost a match in the process.

After watching the Grads in action during an international series, Dr. James Naismith, inventor of basketball, said: "The grads have the greatest team that ever stepped out on a basketball floor."

TOM GARD'S NOTE BOOK

Carrying out a good idea will not necessarily add beauty to the appearance of your property. The result depends entirely upon the use made of the idea. This fact was clearly driven home to me on a recent trip through the Niagara peninsula. I have seen old wheels used to good advantage about a home but this particular fellow had gone overboard. Buggy wheels had been buried hub deep and used for a fence on three sides of the property. Two heavier ones formed a gate; another reclined on the top of the grape arbour—and so on. On the other hand, there is nothing quite as rustic and pleasing as an old wheel when it is properly blended into the landscape.

Binder Wheels

Home on the farm my mother used a large drive wheel from the old binder as a flower bed. After it had completed its service in the grain field, the hub and spokes were knocked out. The steel rim held the rich earth added to make an attractive bed for the petunias. The same type of wheel can be used to make a small garden pool.

Roll Out The Barrel

Yesterday was spent visiting a good friend who is an ardent gardener. I found him spraying his rambler roses so we retired to the shaded terrace for a friendly discussion of the new garden sprays coming on the market. I was so intrigued by the barrel chairs he had recently made that insects and insecticides slipped completely from my mind. They were easily constructed and the idea is passed along to you.

Rose Canes

Just before leaving we did get back to the subject of roses and I discovered how he made such a neat job of fastening up the canes of his climbers. Fairly heavy pieces of wire (about eight inches long) were bent into the shape of large staples. The ends of the staple prongs were then bent downward, forming a hook. The staple portion was slipped around the cane and then the two hooks caught over a slat in his lattice fence—so simple, but effective. Never more will there be difficulty in lowering my canes for winter protection.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You may think bridge is just another card game when you start playing it. But not for long. By the time you get around to the rule of 11 you begin to sit up and take notice of its science.

Suppose the clubs in a deal are shown in these hands:

NORTH
♣Q 6 4 3

WEST ♣J 9 7 5
EAST ♣K 10 8

SOUTH
♣A 2

South is the declarer at a four spade contract. Opening lead must come from your partner in the west. He starts out with the lead of his club five. Study what it means to you in the east seat.

Declarer reaches over into the dummy north and plays the six of clubs. This you cover with the eightspot. Do it confidently. It should be apparent to you that south has only one higher club; the ace.

How do you know this? By the rule of 11. When partner leads a small card assume it is the fourth from his highest in that suit. Subtract from 11 the number you see on the card he has led.

This tells you how many higher cards are in the hands outside of the leader. Deduct his led card (five) from 11 .Answer is six. North and east and south can have only six higher clubs.

Sitting east you see two higher than the five in dummy north and three higher in your own hand. So, south can have only one club higher than the five. It is now only a mater of how high it is.

By the time you reach the stage of willingness to learn the rule of 11 you know other things. One of the other things you are by then familiar with is what a partner will not lead away from.

This leading away from business is a lesson in itself. But if you are not yet familiar with it I will give you a hint. It is this: Against a suit contract, don't lead away from an ace or a king.

So, against a suit contract, what else does partner say when he leads a small card? He denies having the ace or king of the suit.

Some show defiance at bridge as a science.

Movie Column

By HUBBARD KEAVY
(For Vacationing Bob Thomas)

Hollywood, June 15 (AP)— If Spike Jones is right, the average audience wants to see the first fiddler fall into the bass drum. And the harpist bopped with a bat during her most serious moment and the tenor the victim of a belch.

The sum of $25,000 a week, most weeks, is what Spike Jones of the musical nonsense circuit is paid for entertaining, so he probably is right.

The basis of the comedy in his musical depreciation revue is he says "what you would like to see happen."

Thinking About TV

Spike, who has made the washboard, the cowbell and the revolver instruments in his band, spends a great deal of his time wondering what will make people laugh.

Like other entertainers Spike is thinking about television. He has it pretty well figured out. He won't use any topical jokes "because I expect my films to be playing 10 years from now."

To cut out the middle man and other costs, he will make his own TV films and own them outright. The comedy formula will be the same—audibly and visibly funny.

Just Nonsense

"We can do so much on film," Spike explains. "For instance, I will have a foreign legion stunt. The officer commands the men to march and they walk right into a pool of water. All you will see after they disappear is their hats floating on the water. Then a fellow staggers along who is thirsty he drinks the pool dry. And there are the men, standing where the pool was, dripping wet."

This will be a prelude to "cool Water" or "By the Falls of Minnetonka." Just nonsense.

Spike expects it to pay off because, once he starts TV, he'll give it all of his time. That's not because the work will be so interesting. It will pay more.

TRIPLETS DIE

Oakridge, Tenn., June 15 (AP)—Three babies, who together weighed less than six pounds, died yesterday within nine hours after birth. All boys, they were the first triplets ever born in this war-born city. They were sons of Mr. and Mrs. Kyle Abernathy.

IDENTIAL TWINS

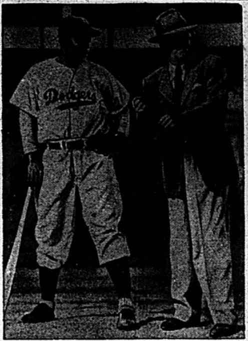
Yankton, S. D., June 15 (AP)—A Yankton couple became the parents of their second set of identical twin daughters Tuesday. The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Gronseth, have a first pair of twin girls born 18 months ago. They also have a three-year-old son.

FASCINATED

Someday he may be a king. Today, he's just a boy who is getting a terrific bang out of the circus — just as any other boy. The circus fan is young Prince Carl Gustaf of Sweden, shown enjoying the antics of the clowns during a visit to the circus in Stockholm. — Central Press Canadian.

SETS OUT FOR TRIP

Freetown, Sierra Leone, June 15 (Reuters)—German chemist Paul Miller, 63, and his 19-year-old daughter, Aga, today headed their 16-foot sailing boat Berlin cut into the Atlantic and began a 1,700-mile journey to Behia, Brazil. The Millers left Hamburg last November "in search of peace and security" in South America.



AT McCARTHY — Jackie Robinson looks on incredulously as Director Alfred E. Green shows him how best to get a hit for a scene in the forthcoming "The Jackie Robinson Story," now showing at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. Incidentally, Jackie led the National League in hitting last year.

AT THE CAPITOL — A glamorous newcomer to American films is Valentina Cortesa, noted Italian actress who already is being hailed as one of Hollywood's most promising stars of the future. Miss Cortesa makes her second Hollywood film appearance opposite Spencer Tracy in MGM's "Malaya," romantic adventure drama now playing at the Capitol Theatre 'til Saturday. James Stewart is seen as Tracy's fellow adventurer, with the ace cast also starring Sydney Greenstreet, John Hodiak and Lionel Barrymore. On the same program, Charlie Chaplin comedy, Bugs Bunny Cartoon and 10th. Chapter of The James Brothers of Missouri.

AT THE BELLE — Emotional power is key to Valli's performances in the unique role of a police-wanted, love-crossed Viennese actress in David O. Selznick's "The 3rd. Man", starring Joseph Cotten, Orson Welles and Trevor Howard, showing today and Friday.

Little Benny's Note Book

[illegible]a was reeding her paper and talking to pop about different things in it while pop was trying to reed his own paper, and ma said, My, William, here's a report of more misterious troop movements along the Balkan borders. What do you sippose they're planning to do? she said.

I couldn't say but personly I'm planning to reed this editorial entitled "Is Inflation Here to Stay?" pop said. I've started it twice now, which proves the seriousness of my intentions. That reminds me, I read a good squib in Horatio Otis's collum the other day. He claimed that women are far more generous than men. In fact they have an irresistible urge to share whatever comes their way, and he's never more forcibly reminded of that fact than when he's trying to reed his newspaper while his wife is reeding hers, pop said, and ma said, That's really funny.

I'm glad you appriciate the humor of it, pop said, and ma said, Well, I hope I'm not insensible to humor just because my own sex happens to be the innocent object of it.

Good for you, my dear, it's a pleasure to know that there's another broad mind in the house, pop said.

Meening besides his own, and he started to reed the editorial again, and pritty soon ma said, Well, if that isn't just like Hollywood. Rita Balboa and Ronel Ronnell were granted a Mexican divorce last week, but apparently there's no sine of any actual separation, and when Rita was questioned by reporters she explained that neither one of them can read Spannish. Isn't that the last werd, William? she said, and pop said, I wish it was, horse blanket to blazes.

Now what's wrong? ma said, and pop said, Oh, nuthing, nuthing.

Being the end of the subject till the next time.

22 ARE KILLED

16 Others Missing

Last night's disaster brought to more than 100 the number of persons dead or missing in French air crashes in two days. Of these 46 died in the first crash off Bahrein Tuesday. At least 37 are dead or missing from last night's crash.

Another 16 are missing from a French military plane which disappeared while on a flight between two cities in Madagascar. Three more persons were killed yesterday in the crash of a private plane near Constantine, North Africa.

Bahrein, a rich oil producer, is an island British protectorate of about 270 square miles in area. In addition to its production of petroleum, it is a port for fishing and pearling boats.

Last nights crash came only a few hours after the plane involved in the first accident off Bahrien had been brought to land from its resting place about three miles off the shore.

Twenty-eight bodies were found inside the fuselage. Eight bodies had been picked out of the sea and six men had been rescued. One of these Chief Pilot Jean Sladek, later died in Bahrein hospital. Nine bodies still are missing.

May be Sabotage

In Paris an Air France spokesman said nothing known there indicated that either plane might have been sabotaged by communist led rebels in Indo-China but that such a possibility would be investigated by an inquiry committee already at Bahrein.

The spokesman said from information in Paris, bad weather seemed to have been the probable cause of the crashes.

He added that special security precautions are taken for all flights from Indo-China to guard against the possibility of sabotage.

RUEST'S SISTER

Ruest is charged with the murder of Mrs. Guay by manufacturing a time-bomb detonator which the Crown says caused the destruction of the airliner which crashed into a Sault Au Cochon, Que., mountain side.

Guay was sentenced March 14 to be hanged June 23. The execution has been postponed to Jan. 12.

Given Court Protection

Ruest testified at Guay's trial that he had manufactured a detonating device for Guay. He said Guay had told him it was to be used to blast tree stumps. Ruest testified under the court's protection.

The two witnesses who said yesterday they were threatened by Mrs. Pitre were Miss Marguerite Lachance, who described herself as a "friend" of Edouard Ruest, a brother of Genereux Ruest, and Mrs. Jean Paul Bergeron, another acquaintance of the Ruest family.

Miss Lachance testified Mrs. Pitre warned her not to mention in court how Ruest had counselled her (Mrs. Pitre) to commit suicide "by putting a blanket over my head and turning on the gas."

The Lachance girl also told the court that as Ruest hobbled past her on his way to the courtroom yesterday morning he whispered: "Ferme ta gueule" (A vulgar expression meaning: "Keep your mouth shut.")

Acquitted on Charge

Mrs. Pitre was arrested last March on a charge of attempted suicide after evidence was brought out that Guay had urged her to commit suicide by turning on the gas jets in her house and blocking all exits. She was acquitted.

Mrs. Bergeron testified that she overheard Guay ask Ruest about "a parcel" and that Ruest promised "it will be ready on time."

She said Guay replied: "I'll be needing it soon because my wife is leaving on a plane and she'll take the parcel with her."

Maurice Michaud, 16-year-old nephew of Ruest, testified that police visited the home of Ruest after Guay's arrest and had found some paraffin.

The youth said his uncle's reaction was: "I don't care; there was none of it in the ---' . . . watch or bomb, I don't remember which he said."

(The French words "montre" (watch) and "bombe" (bomb) have a similarity in sound.)

HOWE REJECTS

Members of both sides clamored for an early start on the St. Lawrence seaway navigation and power project, long blocked by the U.S. Senate.

Wants U. S. to Hurry

This phase was climaxed by the statement of Mr. Pearson that the seaway now is of greater importance than ever before and that Canada's government has "taken every possible step" to urge Washington to hurry its share of the deal.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, Solon Low, Social Credit leader, and H. W. Herridge (CCF — Kootenay East) paced the attack on the defence purchasing bill. Mr. Drew said it would open the door to dictatorship and place "practically the whole of our economy in the hands of this one minister."

Mr. Low said it gave Mr. Howe authority to requisition any goods at his own price, to take far-reaching steps to ensure priority in delivery of supplies and to take other actions which were too broad for peacetime.

Mr. Herridge called the powers "enormous." J. M. Macdonnell (PC — Toronto Greenwood) said it was "like taking a steam hammer to crack a nut."

Mr. Drew, backing a stand by Mr. Herridge, said he feels there must be "the most effective possible control over profiteering" in defence production. Profits from defence should be limited. He called for careful examination of repeal, though this new act, of a 1905 peacetime bill "which limits profits" and which arose from "certain profiteering which had taken place that time."

Only Reasonable Powers

Mr. Howe said he had tried to remove dictatorial wartime legislation from the statute books and to take only powers that were reasonable. Since defence was probably the most important Canadian business, he could see no objections to its having priority in procurement, the act's only arbitrary power.

He said powers to compel a contractor to carry out a defence contract he has signed voluntarily are necessary. The act was dropping powers to compel war production. Power would be retained to allow the minister to demand a contractor give priority to defence work he has accepted.

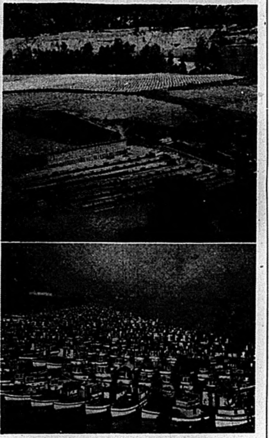
There was power to requisition and to set fair prices. Without the power over prices, the other power would be useless.

As for an arbitrary profit limit, this posed "a task that I do not think any Parliament could undertake and carry out satisfactorily."

5,500-MILE TRIP

St. John's, Nfld. — (CP) — Rev. G. W. N. Wareham and his family are visiting their home here for the first time in four years. Padre at Mayo Landing in the Yukon, Mr. Wareham will spend a few months here and then return to the Yukon for at least one more year.

INCREASE PAYMENT FOR JAP-CANADIAN CONFISCATED PROPERTY



Result of a Royal Commission report tabled in the House of Commons is that Canadian Japanese will receive an additional $1,222,829 for their possessions and properties confiscated during the war. Property, principally market gardens in B.C. as shown upper right, was turned over to the Veterans' Land Act administration of the Department of Veterans' Affairs, at a price, the commission found, approximately half its real value. The second major item on the list of sales were the fishing boats used by the Japanese on the B.C. coast, lower right. The commission, after examining hundreds of claims brought by the former owners, has recommended $71,000 disbursement. Grandmother Uchadi, above, is one of the ones whose homes were sold in Vancouver for which, the report says, a fair price was paid as they were advertised and sold to the highest bidders. $201,000 is to be paid for personal effects, lost or stolen. — Central Press Canadian.

Nerves On Edge, Couldn't Sleep Well; Always Tired

Also Suffered from Stomach Troubles, Headache, Dizzy Spells. "No Medicine Ever Helped Me as Syntona Did," Says This Woman.

"Anyone who suffers from stomach disorders and nervous, rundown condition will understand why I want to make this statement," said Mrs. Ida Swayze, 13 Rogers Avenue, London, Ont., in a recent report.

"I felt completely tired out, couldn't get my proper sleep at night, and my nerves were all on edge. Food that I ate fermented in my stomach causing awful gas, bloating and I would belch up hot, sour liquids. I would get a full, heavy feeling across my chest which caused shortness of breath. Often I would get sick, bilious attacks with dizzy feelings and throbbing headache.

"When I finally realized how bad I was getting I began taking Syntona because this medicine had helped me once before when I was not well. This time I noticed from the very first bottle that my food was digesting better. As I continued with the treatment, all the sour condition, gas, and heaviness cleared up and now my food is digesting just about as well as ever. Also my nerves are more calm. I am enjoying better sleep, and I don't feel tired out as I did before. As for the headaches and dizzy spells, I haven't had any trouble in that way for a long time, so I have no hesitation at all in recommending Syntona to others who suffer as I did."

Made from 12 of Nature's Finest Herbs and Roots, Syntona is safe, pleasant to take, and many people use it time and again when they are not feeling well.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

ELDORADO

Eldorado.— The Eldorado and Union W.M.S. of the United Church held an open meeting in the Eldorado Church last Thursday afternoon. About 80 were present representing Marmora, Tweed, Ivanhoe, Madoc, Cooper, and Hazzard's Auxiliaries and Queensboro W.A. The president, Mrs. C. Chambers, opened the meeting and welcomed the visiting ladies.

A brief outline of Eldorado W.M.S. from its organization about 55 years ago, up to the present, was given by Mrs. Albert Empey. Miss A. Holmes and Mrs. F. Dafoe, Madoc, conducted a helpful worship service.

Mrs. Raeburn Rollins, Cooper, sang a solo, and Mrs. G. D. Young and Mrs. H. C. Barlow of Marmora, a duet.

A few remarks were tendered by the following presbyterial officers, Mrs. R. N. Broad, Madoc sectional vice president; Mrs. Lincoln Elliott, Cor., Sec.; Mrs. James Sproul, Missionary Monthly secretary, and Mrs. W. J. Pack, spoke for Mrs. G Jarvis, Associate Members secretary.

Mrs. A. Empey introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. F. W. K. Harris, of Peterborough, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference Branch of the W.M.S.

Mrs. Harris spoke on the W.M.S. work in Canada, tracing the W.M.S. from its first organization until the present and emphasizing the work of our school homes, hospitals, community missions and Oriental work pointing out to all their responsibility in the carrying on of the great task for the Kingdom, which the pioneer women of the church started.

Mrs. Harris' address was an inspiration and challenge to church women of 1950.

Appreciation to Mrs. Harris for her splendid message was expressed by Mrs. Chambers and Mrs. L. Elliott. Mrs. C. Robinson and Mrs. Hugh Barker received the offering which was dedicated by Mrs. Dan Robinson.

Rev. Alfred Poulter pronounced the benediction after which the Eldorado ladies served delicious refreshments and all enjoyed a happy social hour.

NO GARMENT FOR A GOOD SWIMMER

Cocker spaniels may be good swimmers, but the owner of this one was taking no chances when a lightship in the Delaware River, Pennsylvania, caught fire. The ship was totally destroyed, the four man crew saved and, still bundled in his life preserver but looking disgusted about it all, was the cocker. — Central Press Canadian.

Cop Waits Until Razor, Scissors Are Put Away

Detroit, June 15—(AP)—Barber Gabriel Garabedian's woes started when Patrolman Frank Goran walked into his shop.

While being shorn, Goran later told Judge W. M. Skillman, he watched three persons place bets with the barber.

Goran waited until after the haircut was finished, then nabbed Garabedian.

"I didn't want to arrest him until he had his razor and scissors put away," Goran told the court.

"Besides, I didn't want to go on duty with only half a haircut."

The barber was fined $15.

Norman E. Edwards Elected President of the Y.M.C.A. At Special Board Meeting

Norman E. Edwards, R.O., was named president of the Y.M.C.A. at a special meeting of the Board of Directors, called to receive the report of the nominating committee. Other officers named were: vice-presidents, John W. Deacon, J. Harold Legate; secretary, Wilbur J. Countryman, and treasurer, W. Lorne McDougall.

The selection of Mr. Edwards as president is recognition of long and faithful service in the Y.M.C.A. and its work. He has been a member of the St. Catharines and Toronto Associations as well as the Belleville Association, where he has been a member of the Board for many years. Some years ago he was an active member of the Y's Men's Club being a past president and district governor.

Record of Service

Mr. Edwards is equipped with an objective view to the need for service work in welfare, recreation and spiritual and social development in the community, a past president of the Kiwanis Club and chairman of the Boys' and Girls' Work Committee of Kiwanis International for Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes, he has been frequent in attendance at Kiwanis conventions. He is a past president of the Victorian Order of Nurses and the Belleville District Boy Scouts' Association. In his church relationships he has held high office as both Peoples' and Rector's Warden at St. Thomas' Anglican Church, a Lay Delegate to the Synod for the Ontario Diocese, and has served fourteen years as treasurer of the local branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society of which he has been made a life member. He is also a member of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

Was Former President

Mr. Edwards has had a previous term as president of the local Association in 1938-39 and has also been secretary of the Board. He comes into the president's chair at a most important time in the history of the Canadian Y. M. C. A. The first Association was established in America in Montreal in 1851 and later in the same year an association was established in Boston. The Centenary of the North American YMCA will be celebrated next year with important international meetings in Cleveland, as well as local functions in all parts of the continent. A special committee has been set up to study plans for the local recognition. The local association will also celebrate 60 years of work in Belleville in 1952.

Activities of Association

Committee reports presented showed considerable activity in various aspects of the local work. One of the most successful camping seasons is in prospect. Additions and improvements have been made at the Moira Lake Camp property largely by the Rotary Club, under the chairmanship of one of the YMCA directors, Gilbert B. Scott. An able staff of directors has been appointed under the direction of J. Kenneth Hansel, Principal of the Welland Public School. A new infirmary has been erected and a new diving tower will complete the waterfront equipment. Advance registrations indicate a full camp. Dates for boys were announced as July 1st to 29th and Girls July 29th-August 19th.

The committee on Community Recreation under the chairmanship of A. Brewer Hunt reported that the Y.M.C.A. was undertaking the supervision of seven junior playgrounds and three senior playgrounds for the summer months. This recreational leadership is being given on the request of the recently formed Belleville Recreation Committee in which the Y.M.C.A. has been taking an active part. Mr. Hunt reported that funds to carry on this work were being raised at the present time by the Belleville Recreation Committee and generous support was being given by citizens, merchants, industries, public and private bodies, service clubs, Home and School Clubs, veterans organizations and various societies. He be-spoke support for the undertaking directed by the City Council, the Board of Education and the Parks Board under the general chairmanship of Enos David.

Growing Interest Seen

The report of the World Service Committee indicating growing interest and support of the work of the Y.M.C.A. in the sixty-six countries of the world where it has been established. In some of these associations the work of rehabilitation after war devastation has been completed but the need for support of trained secretaries who could give leadership and establish the work in the various areas was great.

Operating Deficit Shown

The financial report showed an operating deficit of $4,097 for the first four-month period. The chairman urged a study of ways and means of increasing financial support in order that the important work before the association would not be curtailed because of lack of funds.

The following new board members were named: Dr. Harold Craig, Fraser F. Fulton, W. Anderson, Gerald B. Hyde, J. B. Leslie, Leslie Reid and Andrew Snea.

Appreciation was expressed for the interest and service of Dr. Jack Marshall and John Thornbury, who were retiring from the board and to John W. Deacon as he gave over the office of president.

Freer Exchange Of News Theme Of Conference

Ottawa, June 15 — (CP) — Fuller and freer exchange of news within the Commonwealth was the keynote of the opening business session Wednesday of the Seventh Imperial Press Conference.

Speakers from many countries emphasized the need of facilitating press communications throughout the Empire, and it was expected that later Wednesday the conference itself would sponsor definite proposals.

Maintenance of the penny-a-word cable rate for intra-Commonwealth press copy was stressed by all speakers, and they also called for better airmail rates and improved carriage by sea.

Freedom of the press, the delegates were told, depended largely on freedom of communications between countries.

As they opened the First Imperial Press Conference to be held in Canada in 30 years, the delegates heard Transport Minister Chevrier say that the free transmission of news throughout the world would be a strong deterrent to war.

Seven Drowned In Scattered Parts of Ontario

Three Children of Family Lose Lives at Matheson

(By The Canadian Press)

Seven persons were reported drowned in widely-scattered parts of Ontario Thursday.

In a meadow pond near Matheson, 40 miles east of Timmins, searchers have recovered the bodies of three young children of Mr. and Mrs. George Heavens. Two youths were drowned in the Trent canal near Peterborough; a 19-year-old youth was drowned at Sault Ste. Marie's Bellevue Park, and discovery of a bundle of clothing near the boat at Point Edward led to belief a man missing since Wednesday had been drowned.

Death of the three Heavens children, Edith, 11, Alfred, nine, and Freddie, seven, left the parents childless. None of the children could swim.

At Sault Ste Marie, dragging operations were resumed today for the body of Gordon Durand, whose canoe capsized in the strong currents of the St. Mary's River.

Fergus Scott, 19, of Peterborough, was drowned while swimming in Lock 24, of the Trent Canal six miles north of Peterborough. Ernest Chase, 16, also of Peterborough, was drowned in the canal nearer the city.

At Point Edward, on the St. Clair River near Sarnia, police found a bundle of clothing belonging to Clayton J. Willis, missing since Wednesday from his uncle's home at Sarnia. Dragging operations were to start today.

MENTAL ILLNESS NOT EVIDENT COURT IS TOLD

Napanee, Ont., June 16 (CP)—The murder trial of James Fosbraey, 29-year-old English veteran of the Royal Air Force, neared its close today with further evidence of mental experts concerning the state of mind of the man accused in the knife-slaying of his pretty wife here last Nov. 29.

A late witness yesterday, after the defence had closed its case, was Dr. Charles S. Tennant, superintendent of the Ontario Mental Hospital at Langstaff, near Toronto, who had twice examined the accused.

Dr. Tennant testified that he found no evidence of insanity or mental illness on the part of the accused. He will be cross examined today, and after that the Crown may call another psychiatrist before counsel sums up their arguments and Chief Justice J. C. McRuer presents the case to the jury. It was uncertain whether the jury would receive the case today or whether the trial might continue Saturday.

Fosbraey married his wife, June, a Napanee girl, while he was training at Kingston during the war. He subsequently served overseas, and returned to Napanee. But he went back to England last October, then came back again in November.

60 Letters Read

A total of 60 letters written by Fosbraey overseas and while in jail here have been read into the trial record, along with testimony at a commission hearing in England last summer as to Fosbraey's mental condition while overseas.

Dr. Tennant told the court yesterday that no psychiatrist could base an opinion on such scanty evidence as was submitted at the English commission. Dr. C. E. A. Shepherd, superintendent of a mental institution in Kent, England, had testified there that Fosbraey could be suffering from an excited type of schizophrenia.

No man with a mental condition could go through six and a half years of service with the armed forces without the mental condition becoming evident, said Dr. Tennant. Fosbraey's service record was good, according to all evidence.

Doctor Who Delivered 3318 Babies Dies

Kitchener, June 16 — (CP) — A man who brought nearly 3,400 babies into the world and who was one of Canada's oldest practising physicians until his retirement a few years ago, Dr. T. M. Robinson, died at his home in nearby St. Jacobs today. He was 90.

Dr. Robinson was believed to have established a Canadian record for the number of child deliveries. In 1942, in his 56th year of practice, the total stood at 3,318 babies and he continued to practice until five years ago.

He had practised in the Waterloo county village and district for almost his entire career. He was born in Drumbo, Oxford county.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, June 16 (CP)— Synopsis: Warm, humid air covers southern Ontario today. Cooler air pushing slowly into the province from the prairies has reached the Lake Superior district and is expected to cover the entire province Saturday. Skies will be cloudy today with showers and thundershowers indicated with the approach of cooler air. Temperatures will be lower Saturday with clearing looked for in almost all regions.

Wrath Directed At Hugh Dalton Over Manifesto

By R. B. MacLURKIN

London, June 16 (Reuters) — Prime Minister Attlee today visited Ernest Bevin in hospital and, it is believed, gave his ailing Foreign Secretary an account of yesterday's stormy cabinet meeting at which a clash is said to have developed over the Labor party's manifesto on European unity.

Political quarters think Attlee also discussed the rough handling he received yesterday from the Conservatives in Parliament. The opposition was strongly critical of the apparent conflict between official government policy on the Schuman plan and the manifesto's rejection of present schemes for European union.

It is not clear how much Attlee knew beforehand of the contents of the manifesto.

But some newspapers suggested his first inkling was from the papers themselves Tuesday and that he is bitterly angry over the affair. The Foreign Secretary also is believed angry about publication of the manifesto.

The wrath of both the Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary is believed directed mainly at Hugh Dalton, minister of Town and Country Planning, who headed the committee which drew up the party statement.

Meanwhile British newspapers call on the Labor government to convince the world of its desire to take part in European Economic co-operation, short of complete federation.

Put Tiny Bits of Copper in Soil And Black Sheep May Turn White

Baltimore, June 16—(AP)—A black sheep usually remains black.

But put him in a pasture lacking the tiny amounts of copper usually in the soil and he may become a white sheep.

The exact process by which these copper traces in soil affect crops grown in it—and how these traces or lack of them in plants affect animals—is under discussion by 50 scientists here.

The three-day meeting is sponsored by John Hopkins University's McCollum-Pratt Institute. Scientists from as far away as Australia are in attendance.

Dr. W .D. McElroy, director of the institute, told about the black-sheep-turned-white sheep at Thursday's opening session.

Traces of copper in the soil, he explained, act as a catalyst—the minute bits stimulate other chemical reactions, which in turn have a direct bearing on the health of plants grown in that soil.

There are great stretches of copper-deficient land in Australia.

Sheep grazed on this land produce "steely" wool which has little elasticity and makes a poor grade of cloth, Dr. McElroy said.

The addition of copper corrects this condition. But it must be added to the soil and thence to the plants that feed the animal, he explained. It does no good to feed copper directly to the sheep.

FEAR ONE MINER MAY HAVE BEEN CRUSHED TO DEATH

Rescue of Trapped Men May Take Hours, Days

By ERWIN FRICKE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Cadomin, Alta., June 16 — (CP) — Grim evidence that one of five miners trapped in a Rocky Mountain coal mine may have been crushed to death was unearthed today by a rescue party.

The five-man party brought a broken miner's lamp to the Cadomin Coal Co. office when they came off shift early today, 36 hours after five other miners were entombed by tons of water-washed silt and coal.

One of the miners, Joe Fedynak, also disclosed that a man's leg wearing a heavy shoe and dismembered below the knee had been found by a rescue party earlier.

Thirty-eight truckloads of muck have been taken from the mine as parties work clock-round, six-hour shifts to clear the mud clogged passage ways.

Mechanical muck digging machines are to be put to work later today. Mine officials said clearance work would be speeded but refused to speculate when the imprisoned miners could be reached. They are given little chance of survival.

It may be hours. It may be weeks. It depends which of the many channels the mud came down said one official.

As the fate of the missing still remained unknown, residents of the town said their hope of finding some alive is fading.

The rescuers are working shoulder to shoulder in a narrow tunnel where the men have been imprisoned since Wednesday night by a fall of silt and soft coal brought down by a flash flood.

Water from a surface drainage canal plunged through a cave-in carrying hundreds of tons of debris into a tunnel. The spot is a mile from the shaft opening and 270 feet below the surface.

The shaft is slanted at an angle of 37 degrees. Rocks, mud, timbers and other debris periodically slither down the slope. Rescue workers have ignored the danger to tackle the clearing job.

The shaft, seven feet high and nine feet wide, has been cleared by pick and shovel to within 150 feet of the mucking machines.

When these are dug out and put in operation the hard hand labor will be ended .

Red Press 'Vast Apparatus Of Falsification' Charges Prime Minister St. Laurent

Ottawa, June 16 — (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent, in a stinging attack on Russian imperialism, charged last night that the whole communist press is a "vast apparatus of falsification."

He charged, too, that Russia's imperialistic power is wielded by an "autocrat" through the "slave-labor" methods employed by a small group of "ruthless" men.

"Though it masquerades behind the doctrine of revolutionary communism, which it employs for its own imperialistic purpose," Mr. St. Laurent told the Seventh Imperialistic Conference, "Russia remains the typical empire of the past."

Its ruling "autocrat" — presumably a reference to Prime Minister Stalin — exercised control through the "repression of individual liberty and stifling of national traditions" in all the countries Russia had absorbed.

"Yet there is no country more jealous of its sovereignty, more determined not to yield an inch to the new forces of international co-operation, than is Soviet Russia, in spite of the fact that the words peace, democracy and progress are ever on the lips of Soviet political leaders."

Mr. St. Laurent spoke at a dinner given by the government to the conference delegates. The dinner was closed to the press, but texts of his speech and that of George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, who joined him, were made available early today.

Mr. Drew, proposing a toast to the guests, expressed the hope that through their deliberations may come the inspiration to build the idea of an "ever stronger partnership, based not on force but on all that is decent and good."

Representatives Present

He stressed importance of the fact that representatives of three Asiatic countries—India, Pakistan and Ceylon—were present. Their presence demonstrated that there is a readiness to forget "any misunderstanding of the past and to carry forward into the future all that is best in that kind of life that we are seeking to obtain."

Preceding Mr. Drew, Mr. St. Laurent flayed the propaganda-type of news that marks the communist press machine. He said:

"One has only to open a communist publication in any part of the world to see on it the heavy imprint of the Kremlin. The whole communist press is one enormous government handout and this dreary conformity, this vast apparatus of falsification seems to be the only access which many millions have to what is going in the world today."

Democracy could not "afford to underestimate the challenge which Soviet propaganda represents, nor to underestimate the success which, unfortunately, it often achieves."

How was democracy to meet this challenge?

"Certainly not by the methods of our opponents," said Mr. St. Laurent. "Certainly not by attempting to impose a propaganda line on our free press or by curbing its liberties and swamping it by restriction. . . our strength lies in the vitality and diversity of our informed public opinion."

Cannot be Taken For Granted

But democracy could not altogether take for granted the principle on which its civilization rest.

"Those principles need to be restated in terms which capture the imagination of new generations. The policies of governments need to be explained in language which keeps public interest alert and active, whether the explanations be favorable or unforable to the policies propounded by the government"

The prime minister was certain that the Commonwealth Press Union "is performing an inestimable service, and one which is doubly necessary in these days when our free institutions are facing a grave challenge."

Mr. Drew, dwelling on the nature of the conference discussions which include freedom of the press, said that if they lead to the ability to "build ever more strongly in the years ahead," then "we shall have given to the world and example of the the only basis on which that wider dream of one world or one federation can ever be achieved."

Democracy was constantly told that it was fighting a war of ideas and there had been some concern about the lessening of power in the great partnership of the commonwealth, but the idea o fthe commnoweatlh was the real ractor in its strength.

"If", said Mr. Drew, "out of this Commonwealth Press Union, the idea can be spread of the strength of this fellowship based on a common purpose, ten perhaps the old ideas of power will be nothing as compared with the ideals that we serve."

At its business meeting yesterda, the conference considered means of extending freedom of the press in British colonies. It heard complaints that in some colonies legislation was being used to restrict the newspapers' freedom of expression.

Destroyer Suffers Suspected Sabotage Sustaining Slight Internal Damage Says Report

Devonport, Devon, England, June 16 (Reuters)—Suspected sabotage in the destroyer Urania was under investigation by admiralty police, it was announced today.

Intreference in the electrical machinery of the battleclass vessel occurred Thursday.

A signalling error caused first reports to link the suspected sabotage with another destroyer in reserve at Devonport, the Matapan.

The investigations are intended to reveal whether the damage, in which no lives were lost or injury caused, was intentional or due to negligence.

Shore leave for the ship's personnel was stopped temporarily but later today weekend leave passes were being issued. Meanwhile a check was being made on identity and movements of all civilian personnel who had worked on the Urania.

The inquiry now under way is the third in 18 months into irregularities at the Devonport yards.

Amplifying today's announcements, made by spokesmen both at Devonport and London, the admiralty said no one had been injured as a result of the interence.

An admiralty official, slightly qualifying the sabotage element, said "sabotage is always a possibility on such occasions but it could have been negligence; we do not have enough information yet"

Two incidents at Devonport dockyard in January last year were investigated.

Student Pilot Killed Bailing Out At Centralia

Centralia, Ont., June 16 (CP)—Bailing out from a burning aircraft 400 feet over the RCAF station here, a student pilot was killed today when his parachute failed to open until he was a few feet from the ground.

RCAF officials withheld identification pending notification of next-of-kin.

In an ironical twist to the first fatal accident at the Centralia station since it re-opened in 1947, FO. W. J. Wilson of Grand Bend, pilot of the single engine Harvard training plane landed the aircraft a few seconds after the student had bailed out.

An RCAF spokesman said the engine of the plane caught fire while it was on a routine training flight.

FO. Wilson landed the plane on the edge of a runway. The fire in the plane's engine was out when the aircraft rolled to a stop. RCAF officials said the pilot was shaken up but uninjured.

Hong Kong, June 16 — (Reuters) — The British ship Anhui, with about 700 Chinese passengers aboard, struck a mine off the South China port of Swatow today.

CURRENCY BLOCKS IMMIGRANT FLOW COMMONS TOLD

Restrictions Prevent Many From Coming

Ottawa, June 16 (CP)—Immigration Minister Harris told hte Commons Thursday that little can be done to increase the flow of immigrants to Canada from the United Kingdom until currency problems are solved.

Speaking after representatives of various parties urged acceptance of a greater number of immigrants, Mr Harris said currency restrictions are preventing many persons from coming to Canada.

Britain permitted emigrants to take out £1,000 over a four-year period. He had seen press reports which indicated that the British government soon may consider allowing emigrants to take out a larger portion of the £1,000 in the first year. Mr. Harris said he could not comment on the reports.

Speakers in the debate on the immigration department's estimates for 1950-1951 included E D. Fulton (PC—Kamloops), P. E. Gagnon (Ind—Chicoutimi), H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West), H. A. MacKenzie (L—Lambton-Kent) and George Murray (L—Cariboo).

The day brought these other developments:

1. Justice Minister Garson obtained first reading of a bill that would give the government broad new powers under the official Secrets Act and authorize a doubling of the Act's top penalty — from seven to 14 years—for espionage and related activities.

2. Members adopted a bill giving Trade Minister Howe wide powers to make defence purchases in peacetime. Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C., (PC—Nanaimo) indicated his disagreement with his party's criticism of the measure by saying that he believed the current situation made wide powers necessary if Canada is to be ready for war at any time.

Ruest Committed For Trial on Murder Charge

Quebec, June 16 — (CP) — Genereux Ruest, crippled Quebec watchmaker who made part of a time-bomb that caused an air disaster, today was committed for trial on a charge of murder.

Judge Achile Pettigrew ordered that the 51-year-old paralytic stand trial at the next term of the Criminal Assizes which opens Oct. 10.

Ruest has previously admitted that he built a detonator for the time-bomb which wrecked a Canadian Pacific Airlines plane at nearby Sault Au Cochon last Sept. 9, killing 23.

J. Albert Guay, 32-year-old jeweler whose wife was one of the victims, is under sentence to be hanged for masterminding the bomb plot.

Ruest has testified that he thought the bomb was being made for Guay's use in blowing up stumps.

Students Dig on Site of Indian Village, May Settle Controversy Over Iroquois

Coboconk, Ont., June 16 (CP) — It's beginning to look as though Champlain and the Jesuits knew what they were talking about.

Their opinions on what has developed into a 300-year-old controversy are being borne out by students from McGill and University of Toronto currently digging up the site of an ancient Indian village in this area north-west of Peterborough.

Prof. Norman Emerson said the archaeological expedition is making some headway in settling the question of whether the Huron Indians came to Huronia from the southwest or from the Iroquois country as suggested by the French explorer Champlain and the Jesuits.

"Judging by the pottery we have dug up here so far, it looks as though the Jesuits and Champlain were right," Prof. Emerson said today. "We are making some very interesting finds. The pottery, at first glance, can probably be dated about 1450. It is of the Iroquois type. I should say that the Indians who left it were Mohawks."

Toronto's Mayor McCallum had something to do with inspiring the present expedition. He set off a charge of dynamite on the front lawn of his summer home near here and was showered with Indian relics dating back more than 500 years. Now the place is swarming with students attempting to fill in some of the blanks in history of Indians in Ontario.

Three Arrested As Suspects in Fuchs Spy Ring

Held on Charges of Giving Atomic Secrets to Russia

New York, June 16—(AP)—A former United States Army non-commissioned officer at Albuquerque, N.M., was arrested today by the Federal Bureau of Investigation on a charge of giving atomic secrets to Harry Gold, Philadelpian accused of passing atomic secrets to Russians.

The F.B.I. identified the arrested man as David Greenglass, 28, of New York City.

Greenglass' arrest came less than 24 hours after the seizure in Syracuse, N.Y., of another suspect in the Klaus Fuchs spy ring, and within hours of the arrest of a scientist at Pasadena, Calif.

The arrest at Pasadena of Dr. Sydney Weinbaum, however, was not immediately tied in with and espionage charge. Weinbaum was charged with perjury and fraud in that he testified he never had been a communist "when in fact he held membership in the communist party," the F.B.I. said.

Gives Explanation

F.B.I. agents said that Greenglass' explanation for his alleged action was that Russia, as an ally during the war, was entitled to the information.

Thursday night F.B.I. operatives linked Alfred Dean Slack, 44-year-old Syracuse chemist, to Fuchs spry ring which slipped atomic secrets to the Soviets. They said Slack admitted giving samples of a secret high explosive to Gold, the Philadelphia biochemist.

Gold was named as an intermediary between Fuchs, British atomic scientist, and a Red spy ring seeking atom secrets for Russia.

The complaint charged that Greenglass conspired with Gold and one Antoli A. Yakovlev, alias John, and "divers others" to deliver atomic secrets to Russia from "about Jan. 1, 1945, and continuously thereafter for a considerable period, the exact period "being unknown."

Obtained Secrets Himself

Asked if Greenglass had obtained atomic secrets from other accused spies for passage to Gold the F.B.I. chief said that prisoner had obtained the secrets himself.

Greenglass is married and the father of two children. The F.B.I. said that he was born in the U.S., educated in New York City, and until yesterday was employed as a machinist for an undsclosed firm in Brooklyn.

Gold was arrested in Philadelphia May 23. He is being held in $100,000 bail on charges that he aided Fuchs, now imprisoned in Britain after pleading guilty to espionage.

SCAFFOLD FALLS, SEVEN WORKMEN PLUNGE 20 FEET

Guelph, June 16 — (CP) — Seven workmen were rushed to hospital today when a scaffold collapsed and sent them plunging 20 feet to the ground below.

The mishap occurred about 10 a.m. when the men were placing a 16-foot, 350-pound steel beam in place on a new extension of the annealing department of the Federal Wire and Cable Co. plant at Suffolk Street and London Road. The beam was the last one to be placed and would have completed the erection of the structural steel.

It is believed that the combined weight of the men and the beam caused a four-inch piece of steel, fastened to a four-by-four inch timber and bracing the scaffold floor, to bend and let the load plummet to the ground.

Injured were James Aspell, Louis Veroni, Carmen Godfrey, Fausto Scroccorro, Thomas Evans, William Reuber and Donald McEwan.

Seriousness of the injuries is not yet known, but reports are that at least four were badly hurt. The men were working on a construction job under Contractor A. Balconi.

Ottawa, June 16 (CP)— A shuffle affecting three of the top administrative posts of the Royal Canadian Navy and four of Canada's senior naval officers was announced today by the Defence Department.

Succeeding Rear Admiral DeWolf on the Pacific Coast will be Rear Admiral Wallace B. Creery, C.B.E., 50 of Vancouver and Ottawa. Now chief of naval personnel at Headquarters he will take up his new post Aug. 30.

Council Will Request Board To Call For New Tenders Committee Recommendation

City council will request the local Board of Education to call for new tenders for the construction of the proposed elementary school in the east end of the city, it was decided at their regular committee meeting Thursday evening.

The recommendation to request the board to call for new tenders will come up for ratification at Monday evening's meeting in open council.

City Solicitor R. A. Pringle notified council at their committee meeting that the Ontario Municipal Board had approved of a capital expenditure of $300,000 for the construction of the school, subject to the inclusion of all costs. The third reading of the council by-law to provide the board with money up to $300,000 for the school construction will come up on Monday evening.

Again Seek Permission

The police commission again will be requested by council to grant permission to the Belleville Fire Department to be netted into the police radio network with the intention that the police broadcasting station notify the fire chief's car if the fire chief, fire department personnel or equipment is required in an emergency.

A similar request of the police commission had been made previously without action being taken on the matter.

It was also recommended at last night's council meeting that tenders be called for two new respirators for the protection of firemen in all types of smoke and gases, also for use under water.

Trinidad Leaseholders Ltd., were recommended to be granted permission to install a 30,000 barrel storage tank on their present property.

Thomas Crockett of this city was recommended hired as stock keeper at the city barns at a salary of $45 per week.

Referred to Solicitor

A recommendation from the Board of Health to have the local smoke by-law checked and revised if necessary, to eliminate the smoke nuisance in the city, was referred to the city solicitor for opinion. In their recommendation to council the Board of Health noted there were many complaints with respect to the smoke nuisance.

Application of the Superior Cleaners on North Front Street at College for permission to construct an addition to their dry-cleaning plant at an estimated cost of $16,000 was approved by council.

Open Verdict Returned in Death Of Two Workers

An open verdict was returned Thursday evening by a coroner's jury at the adjourned double inquest looking into the deaths of George F. Richards and Morley Kimmett, Napanee, who suffered fatal injuries June 2nd when they apparently backed into the side of a passing automobile transport near Marysville.

The two men were employees of the Ontario Highways Department and were engaged in guide rail repairs, when the accident occurred. Richards died instantly and Kimmett died a few hours later in Belleville hospital.

Questioned as to whether the two men had been afforded sufficient signal protection was entered into at the inquest when E. P. Caird, former highway worker, testified that regulations called for a highway barricade half way across the highway and also a flagman when men were working on the pavement or on the shoulder.

Statement Contradicted

This was contradicted by Lorne Shetlor, highway patrol foreman, who said if flagmen were used for such small jobs as repairing guide rails "traffic would be stopped all along the road."

Mr. Shetlor said there had been highway signs at the edge of the pavement warning of men being at work at the guide rails.

James Smith, of St. Zotique, driver of the auto transport, said he had seen the two men working at the guide rails when he had topped a knoll about 500 feet to the north. He had not seen the highway "men at work" sign because his attention had been taken by a highway grader, which was passing through the guide rails near the two men. "There was a flagman on the grader who had flagged him down because of an approaching car," he said.

On Shoulder of Road

Mr. Smith said Richards and Kimmett were on the shoulder of the highway with their backs to him apparently rolling up some cable. When some distance from the men he had given a small warning signal with his horn.

He said he had been on the centre line of the highway and had slowed down to about 30 miles per hour when as he passed the men he felt a slight jar. He did not know what had happened unless the two men had backed into the side of his truck.

"Did you not realize that when you saw the men it required extra precaution?" asked Assistant Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson.

"Yes," was the reply. "That is why I stayed on the white line."

Nine Witnesses Called

A total of nine witnesses were called at the inquest which was held before Coroner Dr. D. C. McVickers of Deseronto. Witnesses called included Dr. J. H. Bateman, Dr. F. R. Ross; Lorne Shetlor, highway foreman; Fred Lowery and Arthur Maracle, highway workers; A. Wartman and E. P. Caird, Napanee ambulance drivers; E. P. Caird, and Provincial Constable John Thompson who investigated the accident.

No person, it was revealed, had actually seen the accident.

Jurymen included William Doran, W. E. Burnham, E. Dulmage, Thos. Jury and Thos. Colden.

Protest Lodged But Assessment Is Adopted

While protests were lodged by Elzevir and Madoc townships the report on equalization of assessment of Hastings County was adopted at yesterday afternoon's session.

The assessment will remain the same according to the report.

Reeves of the two protesting townships agreed to abide by the present assessment after council endorsed a motion to appoint a county assessor. It was felt that the differences under protest would be cleared up when the new system comes into effect.

Speaking to the report, Reeve Carmen Kleinsteuber, Elzevir township felt the assessment of his township should be decreased. With a population of 1,100, the township is assessed $280,000. He drew comparisons with the village of Tweed with an assessment of $500,000.

Reeve F. Moorecroft, Madoc told Warden Clarke Rollins he was agreeable to wait until the county assessment came into being. Reeve Kleinsteuber also concurred although he deplored the fact he would have to wait another year for assessment reduction.

Warden Rollins pointed out that there were probably other municipalities which had assessment grievances and which would be ironed out under the new system.

Reeve W. J. Davis, Bangor added that if the "door was thrown wide open" now it would mean confusion and heavy expense to the county as a whole.

DEATH BY DROWNING

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., June 16 — (CP) — A verdict of accidental death by drowning was returned Thursday night by a coroner's jury inquest into the drowning of Clifford Peterman, Michigan State conservation officer, in the Garden River May 7.

Peterman was thrown into the river above the high dam, 45 miles northwest of here, when a catwalk crossing collapsed.

Past Presidents of C of C Luncheon Guests of Chamber; Many Issues Are Discussed

Past presidents of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce were honored Thursday noon when they were luncheon guests at the directors' luncheon held at the Shrine Club. Several former presidents of the local Chamber, including Jamieson Bone, the first president, spoke briefly to the meeting.

"It is distinctly an honor to have the past presidents of the Chamber of Commerce at this meeting," declared President Bruce Lattimer as he opened the meeting. "It is an occasion much too rare and one which should occur more often."

Mr. Lattimer paid especial tribute to the late J. Owen Herity for many years secretary of the Chamber, and also to the many past presidents who had served since the organization of the local body back in 1921. A number of past presidents were unable to attend the meeting, and from these, letters of regret were received.

Mr. Lattimer referred to the resignation of A. B. Hunt, vice president, who has been transferred to Montreal, and to that of C. L. Jewell who has retired.

Both Speak Briefly

Both men spoke briefly to the meeting, Mr. Hunt assuring that it had been a pleasure for him to work with the directors of the Chamber. He had made many friends and had happy associations during his brief residence in the city, he said.

Mr. Jewell likewise declared he had enjoyed his association with the directors of the Chamber during the past several years. In tendering his resignation he had felt other and younger members of the Chamber should be given the opportunity to come along as directors.

New Appointments

President Lattimer announced that William J. Brown had been appointed to fill out Mr. Hunt's unexpired term as vice president, while Henry Becker and John Buchan would succeed Mr. Hunt and Mr. Jewell as directors.

A new member of the Chamber, Mr. Hugh Murray, of Hugh Murray, Ltd., concrete contractor, was accepted.

A letter was read from William A. Argue, chairman of a special committee of city council appointed to consider city zoning by-laws. In his letters Mr. Argue asked for suggestions.

Jamieson Bone was quick to offer the suggestion that it was "high time" something was done about streets with duplicated names. Also he felt that zoning plans should be undertaken with provision for stores and industry. "The city is growing all the time and provision must be made for shopping areas" he said.

Considering Zone By-law

In reply J. J. Trudeau chairman of the planning board said that the Ontario Municipal Board were at present considering a zoning by-law for Parkwood Heights and also that action had been taken with respect to renaming streets with duplicated names. Alderman A. M. Haig suggested that all zoning restrictions be incorporated into the one by-law, thus making it easier for persons checking regarding restrictions.

Chamber members agreed to finance a bus tour of the city during the coming summer for representatives of the Y.P.U. who will be here from all parts of Canada. Arrangements will be made to include industries and other points of interest in the tour.

President Lattimer noted that the special committee were prepared to proceed with improvement of parking conditions at the rear of Front Street stores.

Chamber Congratulated

As first president of the Chamber of Commerce Mr. Bone thought it was a fine idea to have a past presidents' day. He congratulated the Chamber on the work it was doing and on its live membership. "The younger men were taking a very definite interest in the city," he said.

He thought the planning commission was a good thing as with a fast growing city definite plans were needed.

Referring to the current controversy between city council and the Board of Education regarding the construction of the proposed new school in East Belleville, Mr. Bone said he thought that the board should call for new tenders. He did not think that re-assessment of the city was needed.

"That has all been done before," he pointed out. "Re-assessing reduces the tax rate but it does not reduce the taxes."

Fewer Songbirds, Claim

Past President Mack Robertson thought something should be done about the blackbirds and squirrels, which were driving the songbirds from the city." Songbirds were getting fewer and fewer every year," he said.

"Songbirds are almost as important as parks in a city," he declared. "They add pleasure to our lives and beauty to our city."

Mr. W. R. McCreary called for something to be done to encourage more tidiness in the city. Women tossed tissue hankies out of cars, men threw cigarette boxes on the street and children dropped paper candy wrappers everywhere. He felt there should be a definite program of education encouraging tidiness and suggested the program be started with the school children.

Interested in Education

Harold Seldon said he had been interested in the discussion on educational matters but pointed out the trend now was toward vocational education. Also the department of Education was giving more opportunity for boards of education and for teachers to set the curriculum.

Mr. A. B. Collins said that people in this district were overlooking one of their best bets in the Bay of Quinte. Pollution from both the west and east made swimming impossible during the later months of the summer.

He felt that it was time some organization took protective action in getting the construction of sewage disposal plants underway. "This should be a matter of interest to the whole community —Belleville, Trenton, and also the county," he said.

Outlines Work

Mr. Trudeau as chairman of the planning board briefly outlined the work which was being done with respect to planning in the city. He said the provincial government was not giving assistance in this matter and the local board had spent much time in gathering information.

One phase of the board's present plans was the extension and widening of various streets in the city. In this, however, it was running into bottlenecks through necessity of acquiring the necessary property. "A map showing zoning plans, street extensions and other features was now being prepared," he said.

Careless Driving Charge Against Officer Heard

Judgment was reserved here Thursday in county magistrate's court by Magistrate T. Y. Wills, on a charge of careless driving against Constable R. J. Devey, of the Ontario Provincial Police. Judgment in the case will be given by the magistrate on June 29th.

The charges against the local provincial police traffic officer were laid as result of a motor accident which occurred five and a half miles east of the city on No. 2 highway on May 21st when a car driven by the officer collided with another vehicle.

It was stated the officer was proceeding to the scene of an accident and with his siren blowing had attempted to pass two vehicles going in the same direction. Before he was able to get back into his own lane of traffic a vehicle came up from the opposite direction and in an attempt to avoid a crash the officer turned left into the ditch. Before he could do so his vehicle collided with the oncoming vehicle.

Three persons, including the officer, suffered minor injuries as result of the accident. Malcolm Robb, of the law firm Robb, Ross and Cass, defended the constable.

POLICE COURT

Convicted in city police court Friday on a charge of theft of money, Jack Marsh, 24, Benjamin Street, was remanded until Tuesday for sentence. Marsh had sought to borrow some money from an acquaintance in a hotel and when given a large bill to change had disappeared.

Marshall Hawley of Picton, pleaded guilty to a charge of theft by conversion and was also remanded by Magistrate T. Y. Wills for sentence.

Two youths, Jack Dennie, Trenton, and Donald Webster of this city were convicted on "joyriding" counts and were remanded for sentence. Dennie was convicted on two counts of joyriding and one of attempted joyriding, while Webster was convicted on one charge of joyriding.

The exception is a vessel using oars for propulsion, engaged in a commercial venture. Vessels not exceeding 10 tons, registered tonnage, must be licensed under the Act. These licenses are obtainable free of charge from any customs office in Canada.

Under section 110 of the Act, such licensed vessels shall have the name of the port or place at which they were last licensed and the number of the license painted on bow and stern in letters not less than three inches long, in a light color on a dark background.

Other regulations in the Act under the control of RCMP concern fire fighting equipment and life saving apparatus. Small vessels under 20 feet, with outboard motors, require one tetrachloride fluid extinguisher and one life jacket for each person. From 20 to 35 feet, one tetrachloride extinguisher is needed, with at least a two gallon froth extinguisher, a fire bucket, one life jacket per person and one lifebuoy.

Vessels in the 35 to 50 foot class require two tetrachloride extinguishers, another of the froth type, two fire buckets and a fire axe. There must be a life jacket for each person and two lifebuoys and a raft for half of the people. Where the motor is decked in, one hand pump with hose and nozzle is required.

All boats driven by motor power, with the exception of outboards, must have a horn.

Motor boats up to 26 feet, operating between sunset and sunrise require one bright light aft and red and green side lights. Vessels more than 26 feet in length have the same requirements, with the addition of a bright white light in the fore part of the craft. GOOD WORK ACHIEVED

e Salvation Army which has on so many occasions rmed work of the finest character for the sake of per- in distress has been doing a noble work in the collec- of clothing for the Winnipeg flood sufferers.

It is a happy fact that this work of ceollecting dona- of clothing for the distressed folk has brought sup- in so freely that word has gone out that "sufficient ing and bedding for distribution among the Manitoba victims returning to their homes are now thought to been accumulated," according to Commissioner Chas. gh, head of the Salvation Army who has completed an ection of supplies on hand at Winnipeg and awaiting ment from Toronto.

"The appeal to the public through the press will efore be discontinued. If the need gives an indication utrunning available supplies, collecting, sorting and ping will be resumed at a moment's notice.

"All attempts to assess the need are purely specula- but Salvation Army officers in charge of the distribu- of supplies will keep close tab on the situation. Sup- still pouring in from all parts of the Dominion will eld at certain points until it is certain that all flood s have been met."

The Salvation Army has in this as in many a special of need performed another noble effort which has gratifying to the Salvation Army and its members to all those who have made contributions and of se to the sufferers. PROGRESS OF COMMONWEALTH

Immense strides have been made in Britain's economic lopment at home and in the Commonwealth, said the etary of the State Commonwealth Relations in a ch the other day at Manchester. "Since the war, the monwealth has been enlarged and strengthened by accession of three important new members. We can no er say that our Commonwealth is held together solely ommon blood or religion or language; though these ious things still play a vital part within the Common- lth. The new Commonwealth as a whole is held to- er by the acceptance of common democratic ideals; by and understanding of Parliamentary democracy; ;by dship and intimacy; by the realization that we have e Commonwealth discovered a new way by which inde- dent countries can collaborate and work together.

"This new Commonwealth of ours provides a bridge een Europe and Asia such as the world has never . It constitutes the greatest promise for the future e and prosperity of the world and understanding be- n nations that exists anywhere today.

"The Commonwealth is in the van in the organization efence and of peace. In the West, Britain and Canada the key countries in the Atlantic Pact. In Asia, the monwealth nations have just concluded an extremely ortant conference at Sydney which will help to con- date the new countries that have come into existence he East and will help to counter the menace of com- nist imperialism by the constructive development of al and economic progress.

"Typical of the mutual help characteristic of the Com- nwealth is the way in which we come to one another's stance in difficulty and disaster. During and since the , we have in Britain received an immense volume of man help in the form of food gifts from the rest of the mmonwealth. There are few families that have not efited from this flow of generosity.

"The other day I was very proud to be able to bid god- ed to an aeroplane laden with supplies to help those o have suffered from flood and fire in Canada. It was a all return for all that we have received; but I knew that departing this help and the further help that will follow sea I was acting with the full support of all the people Britain."

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

June 16th., 1930

Today, June 16th., is the 146th. anniversary of the landing of the United Empire Loyalists in the Bay of Quinte district; Adolphustown was their immediate destination. Five shiploads of U. E. Loyalists sailed from New York on the 6th. of September 1783, convoyed by the brig "Hope", up the Atlantic Coast to the Gulf of St. Lawrence then up the gulf to the river. They wintered at Sorel, Que., and set out the next spring for their homes on the Bay of Quinte. Their navigation up the River St. Lawrence was in small boats called batteaux which had to be pulled against the current by men walking along the shore, while the women, by means of poles, kept the boats from nosing into the land.

30 YEARS AGO

June 16th., 1920

Mr. E. J| Butler, barrister, has returned home from Peterborough where he attended County Court.

Dr. Harper of Madoc was in town today.

Mrs. W. R. Dennison has left for Chicago, Ill., after visiting friends here.

Machinery is being installed in the factory of the Natural Tread Shoe Company on Pinnacle Street and the manufacture of this popular line of footwear will soon be commenced.

Last evening the members of the Young People's Society in connection with the Baptist Church motored to the Baptist Church in Sidney township and visited the young people of that congregation. An enjoyable evening was passed.

40 YEARS AGO

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

At a very early age I became fascinated with books. I haunted the public library after school, and at every other opportunity. The late Logan Pearsall Smith was a most discriminating writer and reader. He said, in one of his books, that "reading is rather a series of intoxications. We fall in love with a book; it is our book, we feel, for life; we shall never need another."

How many of us feel about books as this fine writer and critic. My library of several thousand volumes is a very democratic one—books of all descriptions, a variety of authors and subjects — poetry, history, biography, fiction, science, art, religion, essays and humor. I read very few modern novels preferring those that have been "tried and true" over the years. I keep pulling out an old book for my reading.

Out of the thousands of books published each year, none of us can read more than a selected few, and if we wait a little while we will find that those selected few have been automatically given permanent life for our pleasure and profit—for it has always been the "survival of the fittest" among books, as among humans and animals.

How many times I have read a modern novel, only to return to an older one, that I may have read long ago, to be doubly enriched, in contrast to my modern one. The worthwhile book never grows old in substance, though it may in years. Can anyone regret having read "Boswell's Dr. Johnson"? Like many another, it is a book for the ages.

We have loves among books, as we have among those who have written them, or themselves been lovers of them. A few I call my "pets" and return to them again and again, always refreshed and inspired in mind and heart. And I like to tell other people about them. It always gives me a thrill when a reader of these talks writes and tells me that he or she has gained pleasure and profit from the reading of some book I have mentioned in this brief column.

Said Paul Jordan Smith: "We love books for their wisdom, their beauty, the pleasures they afford, and the comfort they give: they open doors to the only freedom we may know." Old books, especially, I would comment.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

THE HERRING OF ZOROASTER

Last Friday night on the way home from his weekly pinochle session, my Uncle Charlie was held up a few blocks from his home on Allen Street and a wallet containing $13 was taken from him. This misadventure, strangely enough, has made my Aunt Frieda very happy, and with your leave and license, I'd like to tell you why.

To begin with, to hear my uncle tell it, Frieda is crazy like a fox about most things, but when it comes to fortune telling and allied superstitions she's crazy like a crazy. This, of course, in Charlie's own words, "drives him to destruction," particularly when my aunt shells out good money for such charms and amulets as lucky horse-tail hairs and pieces of string with seven magic knots.

"I can't understand," I once heard him tell her, "how a distinct twenty-century type like you could potsky around with such superstitions."

"Century, schmentury" Frieda answered. "What was good enough by my grandmother is good enough by me."

"So why didn't you marry your grandfather?"

"So when I look at you, that's who I'm thinking I married."

The matter came to a crisis last Friday when Charlie arrived home from the shop and Frieda asked him for ten dollars.

"Only last week I am giving you ten dollars,' he exploded. "What you making, a down payment on a Cadillac?"

"A catalogue I am not needing," Frieda sassed back. "Today I am purchasing from a certain Gypsy a brass fish with the sign from Zoroaster which is absolute guaranteed to make a party healthy, wealthy and wise, and also rich."

Charlie examined the brass object. "To me it looks like a tin herring," he said. "Where is living this Gypsy?"

"In the back of a store on Suffolk Street, and her I am trusting complete," said Frieda. "F'rinstance, when Mrs. Feitelson was expecting, the Gypsy told her to sew up the stuffed derma with black thread for a boy and white thread for a girl, and when she used the black, you saw what happened—a boy."

"It occasional takes place," said my uncle patiently, "that a boy comes in the world without black thread in the stuffed derma."

The upshot of the argument was a decision to put the magical fish to a practical test, and when Charlie went out that night for his weekly pinochle session, the good-luck charm was in his wallet. If he lost, it was agreed Frieda would stop patronizing Gypsy establishments; if he made a killing, however, he was to have more faith in her theories.

Well, as it turned out, my uncle won ten dollars which, added to the three he started out with, gave him a take-home total of thirteen. Reluctant to face gloating Frieda, he took a roundabout way home.

A few doors from a drug store on Rivington Street, a hoodlum stepped out of an alley and stuck him up.

"Could you return, please the pocketbook?" said Charlie. "Is genuine alligator leather."

"Scram," said the hold-up man, "or I'll bust in your head."

"A pleasure," said my uncle politely. "Cherry-ho."

When Charlie got home, Frieda was considerably shaken by the story of the stick-up, and was forced to admit that the brass geegaw was a flop. But the next morning she gave my uncle the horse laugh when the mailman dropped off a small parcel with the wallet in it, its contents intact. There was also an unsigned note.

"Dear Mister—When I see you got the Fish of Zoroaster, I decide to send everything back because I have dealings with such fishes before and don't want no part of them. Besides, when I count up the money I find thirteen dollars exactly. I know when I'm licked."

"See?" said my aunt. "On account of the brass fish, everything is turning out hunky-totsy."

"Maybe," said my uncle, "but to me it still smells from herring."

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

There are not many little hole-in-the-wall restaurants and lunch counters left in the country. They have all been modernized—terrific expanses of black or white or magenta plastic tile; gaudy modernistic tables, chairs, counters. The soft drink, ice cream and peanut industries all seem eager to install spectacular show-cases and dispensers for even the most trivial little eating places, where you can't even get a decent fried egg sandwich.

The holes-in-the-wall are still there, as far as the kind of food you get. But they don't look like holes-in-the-wall. Their appearance is deceiving.

So determined is the restaurant trade to look and to be modern that they have abandoned even the old fashioned tea pot and coffee pot—the little individual ones. You know the kind: plain, homely, potty.

To be in keeping with the rest of the garish circus-trapping of the joint, and to harmonize with the extraordinary yowls and yahoos coming out of the juke box, they have even had to offer you a modernistic tea pot. It may be square. It may be three cornered, or squashed-looking. Its spout may come out of one corner, or it may have no spout at all.

It could be modern, all right. But one thing about it: it won't pour. It dribbles. And you can no more pour yourself a cup of tea or coffee nowadays without creating a puddle on the table for your sleeve to sop in than you can eat a mechanically made sandwich without Billy Eckstein yelling at you.

Why doesn't Billy Eckstein clear his throat, or at least swallow, before he sings? Hey! Waitress! Give me an old-fashioned tea pot —one of those two bit ones, brown, you know? Plain.

Grave Illness Of Marshal Smuts Causes Concern

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The grave illness of aged Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts at his home near Pretoria is a matter of deep concern not only to his native South Africa but to the British Commonwealth, for he long has been a pillar of strength in that great association of nations.

Indeed, this famous soldier - statesman has been more than that, for he has in the truest sense been a world citizen — an outstanding figure of history.

The 80-year-old Smuts has suffered a collapse followed by pneumonia. Should this illness mean that he must abandon politics it may easily create a fresh crisis for the Commonwealth.

It was the Field Marshal himself who in 1947 introduced the idea of the Commonwealth, and he has been the chief link which has held South Africa in that union of nations. Many of his political opponents who now are in power want separation from Britain and the establishment of a republic.

Long Prime Minister, Smuts was defeated in 1948 by a coalition of Nationalists and Afrikanders. He was succeeded by Dr. Daniel F. Malan, a clergyman who is an isolationist and an advocate of race segregation and white supremacy in South Africa.

Since then Smuts has been leader of the opposition united party.

Smuts, who once was labelled "the empire's handyman" because of the many duties he performed, first came to prominence as a military leader in the Boer War. In that conflict he rendered yeoman's service to South Africa.

Again at the outbreak of the First World War he got into uniform, this time as a lieutenant-general in the British army and commander-in-chief of the British and South African forces fighting the Germans in East Africa. His success there was followed by a call to membership in the Imperial War Cabinet in London. And in the Second World War his counsel was sought by Britain.

It fell to Smuts to be one of the planners of both the League of Nations and the United Nations. Great as he has been in war, he always has been an advocate of peace and co-operation among countries.

Personal Health Talks

Address: Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

IN CANCER OF THE BREAST, OPERATE FIRST — EXPERIMENT LATER

Surgery, X-ray and radium are still the most potent weapons that can be used against cancer—in any location. I make this statement with full knowledge that experiments in radio-active elements have indicated that in the future they may compete with or even supplant the the measures I have indicated. That is for the future. I am speaking of today.

No one knows what the future holds with reference to the treatment of cancer by hormones. We know today that they are temporarily effective in certain types of cancer, but are used not to supplant surgery but to follow up surgery.

Cancer of the breast should be removed by surgical operation—the more thorough the better. The earlier the better. There is no good reason why only a portion of the breast should be removed when cancer exists. Removal of only a portion of the breast is good treatment for many conditions in which cancer may be suspected but not found.

The use of X-ray or radium plus the use of hormones as an alternative to surgery has been investigated. In my opinion, the results to date have been such ar to make me more firmly convinced than ever that cancer of the breast should be operated upon first. Radiation and hormones may be of great use afterward.

It is not even good practice to do two operations in the removal of breast cancer—one to establish the diagnosis and the other to remove the cancer. By that I mean the practice of removing a small lump from the breast with the idea of doing a surgical removal of the breast later—if the lump proves to be cancerous.

Modern day technique provides for quick diagnosis of a lump from the breast—within a few minutes after its removal. The operation is delayed for the few minutes required to establish the diagnosis. If the lump is benign—non-cancerous — the operation is completed at that point. If the lump proves to be malignant—cancerous — the entire breast should then be removed.

This operation is admittedly mutilating to some extent. It is common for the arm to become somewhat swollen afterward, and limited in usefulness, and often skin grafts may be necessary to cover the region of the incision. There is no point in trying to evade or cover up these possibilities. Unless cancer is completely removed, it will recur or spread to other localities—with fatal results. What does slight mutilation or temporary restriction of the use of an arm mean—as compared to life?

After surgery, radiation may be useful to dispose of an occasional cancer cell which might have been left behind. The use of hormones has proved beneficial in certain situations—after surgery has been done. Hormones have the effect of slowing the development of cancer. Their value as cure still remains to be proven.

The reluctance of a woman to undergo surgical removal of the breast is understandable. Who wants to undergo surgical removal of anything? The fear of mutilation often leads women to implore doctors to use radiation and hormones instead of surgery. I have recently had the opportunity to watch the results in one such case. That is why I say that I am more convinced than ever that cancer of the breast should be removed surgically. Afterward, there would seem to be no good reason why radiation or hormones may not be useful in some instances.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

The Old Hokum Bunkem

Surprised to read that you who teach health and hygiene use aluminum in your kitchen. Why is surgical equipment made of nickle or its alloys? I can't forgive you. (S. M.)

Answer—The aluminum ware we use in our kitchen has not injured our health appreciably and I don't believe the use of nickle or its alloys in your kitchen can do any harm if you prefer that kind of kitchen or cooking ware.

Coffee and Friends

It is an ancient fallacy that one must start with cold water to make good coffee. Draw the hottest water from the tap and boil it before adding the coffee to brew. (C. W.)

Answer—The thing could be settled easily enough. Make one pot of coffee your way and another pot my way, and let an unbiased judge or a group decide which coffee is better. My way is described in the red book What to Eat and Why—for the booklet send twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope.

Rose Fever

My rose fever usually starts the first week or ten days in June and continues till the first week in August. (H. R. J.)

TYPES OF RELIGIOUS EXPERIENCE

The type of religious book most popular today is that which interprets Christianity as a mystical experience. True religion, we are told, consists in getting in tune with the infinite. It means becoming quiet and letting God speak to us. It means following guidance and thereby attaining prosperity, happiness and success.

This is a true interpretation. The Christian experience is a mystical experience but the Christian experience is also a belligerent experience. The Christian has a big fight on his hands with evil in all its forms. He cannot just lie back and let the spirit of rest and quietness overwhelm him. He sometimes finds himself in the midst of temptations so intense that he is lucky if he escapes by the skin of his teeth. He has to lash out and fight. He has to run away from evil. He has to do many things that are not included in the mystical experience.

Let us try to have balance in our religion—mysticism where it is indicated and struggle and restraint where these are indicated. It takes all sorts of people to make the world and all sorts of experiences to make religion real to everybody.

Belleville Firefighters Start Scoring Splurge Local Firemen Were Unable to Extinguish

Trenton (Special) — There was only one fire in town last night—the one started by Belleville Fire Department at the ball park. Before the local firefighters could bring it under control the roof fell in.

Belleville firemen really burned up the base paths at Bayshore Park as they scorched Trenton Fire Department 20 to 9 in an exhibition softball game.

After a seven-run explosion by Belleville in the eighth, Mayor Couch was called on in the ninth to do some relief pitching for Trenton and councillor Ross Burtt took over the catching duties. Belleville countered by sending Fire Chief Gerald Vance in to pinch hit.

Shows Improvement

His Worship showed marked improvement over his first hurling performance this year, when he opened the local softball season here on Victoria Day. The Mayor blazed one fast pitch past the Belleville chief but pinch hitter Vance connected solidly with Mayor Couch's second delivery and the Trenton shortstop booted the chief's hot drive enabling him to reach first safely.

Trenton pitcher Bruce Burtt sparked the Belleville bombardment by walking the first two batters, then Warpy O'Brien blooped a Texas Leaguer into short centre field. Before Burtt could put out the fire, Albert Rump tagged him for a double driving in two runs and Elmer Helm added another with a single.

The visiting firemen turned on the heat again in their half of the second. Pitcher Burtt added fuel to the blaze by giving up a triple to Halloran and then walking the next two hitters. Then Ray Reid blasted a grand slam homer, Alan Vance landed a single scoring another and before Trenton could smother the outbreak, six Belleville runs had flashed across the plate.

Rally Short Lived

Trenton failed to get a man on in the first but started the second with a one run homer by Jim Thompson. The next two batters failed to hit safely but Gord Coughlin lined out a double Bruce Burtt came up with a triple, Alan Ormshaw was good for a single and Ernie Newton walked but Fred McCrodin struck out ending the Trenton rally at three runs.

The local firemen added two more in the third on singles by Gerald Lewis and Gord Coughlin and a triple by Bruce Burtt. Belleville pitcher Marty Halloran blew up in the fifth inning, walking five and giving up a double permitting Trenton to score four runs. Halloran settled down the next inning and went the rest of the way without difficulty.

Bob Emerson was the big gun for Belleville slamming two round trippers, one in the third and another in the eighth. Miller seconded Emerson's efforts with two three baggers. Thirteen Belleville batters went to the plate in the eighth as the Friendly City boys racked up seven runs. When the smoke had cleared, Trenton was on the short end of a 20 to 9 score.

Both Went Route

Both pitchers went the route and each fired the third strike past nine batters. In the miscue department, Trenton was away out in front with 11 while Belleville bobbled two. Belleville collected a total of 17 hits, seven of which were good for extra bases. The Belleville Department slammed out three home runs, three triples and a double. Halloran gave up 11 hits. The Trenton boys hit one homer three triples and a double. Jim Thompson led the locals at the plate with a homer and a triple Burtt permitted nine free trips to first, Halloran walked seven.

Fred Logue won the card table donated for a gate prize. Proceeds of the game were for the Firemen's Benefit Fund.

The teams:

Trenton: Alan Ormshaw, rf; Ernie Newton, cf; Fred McCrodin, lf; Gerald Lewis, ss; Jim Thompson, 3b; Ford Gainforth, 2b; Harold Lewis, 1b; Gord Coughlin, c; Bruce Burtt, p.

Kinsmen to Help Local Children With Tag Day

Trenton—Trenton Kinsmen are holding their annual tag day tomorrow to raise money to send underprivileged children to camp this summer. It is hoped that Trentonians will contribute enough money to give 50 of the town's less fortunate children a one week holiday in a supervised camp.

The Kinsmen plan to make arrangements with the Belleville Y.M.C.A. to accommodate 25 boys during the last week in July and 25 girls during the first week in August at their camp on Moira Lake.

Cost of the program is $12.50 for each child for the one week vacation, plus the costs of transportation. Boys and girls from 10 to 15 years are eligible to be selected for the holiday.

London, June 16 — (Reuters) — The Bata Shoe organization announced today plans to open a factory in Colombo, Ceylon, with an initial output of 10,000 pairs of shoes a week.

Action Follows Aerial Survey

Marmora — Action has followed an aerial survey carried out in this part of the province a few months ago by the Department of Mines to ascertain what bodies of iron or magnetic ore might be situated here. Maps were issued and made available showing the results of the survey. Among the American iron and steel companies examining these maps was the Bethlehem Steel Corporation who were sufficiently interested to decide to investigate. As a result an option has been secured on a number of properties close to Marmora and these options have been registered in the County Registry Office in Belleville. A diamond drill commenced operations on Wednesday. Dr. Wahl is in charge of the operations.

County Assessor System Adopted by Hastings After Plan Outlined by Department

Hastings County will adopt the county assessor system, county council decided yesterday. It endorsed a motion to appoint a county assessor and to advertise for applicants.

The advantages of the county assessment system and the duties and cost of a county assessor were outlined by Mr. Max Sloan of the Department of Municipal Affairs, Toronto.

"While his department concurred in the system it was not trying to sell it to any municipality" Mr. Sloan said.

Eighteen counties in Ontario have adopted this system thus far with two more being added next week.

The main job of a county assessor is to see that local assessors do their work, and that every property is assessed.

Must Make Report

He must make a report to the county which will not be that of equalization.

The county assessor system does not take away the right of any municipality to appeal equalization nor that of a taxpayer to appeal assessment.

The initial cost of the system to a municipality would be $1,500 which provides a desk, filing equipment, card system, etc.

The salary of a county assessor differs in various parts of the province. Mr. Sloan quoted Lanark County, comparable to Hastings in acreage and assessment as paying its assessor $3,000 a year plus mileage.

Favors Mileage System

"The Department of Municipal Affairs," he said, "favored the mileage idea instead of an expense account. Mileage has proven the better system, since it has been proven that expense accounts run out before a new one is granted. Mileage ranges from 7 to 8 cents.

"The government," he said, will subsidize county assessor's salaries to the extent of $1,500.

Mr. Sloan urged that assessors strive not for high or low assessment, but rather for equalization. Appointment of county assessors will be made by the municipality and not interfered with by the department.

Must Approve Appointment

However, Mr. Sloan added, the appointment must be approved by the department. This would be done or not done after department officials had worked with the appointee and secured an idea of his ability.

He urged that advertisement for the assessor if the county saw fit to secure one, be placed in metropolitan newspapers and the Municipal World. "Through this media" he said "the municipality would secure a wide choice of applicants. "Some counties," he said, "would not consider the application of a local resident, since it was felt he might favor his own locality.

Mr. Sloan conducted a somewhat lengthy question period and dispensed much information to council on problems of assessment.

Calf Vaccination Only Way To Eradicate Bang's Disease County Council Members Told

Bangs' disease costs the farmers 30 million dollars annually, Dr. J. R. Gallagher regional veterinarian for Eastern Ontario, Kemptville, told the county council yesterday.

"This cost," he said, "is based on the loss of calves and milk, by those in close connection with the problem."

He pointed out that the disease which originated in Denmark and spread through Europe, the British Isles, United States and Canada springs from a germ which can affect horses, goats, swine, cattle and humans. The type which affects goats and swine is not found in Canada.

Dead in Week

"Calves from cattle which have aborted are usually dead in a week," Dr. Gallagher said, while those which survive may not grow to be good animals.

Since the disease comes from a germ, its source cannot be traced. Regarding spread, he said this is done through contact infection which spreads from the mouth to the reproductive organs.

The discharge from infected animals infects others. Cows showing no discharge can spread it through milk to a calf.

Dr. Gallagher felt that calf-vaccination is best. A canvass is being made of the county and farmers are receiving it well.

Best Means to End

In the end it is hoped to have a completely disease-free animal but for the present, he felt calf vaccination is the best step towards this end.

It is not the whole answer to Bangs' disease. It helps but it is not 100 per cent. It will protect the animal for a period of five years and give some protection beyond that. Many cows abort once, some more.

Calves not vaccinated, Dr. Gallagher said, remain a source of infection to those that are.

Veterinarians of the area were called together to discuss fees for vaccination, and set a standard charge. Those in the city agreed to vaccinate calves 4 to eight months for $1.00.

Definite Results

Other provinces have had calf vaccination for some time, Dr. Gallagher said, and have had definite results. In New Brunswick it has been in effect for a period of time and the percentage affected before was 25. In this district it is between 15 and 20 per cent. At the present time in New Brunswick the percentage is less than one. The population there is much smaller than here but nevertheless, results have been astounding.

Calf vaccination protects herds, the speaker said, adding that those that have not had it will know when the disease strikes.

Increases Value

It increases the value of calves, for those vaccinated sell at much higher prices to other breeders and to foreign markets. It indirectly protects human beings.

In answer to a query, Dr Gallagher said the vaccine was controlled solely by veterinarians and will be for some time, because it affects humans.

Lands and Forests Minister Outlines Work of Department At Y's Men's Club Luncheon

"We don't realize the magnitude of this kingdom of ours in Ontario.' With those words Hon. Harold R. Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests, wrapped up in a nutshell the workings of his department at the Y's Men's Club dinner last night. Mr. Scott was guest speaker at the club's last meeting of the spring term, a Civic Night, at which members of the County Council were guests of honor.

"Let your eye start at Belleville; let it roam up to James Bay and then to the border of Manitoba," Mr. Scott said. "Then you will see the magnitude of the forests and the industrial development. It makes you pretty proud of Ontario," the Minister said.

Divide Work in Four Stages

Mr. Scott described the job of his department as the care of the renewable resources of the province, and divided the work into four stages. The first was the protection of the resources. Under that came the fighting of forest fires, control of pests and diseases, limits on animals and fish. Mr. Scott said that the provincial fire-fighting force now has access to 40 airplanes, 33 of them the new type Beavers. "Since the purchase of the Beavers," he said, "accessibility to remote lakes has increased by as much as 50 percent. In addition, the province is equipped with bulldozers, land rovers, and narrow-gauge "cats."

"We are interested in the helicopter," the speaker said. "We feel it might be a very valuable adjunct to the department and are experimenting with it." He went on to say that one had been tested at the recent Sudbury fire and proved itself handsomely.

Research Laboratories

Mr. Scott mentioned the provincial research laboratories which devise methods and means of controlling and preventing damage to the natural resources of the province.

The second phase of the work is the wise use of the resources. In Northern Ontario, where trapping is the main source of income for many men, areas have been allocated to each man. It is his job to supervise the trapping done there, and he is told by the department his trapping quota. The system is working out very well, and trappers are finding that sensible use of the wild life is increasing their quotas each year. "The trapper is out of the criminal class," he said.

Sawmills and pulp mills are told how much timber they can cut and send out per year. "This is done so that the mill can operate in perpetuity if need be," Mr. Scott said.

Take Inventory

Another step taken in this phase was an inventory of the timber business and didn't know what our stock in trade was," he said. Since 1946 a concentrated program has been operating to judge the rate of growth of the forests and the type of timber in them. Another step is the teaching of rangers and conservation officers to be more diplomatic in their dealings with tourists.

Third step in the program is improvement through research and management. This concerns the building and re-building of government fish hatcheries and nurseries, and the promotion of the work they are doing. It also concerns wild animals like moose whose numbers are dying out. "Moose just aren't there," the minister said, "and we have closed the season to try to bring them back."

Restoration Goes On

This leads to the fourth step, the restoration of wild life and timber lands lost. "It is closely tied in with the third's hatcheries and nurseries," the minister said. Control again is applied by limits, on game and fish. "The trout streams in Ontario have been taking an awful beating," he said. He admitted that there were dissenting voices when the trout limit was lowered this year, but the department felt that that was the only way preservation could be accomplished.

The speaker was introduced by Elmer Sandercock, MLA, for West Hastings. He was thanked by Ron Cass.

Also invited to say a few words were Roscoe Robson, MLA, for East Hastings, and Clarke Rollins, Warden of the county.

Chairman Jerry Hyde presented the speaker with a gift on behalf of the club.

Several Persons Forced from Home In Early Hours

Several persons were forced from their beds and escaped down an adjoining stairway early this morning when fire was discovered in the east half of a double house at 77 Station Street. Considerable damage to the ground floor was caused by the blaze, which was confined to the downstairs part of the dwelling.

Origin of the blaze which apparently started in the living room of the one half of the double house tenanted by Mrs. Beatrice Parks, is unknown, according to Fire Chief Gerald Vance.

The blaze was discovered shortly before two o'clock this morning by Wilfred Pickard, local taxi driver, who had come home late and was getting ready for bed when he smelled smoke. With smoke cutting off his escape downstairs he awakened other persons sleeping in the house and went down the stairs in the other half of the house.

By the time firemen were called the blaze had gained considerable headway and a second alarm was turned in as a precautionary measure. Fire damage was confined to the downstairs portion while smoke blackened the walls in the upstairs.

No estimate of the damage to the house was given by the fire chief who stated the blaze started in the absence of Mrs. Parks who was visiting in Toronto at the time.

Tabernacle United Church School Holds Anniversary

Sunday, June 11, was a memorable day for the church school pupils of Tabernacle United Church. During the morning service, the church school met with the congregation in worship to celebrate both the annual anniversary of the church school and the 25th anniversary of church union.

Led by standard bearers, the church school pupils and staff proceeded to the church auditorium which had been decorated with iris, peonies, spirea and other early summer flowers. In the chancel, before the communion table, stood a gate entwined with spirea.

Mr. A. D. Archibald, past superintendent of the church school, assisted the Rev. F. R. Harback in conducting the service. Each department contributed to the worship. Verla Nelson, and Bill Charlton, of the intermediate department led in scripture reading. The beginners and primary departments enchanted the congregaton with songs and prayer, with little Lana Lockyer taking a solo part. The junior choir, under the leadership of choirmaster Ted Robbins, sang the anthem beautifully.

Rev. F. R. Harback addressing his sermonette to the children, took them back through the sands of time to a city of long ago, when donkeys and camels were the means of travel. It was the story of how a prince overcame the evil in men's heart's by showing them the beauty that could be if, each one tried to bring that beauty into being.

At the close of Rev. Mr. Harback's story, Mr. Archibald called upon Mrs. Harback, superintendent of the church school, to conduct the promotion services. Mrs. Harback requested the teachers to present their classes for promotion. As the teacher called the name, each child, from the nursery department up, came forward to receive his certificate and pass through the gate to be welcomed by his new teacher and to begin another chapter in the book of Life.

Those promoted were:

Nursery Department— Misses Dorothy Moorman and Thelma Schlievert's class to Mrs. A. Charlton's class.

Beginners' Department— Miss Olive Thompson's class to Mrs. A. Charlton's class; Mrs. A. Charlton's class to Mrs. D. MacLean's class; Mrs. D. MacLean's class to Miss Loreen May's class.

Primary Department— Miss Loreen May's class to Mrs. A. Cornish's class; Mrs. A. Cornish's class to Mrs. C. Shaw's class.

Junior Department—Mrs. A. Cornish presented the girl graduates to Miss Edna Kolver and Mrs. C. Shaw the boy graduates to Mr. M. McClelland; Miss Edna Kolver's class to Miss Vivian Coon, and Miss Vivian Coon's class to Mrs. F. Davidson.

Mr. Archibald and Mrs. F. Grandame presented diplomas to the classes graduating to the Senior Department from the Intermediate Department.

The processional hymn, "The Church's One Foundaton" closed an exceptionally fine meeting.

Summer is Salad Time

This is truly a generation of salad eaters.

The name salad is said to be the result of mispronounciation. The original "salted" became "salett" and finally "salad". Originally, it was the green leaves and raw vegetables which were eaten with salt to make the first salads. Today a salad may be made from raw or cooked foods, it may be hot or cold and light and refreshing or substantial. The dressings have gone far from the simple salt. Green leaves are still an integral part of most salads and of these, lettuce is so universally used that in some locations it is called "salad plant".

A salad for luncheon or supper is perfect in summer time. The addition of hard-cooked eggs, cheese, meat, chicken or fish to the crisp, green vegetables make a meal that is both refreshing and satisfying.

Fresh vegetables and fruits are now available throughout the year but while the gardens and orchards are producing it pays to serve generous quantities of them.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa have these suggestions for summer salads.

Nippy Moulded Salad

1 tablespoon gelatine
1-4 cup cold water
3-4 cup vinegar
1-4 cup water
3-4 cup sugar
2 teaspoons dry mustard
1-2 teaspoon salt
3 eggs
1 cup whipping cream

Soak gelatine in 1-4 cup cold water for 5 minutes. Bring vinegar and remaining 1-4 cup of water to boiling point. Mix sugar, mustard and salt and add to slightly beaten eggs. Gradually add hot vinegar to egg mixture, and cook slowly, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Remove from heat, add soaked gelatine and stir until dissolved. Chill until mixture begins to thicken. Whip cream until quite thick but not stiff; fold into gelatine mixture. Pour into moulds which have been rinsed with cold water and chill until firm. Serve on lettuce with cold meat, salmon, devilled eggs, cabbage or mixed vegetable salad. Yield: 8 individual molds (four cups).

Supper Salad

2 cups diced cooked meat
4 tomatoes, coarsely chopped
1 1-2 cups chopped cucumber
1-4 cup chopped green onion
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
Salad dressing.

Mix the meat and vegetables with sufficient salad dressing to moisten. Serve at once on crisp lettuce. Yield: six servings.

Hot String-Bean Salad Bowl

1 1-2 lb. string beans, cut in 1 inch pieces (4 cups cooked)
1 cup diced bologna or canned luncheon meat (1-4 lb.)
2 tablespoons chopped pickle
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 teaspoon cider vinegar
1-8 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon dry mustard
4 hot, hard-cooked eggs, sliced

Cook beans in boiling, salted water until tender. Drain. Combine other ingredients, except eggs, in salad bowl. Add hot beans. Mix well. Garnish with sliced hard-cooked eggs. Yield: four servings.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about Food . . . What's Cooking?

Cabbage eaters are divided into two schools—those who like their cabbage barely tender, almost crisp, and those who like it simmered for at least an hour or until the aroma rises from the kitchen to the attic.

Long cooked cabbage has a mature full flavor but nutritionists will tell you that it isn't very friendly to the digestive tract."

On the other hand, cabbage steamed for a brief five to ten minute period retains a great deal of its vitamin value, but the flavor is light and delicate.

One way to give short cooked cabbage a robust flavor is to serve it with a piquante sweet and sour sauce. Prepare the sauce before the cabbage is cooked. As soon as the cabbage has been drained and while it is steamy hot, pour the sauce over it and serve at once.

Try cabbage in this style as an accompaniment to fresh or smoked beef tongue.

Beef Tongue with Sweet and Sour Cabbage. Serves 8.

Place a fresh or smoked beef tongue in a pot with cold water. Add 1 large onion, 1 stalk of celery and 2 bay leaves. Bring water to a boil. Then reduce flame so that water merely simmers. Cook 3-4 hours or until tongue is tender when pierced with a meat fork, Cooking time will depend on size and quality of tongue.

Place tongue in cold water for 20 minutes to loosen skin. Remove skin with a sharp knife or tear off skin with a clean heavy kitchen towel, Cut off thick root end of tongue containing bones. End meat may be chopped, when cold, and mixed with mayonnaise to make a sandwich spread.

Keep tongue in warm liquid until sliced. Save liquid to use as stock for pea or bean soup.

Cut 1 medium size head of cabbage into 8 wedges. Cabbage may be cooked in same liquid in which tongue was simmered or it may be simmered in another pot of hot water. Cook cabbage wedges 10 minutes.

To make sauce, combine 1-4 cup melted butter or margarine 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 2 tablespoons vinegar and 2 tablespoons horseradish. Mix well. Pour over hot cabbage.

Slice tongue thin. Moisten slices with cooking liquid just before serving.

CENTENARY W.A.

The June meeting of Centenary W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. H. Roblin with a splendid attendance.

Mrs. Aikens, card and flower convener, read a "thank you" note from Miss Phylis May. Rev. A. C. McCallum thanked the ladies for a card sent him during his illness. The treasurer Mrs. L. Hall gave a good report. Almost $40 was realized from the last two cooking sales. It was decided that the W.A. purchase a glass top for the communion table. Mrs. R. Thrasher and Mrs. R. Hart were appointed to look after same.

Mrs. E. Ray nominated a committee of Mrs. C. Bain, Mrs. G. Woods and Mrs. J. Lawrenson to look after arrangements for a ice-cream and strawberry social. Due to lack of time the reports of the convention at Stirling, were held over until the next meeting.

The meeting closed with a poem "No", by Mrs. G. Woods.

CENTENARY W.M.S.

A short business meeting opened the June meeting at the home of Mrs. H. Roblin with the president, Mrs. G. Sills, in the chair. Mrs. Sills welcomed all newcomers with a special welcome to Mrs. G. Avory, Belleville, a former president of the society.

All present were asked to make an effort to gather any clothing they might have to help the Manitoba Flood victims and for overseas shipments.

Mrs. Sills led the worship service taken from the Missionary Monthly. The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. R. Edmondson.

Several of the ladies, including Mrs. F. Aikens, Mrs. E. Ray, Mrs. G. Avory, Mrs. R. Thrasher, Mrs. R. Hart and Mrs. G. Sills each took a part of the story entitled "Are We Growing With the Years?", which proved that the Society is doing just that.

During the 25 years of church union, progress has been made in each one of the many fields of missionary work.

Mrs. B. Roblin took the memorial service and read the following names, Mrs. Haggerty, Mrs. J. Wellman, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. J. Radford, Mrs. M. Thrasher, Mrs. Philip Ray and Mrs. G. Shortt.

Life Membership Presented

Mrs. J. Kelley spoke for the Life members including herself, and called on Mrs. R. Hart, and Mrs. G. Avory. These ladies have been active workers in the W.M.S. Mrs. Avory was president of this society for six years prior to her moving to Belleville, and had organized a C.G.I.T. group and was a capable and willing worker.

Mrs. Hart has lived all her life at Centenary. She was president for a term and very seldom did she ever miss a meeting, taking part whenever asked.

Mrs. R. Thrasher presented each with a Life membership pin, and Mrs. G. Sills presented the certificates.

Both were taken completely by surprise which added much to the ceremony. Rev. A. C. McCallum closed the meeting.

Mrs. Roblin and her helpers served delicious refreshments, then all adjourned to the front lawn where many pictures of the different groups were taken.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

On Tuesday, afternoon last, the regular monthly meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S. was held in the church parlor with a fairly good attendance.

Mrs. J. Craig presided over the business part of the meeting.

The summer meeting of Kingston Presbyterial is to be held in Amherst Island the latter part of June. As many as possible were urged to attend.

There were missionary letters from India, Formosa and British Guiana, these were passed around to be taken home.

Chapter five of the study book was most interesting and informative as it was presented by Mrs. G. Stirling and Mrs. J. Craig, showing the great zeal the Koreans have for preaching the gospel and how the church has grown through their efforts.

The devotional period was given by Miss H. Blair and Mrs. Powell.

Mrs. J. Craig and her group served a cup of tea and a social half hour was enjoyed. This is the last meeting until September.

Beyond The Law

Mary Imlay Taylor

Nor would he speak again; he flung himself upon a bench in the farthest corner, hid his face in his arms and feigned sleep, though the fury of the wind made sleep well nigh impossible.

O'Hara took what ease he could in a big chair by the fire. He had fallen into a revery, his busy mind threshing over the queer angles of the case, when he was startled by the abrupt opening of the inner door. It was fairly flung open and Laure stood, a moment leaning against it, white and haggard. Then meeting his eyes, she came unsteadily forward and stretched her shaking hands out t othe fire.

"I'm so cold," she whispered to O'Hara with shaking lips. "I—I'm going to stay here, m'sieur!"

The sergeant long ago had extinguished the lamp and the flame and the flame light lifted her face out of the semi-gloom and gave it an almost unearthly beauty.

He rose. "Isn't there a stove in there? Let me make you a fire, and bring in those furs from the wall." He pointed at some skins that Gharian must have cured for the fur trade.

But she recoiled, shuddering. "No, no! I can't stay in there!"

He said no more thinking he understood. He made her sit down in the chair he just had vacated, spread one of the skins over her knees and made a pillow of a smaller one, aware that Nicky watched them furiously from under the arm he flung across his face. He was waiting eagerly for a word, a sign, that would show an understanding between these two; and O'Hara knew it. It filled him with a cold fury toward the younger man. He had no need to fear self-betrayal from her. She did not speak again. As silent as Creuse himself, she sat there, staring at the fire, and only once did her tremulous lips utter something like a groan. That was when a sudden abating of the wind made O'Hara stir the fire and the leaping flames reflected on a little faded photograph in the corner, the likeness of a tiny child. He glanced at her and saw her eyes fixed on it; but she made no other sound, and as the strange night dragged to its close, another gray Arctic day came to them.

Again she cooked for him, and again Creuse refused to eat her food, choking down his hardtack with a dry throat. The meal was more difficult than supper, though she was calm, but once when O'Hara accidentally touched her hand she flushed and her eyes fell.

Although the storm had spent itself in the night it was noon before O'Hara's Cree came with the dogs. Then he ordered Nicky Creuse to ride on the sled while he stooped to gather up his own pack and make ready to accompany them.

The Cree and the prisoner were almost fifty yards away when he went back to the cabin door and called to the woman.

"You can't mean to stay here alone? When are your friends coming for you, madame?"

She was standing by the table her face in the shadow that was made deeper by the snow glare outside. At his words she looked up, startled. It seemed to him that she was actually frightened; her lips trembled and her hands, but she controlled herself.

"Friends? I've no friends here, m'sieur; how should I?" She affirmed it hotly. "Nothing but this house; it's near my baby's grave. I'll stay here."

O'Hara wanted to assure her that he suspected strongly that she owned a far more potent reason. But he did not. He spoke gravely. "You can't, it's horrible in this cold. You're a woman and afraid. I saw terror in your eyes last night."

She lifted her glance steadily now, "I must stay," she insisted. There was finality in the words.

For a full moment they looked at each other. He could not fathom her, so he turned away. In the distance, gray veiled with mist, he saw the dogs and sled. The figure of the Cree loomed ghostly, as he mushed along, urging his team. They had ascended a little rise and were disappearing over its edge. O'Hara had no time to lose if he meant to overtake them, yet he scarcely had taken a dozen step when he heard her voice behind him and suddenly helt her hand on his sleeve.

"You're taking him to prison?" she choked, her eyes following the track of the sled runners in the snow.

O'Hara stood still, looking down at her. Even in that Arctic light her beauty was radiant, she was so near he could feel her warm breath on his cheek. Suddenly she lifted her eyes to his with a new and pitiful appeal. "The evidence you have against him, m'sieur; it—it's circumstantial?"

"Entirely! Must be in a case like this, Mrs. Gharian. It is suffient, thought."

"Oh, mon Dieu," she cried catching at his sleeve, "don't do it, don't let him suffer on that! He might—might be innocent!"

O'Hara smiled grimly. "He'll have a chance to prove that at the trial."

Her hand fell from his arm and she shrank back, dumb. If she had a secret she meant to keep it. O'Hara drew a glove from his breast and held it out to her.

"Yours?" he asked quietly.

She took it and the color leaped into her face. "You—you found this, m'seiur?"

"At French Pete's, where you dropped it under the table the other night."

She was startled. She flushed, staring at the glove, then suddenlyy, she hid her face upon it, and breaking down in sudden and violent weeping, fled from him into the cabin.

So you've brought in Creuse as the only suspect, and you've covered the ground up there thoroughly; that's the long and short of your report then, O'Hara?"

"The whole of it so far, Inspector."

Macdonald turned around in his chair and eyed the sergeant sharply. "What ails the bunch of you?" he asked tersely. "What the devil's got into this case? You're like Johnson, now; you're holding something back!"

O'Hara's face crimsoned. "I'm asking leave to check up on it further, Inspector. If I can clear up one or two points I'll lay it all before you. If I don't," he drew a letter from his pocket, "I'll resign I'd like to leave this with yuu, sir. If I don't report in six days, open it!"

His chief took the sealed envelope and looked at it curiously, then he glanced up at his subordinate's set face. Something had happened to O'Hara. He looked older, more worn; there was even a sag in his ordinarily erect, confident bearing.

Macdonald carefully pigeonholed the letter. Then he struck his heavy hand on his desk. You're planning some daredevil risk, sergeant, and leaving this in case of your death. Very well! You men have to take chances, but you're a good officer and I don't want to lose you. I'll give you an assistant. Who do you want?"

"No one sir!" O'Hara's voice was harsh. "No one can do what I've got in mind. I'd like to finish this job myself, Inspector."

"Then go ahead; you've got orders. If you need more expense money it's here. If you're not back in six days, I'll—" He did not finish but nodded at the envelope which showed conspicuously in its pigeonhole.

Once again he turned his searching eyes on the sergeant and could have sworn O'Hara winced. Yet the officer's weather bronzed face and his tight shut lips were calm as he saluated at the door. A moment later it shut behind him and his chief was alone.

"Now what the deuce is up?" Macdonald mused, nettled by curiosity he found difficulty to quell

Decorative Street Lighting No Longer in Serviceable Use

Decorative street lighting which for many years has graced the business section of the city during the festive season has served its usefulness with wiring lights now being in such a state of disrepair that it is no longer in a serviceable condition.

This is the report of a special committee from the Retail Merchants section of the Chamber of Commerce who at their regular meeting held Tuesday suggested that the public utilities be allowed to remove the wiring at their convenience.

Use of the colored lights has been spotty during recent years with wartime power restrictions and post-war power shortages restricting their use. A survey of the lights has now indicated they can no longer be used.

Belleville merchants will observe the Dominion Day holiday on July 1st, the day on which it falls. The Chamber secretary was authorized to insert an advertisement in the paper to this effect and that merchants would be open for business as usual on Monday, July 3rd.

No Action Taken

No action was taken on a suggestion that local stores remain closed all day on Wednesday during July and August. This matter was considered at some length but the feeling was that since at a meeting earlier in the year it was decided no change in store hours would be made this year, the matter was deferred until a later date.

Freemon Burrows, Chamber secretary, reported steps had been taken to improve parking lot conditions at the rear of Front Street stores. A committee of W. Fox, H. Gourley, R. White and J. Hembroff has been appointed to order necessary work to improve the lots.

J. M. Wood, local chairman of the Manitoba Relief Fund, addressed members on the need for financial aid to assist rehabilitation in Winnipeg and district and suggested each member canvass members of their trade association for relief funds. Court Milller, reported that the local Druggists Association had contributed $100 to the fund at their meeting this week.

What Does Money Say?

By ROY L. SMITH

There is a common saying among us that "money talks." If that be true, what does it say?

If the money you are carrying in your pocket, or that which you have on deposit in the bank, had a chance to talk, what would it be apt to say about you.

A Prophet Indicts a Nation

The old Hebrew prophet, Malachi, summoned his nation to the bar of judgment and read it an indictment. The divorce evil had made such inroads that the life of the nation was in jeopardy. The sense of reverence had so far deteriorated that holy things could be profaned without anyone raising a protest. The institutions of religion were suffering because the people were spending their money on other things. Injustices had become so common that they no longer occasioned any surprise or indignation. The paganism with which they were surrounded had become so much a part of the life of the people that they did not realize the low estate into which they had sunk.

When Evil Becomes Accepable

No nation is ever in more dire straits than at that moment when evil has become acceptable to the cause for merriment and when immortality occasions no alarm.

Worse by far than a crooked political machine in charge of a city's government, is the willingness of the people to be run by crooks. Worse by far than dishonorable men in government service is the willingness of the people to return them to office.

There are no necessary evils. If anything is evil it is not necessary in an enlightened community: if it is necessary it is not evil. To accept the evil is to accept responsibility for it.

What Is Our Money Saying?

Let's be perfectly candid and honest with ourselves for a moment. If we have the courage, let us give our money a chance to talk back to us.

What would it have to say to the American people if it had a chance to give us a piece of its mind?

What would it say about millions being wagered at the tracks, and the slums of our cities crying out for a cleaning What would it say about the low salaries of teachers for our children, and the billions spent for intoxicants?

What would our money say about millions spent on temples of worship, marble statuary and stained glass, when little children are hungry in their shadows?

What would our money have to say about the way it corrodes the souls of those who have no other God?

When Evil Justifies Itself

The divorce problem had become a national scandal inside the the little Hebrew kingdom, and homes by the thousands were being wrecked. Drunkenness had become a commonplace among a people who had been markedly temperate until recently. Irreverence had become so much a sin that the people were offering seconds and culls on the altar of God in the Temple.

> The Sunday School lesson for June 18: "Malachi Pleads for Wholehearted Religion," Malachi (2:10-17; 3:7-12; 4:5-6).

The tragedy of the situation lay in the fact that the people could see no wrong in all of this, but believed they had been doing all that God had any right to demond of them.

They pointed to their elaborate altars, their popular services, and their general behaviour. That they could not see their own sins was evidence of the fact that they had sinned away all sensitiveness, and there is no worse sin than this.

There is little hope for a nation that undertakes to justify the evils that are bringing it to the brink or ruin.

No Nation Ever Survived

It is one of the most obvious lessons of history that no nation has ever been able to survive the loss of its religious faith. The experience of the Assayrians prove this principle, as does also the experience of the Greeks, the Romans, and the Egyptians.

It is impossible for any nation to grow indifferent to the fact that its homes are breaking up, its people sinking into drunkenness, vast segments of the population living below a subsistence level, with justice denied to a large section of its citizenry, without coming face to face with disaster.

The law of gravity cannot be ignored if we are to build a house, and the moral law cannot be ignored if we are to try to build a permanent national life.

Evil carries with it the seeds of its own destruction. If we abandon democratic principles in our fight to save ourselves from communism, then communism has won the battle already. If greed destroys the inner sensitiveness of the soul, then nothing is left us with which to enjoy what money can buy.

We know so much about nuclear science, and we are so blind to the laws of the spirit which control the energy of the atom. We are so eager to make money, and so slow to grow souls that are capable of making the full use and enjoyment of money. We are so strong in economics, and so uncertain in our convictions.

350 Polish Vets, Displaced Persons Coming to District Have Been Good Workers

Patience is a wonderful thing. And when it's applied to the trials and troubles of displaced persons, it works wonders.

More than 350 Polish veterans and displaced persons have come to the Belleville area since the war, and with few exceptions have proved to be wonderful workers. The first to come here were Polish war veterans in 1946 They were followed by DP's from Germany and other European countries.

The biggest problem facing both DP's and Canadian employers was the relative lack of knowledge of both groups of the other's language and customs. Herbert H Reed, manager of the local National Employment Service Office, said that that was where the patience paid off. Small misunderstandings which arose between laborer and employer were often ironed out in a few minutes with the help of an interpreter and explanation of local customs.

Signed For Two Years

Polish veterans were signed to a two-year contract, the German DP's to a one-year deal. "The majority of them went into agricultural work," Mr. Reed said. Many of them leave agriculture when their time is up, some to make money in other fields faster so that they can come back later and buy farms for themselves Others have moved into industry and are well satisfied.

Females were placed in domestic work in the city and rurally. "Majority of the women were single," Mr. Reed said.

"They are good bunch of people, in the main", Mr. Reed said. "They have given us very little trouble, and are good workers."

Classes in English and civics were set up in Belleville and other centres to help the men and women gain a better understanding of the Canadian way of life It was found that those DP's who lived in a home where there were children of late public school and early high school age picked up the language faster than others. Correction of grammar came easier from the children, and the kids' homework helped everyone involved.

Did Work Happily

Some of the people sent from overseas were very well educated, yet had to work their term before they could get into their own line. They all did it happily, Mr. Reed said, and cited cases where civil engineers worked at bull labor, and a chemical engineer who had taken a post-graduate course in Edinburgh labored on a farm near Foxboro. The chemical engineer has been teaching that subject at the University of Toronto since last September.

Canada will benefit from these people in more than one way, Mr. Reed said. In addition to the native skills and arts they bring with them, they are fast to appreciate the batter points of the democratic system. In the transference of trades, centuries-old arts such as Crech glassware and lace have moved into this country. Despite the hardships the people have suffered, the skills remain.

Can't Understand Kindness

Problems between employer and employee arose when the DP's could not understand the kindnesses farmers were doing them. Mr. Reed told of one well-educated DP who studied his English in translation every night. He became hungry and did not want to ask the farmer for food because he felt that he was getting hungry on his own time, and should for that reason buy his own food for late snacks. When the farmer tried to give the food to him, he was incensed, and only when the situation was explained to him would he take it.

Resistance to the DP's in this area has been slight, Mr. Reed said, with only "the odd bigot" objecting to them. On the whole, he said, everyone is happy all around, and Canada and this area have gained in prestige and knowledge with their coming.

THE BLARNEY AV HIM!

Sure, wid his eyes the blue of Killarney and the curl of his hair like the ringlets of young Brian Bhoru, this young omadhaun, Timothy, m'lad, Gehagen will be afther doi'n his Irish stuff in memorial Arena come twilightin'.

There's the twinkle, sure, of the divil in his merry dancin' eyes. There's the brogue of the Irish moors dripping from the tongue av him. And there's the stringth, bejapers, of the Giant of Tobermory in the powerful arms av the laddybuck.

'Twas the dark ov the night some twinty-four years ago and the call of the banshee, sure, was whispering over the wild Irish moors, when Ould Timothy Gehagen, Sean Macaincashel himsilf, knocked the dottle from his ould dudeen, spat upon the peat logs in the carner of the cabin, and looked down at his new-boorn.

He took him out of the ould cradle, he did, poured a drop of the craythe down his throat, tossed him in the air and let him bounce four times off the sod floor before he flipped him back into the cradle. Anahoo, young Timmy, a broth of a bhoy even at that tinder age, didn't care for such treatment. It riled his Irish blood, it did. So he seized ould Tim's shillalagh, rapped the ould gossoon across the shins right smartly he did and before the ould omadhaun had recovered from his surprise, dashed to the rafters and hid himself in the dark of a corner, he did.

And jist for the heluvit, the young spalpeen tore out a big spike from the wall of the shanty and, biting it in two, bounced the pieces off the noggin of the ould man.

"So, 'tis a bit of a sissy yer goin' to be", growled the ould man.

Sure and wasn't young Timothy up wid the crack o' dawn pullin' up three-inch saplin's by the root av them, and munchin' 'em wid his formula of gnat's milk.

And that's how the young divil got his start to fame and claim of bein' the strongest man in Ireland. And win't the handsome young laddybuck be afther tossin' Wee Willie Davis, who tips the scales at some 265 pounds around the ring in the semi final of the wrestling card this evenin'. It should be a wing-ding of a battle bejapers and don't be surprised to see Timmy yank up a few ring-posts jist to keep the body of him in shape during the flip-and-flop Donnybrook.

The arrogant bloke from down under, Fred Atkins, who apparently hasn't much use for the Alaskan Aladdin, Yukon Eric and boasts that he'll toss the yokel from the front yard of the Aleutians half back to Siberia, will be here against the iceberg that walks like a man. Atkins has openly boasted what be is going to do to Eric but the Yuke merely grins, if he can, and turns aside. "Who is this Atkins?" he asked this afternoon. "Never heard of him myself".

Atkins however is a rough toughie and the Yuke will have to uncork a few Kodiak Krunchers if he intends to wrap the Australian in a peat package and mail him pachyderm post to Sidney. In the opener, Jack Moore tangles with Warren Bockwinkle. A right nifty card all round.

HELP!

Coach Moe Fogarty of the Northern Electric Ladies softball team is on the lookout for a pitcher. Pee-Wee Colden, one of his aces is going off the deep end of the dock of matrimony in the near future and will be lost to the team for a couple of honeymoon weeks. That leaves Ann McGrath to carry the flinging load and the gal needs at least some semblance of relief. Any former lassie hurler who would like to lend Moe a hand should contact him at Northern Electric.

School's IN!

Over the long-distance telephone from Philadelphia today trickled the voice of Dale Jones of the Phillies baseball team of the City of Brotherly Love. It seems the Phillies are running a baseball school for ambitious young players and wanted a four-day date here in July. We contacted Parks Commissioner Jack Devine and got the official okay. So there there it is fellas. Put aside any one or all of the dates July 11, 12, 13 and 14. The school will be held under the supervision of Jones and two well-known Philadelphia Phillies coaches. Promising youngsters will be selected to try out with the Phillies next Spring, so come out fellas, it might be you.

Sports Roundup

By JOHN CHANDLER
(For Hugh Fullerton Jr.)

New York, June 16 —(AP) — Let's take a little ride with wiry Eddie Arcaro, the jockey who has ridden great horses as well as prime glue-factory prospects.

At the ripe age of 34, the Italian booter is still the most-sought-after jockey in the United States. He's a free lancer, and picks his mounts.

Calumet Gold Mine

In the spring of 1948 Eddie agreed to ride Citation for Calumet Farm. Citation won 15 races lost one under Arcaro that year and earned $644,990.

In 1949 Arcaro rode horses that earned $1,183,309. Arcaro had 870 mounts with 194 winners.

Top riders must be athletes, just as much as a football player fighter or baseball player. It requires muscles and nerve as well as brains to handle more than half a ton of surging horse-flesh.

Poker Face

Arcaro takes calmly the occasional booing of the race crowd. He manages to keep a poker face.

"It's easy to ride a horse from the grandstand," he once remarked.

Eddie has won four Kentucky Derbies, more than any other rider. He has won three Preakness Stakes, four Belmonts. Name a great race and look in the record book. Somewhere, some year you'll find Arcaro listed as the rider on the winner.

Until 1946 he was a contract rider for Greentree Stable. That meant getting up with the chickens to exercise horses. Not now. He has reached that happy state where he can be his own boss.

"Once you sleep in silk pajamas you don't like to get up in the morning."

Tigers' George Kells, Using Ty Cobb Grip, Proving His '49 A. L. Batting No Fluke

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

George Kell of Detroit seems determined to erase the "freak-hitter" smudge from his American League batting crown.

They said it was a mistake when the Tiger third baseman nosed out Ted Williams of Boston for the title on the final day of the 1949 season. It's no mistake this year.

Kell's average now is .386, best in the majors. Williams, moving up gradually after a slump, is hitting .326.

Kell has a peculiar style of holding the bat. But nobody is calling him a "freak hitter" this year.

Kell slashed two singles and a double in three trips against Philadelphia Thursday as the Tigers thumped the A's 7-3. The victory, coupled with a New York defeat, gave Detroit a 1½-game lead.

Freddie Hutchinson racked up his seventh victory for the onrushing Tigers who have swept 17 of their last 21 starts.

Chicago's Billy Pierce seemed to have finally "arrived" with his 5-0 one-hitter against the Yankees Thursday, the best-pitched game of the season. Only a single by Billy Johnson in the fifth inning robbed Pierce of a no-hitter.

Lemon Homers

The value of a hitting pitcher was emphasized at Cleveland where Bobby Lemon homered in the Tribe's 3-1 victory over Boston.

St. Louis Browns came from behind twice to trounce Washington Senators 16-9. Dick Kokos paced the Brownie attack with his ninth home run and two doubles.

Billy Southworth's Boston Braves knocked off Cincinnati in both ends of a doubleheader — 5-3 and 6-5. It was the only action in the National League. Rain washed out the St. Louis-at-Philadelphia night game and the Chicago-at-Brooklyn and Pittsburgh-at-New York day games.

Sid Gordon hit his 13th homer, a double and two singles to help Lefty Warran Spahn win the first game. The second game went 10 innings before Tommy Holmes singled home the winning run.

The double win boosted the Braves into fourth place ahead of the idle Cubs.

Steve Ridzik Stops Cubs On Seven Hits

(By The Associated Press)

Russ Derry, hard-hitting outfielder of Rochester Red Wings, once again is terrorizing International League pitching.

The veteran outfielder drove home six runs Thursday night to lead the first place Wings to a 9-3 victory over Jersey City Giants. He homered with the bases loaded in the third inning, his 13th homer of the season and doubled across two more runs in the sixth in his only official trips to the plate. The six runs batted in boosted his total to 48.

The victory boosted the Red Wings' advantage over the second-place Springfield Cubs to two games as the Cubs bowed 7-4 to the seventh-place Toronto Maple Leafs.

Steve Ridzik stopped the Cubs on seven hits and drove in three runs with a bases loaded double to record his fourth victory without a setback. Jack Wallaesa socked two homers and Ben Taylor one to account for all of Springfield's runs.

The tail-end Buffalo Bisons defeated Baltimore Orioles 4-1 behind the five-hit pitching of rookie Sandy Silverstein. The Bisons played under the temporary leadership of outfielder Coaker Triplett.

Frank Skaff, deposed as Bison manager before the game in favor of Ray Schalk, watched the game from a roof top seat. His successor, Ray Schalk, takes over tonight. Three of Buffalo's runs off Joe Payne were unearned.

Montreal and Syracuse were not scheduled.

BUS OPERATORS OUT

Los Angeles, June 16 (AP) — Four thousand operators of buses and streetcars in Los Angeles went on strike early today.

Representatives of the Transportation Union (AFL) walked out of negotiations shortly after midnight despite a personal appeal by Mayor Fletcher Bowron for a 15-day truce during the forthcoming National Shrine convention. Some 200,000 Shriners are expected here next week.

The union is demanding a 20-cent-an-hour wage increase. Most men now earn $1.47. The company has disclosed no counter-offer.

Galt Terriers Hit Paydirt By Signing Bagby

(By The Canadian Press)

Galt Terriers hit paydirt when they signed big Jim Bagby, former major league righthander.

Besides taking his regular turn on the mound for the Intercounty Club, Bagby has seen action in the infield and as a pinch-hitter. His pitching has been steady, his fielding good, and he currently is batting well over the .300 mark.

He displayed his versatility Thursday night when he pitched and batted the second-place Terriers to a 5-2 victory over Stratford Nationals.

Bagby rationed Nats to five spaced hits, struck out five, and banged out a single and double in four times at bat.

Former pro Frank Smrekar matched Bagby pitch-for-pitch until the ninth inning, when with the score deadlocked at 2-2, he booted a double-play grounder and let Terriers go on to score three runs.

In Kitchener, London Majors came through with two runs in the top of the 11th inning to defeat the Legionnaires 5-3. It was the first game played under the new $45,000 floodlights at Victoria Park.

London outhit the home-towners 11-4, but left nine men stranded on base. It took a walk to Danny Urbanik, a single by Jack Fairs, a wild throw to first and another single by Ken McFadden to plate the winning runs.

Playing Manager Alex Kvasnak of Waterloo, idle last night, continued to add to his league-leading batting average last week, statistics released Friday show.

Kvasnak has an 82-point edge on runner-up Billy McCarthy of St. Thomas Legion. Kvasnak is hitting .471, while McCarthy dropped 40 percentage points during the week to .389.

Brantford's slugging Tommy McGrattan continued to lead the runs batted in and home runs departments, with 15 RBI's and four homers, but his average dropped from .327 to .296.

Joe Yosurak, Waterloo righthander, leads the pitching brigade with five wins against no losses. Three of the wins were shutouts, and in the other two Yosurak gave up only five earned runs for a combined average of 1.000.

Waterloo's Al Dumouchelle, with a 3-2 won-lost average, leads in strikeouts with 36, 12 more than his nearest rivals.

Playing errorless ball behind four-hit pitching the Belleville Cubs won their second straight victory in Napanee last night, turning back the homesters by a 4-3 score in a Belleville and District League game.

The Cubs' bats pounded out 14 hits over the nine innings route with Dave Lockyer leading the parade with three. Cook banged out a pair as did Huck Reeves. Vern Goyer accounted for another with Neilson and Bunton, who hit a round-tripper getting the rest. Tish, Napanee catcher, smacked out two safeties with Vick and Anstett getting the remaining two clouts.

Bunton started on the mound for the Cubs and went through to the sixth when he was relieved by the veteran "Chuck" Barriage. Sheridan took over from Cook in the Cub outfield in the 5th. Robinson went the route for Napanee as he struck out seven and walked one. Bunton whiffed three and Barriage two.

Belleville Cubs: Cook, Jones, Goyer, Neilson, Reeves, Elliott, Lockyer, Galbraith, Bunton, Barriage, Sheridan.

St. Louis Browns Close Big Deal With Yankees

(By The Canadian Press)

St. Louis Browns have closed a deal with New York Yankees in which they secured pitchers Duane Pillette and Don Johnson infielder George Stirnweiss and outfielder Jim Delsing in exchange for hurlers Joe Ostrowski and Tom Ferrick. In addition, the Browns sold infielder Leo Thomas outright to the Yankees farm club at Kansas City and optioned right-hander Sid Schact to the Blues.

President Bill Dewitt said the deal had a player value of approximately $500,000. He estimated the value of Ostrowski and Ferrick at $250,000 and figured the worth of the new players at $50,000 each.

Failure of the Yankees to snare either pitchers Ned Garver or Cliff Fannin occasioned surprise in baseball circles. Both were sought by Yankee General Manager George Weiss.

Ostrowski has been a starter for the Browns. He injured his back sliding into third base June 1 and has not pitched since. He won his first two starts and lost the next four. Last year he had an 8-8 record.

Ferrick, a cool veteran, may be what the Yankees need when the starters falter. A husky right-hander, with previous service at Philadelphia, Cleveland and Washington, Ferrick will give New York a much-needed right-handed bullpen helper for Joe Page.

Danny Gardella said Thursday he was "paid something" to drop his $300,000 suit against organized baseball. The husky little outfielder was questioned on the suit's abrupt ending as he packed his bags to return to his New York home after being placed on the inactive list by the Houston club of the Texas league.

He told a reporter: "You might say in the papers that Gardella was paid something to drop his suit. That is all."

He would not reveal the amount involved but he did say he had to pay his lawyers more than half of the amount received.

Emile Gramaux of France was elected president of the International Amateur Boxing Association at Copenhagen Thursday. He formerly held the post but resigned after the 1948 Olympic Games.

Vince Massa, former end with Buffalo Bills of the professional all-American Football Conference Thursday signed to play with Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the Big Four this season.

Plumbers Come From Behind To Beat Pointers

The Commercial Softball League 'A' section took in another notch in its collective belt last evening as the teams settle down to playing the brand of ball of which they are capable. Howe and Hagerman erupted violently for three runs in the seventh inning last night to squeak past Point Anne Cementmen 5-3 in a torrid game at the Alemite Field.

The nine inning game lasted just one hour.

Howe and Hagerman opened the scoring in the top of the second with Spafford, who led with a triple coming home on a fielder's choice.

Pat Maracle doubled and Doug Sword tripled in the third to put the Cementmen on even terms.

Ed Donovan connected for a home run to right field, with no one on and one away in the fifth to put the plumbers ahead for the second time. Point Anne came back in the sixth to score two runs on a walk to Green, a double by Finlan, and an error to the catcher.

Lead Short Lived

Their lead was short lived as the plumbers stormed back in the top of the seventh to plate three runs and put away the win. Wardhaugh led off with a double to left field and Spafford smashed a home run into left centre field. Don Adams singled, took second on a fielder's choice after Ed Donovan struck out. Amo got a life on an error to the second baseman as Adams romped in with the final run of the game.

Both pitcher went the route. Adams for winners, issued the lone walk in the game. He struck out two, and gave up eight hits for three runs.

Pat Maracle walked none, struck out nine, and gave up eight hits for five runs in a masterful but futile attempt for the losers.

Shortstop Spafford, with a home run and a triple in four trips led the winners at the plate.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Expert defence in bridge has a scientific basis. The rule of 11 is its hub. When partner leads his fourth best, deduct from 11. That many higher cards are in the three hands outside of leader.

South is declarer at four hearts when the spades in the four hands are as shown here:

WEST ♠J 7 6 5
EAST ♠Q 4 2

SOUTH
♠A K

You are sitting east. The opening lead is from west. The opening lead from west is the spade five and the north dummy eight-spot covers. Do not play your queen. Know that south has ace and king alone.

Five from 11 leaves six higher in north and east and south. Three of them are in north where you see them. You have one higher than the five. So, south has exactly two higher than the five.

Against a suit contract, partner should not lead away from an ace or a king. So, the ace and the king of spades must be in north and east and south; somewhere among the three.

You do not see the ace or king in north. You do not see the ace or king in your own east hand. And west has denied having either. So, both the ace and king must be in the hidden south hand.

Take another look at the dummy north and your own hand. You can see all the cards lower than the five. This tells you south has none lower than the five. If so, his ace and king are alone.

Thus do you discover that south will be forced to play his ace or king of spades on the first trick. This tells you not to make the futile cover with your queen. Block future spades with it.

To beginners, this is too much to remember in the midst of the excitement of a game. They concentrate more on what is being served.

And many live to a ripe old age without knowing the rule of 11. But their expert partners usually leave such a bridge game early. They do not care to remain in ignorance.

Movie Column

By HOWARD C. HEYN
(For Bob Thomas, on Vacation)

Hollywood, June 16 (AP) — While the cinema side of Hollywood is turning out seven or eight crisp new pictures a week, Television is sopping up 60 oldies.

The feature films you see at home have lost their box office appeal. They're strictly from the archives. Otherwise TV wouldn't get 'em. And yet these venerable flickers are earning higher fees for third and fourth TV showings than they did for first Video runs.

People will still look at them—if they don't have to buy tickets.

Such is the paradox that has developed from the refusal of major studios to provide television with reasonably recent pictures. But can you blame the movie producers? Film companies have fortunes invested in cinema houses.

None of the networks makes its own feature films for television. They may, later. A couple have acquired old movie studios.

Old Stars Popular

That's why vintage pictures (with a few slightly newer British films) are populating the parlor with such resurrected luminaries as Janet Gaynor, Charles Farrell, Dolores Costello, Mary Astor, Tim McCoy, Hopalong Cassidy (sometimes known as Bill Boyd) and Hoot Gibson.

Some sources hint that film fare ultimately will cost more than live TV shows. Movies are that popular. And already certain cinema producers are asking: "Why should we rent even the old pictures to television when we can re-release them in theatres?" They are re-releasing some of them.

Old comedies are running close to westerns in popularity. Charles Chase, Laurel and Hardy and Billy Gilbert are building new audiences among the generation which followed their heyday.

Little Benny's Note Book

[illegible]y berthday and Puds Simkins's berthday come rite close apart, and we made a agreement to give each other a berthday present by inviting each other to the Satturday morning kid show at the Little Grand on 2 different Satturdays, and today the fellws were sitting on Glasses Magee's frunt steps talking and arguing, and Shorty Judge said, Hay Benny, hay, Puds, are you going to have parties on both your berthdays?

I'm not, I said, and Glasses said, Aw heck, why?

Becaues we just had our living room painted and new covers put on all the ferniture and everything and my mother says she wants to give it a chance to get old looking again by itself with no help from berthday parties. I said, and Skinny Martin said, Tell her we'll be careful.

Her mind's made up, I said, and Shorty said, Well how about you, Puds?

Me neither, Puds said. The last party I had, some darn kid got sick eating too mutch, and his mother blamed it on my mother, and they haven't hardly spoke to each other since And now whenever I mention another party that's the ferst thing my mother remembers and the last she wants to hear on the subject, he said, and Skinny said, Aw heck, 2 berthdays and not even one party. G roozalem, what's this nayborhood coming to? he said.

It aint like it used to be, Shorty said, and I said, Well if you guys are so anxious, why dont you give us both a combination serprise party?

Yeah, why? Puds said, and Glasses said, Okay, but where can we give it?

Being a good question but nobody knowing the anser.

Made in Anger

Later, outside the chamber, Gen. Pearkes told reporters that his remarks were made "in anger. . . at the way things are going," but denied that there was a party cleavage.

3. First reading was given to a bill giving Canada's 5,000 Eskimos the right to vote in federal elections.

In the immigration debate, Mr. Fulton said no time should be lost in convening a Dominion-provincial conference to discuss immigration. Any immigration scheme should be worked out in conjunction with the provinces because the immigrants became residents of the different provinces once they were brought to Canada by the federal government.

Mr. Gagnon said all immigration should be cut off until there are enough jobs for all Canadians.

Mr. Mackenzie said he believed that a target of 100,000 to 200,000 immigrants a year would be a fair figure. The government might consider subsidizing immigration.

No Master Nation

He believed all would agree there is no master nation in the world. There were a lot of good and bad people.

A former official of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, Mr. Mackenzie told of the help given by that organization to some displaced persons.

Mr. Herridge said the government was tackling the immigration problem on an individual basis without thought to over-all development of Canada. There was no consultation with the provinces.

Mr. Murray suggested that the government invite the 90,000 Americans who helped build the Alaska Highway during the war to come back to this country and take up land in the vast northwest territories and Peace River district.

No Decision Reached

During the discussion on his department's estimates for 1950-51, Mr. Harris said he has not yet reached a decision on the appeal of Count Jacques de Bernonville against a deportation order issued by an immigration board in Montreal.

The Count, sentenced to death in Absentia by a French court for alleged collaboration with the Nazis during the last war, entered Canada on a false passport in 1947. He has twice been ordered deported. The first order was quashed by a Montreal court and the Count appealed to the Minister against the second order, issued a few months ago.

Given Wide Powers

The defence purchase legislation was fought briskly by the three opposition parties. It gives Mr. Howe wide powers to stockpile strategic materials and requisition—in certain cases at his own price — supplies which are needed for defence projects.

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) sought to amend the bill to keep in operation the profit-control sections of the old "defence purchases, profit control and financing act of 1939," now being repealed. His motion was defeated by a standing committee vote of 60 to 31.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, quickly introduced a motion to retain the whole of the 1939 act and saw it defeated by a second vote of 62 to 34.

Mr. Howe, opposing the amendments, said the profit-limiting provisions of the 1939 act had proved unworkable.

MINTO

Minto.—St. Thomas W.A. held a dinner and quilting at the home of Mrs. Percy Ray on Thursday. After the quilt was finished, a bale of new clothing was packed for a boy at All Saints' School, Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Tanner, Clare and Edna, Mr. and Mrs. Will Courtney, Mr. and Mrs. John Courtney and Francis, were dinner guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Mumby.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grass of Mountain View, were tea hour guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Colden on Sunday.

Bill Outlawing Red Activities Sets Off Clashes

Capetown, June 15 (AP) — A government bill to outlaw communist party activity raised a cry of despotism in Parliament Wednesday night and set off clashes between club-swinging police and demonstrators outside the Parliament building.

The bill is up for second reading. Debate was interrupted while Parliament members watched police charge into crowds demonstrating against the bill.

Justice Minister C. R. Swart argued that the bill is needed to prevent a Moscow campaign to set colored natives in trade unions and on the farms against the whites and establish a native republic, with all-race segregation barriers broken down.

He charged that under Moscow's direction communists on a date to be decided are plotting to poison water supplies, cut off power and murder whites who stand in the way of communists.

J.G.N. Strauss, newly-elected leader of the opposition United Party, argued against the bill because he said it would give the governor-general power to outlaw any group he feared was communist.

He said the bill "in seeking to combat communist totalitarianism creates a fascist despotism."

Strauss was elected head of the United Party last night after the resignation of 80-year-old Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts, seriously ill of pneumonia near Petoria.

A lawyer, Strauss was once private secretary to Smuts. Strauss was minister of agriculture in the last United Party cabinet before the Nationalists came into power in May, 1948.

RAWDON

Carmel United Church Holds 25th Anniversary

Rawdon—A large profusion of iris, peonies and spirea met the eye as one entered Carmel United Church in Rawdon township on Sunday afternoon when they celebrated 25 years of union. The church was filled to the doors with worshippers and friends for this special event.

The Carmel choir, with Mrs Arthur Pyear as pianist, rendered an anthem "Give Thanks."

Mrs. A. E. Baker, A.T.C.M. sang effectively "O Rest in the Lord."

The guest speaker was Lt. Col. the Rev. Sidney E. Lambert. O.B.E., who gave an inspirational address on the theme "Live for Jesus in the coming 25 years."

A part of the service used in Toronto in 1925, dealing with Thanksgiving, the church, ministers and people, the King and those in authority, Dominion of Canada, commemoration of the faithful previous to union and a dedication service for going forward into another era, all added to the service.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was partaken of with the hymn "Bread of the World, in Mercy Broken." The pastor Rev A. E. Baker U.E. officiated.

Charter Member Presentation

A special charter member presentation was held, when a large number of Carmel folk received their silver jubilee awards for membership for a full 25 years in the United Church.

Miss Marion Carlisle, president of Carmel W.A. read the list of names and Mrs. Sidney Lambert made the presentation to the recipients. The pastor, Rev. A. E Baker and Mr George Carlisle, a former Carmel boy and now clerk of St. Paul's session, Stirling, gave the right hand of fellowship.

This unique service will long be remembered in the annuals of Carmel United Church. Everyone was loud in their praise for those in charge who planned such a worthwhile service to commemorate silver jubilee of union.

2 Families Missing After Homes Swept Away by Flood

Rain-Swollen Creek Breaks Dam, Two Potteries Burned

Crooksville, O., June 17—(AP)—Disaster swept into this pottery-making community of 3,000 today when a sudden flood broke a nearby dam, exploded a huge kiln and set off a fire which burned two potteries to the ground.

Two families were missing after their homes were swept away.

The dam-bursting flood followed a terrific cloudburst which cut a wide swath through Ohio from southwest to northeast.

Crooksville lies in South Central Ohio.

Official damage figures were not available. But a member of the Crooksville fire department, Calvin Ross, said he believed was at least $1,250,000 to three plants alone — $750,000 to the potteries and $500,000 to the big Ohio Power Company Station here.

The cascade of water gushed up a narrow valley from the broken Misco Mine Company dam five miles southeast. Residents of Crooksville's low-lying areas scrambled to their rooftops.

Five Houses Washed Away

Five houses in the tiny community of Rose Farm near the dam were washed away by the first rush of water late last night.

Three of the families were accounted for. No trace of the other two was found.

When the avalanche of water hit Crooksville one of the town's main streets became a river five feet deep.

The water engulfed the Ohio Power Company's Crooksville station and all electric power in Crooksville and surrounding communities ceased.

Kiln Blows Up

As frightened citizens sought refuge in the darkened town, the water reached a huge pottery kiln at the Acme Pottery Company. The kiln blew up with a spectacular puff of flame.

The fire spread to the adjoining Ceramic Pottery Company plant and destroyed it, too. It normally employs about 200.

Between 30 and 35 persons who had sought refuge in the pottery building were rescued without casualty.

The avalanche of water poured through the town and northward to Roseville, another pottery-making community of 1,500 about five miles away.

The final edition of the Zanesville Times Recorder in the city 20 miles north of Crooksville was delayed by the power failure which followed the dam break.

MENTAL EXPERTS SAY FOSBRAEY IS NOT INSANE

Napanee, Ont., June 17 (CP) — The murder trial of James Fosbraey, 29-year-old English veteran of the Royal Air Force, may end today.

Fosbraey was charged in the knife-slaying of his wife, June, stabbed to death here last Nov. 29. The trial which opened last Monday heard introduction of 60 letters written by the accused, and testimony of mental disease experts called by the Crown, who said the accused was sane.

Chief Justice J. C. McRuer late Friday denied a defence motion to reduce the charge to manslaughter. The defence contended that an alleged confession of adultery by the slain wife might be regarded as sufficient provocation. The defence also introduced evidence taken at a commission hearing in England last summer when a psychiatrist testified that Fosbraey was suffering from an extreme form of schizophrenia.

Crown witnesses, Dr. Charles S. Tennant of the Ontario Mental Hospital at Langstaff, and Dr. Roger Billings of the Rockwood Mental Hospital at Kingston, both testified that they had examined the accused and had found him sane.

Fosbraey, a native of Sittingbourne, Kent, England, married the Napanee girl while he was training at the Kingston airport during the war. He subsequently served overseas with the Royal Air Force and returned to Napanee. He went back to England last October, but returned here in November.

Counsel for the Crown and defence were to address the jury this morning followed by Chief Justice McRuer.

Marshal Smuts Will Not Retire From Politics

Johannesburg, South Africa, June 17 (Reuters) —There is no question of Field Marshal Jan Christiian Smuts retiring from politics, his son said here Friday.

Smuts, leader of the United Party, is seriously ill at his farm near Pretoria.

The United Party Parliamentary group issued a statement Wednesday saying that Smuts had retired from the party's Parliamentary leadership because of his illness and that J.G.N. Strauss had been appointed opposition leader in his place.

Smuts' son, J.C. Smuts, said "there is no question of my father retiring because he feels he will not be strong enough after his illness to continue his active political career."

"Mr. O. A. Oosthuizen, secretary of the United Party, must have misheard or misunderstood my father's remarks on this part of the question."

THE WEATHER

Toronto, June 17 (CP)— Synopsis: Colder air has swept over the province from the north and dropped temperatures abruptly. A few localities in Northern Ontario have frost this morning and North Bay had some snow during the night. Maximum temperatures today will range from 59 in the north to 65 in the south. Temperatures Sunday will be five to 10 degrees warmer. Skies will clear by this evening and remain clear for most of Sunday.

S.E. Asia Called Greatest Danger Zone in World

Singapore, June 17—(Reuters)—. Pandit Nehru, India's Prime Minister, today described Southeast Asia as the greatest danger zone in world affairs.

"It may pass, it may not come to a head, but it will not be solved by bombs but by psychological and economic methods," he said.

DREW CRITICAL OF CONSTRUCTION PROGRAM OF GOVT.

Suggests Independent Experts Review Plan

Ottawa, June 17 (CP)—George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, suggested in the Commons yesterday that independent experts make an over-all review of the government's construction program.

It would be aimed at effecting economies.

Mr. Drew spoke during study of the 1950-51 expenditure estimates of the works department. The study was marked by requests from many members for new public buildings, for information on buildings already planned and for details of proposed expenditures in various localities.

There were these other developments:

1. Prime Minister St. Laurent announced that the Federal government will match grants of $2,500,000 and $300,000 being extended by the Quebec provincial government to the fire-ravaged towns of Rimouski and Cabano.

2. Citizenship Minister Harris announced that the special allowance payable to Indians of 70 years and over will be increased from $8 to $25 a month beginning July 1.

3. Second reading—approval in principle—was given to a bill that will put government commercial agencies on the same basis as any private firm with regard to legal suits. The legislation provides that agencies may sue and be sued in provincial courts. At present no suit can be undertaken without permission of the Crown.

In the public works debate, Mr. Drew noted that the department's estimates have risen to $61,431,500 from a pre-war $14,560,000.

Works Minister Fournier said the jump came not only from an increase in the number of works, but also because of the cost of materials and labor. In addition, the department "just grew up" in the expansion that was taking place in other departments.

Has Some Merit

Mr. Drew said that not all of the government construction is done by the works department. Some departments undertake their own projects. Perhaps they all should be under "some more effective over-all supervision of construction."

Mr. Fourier said he thought the idea had some merit.

The minister told Ross Thatcher (CCF-Moose Jaw) that the public works act does not contemplate that the department put up engineering or architectural work in order to relieve unemployment. The department did its best to proceed the year round with building construction.

Howard Green (PC-Vancouver-Quadra) said there appeared to be "leakages" by which "supporters of the government" learned it was going to put a building at a certain spot and then bought the property.

He urged the minister to stop "this racketeering." After Mr. Fourier objected to use of the term, he modified it to "petty racketeering." He said it had happened in Vancouver in connection with post offices.

Mr. Fourier said that when he decided to erect a building he did not dare think of the site "even in my sleep." The information spread and there were "very clever people in this world." When the department went to make a deal with the owners, it often found the property had changed hands.

Bibles Are Included Among Articles Stolen From Hotels Convention Told

Montreal, June 17 (CP) —Some people will take anything from a hotel—including Bibles, delegates at the Canadian Gideon convention were told here Friday night.

Cecil R. Roberts of Kitchener, Eastern Field Secretary, said the person often regrets it later.

"Every once in a while we get a letter from someone confessing that he stole a Bible from a hotel," he said. "These letters often include money to pay for the Bible or offer to send it back. We do not ask for them to be returned, however."

Mr. Roberts said the occasional mutilation of Bibles is objected to more than their theft.

"At least the Bible may do some good for the person who stole it," he said.

Herbert L. Harris of Victoria, noted that even if a stolen Bible resulted in the conversion of a person, it was an inauspicious way to begin a Christian life.

Mr. Roberts said the sight of a Bible in a hotel room is often a restraining influence.

"This is so much the case that many persons will put the Bible in a drawer before proceeding with bad conduct," he said.

Commonwealth Newspaper Men Will Lay Down Doctrine To Guard Freedom of Press

Ottawa, June 17 — (CP) Commonwealth newspaper men will lay down today a doctrine for safeguarding freedom of the press.

At the end of 1½ days of debate on press freedom, they are expected to adopt resolutions outlining opposition to encroachment of press freedom.

The shape of these resolutions developed yesterday at the seventh Imperial Press Conference, composed of members of the Commonwealth Press Union. The union consists of newspaper men from Commonwealth countries.

Principles to be adopted by the conference, it was expected, would include:

1. That the press should regard as the first steps towards totalitarianism any infringements of its freedom not dictated by considerations of national morals, health or safety, or by the rights of individual citizens.

2. That members of the C.P.U. should urge their governments not to accept any United Nations treaties that contravene these principles.

Freer Exchange of Information

3. That peace would be fostered by the freer exchange of information among nations.

These concepts were proposed in two resolutions presented yesterday by members of the Australian delegation. It was expected they would be embodied into final resolutions to be adopted by the conference at its final business session today.

These business sessions began here Tuesday, after some of the overseas delegates had landed at Quebec last week and held preliminary meetings there and in Montreal. Other newspaper men, including Canadians and those from Pacific countries, joined the conference here to make up about 100 delegates from some 15 countries.

Addresses before the conference yesterday stressed the idea that there should be as little interference as possible by governments in the free publication of news.

Some of the delegates declared governments were imposing a form of censorship on newspapers through limitation of their newsprint supplies — in Britain and Australia, notably.

At yesterday's meeting two publishers — one from Canada, and one from the United States—accused Labor unions of working against freedom of the press.

Refers to Strike

F. I. Ker, publisher of the Hamilton Spectator, and Frank E. Gannett, of the Gannett group of newspapers in the United States, both referred to the current strike that paralyzed the New York World-Telegram and Sun.

Mr. Ker said that on this continent the limitations imposed on the press by governments were less real than those caused by "strikes called in defiance of our laws."

A strike which blacked out a newspaper, he said, was "the very antithesis of freedom of the press."

"Much of the evil of these times," Mr. Ker added, "proceeds from labor departments of government." They were "nothing but a rendezvous for vote-seeking politicians and favor-seeking pressure groups."

An illegal strike might be called, but, while machinery existed to give redress to injured publishers, it was not exercised.

Mr. Ker said the rank and file of newspaper employees had as great a responsibility as the publishers. When they strung a picket line around a newspaper, they were deserting their posts. That applied, as well, to those who yielded to a picket line.

Free Ferry Service Proposed Between Deseronto and Shore Of Prince Edward County

Don't look now, but there may be free ferry service from Deseronto to the Sophiasburg shore of Prince Edward County in the near future. At present the costs are 75 cents each way.

To this effect, County Council yesterday endorsed a motion of Reeve A. Sauer, Deseronto, authorizing tthe roads and bridges committee to negotiate with interested municipalities as to agreements and costs to be entered into to establish the service. The committee will present a report to council at the December session.

Prior to presenting his motion, the Deseronto reeve pointed out that Mr. Roscoe Robson, M.L.A., Hastings East had secured departmental approval of the free ferry service project. "The Department," he said, "will assume 10 per cent of cost, and maintenance." The cost of purchase of the ferry from the present owner is estimated at $7,500.

Roads Go Direct

The Hastings county road goes direct to the ferry while on the opposite side the Prince Edward County roads stops three-quarters of a mile away. Numerous petitions and other requests have been received from Sophiasburg farmers asking the Deseronto Reeve to make an effort to establish the free ferry. They live 20 miles from Picton, while by water it is only seven miles to Deseronto. They have no other place to go.

Reeve Sauer said it was vitally important that Deseronto get this business as it depends on farmer trade for its existence. Ordinary farm trade has dropped off to an alarming extent and this is evidenced in the fact the grist mill operates only three hours daily.

Cost Not Heavy

"The cost to Hastings County will only be a few hundred dollars for purchase and maintenance," he said. The Roads Committee is spending money on a development road that leads to the main town of another county and he felt it should spend some in Hastings county in this respect.

Many tourists come to Prince Edward County and the operation of a free ferry would bring them to Hastings. "In addition" he said, in two years, Highway No. 42 running through Prince Edward must have a conection with Highway No. 2 "and this is the logical place."

Reeve Bartley Walsh, Tyendinaga, felt the project was a sound idea. "This county will benefit greatly by it," he said.

The motion passed unanimously.

Three Injured In Plane Crash At Parry Sound

Parry Sound, June 17 (CP) — Three Toronto men were injured Friday when their plane crashed in Georgian Bay 45 miles south of here. The amphibious craft crashed on landing near Go Home Bay post office and the three swam 200 feet to shore.

In good condition in hospital were Harold S. Clagg, pilot, suffering a broken arm; his son Ross Clagg, 17, with concussion, and Alwin Purkis, with a broken jaw.

The three started out from Toronto Friday on a combined business and fishing trip and the accident was seen by an Ontario Forests Department towerman L. Schilllimore, who took the three to his cabin and called Parry Sound for help. A forestry Department plane from here brought the injured to Parry Sound.

The bodies were found by their mother upon her return from work. The lid on top of the box apparently fell shut while the three were playing inside and the latch caught, trapping them

PATTERN OF RED SPYING IN U.S. TAKING SHAPE

Three Held, Further Arrests in Offing

Washington, June 17 (AP) — With three American citizens under arrest, additional pieces are falling into place in the jig-saw pattern of Russian wartime spying in the United States.

Further arrests appear to be in the offing. Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation have spent months putting together bits of information from all sorts of sources in an effort to complete the picture.

What was perhaps the key piece of the spy puzzle fell into place with the arrest in London last February of Dr. Klaus Fuchs, a top British atomic scientists. Fuchs admitted giving the Russians atomic secrets and was sent to prison for 15 years.

After top G-men had interviewed Fuchs in prison last month, the bureau closed in on Harry Gold, 35-year-old Philadelphia chemist, who admitted acting as a courier between Fuchs and Soviet agents in the U. S. during the war.

The F.B.I. this week picked up Alfred Dean Slack, 44, chemist employed by a paint-manufacturing concern at Syracuse, N.Y., and David Greenglass, 28, former U.S. army sergeant, of New York City.

Each of the three Americans is charged with wartime espionage, which carries a possible death penalty. Each is held on $100,000 bond.

Slack was accused of delivering to Gold, for the benefit of the Russians, secrets about the manufacture of RDX, an explosive manufactured at the Holston Ordnance Works, Kingsport, Tenn.

Slack had been employed there in 1943 and 1944.

Crossed Path With Boyer

(In Ottawa, government sources said Dr. Raymond Boyer, wealthy Montreal scientist now serving a prison sentence for espionage, undoubtedly crossed paths during the war with Slack. These sources said Boyer told a Royal Commission investigating the 1949 Soviet spy ring in Canada that he gave a Russian agent enough information to build a plant to manufacture RDX. They said he visited Kingsport several times.

(There has been no indication however that he and Boyer knew each other or that they were working together.)

Greenglass, assigned to the Los Alamos atomic project in 1945 and described as having worked on the A-bomb itself, was charged with turning atomic information over to Gold at Albuquerque, N.M., in the summer of that year.

In an undelated development the F.B.I. also arrested another American yesterday at Pasadena Calif., and accused him of having concealed membership in the communist party.

He is Dr. Sidney Weinbaum a Rusians-born scientist who worked for three years at California Institute of Technology's super-secret jet propulsion laboratory. Weinbaum now is a research fellow in chemistry at the institute.

Zoot-Suiters Held From Making Trip To Crystal Beach

Police Relieve 21 Youths Of Many Offensive Weapons

Kitchener, June 17 — (CP) — Twenty-one Kitchener zoot-suiters, some of whom were armed with weapons used in youth gang fights, early today were stopped by police from making a weekend trip to Crystal Beach on Lake Erie in a rented truck.

Five were lodged in the county jail here charged with carrying offensive weapons and police said other charges may be laid against the 16 permitted to return to their homes.

However, police later conferred with Mayor S. W. Leavine and announced all 21 will be charged with unlawful assembly, an indictable offence carrying a maximum prison term of one year.

Weapons seized by the police included five home-made billies, some knuckle dusters, weighted chains and other dangerous objects, among them a sharp-pointed paper knife.

The five youths arrested and remanded until next Wednesday are Frederick March, 19; Douglas Smyth, 20; Frank Gehl, 16; George Deegan, 20 and Charles Deegan, 19, brothers.

Charles Deegan is also charged with illegal possession of two 12-ounce bottles of liquor.

More to Join Group

Police said that the party of 21 was to have been swelled by another three youths who were to be picked up by the truck as it was en route to Stratford. It is believed that another group of zooters was to have joined the party there.

Found on one of the gang leaders was a packet of 24 railway tickets from Stratford to Ridgeway. Although the youths said they planned to stay in Crystal Beach for the weekend, some of them had as little as $2 to carry them over the period.

The truck driver was told to head for the police station instead of Stratford but the truck refused to start and police halted a passing public utilities commission bus. The zoot-suiters boarded the bus with their hands above their heads like prisoners.

Their presence at crime movies appeared confirmed by the manner in which several began to shout for their "lawyers" as soon as they arrived at the police station.

Lightning Strikes Ottawa Street Car

Ottawa, June 17—(CP)—A severe electrical storm took a double stab at Ottawa and district during the night, starting fires, temporarily grippling hydro transformers and putting one Ottawa tram line out of operation.

Benjamin DeVleyen, 21, suffered severe cut hands when he smashed his way out of the window of a Britannia Street car which caught fire when struck by lightning. He was treated at hospital. The tram line was blocked for half an hour.

Within an hour after the storm broke, Ottawa firemen answered six alarms to various parts of the city for minor fires. A cottage owned by R. Turiff of the nearby summer resort of Britannia suffered damage when electrical wiring was struck by lightning. No one was injured.

Strange Words, Odd Illustrations In Child Comics Rapped by U.S. Court

Washington, June 17 (AP) —A comic book which contains words like "vaporous" and "counterpart" does not strike the United States Customs Court as being a book for children's use.

Especially, the court said, when the "comic" is an illustrated adaption of the old scare-epic, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

The court's-contribution to the great debate on the fitness of comic books for youngsters came in a ruling involving the cheaper import duty allowed books that are "for children's use."

Its opinion, as circulated today to customs officers, apparently went partly on the theory— right or wrong —that five and six-year-olds look to comics for laughs.

The Jekyll-Hyde number, as presented in the English-published series "Classic Comics," drew this comment from the court:

"The illustrations are of so weird and awe-inspiring a nature as would be calculated to frighten and disturb, rather than entertain and amuse, children in the age group with which we are here concerned."

The "Classic Comics" version of "Rip Van Winkle and the Headless Horseman" was flunked for containing such words as these:

"Undaunted, sages, philosophers, resounds, descent, weird, gully amphitheatre and resign".

Even a "Robinson Crusoe" number was ruled out for the words "reassuring, infected, impact, parried, impending, debris, tarpaulin, sluice, oath and careen."

FRASER VALLEY REMAINS MAIN DANGER AREA

Vancouver, June 17 (CP)— Rivers and creeks across Britis Columbia roared sullenly toda choked with snow water an facing no indication of any coole weather to stem the potentia havoc they may spread.

The lower part of the provin yesterday went through its ho test day of the year—the temperature was 76—while th mighty Fraser River inched u and against the 100 miles of dik protecting thousands of homes i the fertile Fraser Valley.

Seepage Under Control

Dike patrols, augmented a Agassiz up-river by army engineers, reported late last nigh that seepage had been controlle for the time being. An electrica storm severed telephone lines hampering flood control, whil farther down river near Chilli wack two huge spotlights wen on as watchers probed two po sible trouble spots.

First flood took place at Ladner in the low Delta and at th mouth of the swollen river.

Elsewhere, the Skeena Rive of the north threatened roads an rail lines as well as chasing som residents to higher ground.

Main danger point, howeve remained the Fraser Valley where some 45 families move out yesterday.

H. A. Cox, flood co-ordinato for the Mission area, said that 2 feet of water is expected ther by Sunday. It was nearly 22 las night.

"If the river maintains thi peak we are in a very dangerou position," he said. "We believed 23 1-2 feet will be the maximum but naturally we can't be sure."

Height of Water Causes Concern

He said the chief concern is not the height of water but the terrific pressure against $11,000,000 worth of dikes constructed or repaired since the disaster year of 1948. A prolonged crest could be catastrophic.

The flood peak in 1948 at Mission was 24.76 feet.

The Canadian National Railways main line at Cisco, 140 miles east of Vancouver, was cut forcing westbound trains to switch to Canadian Pacific lines at Kamloops.

In the flood of 1948, British Columbia was isolated for days by rail and telegraph and telephone communication also knocked out.

Latta Scores Tight Victory Over Melrose

A three-run outburst in the final frame gave Latta a tight 7-6 victory over Melrose in a regular South Hastings Baseball League game played at Melrose last evening.

Trailing 6-4, Rigby started Latta's rally with a home run. Sullivan singled and Empson flied out to centre field. Glass walked and Ray drove in the tying run with a double. Kerr grounded out short to first as Glass dashed in with the winning run on the fielder's choice. Richardson went down swinging to end the rally.

Melrose had the tying run on third in their end of the final frame but with two away the last batter grounded out third to first, to give Latta a thriller.

Kerr went the route for Latta to claim his first win of the season. George Osburn started for Melrose but was relieved by Sherman in the sixth. Sherman was charged with the loss.

Dr. R.C. Wallace To Leave Queen's In Autumn of '51

Kingston, June 17 — (CP) — Resignation of Dr. R. C. Wallace, Principal of Queen's University has been accepted effective in the autumn of 1951, J. M. Macdonnell, chairman of the university's Board of Trustees, informed the board at a recent meeting. The announcement was made public today by M. C. Tillotson, Secretary of the board and treasurer of the university.

The principal declared university rules governing retirement should apply to him and said he had no wish to continue after reaching the retirement age of 70. Dr. Wallace reached his 69th birthday on Thursday.

The board was unanimous in its wish to have the principal remain but reluctantly accepted his decision, Mr. Tillotson said.

Dr. Wallace was appointed principal and Vice Chancellor of Queen's in 1935. He was then President of the University of Alberta. He is one of the most widely known educationalists on the continent and represented Canada on U. N. E. S. C. O. and has been prominent in many international organizations dealing with problems of higher education.

By-Law to Restrict Cutting Of Trees in County Defeated

Northern reeves presented a solid front in defeating a by-law to restrict the cutting of trees of certain size in any part of the county and to appoint officers to enforce the regulations of the by-law at the closing session of county council yesterday.

Councils discussion and defeat of the by-law was preceded by a brief address by Zone Forester W. E. Edwards, Napanee who stated that the purpose of the by-law was to preserve woodlots and prevent deterioration by cutting of trees of a certain size.

He pointed out that it was suggested the commissioners to enforce the law be engaged from provincial sources, but he felt a better purpose would be served by securing them from local municipalities.

There was no consistency in the work, Reeve W. J. Davis, Bangor said. "We are spending money to plant woodlots and preserve them yet we stand by and watch natural timberlots abused and destroyed.

Firm In Stand

Reeve James Sprackett, Tudor and Cashel was firm in his stand opposing the by-law. "If this is passed," he said, "it means taking away the livelihood of my ratepayers. And if you take that away what will happen? We have no relief, and if they have no work I cannot see how some will exist. North of Madoc nearly everyone depends on the timber industry for his livelihood. I think this council is getting in pretty deep."

"The Forestry Department is issuing permits to those who go in the woods and cut everything" Reeve Archie Harvie said, "why should we allow these outsiders to go in and cut everything and yet forbid our own residents to cut on their own property?"

Reeve R. T. Adams, Dungannon, said he had large pulp contracts all calling for wood not over 15 inches. He paid taxes on 1,500 acres and did not feel that he would let people tell him how to cut his own bush.

Sharp Criticism

Levelling sharp criticism at the by-law, Reeve Joe Davis, Monteagle and Herschel, declared that "no man will wilfully destroy his own bush. It is not fair to penalize the majority of people because of one or two d--- fools who destroy everything they see."

"If this by-law is passed, I'll be the first to break it," he said. "It affects owners but not crown lands, and why should this council sit here and tell a man living 100 miles north what he is to do with his timber. Do we of the north come to Belleville and tell the restaurant keepers what to do with their food?"

Reeves of the northern municipalities must answer to their constituents if the by-law is passed, thought Reeve Jack Kincaid, Madoc village. This council should remember that they derive their living from the timberlands.

Reeve Makes Charge

Reeve W. J. Davis charged that some people who have lots to sell get rid of them to those who destroy them, with nothing done about it. "It is a shame to see the slaughter of young trees, yet we spend money on new woodlots and conservation, but not a cent on protection of natural stands."

Reeve Sprackett again urged council to remember the by-law if passed would greatly affect the livelihood of the ratepayers of his municipality. He agreed with Reeve Joe Davis that it was an unfair move to penalize resident taxpayers to get at a "fool" who comes in and destroys the forest.

Reeve Bartley Walsh, Tyendinaga, told council he had purchased two stands of timber, but had cut nothing but the "big stuff". He was leaving the smaller trees for the future and his sons.

Reeve J. Davis asked how many did that. "The hydro people," he said, "slashed and slaughtered timber on his place, and he got nothing for it."

The by-law was defeated by a substantial vote.

Hastings County Council Briefs

Council authorized grants of;- Women's Institute of North, East and West Hastings, $15.00 each; Polio Association, $100; British Empire Cheese Show, $200; Belleville Fair Board, $300; local fair boards, $150; South Hastings Educational Association, $100.

It turned down grants requested by the village of Bancroft to build a wall, of $200; and the Bata Shoe Company request of a grant set at $500 for maintenance of a private road in Batawa village.

Concurred in a motion of Reeve Jack Kincaid, Madoc Village to have directional signs bearing the names of "Madoc" and Bancroft placed at the Front Street intersection in Belleville and the junction of the Madoc road and Highway 14 at Foxboro. The names of these villages had been omitted from Department of Highways signs placed at these spots. Tweed, Marmora, etc., were included, but not Madoc and Bancroft.

Requested County Clerk Erle Denyes to write a letter of sympathy to Reeve Harry Coulter, Hungerford Township who was unable to attend the session because of illness.

Extended the sympathy of the council as a whole to Reeve Harry Harrison, Thurlow, whose mother passed away on Friday.

Reeve Jos. Davis, Monteagle and Hershel, prior to adjournment, congratulated warden Clarke Rollins for the sane efficient manner in which he had conducted the council in a heavy session. "The warden had given fair consideration to councils views and allowed them full discussion," he said.

Replying in an appreciative manner, Warden Rollins in turn voiced his sincere thanks at the fine co-operation he had received from council. "It was a long hard session, but it has been a pleasure to work with you," he said. "You have made careful deliberations and handed down fair decisions."

Council adjourned to meet on December 5th.

Report on Show At Cleveland Given Council

Over 10,000 people registered at the booth operated jointly at the Cleveland Sportsmen Show by the publicity committees of the City, County and Hotel Association. Reeve John Kincaid, Madoc, chairman of publicity, told county council in his report yesterday.

Since that time many inquiries regarding tourist resorts, fishing, etc., in the county have been received. The city of Belleville and the Hotel Association were co-operative to an extreme and it was the consensus that promotion of the booth was a successful venture. This committee, the report said, is contemplating steps to secure a booth at the Cleveland Show another year, as one year's attendance is not considered a fair trial.

15,000 tourist booklets were printed and distributed to various parties including advertisers, various Chambers of Commerce, government publicity bureaus, etc. Approximately 4,000 were distributed at the Sportsmen's Show and the Belleville Chamber of Commerce kept about 5,000 to answer inquiries throughout the year.

The total cost of these booklets was $2,013.00 of which the county pays half and the city of Belleville the other half.

The county's share of the booth at Sportsmen's Show was $74.08 plus the cost of keeping an attendant there part time.

The county publicity committee's allocated expenditure amounted to $1500 and there is a balance of $300.

The committee plans to contact the Tourist Operators Association later this year and determine, if possible whether tourists actually came into the county through the advertising medium of the Sportsmen's Show.

But police said today they have no idea of what the blind man looks like. His blind wife could not describe him.

The only thing the run-away couple left behind was a note for the wife—in braille.

Board Has No Intention Of Calling For New Tenders For School, Decision Made

The Belleville Board of Education has no intention of calling for new tenders for the construction of the proposed new elementary school in East Belleville despite the fact it may be requested to do so by the city council.

Just this was indicated Friday evening at the final meeting of the season for the local Board, when members in anticipating the request from council, took the bull by the horns and voted that a letter be forwarded to Mayor H. J. Allin pointing out the Board has no intention of calling for new tenders.

At Thursday evening's meeting of city council members passed a recommendation requesting the Board call for new tenders, but this motion would have to be ratified in Monday's council meeting. At the same meeting city council had been made aware that the Ontario Municipal Board had given final approval of their by-law to spend up to $300,000, for the construction of the new school. This by-law has been given two readings.

Building Costs Up.

H. C. Seldon, in introducing the motion to have the Mayor informed of the Board's stand with respect to calling for new tenders was merely "more delaying tactics."

One of the reasons for the Board standing firm in their decision not to call for new tenders was information received from the Building Reporter in Toronto that building costs had increased in recent months.

Taking the period of from 1935 to 1939 as equalling 100, the Reporter noted that building costs since March had increased from 202.8 to 215.1 anticipated for July, or a rise of 12-7 points. This was due, it was stated, to material cost increases and recent wage increases.

In view of the reported increase in building costs Chairman Enos David noted it would not be advisable to call for new tenders. He said there was no magic formula to get the new school built for a lower price and there was no reason to call for new tenders.

Mr. David went on to say that it was merely a matter of courtesy that The Hon. Dana Porter, Minister of Education, had suggested new tenders be called.

Quotes Telegram

He quoted a telegram received by the Board on March 13th from the Department of Education: "Final approval for legislative grant purposes for new public school in Belleville given in maximum amount of $295,000, including contract, architect's fees, furniture and equipment, providing financing can be arranged. Awarding of contract is responsibility of Belleville Board of Education."

The above telegram was included in a letter from the Minister to Mayor Allin in which the Mayor was advised that "the technical advisor of this Department concurred in the opinion that the cost of $295,000 is not an unreasonable figure. Under all circumstances of this case, it might be advisable if the board would consider calling for a tender again."

One Dissenting Vote

Board member A. C. Campbell said this was all beside the point and noted if the lowest tender already received was accepted the school could be built for roughly $25,000 less than the $295,000 figure.

"We have no guarantee the school could be built for that amount," returned Chairman David. The motion to advise the Mayor the Board had no intention of calling for new tenders carried with only one dissenting vote — that of Mr. Campbell.

Contracts Awarded

Contracts for minor repairs at certain of the public schools, for the erection of a partition dividing the library at the Collegiate Institute to make an additional classroom, and for window drapes for public schools were let. A new fence at Queen Victoria School will be erected at a cost of $470:59.

The McFarland Construction Company was awarded the contract for the laying of two asphalt platforms size 60 by 90 feet at two of the public schools, one on the east hill and one on the west.

Approval was also given for calling tenders for levelling of the Collegiate campus the cost not to exceed $1,500 and also for repairs to the collegiate parking lot, the cost not to exceed $300. Furniture for the new classroom at the Collegiate was recommended purchased at a cost of $16.20 per unit.

Will Attend School

Two employees of the schools janitor staff will atend the school for janitors if the course is held this year, it was decided.

Recommendations from the public school management committee approved by the board included motions that the probationary principalship of Mr. J. E. Bateman be extended for the year 1950-51 and that the Board approve the appointment of Mr. M. M. Hackett B.A., as a regular member of the principal's staff as from September, 1950.

The School Board of S. S. 5 Thurlow will be advised that their request to have Grade 7 pupils accommodated at the King George School is granted subject to an emergency accommodation that may arise. The Board will also give sympathetic consideration to the admission of senior pupils from Sidney Township Area as far as accommodation permits.

Resignation Accepted

The resignation of Miss Marion Smith as vocational teacher was accepted and approval was given to adding Mr. Bernard Kinlin as a member of the probationary staff for next year at a salary of $2,900.

Resident fees for evening classes at the Collegiate next season will be $2, it was recommended by the Advisory Vocational committee. Non-resident fees for the welding classes will be $10; for bricklaying classes $5 and all other classes, $3. There will be no refunds.

One hundred and eighty pre school children were inspected during the month of May, it was reported by the school nurse. In addition 52 vision tests were made at the schools, eight hearing tests, and 98 first aid treatments. Thirty-one pupils were taken down with mumps during the month with three cases of measles being reported.

Problems Faced by Printers of the Bible

By DENNIS MITCHELL
(In "London Calling")

A publisher of the Bible faces one unique difficulty: by custom and demand, he must compress a text of 800,000 words, the equivalent of 10 novels, into one volume half the size of one novel. To do this he must first select a suitable type face. Then he has to find paper which must be extremely thin and at the same time non-transparent.

Having solved the paper problem, he must then acquire a machine which will ink the type evenly — a difficult matter. Finally (and perhaps in these days the most difficult of all), he must employ unusually skilled and experienced craftsmen for the gilding, case-making and hand-binding.

Even if he managed to solve these problems, he will still be unable to print the Authorized Version of the Bible, for it is Crown copyright, and he must have the King's permission. There are only four publishers of the Bible — the Oxford and the Cambridge University Presses, William Collins and the King's Printer.

The office of King's Printer has been virtually confined to three families for nearly four centuries —the Barkers until 1709, John Baskett and his family until 1769, and subsequently the Eyre family to the present day. Right up to the time of the latest renewal of the patent, the office carried with it an annual payment from the Treasury of £6 13. 4d.

Incidentally, not all the King's Printers were good at their job. When John Baskett held the monopoly, one of his Bibles was described as "a Baskett-full of printers errors."

Another bad printer secured the monopoly in Scotland, and more than 2,000 mistakes were found in his edition of the New Testament. The first complete Bible printed there was a copy of the Geneva version, and in 1579 an Act of Scottish Parliament ordained that every householder worth 300 marks of yearly rent and every yeoman or burgess worth £600 stock, must have a Bible and Psalm Book, under penalty of £10. A searcher was appointed to visit every householder to whom the act applied, and it appears from the records of the Privy Council that he was by no means idle.

The King's Printer was naturally the first man to be given the job of publishing the Authorized Version of the Bible; but there were a great number of unauthorized editions before that. The first printed Bible was issued by Gutenburg in 1456. Bible publishing, in those days of religious persecution, was a very dangerous occupation.

Caxton, for example, preferred to print only Bible stories: it was safer. William Tyndale (who first translated the Bible into English) published it on the Continent and smuggled copies into England. Miles Coverdale did the same, until Henry VIII quarrelled with the Church of Rome and allowed the Coverdale Bible into England officially, with a suitable dedication to himself. And there were others.

When James I came to the throne, he felt that still another Bible should be prepared. He was a man of considerable learning, and he persuaded 54 leading scholars of the day to undertake the work. It was completed and published in 1611; this is known as the Authorized Version. The great beauty of its language transcended all previous translations, and although there have been attempts at improvements and revisions, this version is still an undisputed favorite.

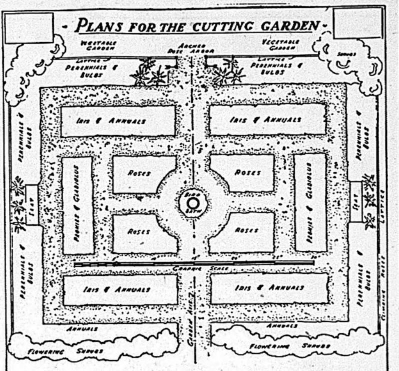
The fact that it was produced at the direct instigation of the King — and under his supervision and at his expense — has been held in law to constitute Crown copyright.

The Crown has no rights over any other version of the Bible; but the King's copyright in the Authorized Version has been upheld through centuries of legal history. So it is on law rather than Royal privilege that the Bible-publishing houses base their rights, and are now engaged in making up a world shortage of three million Bibles.



The cutting garden solves the problem of an abundant supply of flowers. It should be conveniently located on the axis of the main garden or in conjunction with the vegetable garden. The design is utilitarian with paths only wide enough for use and the beds are narrow enough to save stepping into soft earth when picking flowers. The flowers may be arranged in straight rows which facilitates cultivation.

This plan illustrates the importance of planning on paper to obtain an interesting and practical division of the beds. This layout is 50 feet wide, but can be varied to site conditions.

A Grey Trout That Fought Bravely

By IZAAK HUNTER
(In Montreal Gazette)

There is one thing about fishing — no matter how much you have fished or how far afield your operations have been, it is a sport which is capable of producing the greatest thrill of your lifetime almost anywhere you fish. As in everything else, however, one's deflation is in proportion to a buildup which proves to be one of frustration. Such an experience I went through recently on O'Sullivan Lake, northeast of Lake Cabonga. For more than half an hour I thought I had a record lake trout and so did all my companions, but I didn't. I shall never forget the thrill of those long minutes, but by the same token I shall never forget the letdown.

Fishing from a canoe with Mr. MacLean and with Arthur Smith as guide I had attached a light Williams Wobbler to the thin steel leader at the end of 300 feet of 8-pound test line. I cast near shore and was just settling down to troll a bit when I got a strike. Now that I think back it was a funny sort of strike, but I struck right back and I had him. Rather, I guess, he had me, for the fish went out of there and there wasn't anything I could do about it but keep the butt straight up and make sure the line paid out freely against as much drag as I dared to put on it.

Sixty or 70 feet the fish went without stopping. I hadn't recovered half of that line when he ran again, stopping apparently when he pleased rather than because of any pressure I was putting upon him.

At the end of 10 minutes he had out more line than he had at the end of his first rush and just as full of fight, the style of which had at least identified him as a laker. All of us were unfamiliar with the action of a sizeable game fish on such tackle, but, by this time, I had started to think I might have something. At the end of 20 minutes he was still down there moving about as he felt like it although Arthur's manipulation of the canoe had gained me some line.

He went into really deep water and only rarely did he yield an inch to the full pressure of that sturdy little piece of bamboo seven feet nine inches long and weighing four ounces. Throughout most of the time the butt was straight up and the tip was near the water. By this time there was tension around that isolated lake. The policemen had all stopped fishing and three movie cameras were grinding out hundreds of feet of film as a prelude to the appearance of what we all thought would be perhaps a record fish.

At the end of 35 minutes a few bubbles came up and the fish seemed more responsive to my upward urging. Not for long, however, for he took another long run, scattering the other canoes. When we got over him again some more bubbles came up and I was pretty sure I had him and I can't remember when a fish has had me so excited. I started to really gain line but apparently every time he could see the canoe he would take another short run. He ran under our canoe several times and I almost prayed for the little spinning rod to be strong: It was and Arthur helped by skillful use of his paddle. Stuart hadn't had much faith in my tackle to land such a fish as we seemed to be dealing with and he constantly advised me not to build my hopes too high. He thought I would lose him.

To end a long story about very little, at about the 32 minute mark I had the fish near enough so we could see him and, mister, it was awful. He was a nice enough laker, but he was hooked through his tough hide right amidships and about two inches below his dorsal fin. I felt like breaking him loose or throwing the tackle overboard. I felt like crying, but I did none of these things. I finished the job and in three minutes or at the end of 35 minutes altogether Arthur lifted into the canoe a trout which weighed less than nine pounds. He had put up the fight of a 45-pounder for the way he was hooked. I had no leverage on him at all. He could use every muscle in his body at its full advantage and could move in any direction he wished without let or hindrance other than the pressure of that little rod at a point where it did him the least harm.

It was the only time in my life, I guess, when I wished that a fish had got away before I even saw him. Everybody else felt the same way. Just imagine what stories and conjectures there could have been about a fish that had fought like that for over half an hour and then broken loose!

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

CATCHING BIRD MUSIC

The old saying "practice makes perfect" is quite as applicable to learning bird music as it is to the study of any other subject. At first the voices of crows and robins are the only ones we can distinguish with certainty; yet training soon enables us to add others to our list.

Truly, some ears are particularly sensitive to high, some to low sounds. One person hears well the deep tones of an owl, while another misses that but hears the very high voice of a Cape May warbler. However it is also a fact that our peculiar bent has much to do with our recognition of sounds. Somebody quite city minded notices the tinkle of a dime on the sidewalk but is unaware of the presence of any bird, while at the same moment a nature lover knows only that a yellow warbler is singing in a tree half a block away.

When we have listened carefully to a number of song sparrows, we begin to realize that not just the species can be recognized but even individuals. However, fortunately for the beginner, few have songs as specialized as the song sparrows'.

Males of a given species usually sing pretty much the same, though a practised ear detects slight differences in nearly all. A redstart and a chestnut-sided warbler each has two distinct songs, while a Myrtle warbler sings one little ditty in the spring and another in the summer. All this is most confusing to the listener who is anxiously trying to identify a singer.

Even bird watchers consider the ability to recognize the voices of all our warblers quite an accomplishment. Many of these little beauties are with us for very short periods: a few days as they pass through in spring when migrating to northern nesting grounds, and again in autumn when returning south. Their voices being so similar, we must take into consideration the tone, the pitch, the tune (if there is something more than a monotone), length of song, phrasing, and placing of any accent. If you can write a tune on the staff or take it down in tonic solfa so much the better. Many bird students find it helpful to fit real words to a song when this can be done. There is no doubt that the oven bird says, "Teacher, teacher, teacher," as plainly as most parrots say, "Polly wants a cracker." But even knowing that a certain song is in two parts, or remembering that the rhythm is "te-dum, te-dum" is a step towards your goal.

Former Pastor Presented With Fine Gift

Shannonville. —Rev. A. W. Lougheed, a former pastor of the local United Church, now residing in Seagrave, was pleasantly surprised last Sunday evening at the conclusion of the evening service.

The members of his three congregations were present to present him with a beautiful morocco bound hymnary on the occasion of his 35th anniversary in the ministry. Sumptuous refreshments were served in the Sunday School Hall, a large cake, suitably inscribed, gracing the head table.

FATHER'S DAY

Father's Day is a national institution, presumably to nor the male parents, then men who pay and pay. Our y hope is that this custom of presenting Father with an ication of our feelings for him is not running to exmes again this year. In past years, Father has been ded down with ties he wore only because we gave them him, smoked cigars he didn't like, wore socks only a her with infinite patience would wear.

In some manner, Father seems to have taken a back t to Mother. Perhaps one of the reasons is that Mother's y has more sentimental appeal for the poets and proters than has the day commemorating Dad. And yet it he male of the family, in most cases, who works all day provide the things his dependents demand as their right. d when his day's work at the office is over, he has the nace to tend, the garden to dig, the snow to shovel, es to carry out, grass to cut. Perhaps he even wipes the hes. His car belongs to the family, not to him; the chiln get more use out of it than he does.

Paradoxically, Father's Day sprang from one woman's k of a mother. Mrs. Bruce Dodds, of Spokane, Washing, urged a Ministers' Alliance there 40 years ago to set de a day to honor fathers because she felt so indebted her own male parent. He was a Civil War veteran who reared six motherless children, of which Mrs. Dodds one. So great was her admiration for him that she nt to the religious bodies in her city, and, with the king of her pastor. Rev. Conrad Bluhm, the Y.M.C.A., the ministerial body, established the first Father's Day June, 1910.

That first group met in a church to sing songs and in verbal tribute to the fathers of the nation. Success ne to the movement as press, pulpit and women's ups got behind it.

Today, the most of the world joins to honor the man sits at the head of the family table by reserving a of tribute for him. It is a day for him to sit proudly.

THIS PROVINCE'S GREAT FUTURE

A picture of the future of Northern Ontario has been wn by Premier Frost who spoke the other evening at lt Ste. Marie. He had been taking part with Hydro irman Robert H. Saunders in opening a great new ro Electric plant on the Mississagi River.

The Premier spoke of the immense possibilities of the hipicoten region and said that the prediction of half a llion tons of iron ore deposits was tame. The sight of great new power development was sufficient to draw piration and prophecy of a rich future which awaits in t part of Ontario.

Ontario people have reason for inspiration in the atness of the Province's resources in minerals and prec metals in the rocks, in the great stands of timber and st wealth, in the fisheries, in the fine agricultural lands Ontario and in the sturdy and progressive type of her zens.

The resources and natural wealth of Ontario give rance that the Province will become greater and greats it is developed and that the words of the Premier will ve true as the Province continues its development and ansion built on vast resources as in the Great Lakes alone and in other parts of this section of Canada as l.

The resources and natural wealth of Ontario give the rance of a prosperous Province and Dominion. The ds of the Premier, everyone feels, have the ring of true diction as the Province continues its development and ansion built on a multiplicity of resources, in lakes and eries, in rocks, in forests, in great agricultural areas in the waterways of the Great Lakes which will ease blems of transportation.

At this present time Canada is witnessing a great exsion in every part of the country and especially in Ono with developments in industry, in mining of precious tals and of the rich iron deposits in which there is every fidence felt of a great source of wealth.

Ontario can look confidently to the future of the vince with pride. Not only in Northern Ontario is there ry sign of vast developments. In other parts there are at developments, which have been going on for a g time. Everywhere in Ontario there is assurance of a at and proud future.

POPULAR NAMES

There are 18,00,000 names on the card index system Britain which contains the names of holders of National ings certificates.

A few facts are gleaned from the service of the United gdom Information Office and they are suggestive of the at number of people with names which are not only mon in the British Isles but also in Canada, in other ts of the Commonwealth and no doubt in the United tes and wherever English is spoken.

There are no fewer than 6,000 William Smiths on the of holders. 5,500 John Smiths, 3,500 William Jones and 0 John Jones. How many of the people of the British are named Smith and Jones, is naturally not given, the numbers must be very great, so popular are these family names wherever English is known.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

A bee buzzing angrily inside a lady slipper orchid is one of the amusing sounds of small nature. It is a surprising sound; for, if the bee is a young one, not familiar with lady slippers, it can sound as mad as a rattlesnake. Bees are very sudden-tempered.

And lady slippers must have been very patient, over a few million years, to have worked out the mechanics of their production so ingeniously as to entrap and infuriate bees.

All the lady slipper orchids are a beautfiul and seductive color. They are either some shade of magenta and white; or else vivid yellow. No bee could miss seeing them. And on coming closer to inspect the color-signal, the way they zoom near you to check your red bandana, they sense the lovely aroma of nectar coming from the orchid.

To get into that sack from which the nectar odor floats, the bee, after exploring the impenetrable bauble, finds a crack through which he can shove his way; for the fissure is springy, and gives to pressure. Once inside the colored gloom, the bee is better than in clover: for the floor of the little balloon is covered with nectar-beaded hairs.

When the bee has his load of nectar and tries to get out, he finds that the springy door through which he entered is a trap door. What is more, the wall of his prison, on that side, is slippery as glass.

It is then he starts to buzz with fury. But in his anger, batting and banging around, he discovers a very small escape-hatch right at the top of the bulbous prison. And the floor is good and rough, for a foot-hold up there. Out he goes, struggling. But in getting out, he first has to scrape his back along the stigma, which collects the pollen of previous orchids off his back; and then he has to heave his back against a mass of pollen in order to get through the escape hatch.

He forgets his anger; sees another orchid nearby; and, with a practised eye, finds the fissure and bulges in. Possibly he gets mad again: for if you sit beside a lady slipper for a little while, you will hear a lot of anger.

Farm Bread Meets With Favor in U.S.

By ROSCOE FLEMING
(In Christian Science Monitor)

In this part of America (Denver) folks are eating "farm bread" and liking it fine. Groceries here report as much as 30 per cent of their sales in the new bread, and the proportion is larger elsewhere. Many bakeries provide it.

Folks in the vast wheat country from here to the Missouri River like it fine, too, because if the nation should take entirely to "farm bread" it would eat up from 70,000,000 to 100,000,000 more bushels of wheat yearly. The idea originated there.

"Farm bread" is simply bread which is made with 16 per cent more flour than the usual modern bakery mix. This makes a home-made type of loaf, more dense and firm than the usual bakers' bread and not quite so sweet.

According to Herb W. Hoover, general manager of the Great Bend, Kan., Tribune, writing in the Denver Post, the idea was originated by Morris Coover, who runs a clothing store in the little town of Kinsley, Edwards County, Kan.

Both Great Bend and Kinsley are near Hutchinson, Kan., where grain elevators tower skyward from the prairie like the New York skyline. Wheat is the economic staff of life in this whole country.

Mr. Coover has a wheat farm in the country outside Kinsley. He also has a couple of dogs. One evening last February He threw the dogs some slices of left-over bakers' bread, the ordinary kind. The dogs sniffed at it, but refused to eat.

Like everyone else, Mr. Coover has been worrying over the wheat surplus and other dislocations in the farm-production program. "I stood and looked at those dogs and thought that we wouldn't get anywhere about the wheat surplus until we got bread my dogs would eat," he said.

So the next morning he headed for the bakery in Kinsley and asked the manager, James Lloyd, to produce a loaf of bread with more wheat flour in it.

"How much more," asked Mr. Lloyd. "Oh, make it 16 per cent," said Mr. Coover. Mr. Lloyd experimented for a couple of days and finally produced a batch of heavy, crusty loaves which he put on his counter at 15 cents, a nickel more than other loaves.

His first customer, of course, was Mr. Coover. When other customers came in and asked about the new loaves on the counter, Mr. Lloyd explained and sold the whole 15 very quickly. Five of the customers were back the next morning asking when he was going to have some more of that new "farm bread."

The bread passed the final test —Mr. Coover, after relishing it himself, gave each of his dogs a slice and they gobbled it up. Mr. Lloyd says that very soon his bread sales were up 75 per cent.

News of the new bread spread, and Mr. Coover spoke in Great Bend before the Rotary Club. Mr. Hoover took him to Hutchinson, Kan., and they told his story and left samples of the bread with a chain grocery owner there who owns stores half across Kansas.

This man, Ray Dillon, snatched up the opportunity. Within two weeks he was piling mountains of "farm bread" into his stores from his own bakery, and advertising it with full pages.

It was on its way. Mr. Dillon reported that in one instance every loaf of "farm bread" was sold before a single loaf of the ordinary variety moved out.

Mr. Coover and the rest have given the formula to the world, anxious only to promote sales of more good Kansas wheat. The United States Department of Agriculture has broadcast it. Commercial bakers all over the Midwest are offering their own version.

Essentially they keep other ingredients of the bread in each mix at their former volume, but instead of 100 pounds of flour, the new mix calls for an additional 10 pounds of white flour and six pounds of whole wheat flour.

Eating Habits Of Sharks

(Stratford Beacon-Herald)

There are scientists who say that sharks will not attack human beings. Some marine biologists have actually walked on the floor of the ocean and prodded sharks out of their way with pointed sticks as the brutes ambled by. The Marine Research department of Yale University's Bingham Oceanographic Laboratory has gone deeply into the ways of sharks, and reports that sharks are not harmless to man; that on the coast of Australia, where sharks abound and areas for swimming have to be marked off, many swimmers who have broken the regulations have been attacked, and half of them lost their lives. The bite of a shark is reported to be very dangerous because it causes excessive bleeding and severe shock.

When sharks are detected in the vicinity of a swimmer, or of a person who has fallen off a ship, the best thing to do is to make a lot of splashing which scares them away, but if a person is injured and even a little blood oozes out, the sharks can detect it instantly. It excites them and they attack fiercely, whether the blood comes from a man or a big whale.

Sharks have been caught and cut open, and inside them have been found shoes and shirts, which seems proof that they have swallowed human beings. Tin cans and a sack of coal have been found in a shark's stomach. These seem hard to explain, unless it be due to the fact that a shark when feeding in a shoal of small fish turns on its back and opens its capacious mouth wide. The result is the small fish simply gush down its throat as of they were drawn in by suction Anything in the way would also disappear through the shark's jaws, and this might explain the coal and the tin cans. By some provision of Nature, water is excluded when feeding.

A St. Thomas Times-Journal editorial writer says he has seen sharks cut open, and in one instance the animal had been caught in a trawl net just after feeding on a shoal of small fish. The men who opened the shark, which was some 16 feet long, shovelled up the fish, perfectly whole as if just swallowed before capture, and filled two barrels with them. The shark and the two barrels of undigested fish were sold for three dollars to a fertilizer company.

Motorized Game To Make Golfer A Family Man

(An Editorial in The Moose Jaw Times-Herald)

A lot of men who used to smash a white pill around the cow-pastures when golf in this country was in its infancy and when those who played were suspected of being in their second-childhood, are now realizing that they were born thirty, perhaps forty, years too soon. From the sidelines they have watched the game develop to the point where the fairways are vastly superior and the greens are the best of their day, and a blade of grass in a line of putt is the occasion of a greens committee meeting.

Some who now play their golf from the club house verandah remember the old "gutty" ball. They have seen the game and the "sticks" undergo considerable renovations, although the foundation rules of the Royal and Ancient prevail in substantial measure. The most radical changes have been the steel-shafted golf "sticks" and the bag in which they are toted around the course.

Golfers of the old school who slashed, thrashed and hooked the ball on the nearest vacant field available and tried to sink it in an old tin can, firmly grasped three or a maximum of four sticks in one hand and sallied forth. Then the golf bag made its appearance, a modest canvas affair with a leather bottom and a strap to swing over the shoulder. The bags increased in size as the number of "sticks" believed necessary grew in number. Then the leather bag with a hood and a lock, which housed a dozen clubs, appeared.

As time passed this heavy load so dwarfed the average caddy that the bag with "legs" was developed. The "legs" were dropped when a "lie" was reached and the player selected the club of his choice.

Next in the chronological development of carrying devices was the bag mounted on wheels that the player drags or pushes around the course. This new departure was an excellent training for the younger devotees of the game as they learned how to manipulate a two-wheeled vehicle down, over or up hazards just as difficult as the curbs at a street crossing. Young wives were happy to see hubby gaining skill in this technique.

As the game has progressed and developed, so has the care of the course. There was a time when only the greens were cut with a mower, but now the whole course has to be clipped to the over-all average of a "crew-cut" and the motor-driven lawn-mower does the job. In all probability the motor-driven bag-rack vehicle will be the next sensation — either that or a noiseless scooter on which the player will ride with his bagful of clubs.

It will speed the game up and make it possible for even the beginner to put 36 holes behind him and get home on time for dinner, lunch, or to drive the children to Sunday School. There will be no more blistered heels and tired feet, and the golfer will not be so exhausted that he will be unable to take the little woman to the neighborhood picture show. A motorized vehicle for player and his bag of "sticks" will be a great boon to family life. Hasten the day!

DIVERS KINDS OF DOCTORS

Dentist writes that he believes students who wish to become dentists should be required to take the regular medical course leading to the degree M.D (Doctor of Medicine) and then two years of further study leading to the degree D.D.S. (Doctor of Dental Surgery) or the degree D.M.D. (Doctor of Dental Medicine). This, the dentist thinks, would place the dentist in the same position as the M.D. who specializes in a particular branch of medicine or surgery.

I think so too. I have advocated that very reform on many occassions, and inveriably I get an angry reaction from the dentists. It is notable, however, that at Harvard Dental School and in Baltimore or Philadelphia students who desire to become dentists must now obtain the M.D degree and then take whatever special or technical instruction they require to qualify to practice dentistry—which, after all, is a special branch of medicine or surgery and not a science or art apart.

If dentists were so trained they would indeed command full recognition by their colleagues, the physicians and surgeons. Since the dentists broke away from the parent profession a little over a century ago they have not shared as fully as they should in the advantages and the responsibilities of the medical profession. But that's the way most of the old timers in dentistry like it. That's the reason why they insist on maintaining separate dental schools. These facts annoy and anger the dentists, or at least the old timers,, whenever I allude to them, but I don't give a good—good health is all I care about.

Even though they may not say much about it for publication leaders in the dental profession generally agree that it would be a boon to health, personal health, everybody's health, if dentistry were reassimilated by the parent profession.

For that matter, isn't it time that some sort of restriction or regulation were imposed upon the trade use of the title "Doctor"? I mean for the protection of the public, the layman who seeks a physician, the customer or prospective patron who, all too often must select a physician without any assurance of the standing of the one he selects.

If a visitor, traveler or stranger in the community requires a doctor and consults the person who holds himself or herself out as Dr. Doe, the chances are about even that Doe will be a dentist, an adjuster, a manipulator, a spectacle fitter, a hair dresser, a food expert, a podiatrist or eke a practicing physician. Generally this confusion is merely absurd and annoying, but sometimes it is tragic. The pity of it is that so many people who should know better assume that "the law" permits no one to call himself "Doctor" unless he is duly qualified to do so. In Yankeeland "the law" gives phony "doctors" virtually unlimited freedom to exploit popular credulity.

Not that reputable, licensed dentists haven't the same legal right to use the title "Doctor" that licensed physicians have.

Finally, I confidently believe that within the next three decades all prospective dentists will graduate in medicine before they begin whatever postgraduate courses they may require to practice in their chosen special field. That reform will place all practitioners of medicine or surgery on an even plane—which will be a fine thing for the public.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Temporary Teeth

Do you think filling cavities in the first teeth of children, is necessary, since the second set comes in anyway? (Mrs. I. W.)

Answer—Just as necessary as prompt filling of cavities in the permanent teeth. Decay or premature removal of the primary teeth impairs the development of jaw and face and even, sound permanent teeth.

Doctor Quibble

Is there any such thing as "nervous heart"? (G. M. O.)

Answer—That is one of Doctor Quibble's phony diagnosis—and his customers like it.

Children Strip And Place Infant In Muddy Gutter

Hamilton, June 16 — (CP)— A naked, two-week-old baby was found in a gutter at suburban Burlington Beach boulevard yesterday by truck driver Gordon Rohr. Police discovered that two other children, aged four and five, had taken the infant from a carriage, stripped it and placed it in the muddy gutter beside the busy highway.

The baby was unharmed.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

GOD

If I were in doubt as to the existence of God in the world, I would not go to books of theology, nor to the age-long discussions of religious leaders, with their endless discusion of rites, dogmas, creeds, and cults. I would walk out into Nature and look about me—for there would be God at work.

I have never read the writings of a great naturalist who did not believe in God. And more than that mere belief. Someone once asked the great naturalist Henri Fabre, world famous for his research and life-long study of insects, if he believed in God. He replied: "I do not believe in God —I see Him everywhere."

Wherever you see in nature, mystery, miracle, beauty, form, color, drama, and wonder, there you will be viewing God. I have always liked to look upon the out-of-doors as God's great Cathedral as it surely is. There you will see Him celebrated from early dawn to the fully lighted heavens, and even beyond.

You can see God in the intricate formation of a single leaf, or in the perfect coloring of the tiniest and least known flower of the fields. You will hear Him in the song of every bird. And every waterfall is an anthem to His glory. Note Him, also, in the intricate and beautifully woven spider web, or in the multiple eye of the fly!

I once wrote that you could even see God in the wag of a dog's tail, and I still believe that this is true, for wherever kindness, love, or simple trust is enacted, there you will note an expression of the living God. One of my favorite stories in the Bible is that of the widow's mite, for she gave all that she had. God was in that simple and generous heart.

Mere belief in God is not enough. We must see Him, experience Him, walk and talk with Him—be one with Him. The whole world is lighted up when we do. We can never know God by continually questioning Him, or doubting Him. Evidence of His supreme will and creative force is illustrated everywhere. Acceptance of Him is the supreme and most important decision of our lives!

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE HEAT OF THE SUN

A great deal of money will be spent this year on developing methods of using solar energy. This is nothing new. For centuries men have dreamed of harnessing the sun's power, and many devices and machines have actually been made to put the sun's heat and light to work.

The features of the sun which makes such dreams so attractive are obvious. The sun's energy is free, and obtainable anywhere on earth. It is tremendous, containing more power per day than we could use up in many years. And it is permanent, for while there may be cloudy days, the sun will always shine again soon.

The men who harness the sun efficiently may someday be very rich. But there are millions of people who are already spiritually rich because they know how to use another kind of celestial power. This is the love which flows from God to anyone who worships Him.

Like the sun's heat, God's love is free, and it is world-wide. Beside it, the sun's strength is puny, for not only will it remove mountains, it will also move the human heart — a much harder task. And while the sun shines only part of the time, God's love shines twenty-four hours a day, forever.

No expensive equipment is needed to tap this source of power. If you have not tried, try today.

County Empowers Committee To Make Equitable Settlement With City on Surcharge Issue

"Peace" loomed on the controversial front dividing the city and Hastings County Council yesterday when following another lengthy discussion on the hospital surcharge question, the county empowered its Public Relations Committee to arrive at an equitable settlement with a similar committee from City Council.

The motion unanimously endorsed by the county body read "That the Public Relations Committee be empowered to come to an agreement with the city of Belleville and to arrive at an equitable settlement of the deficit that now exists in indigent patients accounts."

The County Public Relations Committee is composed of Warden Clarke Rollins, Reeve Harry Harrison, Thurlow, and Deputy Reeve Lee Grills, Sidney.

Appears First Step

What appears to be the first step towards settlement negotiations between the governing bodies was launched following a brief address to council by Mayor Jack Allin of Belleville.

Consensus of council was that the "feud" as it was termed, that has existed since a hospital surcharge was placed on patients residing outside the city last August, should be terminated through the medium of intra-committee discussion.

Continuance of the controversy it was felt would have far reaching effects on not only the good relations that have existed between city and county for years, but other municipal representations as well as residents.

Want Surcharge Off

Mayor Allin who quipped "I don't know whether it is safe to come in here," said in his opening remarks, that he felt the wording of the recommendation passed by the city regarding the surcharge problem perturbed County Council members. "What it actually meant,' he said, "was for representatives of both bodies to sit down man to man and try to iron out this contentious matter."

"There are none more serious than City Council to take this discriminating measure (surcharge) off."

He and his council had discussed the matter, and not a member disagreed that the surcharge was discriminating, he said.

Came With Verbal Gun

"Unfortunately, if the press is quoted correctly, the warden said some uncomplimentary things about the city, which have not poured oil on the troubled waters. He came with a verbal gun pointed at our heads in committee."

"However," the mayor added, "the problem can, in my opinion, be ironed out by committee discussion.

"I think we can come to a solution," he went on, "and I think those that pay hospital surcharge after June 1st, will have it refunded. I think that is fair, and I assure you of the wholehearted co-operation of my council and my personal attention and time in an effort to iron out this problem."

Council Not Given Chance

Warden Clarke Rollins told Mayor Allin he had omitted to state how the surcharge came to be put on. "It was put on," he said, "without county council being given a chance to discuss it."

"When Mayor Allin said I went to committee discussion 'with a gun in my hand,' he put it rather crudely. I asked to have the surcharge removed so we could work on an equal basis."

"He was not in office when the surcharge was imposed," the mayor said, "but my predecessor had stated that every possible means had been used before its imposition. As I said before my sympathy is with the people of the county."

Reeve Harrison, Thurlow, said the council was willing to fully negotiate with the hospital regarding indigent accounts, but the only figures procurable were those used on governmental forms.

$8,000 Grant Given

The Hospital Board said that the county owed it $20,000 in 1948. They received a grant of $8,000 and came back in January 1949 asking for an additional $10,000. This council opposed it on the grounds that no accurate figures of hospitalization of indigent patients were available.

"They came back with a request for $8,000 but we again asked for additional information, an active break-down of cost. It is very obvious that six or eight people in a public ward can be cared for cheaper than two in a private room."

"Why the mayor said all angles had been explored is more than I can figure out," he said.

"What this council would like to know is what it owes and why and there is not a member but who will pay his fair share."

City Admits Mistake Claim

"The city has made a mistake and admitted it," Deputy Reeve Lee Grills, Sidney, said. "It is willing to rectify it and this council will not find it too hard to do business with it."

"The people of the county who are willing to pay their hospital bills have been penalized by this surcharge, in an undemocratic manner. All should pay their part.

"Warden Rollins," the Sidney deputy reeve said, "is not as bad as he sounds. His voice is gruff but that comes from the cool north country air. He has fought hard for his county and deserves credit for such."

Presence of the city mayor at the session, Deputy Reeve Grills said, indicates his willingness to negotiate further.

Should Drop Cudgels

Warden Rollins at this point, asked his council "in front of Mayor Allin to arrive at some basis of settlement, for him to take back to city council, so this matter can be straightened out."

Two wrongs do not make a right, commented Reeve Chas. Burkard, Deloro. The first wrong in the surcharge, the second the continuance of the "feud".

"If there is any chance of settlement let us empower the Public Relations Committee to go back and settle the question. It is not in the best interest of either council to continue this controversy," he said.

With something in the offing to benefit both parties, the cudgels should be dropped, Reeve W J. Davis said.

Must Bury Hatchet Claim

"Continuance of the problem might bring unforeseen complications," he said. "There have always been happy relations between people of city and county. People of townships have much in common with those of the city.

"We should get down on a common level and bury the hatchet so deep it can never be resurrected", he said.

A statement from the hospital itemizing the accounts would straighten this matter. Reeve Wells, Stirling, said. He suggested the hospital secure a proper set of books so necessary statements would be available. He urged the matter be cleared up as quickly as possible.

"Trim the city recommendation of its legal verbiage, so this council can understand what the city wants," Reeve Geo. Spencer, Frankford, said.

County Sincere Says Reeve

"This council is constructing a million dollar County Home," Reeve Sauer, Deseronto, remarked.

"Surely the city must feel we are sincere when we say we want to pay our rightful bills. All we want to know is how much and why."

Warden Rollins paid tribute to Mayor Allin saying he has definitely tried to keep down hospital costs. He is sincere in his efforts and no one is more interested in what is being done with hospital funds than he.

Reeve Jack Kincaid, Madoc, after the Faraday reeve had suggested the surcharge be halved. said he felt the Public Relations Committee could do more than council and moved this committee be given authority to sign necessary articles.

Frank Discussion Needed

Only frank open discussion in democratic manner will settle the problem. Reeve Tryon, Bancroft said. Mayor Allin has signified his willingness to co-operate and he with Warden Rollins deserves more credit then they are getting.

Warden Rollins told council it would be impossible to get the correct figures at present. It would take two years to get them. Mayor Allin, however, said he thought he could get the auditor to get the cost figures.

"There's no use kidding ourselves", the warden said, "it would take months to get these costs." He urged a decision immediately, on a bases of the indigent patient day.

Suggestion Made

Suggestion that an additional 50 cents per patient day be added to the county cost of indigents, was made by Deputy Reeve Lee Grills, Sidney. He pointed out that the county rate is now $2.50 daily which will be increased by statute to $3.50 on Jan. 1st, 1951. The suggested additional 50 cents per day will bring the county rate in Jan. 1951, to $4.00. In addition the government pays between 80 and 90 cents per day.

Asked by Reeve Geo. Spencer, Frankford, if other hospitals were to be bonused, the warden said he believed in not burning bridges until he came to them. "We should have a special interest in the Belleville Hospital and bring it up to a Class A rate".

Courtesy Gesture

"This is not a fair deal to other hospitals" thought Reeve Lynch, Marmora. "Other institutions have never given us a backlash and say we owe them $18,000. Why not subsidize them as well as Belleville.

The additional payment to Belleville Hospital is a courtesy gesture, said Rawdon Reeve Wilfred Spencer. "It is in our county and I feel we should co-operate with the hospital, and I add that if we do not owe them a legal debt, it is a moral one."

Concluding the discussion, Mayor Allin said more hospitalization was only one phase of cost. He cited a case that cost $1,400, most of which was for drugs and oxygen, and the extra cost was paid by the citizens of Belleville.

The motion was voted on and carried unanimously.

Quiet Campaign In Cartier Riding Nears its Close

Montreal, June 17 — (CP)—A quiet campaign in the multi-racial Montreal Cartier riding neared its close today.

Four candidates in Monday's federal by-election seek a seat that has been fought over five times in six years.

Few issues have been raised. Supporters of Leon D. Crestohl, K. C., Liberal candidate, and Maurice Hebert, Progressive Conservative, have freely attacked communism. Kalmen Kaplansky's C. C. F. backers have talked about unemployment.

Harry Binder, Labor - Progressive party candidate, is seeking the seat once held by a party colleague, Fred Rose, sentenced in 1946 to a six-year penitentiary term for his part in the Russian spy case. Mr. Binder calls himself the "peace candidate."

One of the smallest federal ridings on Montreal Island in area, Cartier has about 40,000 electors.

The seat is traditionally Jewish-held. It was last held by Maurice Hartt, Liberal, whose death a few months ago forced the by-election, within a year of last year's general election.

Mr. Hartt was first elected in a 1947 by-election when Rose was unseated after his conviction. Rose won the seat in a 1943 by-election.

Mr. Crestohl is a 50-year-old lawyer entering a Federal race for the first time.

Mr. Hebert is a 25-year-old French-Canadian lawyer.

Mr. Kaplansky is a 38-year-old Polish-born printer and army veteran.

Winnipeg-born Mr. Binder, 36, ran unsuccessfully for the L.P.P. in the last federal election in Cartier.

In 1948, Mr. Hartt polled 11,998 votes in a four-way fight. Mr. Binder ran second with 4,868.

GIRL, 10, A MOTHER

Charleston, Miss., June 17 — (CP) — A baby daughter was born premateurely May 25 to a 10-year-old Negro girl. It has been kept alive in a home-made incubator using heated bricks. The child's birth to Sarah Moore was revealed Friday. She lives in a rickety tenant farm shack with her grandparents.

6,400-Mile Motor Trip One of Pleasure, Business

Trenton (Special) — J. W. A. Russell, manager of the local Unemployment Insurance Office and Mrs. Russell returned this week from a three weeks motor trip to Long Beach California.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell passed through 15 states and paid a one-day visit to Tijuana, Mexico, on their combined business and pleasure trip, as Mr. Russell was a Canadian delegate to the 37th annual convention of the International Association of Public Employment Services held at Long Beach recently.

"New horizons in employment security" was the theme of the convention and Mr. Russell reports the discussions centred around methods of "developing present industries and new employment opportunities for an expanding population."

After visiting Hollywood, Mr. Russell is convinced that movie producers publicize the movie colony's attractions to the nth degree. He found that "the corner of Hollywood and Vine is just like a four corners in any North American city and not nearly as busy as Yonge and Queen Streets in Toronto." Passing through a town in California named Ontario, Mr. Russell enquired as to the origin of the name and discovered that it had been settled by farmers from the Niagara peninsula.

Tries to Outdo Neighbor

Another thing that impressed Mr. Russell about his 6,400 mile trip was the fact that each state tries to outdo its neighbor in emphasizing its own individuality, and the residents are always well aware of the possibilities of their local tourist attractions. As an illustration he tells of an Indian seated in front of his teepee with a colorful blanket draped over his shoulder. When a lady approached this modern Sitting Bull and asked him some questions, the Indian maintained a stern and stony faced silence. After several unsuccessful attempts to engage the brave in conversation, the lady withdrew a few feet and snapped his picture. Immediately the brave came to life and in perfect English demanded 50 cents for posing.

2,000 Pupils Expected to Take Part

Trenton — (Special) — Two thousand public school pupils are expected to take part in the track field meet planned for Wednesday June 21 at Bain Memorial Park. In the event of rain, the meet will be held on Thursday.

The sports events start at 10 a.m. when the elimination preliminaries get under way with the finals taking place at 2 p. m. Refreshment booths, picnic tables and a first aid tent will be on the grounds. All Trenton public schools, College Street, Dufferin Street, St. Peter's, Breadner and North Trenton will participate in the activities and Frankford schools may possibly take part also.

Recreation Director Jack Dean is organizing the meet and promises that the newly erected bleachers will be finished in time. By holding the annual track and field meet on Wednesday, it is hoped that more parents will be able to attend.

Supervising Principal of Public Schools, V. P. Carswell feels that not enough children have taken part in previous school field days and this year there will be a full program of events for children of all ages right up to Grade 8.

Excessive Taking of Wildlife By Indians Issue at Parley

Ottawa, June 17— (CP)—Wildlife experts are critical of Indians who do more hunting than they should.

A conference of Dominion - Provincial wildlife officials decided yesterday that if this "excessive taking of wildlife by Indians" continues, it will "ultimately work to the disadvantage of Indians themselves."

The conference decided that the way to meet this depletion menace was to teach the Indians the value of conservation.

There also were suggestions at the 14th Dominion-Provincial wildlife meeting that traps used in the capture of wildlife were "inhuman" and should be prohibited.

The conference was closed to the press. A statement issued later said one delegate replied to this suggestion by saying that if anyone knew of equally - efficient and more humane traps than now are in use, he would be glad to have them adopted.

Delegates from all 10 provinces attended the meeting which gave emphasis to migratory bird regulations.

One section of the regulations discussed dealt with the possession of migratory game birds in closed seasons. There was a question of whether this resulted from illegal takes or from storage over long periods.

Many delegates believed it resulted from storage, pointing out that an increasing number of deep-freeze storage installations in Canada has made it easier for hunters to preserve game over longer periods than has been possible in previous years.

Reports indicated that the waterfowl situation in Canada now appears to be little changed from a year ago.

The conference handed down its statement:

"In most of the provinces there had been a rather late spring, which had delayed nesting of some of the waterfowl species for two or three weeks."

New Photo Process

Both Mr. Ker and Mr. Gannett referred to coming technological advantages in publishing, such as the new photo process being developed for printing.

In the next five or ten years, Mr. Ker said, it was hoped that "it will be possible for publishers with a handful of conscientious employees to get out a newspaper regardless of any strike." The new process would be one of the greatest assets to freedom of the press.

Mr. Gannett, referring to the New York strike, said radical union leaders had made it impossible to distribute one of the country's largest newspapers. It was just as bad to have such leaders controlling the press as it was for the government to do that.

U.N. Convention on Information

An attack against the United Nations convention on information was led by Lord Burnham, director of The London Daily Telegraph. He and other delegates objected particularly to two clauses:

1. That governments would be able to obtain corrections in newspapers of other countries which carried articles reflecting on the outside governments.

2. That "National Security" could be given as a legitimate consideration in suppressing information.

Arthur Ford, editor-in-chief of The London, Ont., Free Press, and a Canadian delegate to the Geneva conference where the convention was framed, said the Canadian delegates had been unhappy about the two clauses.

He said that later the United Nations had made the convention worse and "increased the danger of state censorship in peacetime."

Mr. Ford said Canadian delegates would support any proposal at the Imperial Conference for establishment of an E.P.U. Committee to exercise vigilance over press freedom.

County Will Spend $250,000 On Roads, Bridges This Year

County roads and bridges expenditure for 1950 amounting to $238,000 has been approved by the Department of Highways, the Roads and Bridges Committee report presented to county council revealed Friday.

Suburban roads maintenance is set at $10,000 and the $228,000 allotted to the county system includes maintenance, $145,700; machinery, both new and repairs, $18,800; overhead, $11,500 and construction, $52,000.

It was pointed out that when the item of $29,000 allotted for re-topping of the Madoc road and an additional estimated $11,400 is deducted for fencing and other work on the Stirling-Hoard's road, only a small sum will remain for miscellaneous construction.

Costs of winter control, the report stated was approximately $15,500. This is not the total cost since prior to December 1, snow fence had been erected, sand piles put out and chemicals purchased and mixed.

Damage due to Spring breakup was extensive, the report said. All stock piles of crushed gravel and rock left from 1949 were used up early and a large quantity purchased from available sources.

The dry period following the last of the frost boils made it impossible to get gravel surfaces into shape and this situation brought on the dust nuisance problem earlier than usual.

Five carloads totalling 170 tons of calcium chloride have been purchased this year and has already been applied in dust-laying prevention When the seven miles from Highway 62 to Coe Hill has been finished approximately 56 miles will have been treated to date.

New Truck Loader Purchased

The committee purchased a new three-ton truck and also a portable loader which can be equiped for snow-plowing if desired.

Word on the Stirling-Hoard's development road was started last week by the McFarland Construction Company, the report stated.

Recently after the department advised they required a greater width than 86 feet at nine or ten different locations where deep cuts or high fills were involved, it proved necessary to go back to some property owners and arrange for the purchase of these extra sections. Most of this has been completed.

No additions or deletions to the county system or suburban road have been made since the last meeting. The one deletion covered by by-law has been approved by order-in-council. This deletes 0.5 miles in the village of Madoc on what was regarded as Highway No. 7

Representation of the Roads Committee and other interested parties to the highways minister at Toronto with respect to securing additional assistance on the county section of the Napanee-Marysville road. An agreement was drawn up by the province designating this road as a development road. Following signature by county officials it received final approval of the minister. No advice has been received as yet as to when actual work will be carried out this year.

The report recommended that a 6.28 mill rate be levied for the maintenance and construction of county and suburban roads for the current year.

43% DEFECTIVE

TAMPA, Fla. — Patrolmen found 1,350 defects in 2127 autos and trucks checked in safety inspections here recently, according to Lt. Joe Gallop, chief of the State Road Patrol.

Primarily, patrolmen sought defects in steering, brakes, front and rear lights, truck reflectors and other items of equipment necessary to safe driving.

Chief Gallop stated the most people had defects attended to because they like to know that their cars are in good condition. Also, that under State law it is illegal to operate a car or truck on the highway unless the vehicle is in such safe mechanical condition as not to endanger the driver or occupants or any person on the highway.

FOR SAFE DRIVING FOR YOU AND ALL OTHERS, we strongly recommend 5,000 mile inspections. By this your vehicle is checked thoroughly from one end to the other, no point is left untouched. SHANNONVILLE

Mr., Mrs. W.S. Dies Celebrate Golden Anniversary

Shannonville—Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Dies, of Shannonville, quietly celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Thursday of last week at home with the immediate family present.

Fifty years ago, Stewart Dies and Miss Stella Booth, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Booth were married at the home of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bull, Moira Street, cousin of the bridegroom, by the late Reverend C. W. Watch, then pastor of Holloway Street Church.

Miss Booth came to the community of Shannonville as teacher of the local school in January of 1897. Mr. Dies has spent the greater part of his life in Shannonville, but in his younger days, lived at Camden East, where he was born, descending from the United Empire Loyalists. His grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Dies coming to Canada from United States in 1817, settled in the township of Loughboro county of Lennox and Addington.

While able, Mr. and Mrs. Dies have always taken an active part in the work of the church and the community, willing to give of their time and to contribute to every worthy cause.

They have three children: A. S. Dies, of Montreal, technical advisor of operations of the Canada Cement Company; Mrs. J. D. Terryberry, of Toronto, and G. Donald Dies, construction engineer, of the Canada Cement Company at Point Anne.

The many beautiful anniversary cards, which Mr. and Mrs. Dies received from friends far and near, were greatly appreciated, and tended in no small way, to make the day a memorable one.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

Brides in merrie old England knew how to duck when they left the church right after the wedding ceremony.

The ancient custom was to shower newlyweds with a volley of cakes and pastry rather than a spray of rice.

Whether the happy pair were injured depended on the particular kinds of patisserie that were hurled during the celebration.

Good cookies, then as now, should be crisp but tender. Although cookies may be kept for days in a covered jar, they are best about an hour or two after being removed from the oven.

You can use butter, margarine or vegetable fat to make cookies. Butter has the best flavor but is hard to cream when it is cold. Margarine is equally hard to cream and is sometimes excessively salty. Vegetable shortening, which may be kept at room temperature, is easiest to cream and, because of its neutral flavor, blends well with other flavors.

Serve cookies at your table when you have a prepared dessert such as canned fruit or ice cream.

Sugar Spice Cookies

Cream 1-2 cup shortening until soft and not melted. Gradually add 1 cup sugar, blending well.

Beat 2 egg yolks and add to sugar mixture. Add 1 tablespoon cream, stirring well.

Sift, then measure, 2 cups all-purpose flour. (Do not use cake flour.) Combine flour with 1 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon ground cloves and 1-4 teaspoon all-spice. Sift dry ingredients together.

Stir flour mixture into the egg mixture, a small amount at a time. Mix well after each addition. Continue to add flour until dough is stiff enough to roll. Shape into a ball. Chill in refrigerator 1 hour.

Preheat oven to 400 degrees.

Place cookie dough on a lightly floured board. Roll to 1-8 inch thickness. Cut with cookie cutter.

Beat slightly 1 egg white. Add 1 teaspoon cold water to egg white. Brush cookies with egg white. Sprinkle with sugar. Place cookies on a greased cookie sheet and bake 8-10 minutes or until brown.

THE FAIRY FIELDS OF JUNE

Oh! the meadow's bright with clover,
Blossoms red and blossoms white,
Bird and bee a-hovering over,
Make a scene of life and light;
As we rest amid the flowers,
Heart with nature is atune,
For the earth holds sight no fairer
Than a clover field in June.
Soft the summer winds are sighing,
As they sway the meadow grass,
Sunshine follows swift the shadows
Of the clouds that o'er us pass;
Hark! how near a bird is singing.
From life's ills we feel immune,
As we linger mid the clover,
In the fairy field of June.

At the conclusion of her address, Mrs. A. C. Campbell graciously extended the thanks of all present for her most interesting and informative talk.

Farewells were said on behalf of the W.A. by Mrs. J. Cordis and Mrs. C. Walters to Mrs. C. A. Perkins, Mrs. L. Hopkins and Mrs. H. Ferguson, who are leaving town shortly.

Mrs. B. McMurray expressed the appreciation of those present to Mrs. Jones, who so kindly opened her home for the meeting, and to all those who contributed to the program.

Refreshments were served following the close of the meeting.

Rev. H. O. Eastman Assists In Ordination Service for Son At Delta Park Church, Galt

Delta Park Church, Galt, Ontario, was the scene of an exceptional ordination service on Thursday, June 8th, when the father of the candidate, Reverend H. O. Eastman, of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, assisted by a cousin, the Reverend J. H. N. Norton, of Paisley, took part in the ordination of the former's son, Nial C. Eastman, B.A., B.D., pastor of Delta Park Baptist Church. William Fowler, a member of the Delta Park Church, introduced Mr. Eastman to the council.

Representatives from the Guelph Association of Baptist Churches, and visiting representatives from Collingwood, Belleville, Holloway, Paisley and Hamilton formed a council to consider the ordination.

Mr. Eastman gave a clear and convincing statement concerning his Christian experience, his call to the ministry of Jesus Christ, and Christian doctrine. Upon motion of Dr. N. H. Parker of McMaster University, Hamilton, one of Mr. Eastman's professors, the ordination service was held in the evening, at which Dr. Parker delivered a challenging ordination message, pointing out the things that set the minister of Jesus Christ aside from the man in the pew.

The prayer of ordination, and the laying on of hands were given by the candidate's father, who has been in the ministry for 29 years.

Mrs. Eastman, Sr., was introduced by the Reverend J. C. Williamson, of Preston, moderator of the Baptist Church. Mr. Williamson also read a letter from the candidate's home Church in Belleville, commending and wishing him God-speed in the work of the Master.

The Reverend A. A. Barnes, of South Water Street Church, Galt, gave the charge to the candidate, and the Reverend W. B. Fisher extended the hand of fellowship, while the Reverend H. E. Morphy of Kitchener, gave the charge to the church. The Reverend Nial C. Eastman pronounced the benediction.

Mrs. Nial C. Eastman, was the former Miss Dorothy Reid, of Holloway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Reid, and until her marriage last January, was employed with the Income Tax Department, of this city. Mrs. Eastman's parents Mr. and Mrs. Reid were in attendance at the ordination service.

Home of Mrs. Percy Kerr Scene of June Tea, Sale

A charming June tea and sale of home cooking was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Percy Kerr, Bleecker Avenue, under the auspices of the G.I.A. to the B of L.E. Welcoming the guests into a delightful atmosphere, fragrant with the perfume of pink and white peonies, sweet orange blossoms, odorous white lavender, and blue cornflowers intermingled with sprays of pink syringa, were the gracious receptionists, Mrs. A. Clarke and Mrs. R. Muirhead, while half hidden behind a lovely basket of blush pink peonies, sat the collector of customs, Mrs. W. A. Morgan.

Through the hallway arch, like a picture in a frame, was the lovely tea table with deep ivory Scotch, lace cloth, centred with a silver bowl of misty-blue cornflowers, pale, pink columbines and sweet lavender, flanked by tri-branched silver candelabra with tall pale pink tapers. Presiding at the silver services during the afternoon were Mrs. J. Fitzgerald, Mrs. J. W. Barlow, Mrs. J. Reid, Mrs. J. Elliott, Mrs. F. Gymer and Mrs. G. Wilson.

The dainty sandwich plates resembled tiny gardens of flowers with their pink tints, some like pinwheels and others like checkerboards with their brown and white squares divided by narrow stripes of pink; while others looked like little snow men with their petit caps. Little sprays of syringa and organge blossoms centred the plates. Mrs. R. Orne and Mrs. D. Fisher received at the tea room.

Those who served were Mrs. M. Petty, Mrs. S. Maxwell, Mrs. V. Bigonaise, Mrs. M. Quirt, Mrs. T. Grey and Mrs M. Boyd, while those who replenished the plates were Mrs. J. Herome, Mrs. E. Pigden and those who made the delicious tea were Mrs. D. Vanstone, Mrs. W. Spring, Mrs. H. Batchelor.

Home-Cooking Table

In an adjoining room, resplendent with peonies and ruby-colored lilies, was the home cooking table filled with all manner of delicious cakes, cookies, tarts, rolls and tea biscuits, daintily iced cup cakes, cocoanut topped layer cakes, orange cakes, pineapple tarts, date loaves and chocolate loaf cakes that would melt in the mouth. Convening this, were Mrs. N. Robb, Mrs. G. McGee, Mrs. E. Kerr, Mrs. A. Buck and Mrs. W. Hammett.

A lovely June tea, dainty as a dream. Much credit is due to the gracious convener and co-convener, Mrs. P. E. Kerr and Mrs. H. W. Brown and all those, who in any way, helped to make it such an outstanding success.

JUNE

The orlioe's song in the orchard,
The bob-o-link's over the lea,
The flicker's shrill cry as his nest we pass by
In the trunk of the old apple tree.
The robin's cheering carol,
The warbler's pleasing tune,
The musical sounds with which earth resounds,
Proclaim it is June, sweet June.
The rye in soft undulations
Sways in the fragrant breeze,
The swallows skim o'er the lake's blue brim
Deep, deep is the shade of the trees.
The cowslips that sprinkle the meadow,
The roses that fade so soon,
The glamor and glow are like youth we know
Speeding by like the days of June.

Girl Guide Activities

Company 3 and Company 7

Company 7 met at Queen Mary School at their regular time last Monday, had roll call (my how quickly it can be done) and then dashed out to the ball diamond all set to play the long awaited game with Company 3.

When Company 3 arrived, the teams lined up and got started on a five inning battle. It is amazing the scores that can be piled up in a game like this —Company 7 defeated Company 3, 24-23. Are there any other Companies ready for a game?

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

We were lolling under the dryer leafing through Mademoiselle when a grandmother brought a five-year-old Miss in for a permanent wave. The pretty little girl had fine, golden hair — but it wasn't curly enough to suit Gramma. So after a few minutes' consultation with the hairdresser, Mary was whisked off to get prepared for a $12.50 job . . .

To our way of thinking, all the youngster needed was a smooth haircut. We presume that every six months, Mary will now expect to get a $12.50 permanent, regardless of what harm it may do her locks or her family who by mere appearance have no greenbacks to throw down the drain . . . And then, those same adults will one day remark that they don't know "what the young people are coming to" with all their wasteful ways. How obvious it is that "as the twig is bent, so shall the tree grow."

Talking with people just back from a visit in the U.S., they say that bed sheets and pillow slips are exactly half price over the border . . . If you aren't wearing an artificial flower on your suit, your hat, or even your blouse, you're just not up to fashion. High white Peter Pan collars are being shown caught with a rosebud at the throat. Larger white collars are prettied up with a casual pansy or a small carnation. No summer blouse is high style this season without a flower.

They tell us that babies aren't wearing fancy little dresses anymore. The fad is white flannelette nighties with smocking in pastels around the neckline. Baby lives for months in the nighties which are ever so pretty and require no ironing. A wool jacket overtop makes baby ready for the sunporch in a jiffy.

The clergy is receiving so many requests for information about mixed marriages these days that they now have pamphlets available to all those who will write in for them. The leaflet "If I Marry a Roman Catholic" may be had free of charge by writing to the Bookroom of the United Church of Canada, 299 Queen St. W., Toronto . . . A pamphlet on the subject of Roman Catholics marrying Protestants can be obtained by mail from The Catholic Truth Society, 67 Bond St., Toronto.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Two Honest Young People Want Help

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 18 years old and have been going steady with a very nice boy for over two years. We are very much in love and plan to be married in a year or so, but because we are so much in love, we are finding it difficult to keep our emotions under control.

We are both very religious, and we don't want to ruin our marriage by having an affair beforehand. We go to dances, parties, out with the gang, in fact, we have tried everything so we wouldn't be left alone too much. But it doesn't seem to make any difference.

Should I still keep on going with him and wait for love until we are married, or should I stop seeing him altogether? We would appreciate it if you would help us with this problem.—P. H. S.

Dear P.H.S.: You two young people are on the right track in wanting to wait until you are married for the intimacies of love, and since you see it all so wisely, it would be too bad if you let your emotions get the better of you now. I am sure you will be happier if you live up to your ideals.

I think it would be a very good idea if each of you went to some older person whom you admire and respect, and in whom you have full confidence, and talked this whole thing over. It is not an easy thing to struggle with entirely by yourselves. Your pastor or priest, your family doctor, or just some adult with whom you feel at home, should be understanding and helpful.

I have a list of books and pamphlets which contain many useful suggestions about all these difficult problems of teen-agers, and if you would like to have this list, send me a stamped, addressed envelope, and I will be glad to forward it to you.

Don't Run Down Another Girl to Any Boy

Dear Miss Fairfax:

There is a girl who lives near me that takes all boys for fools. She is pretty, but she thinks there is no one like her. She's what you might call every boy's girl.

There is a boy she is after in whom I am interested. How can I keep him away from her and show him that she will only make a fool of him?—F. H.

Dear F. H.: Take my word for it, you will never get anywhere with this boy if you run down another girl to him. All he will think about you is that you're jealous of her, which is probably the truth. If you didn't want this boy yourself, you wouldn't care how much of a fool some other girl made of him.

The smartest thing you can do is to let him find out for himself. He'll be much more likely to take an interest in you later on if you haven't spoken out of turn. No boy cares to risk having a girl say "I told you so!"

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Filling Out the Undeveloped Figure

Fat is not beauty wealth, and bones aren't either. Slenderness is the ambition of every woman who isn't blessed with graceful lines, but emaciation is something else again. The ideal feminine shape calls for the neat waistline, hips sufficiently full to form a pleasing line from waist to thighs, breasts normal, chest high.

If a girl is considerably underweight she should take herself to the family doctor, have a physical check up. If she is undernourished, which is likely to be the case, she cannot expect to feel well. Nor will she look well. The skin will be pale, lips colorless. She may suffer from fatigue and low spirits. You can't keep your motors running without fule, and the underweight girl should have sense enough to know it.

Thin girls usually lack normal appetite

Thin girls usually lack normal appetite. The sight of a lamb chop sets their teeth on edge. More often than not they are finicky eaters, do not get the required amount of various food elements, mineral salts and vitamins to keep them strong.

The doctor will arrange daily menus for her. He will increase the intake of fats, sweets and starches.

Breakfast for her probably consists of a cup of coffee and a nibble of toast. She will be ordered to start the day with orange or tomato juice, to get vitamin C. After that she muts have a hot cereal with plenty of sugar and cream. If she can add an egg, so much the better. It is a long time from last night's dinner to today's breakfast and the human machine needs refueling for the day.

A quart of rich milk a day will do wonders for the girl whose collar bones are shelves, who can count her ribs, whose skinny legs are nothing to write home about. Milk is an excellent food, not just a beverage. It contains many elements that make for health and well being.

As it is during sleep that nature makes repairs, nine hours is not too much. Certainly it should never be cut down to less than eight.

Some outdoor exercise is necessary to develop appetite but it should not be strenuous. Walking is ideal. The step should be brisk.

Deep breathing will develop the bust, make the chest fuller. It is also of cosmetic value. Speeding up the circulatory streams will bring pink bloom to the cheeks better than the rouge compact.

Canberra, June 17 — (Reuters) — Australia Friday ended butter rationing. It was imposed June 6, 1943, at a half - pound a person weekly to make available butter for Britain where the ration was half an ounce. A year later the Australian ration was cut to six ounces.

GOOD MANNERS

Writing Names of Children on Wedding Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

On my list for wedding invitations I have several families who have two or three children I would like to have come to my wedding (these teen-age children are of approximately the same age as my younger sister and brother, who want to have them come to the wedding), and one or two younger children I think are too young to be invited. I have a limited number of engraved invitations, and I can't figure out how, if I address these family-invitations to "Mr. and Mrs. and family," the mother and father would know which children we want to have come to the wedding. How can I do this?

Emily S.

There is a very simple and very definite way to do this. Address the outside envelope to Mr. and Mrs. John Page. Then on the inside envelope write, under the name of the parents, the names of the children you wish to include in the invitation. Like this:

Mr. and Mrs. Page
Sally and Polly
Philip and David

(Please don't use "and family" . . . this is socially taboo on invitations, and isn't at all necessary, for it's more definite to list the names, as suggested above.)

Don't Cross off Title on Card Enclosed with Graduation Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have my first visiting-cards, a graduation present from my sister. We are to enclose one of our cards in each invitation we send. Should I cross off the title ("Miss") by drawing a line through it?

No. The cards should be enclosed with all their formality intact. (It is only when a message is written on a visiting-card that the title is crossed off. . . the reason being that with a message written on it, the card becomes a note, and the name must be changed from the formal name appropriate to a visiting-card to the informal name, without title, appropriate as a signature.)

White or Black Dinner Jackets?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My wedding is to be in July, in church, in the evening at 8 o'clock. The wedding party will consist of a maid of honor, two bridesmaids, a flower girl, best man, and four ushers. My fiance and I think it would be a good idea for him to wear a white dinner jacket and black tuxedo trousers, with the other men in the wedding party, best man and ushers, wearing black tuxedo jackets. But we have been told by several friends that this would not be correct. What do you advise?

Ann K.

The groom, best man and ushers should all wear white dinner jackets, or all wear black dinner jackets. The only difference in dress between the groom and his best man and ushers is one of boutonnieres. It would definitely not look right for the groom to wear a white dinner jacket, and for the best man and ushers to wear black dinner jackets.

How to Reply to Invitation to Reception in Church Parlors

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We have received an invitation to a church wedding, and on the same page is engraved an invitation which reads "and afterward at the reception at the church parlors". For such an invitation should the reception invitation be answered? If so, how?

Olga M.

Yes. This reception invitation should be answered just as you should reply to a separate reception-card invitation, or to an invitation to a reception to be held in some place other than the church parlors. This response is not only a courtesy to the hosts of the wedding, but is practical information for them, since they must know how many guests to provide for, no matter where the reception is to take place.

A correct form for the acceptance:

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Martin accept with pleasure the kind invitation of
Mr. and Mrs. Graham

Make the Most of Good Looks

Complexion care is especially important during the teens if you want to avoid acne. Joan Evans, of the movies, stresses the importance of diet, too.

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHILE the sisters are beauty-conscious at all ages, even when the hair is grey and the face touched with "character lines", there is never a period when looks are considered as important as during the teens, especially the early teens.

Her complexion is her chief concern. She must keep it scrupulously clean and to do that she should use soap and warm water freely twice a day and force it into the pores with a complexion brush. She should use one with bristles not too harsh but of the kind that will not bend when wet.

The brush will invigorate the glands, will help the skin to function normally, will help to keep blackheads from forming.

Those horrid little pests must be fought tooth and nail as they often lead to acne which is a real beauty grief if ever there was one. On cosmetic counters a girl will find lotions compounded for the purpose of keeping them at bay.

For a good complexion, diet is of the utmost importance. Physicians who treat acne stress the need of eating foods that will not excite the sebaceous glands inspire them to send out too much of their oily fluids that harden in the pores and block them.

The daily bath is a part of the treatment. The shower won't do. One should rest in the tub for several minutes, scrub the entire body surface with a brush to help the skin function as an organ of elimination and send away wastes.

STIRLING

Mrs. Morley Davidson Addresses St. Paul's Women's Assoc.

Stirling—The June meeting of St. Paul's Woman's Association was held in the ladies parlor on Tuesday afternoon with a good attendance.

Mrs. A. E. Baker delighted her audience with the singing of a favorite number, "Jesus, Joy of Man's Desiring". It was decided to have a congregational supper in the fall months and the executive were appointed a committee to prepare a program for the evening's entertainment. Mrs. W. Preston graciously volunteered to act as church hostess for the month of June.

Mrs. Ed Heasman, program convener, presided over the remainder of the meeting. The devotional period consisted of a hymn, prayer by the leader, and a scripture passage from 1 Cor. 15., read by Mrs. C. Lansing.

Guest Speaker

The guest speaker, Mrs. Morley Davidson, 1st vice-president for W.A.'s of Hastings and Prince Edward district, was introduced by Mrs. Heasman, and spoke on the subject "What are you doing for Christ?" She said, "In our world of today we find a sense of insecurity brought about by fear. Fear among nations, fear among business, and social orders, fear of old age, of the atom bomb, and "H" bombs. There are many changes taking place in science and education, but are we keeping pace with these changes in our spiritual development?"

The newly formed school areas bring the children to school by bus load. Do we bring them in by the bus load to acquire spiritual knowledge? The mothers of the nation never had a greater responsibility then they have today, but, alas too many of them, are busy making the least important things the most important. Instead of educating their children intelligently to meet the temptations of life, many are leaving the job to the day school teachers and baby sitters.

There are three things of major importance affecting home life today: (1) Inadequate housing. (2) Increase in divorce. (3) Growing use of liquor in the home. One of the greatest menaces in connection with the latter is the drinking church member. Let each of us make sure the things we do are above approach.

Must Accept Challenge

If we are to be co-workers with Christ, we must accept the challenge of leadership and responsibility that is put before us. Let us dedicate ourselves anew and really mean it when we sing:

"Let the beauty of Jesus be seen in me.
All his wonderful passion and purity.
Oh thou spirit divine,
All my nature refine
Till the beauty of Jesus be seen in me."

This address was an inspiration as well as a challenge to all who were privileged to hear it.

The committee in charge served refreshments.

The appreciation of those present to the guest speaker, soloist and all who had assisted with the program, was voiced by Mrs. G. Carlisle.

St. Andrew's L.A.

St. Andrew's Ladies Aid met at the manse on Tuesday afternoon with Miss Gena Spry in charge.

During the business portion of the meeting, a committee was appointed to look after having the manse redecorated. The redecoration of the church parlors was also discussed, and plans were made for the holding of a strawberry festival.

Program

The program was in charge of Mrs. Louis Rodgers, and Mrs. Don Fargey, and consisted of readings by Mrs. Rodgers, Mrs. Russell Woodbeck and Mrs. Harper Rollins; a piano number by Mrs. V. Mathews. Prayer by Rev. Walker brought the meeting to a close.

A hearty vote of thanks was given Mrs. Walker for the use of her home and for the lovely refreshments provided.

Women's Activities

FOXBORO W.M.S.

Foxboro.—Mrs. Roy Bartlett graciously opened her home Wednesday afternoon for the monthly meeting of Foxboro Presbyterian church W.M.S. followed with afternoon tea in honor of Mrs. Bucannon, who is visiting here from Scotland, with her daughter Mrs. Wm. Barrie and family.

The program taken from the "Glad Tidings", commemorating the 75th anniversary of the church was followed. Mrs. Bailey, the president, was in the chair and Mrs. Reg. Skinner at the piano. Appropriate readings were given and a solo by Mrs. Barrie was enjoyed by all. Eighteen women and five children were present.

The July meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Bailey in the form of a quilting.

Members were pleased to see and welcome Mrs. Ed. Bartlett, a former member of the church, now living in Belleville.

A social time was enjoyed at the close of the meeting with music by Mrs. Skinner.

A hearty vote of thanks was given Mrs. Bartlett and Helen for their hospitality.

Flagpoles Going Up in Price

A vital part of the impediments of government is a flagstaff from which to fly the symbol of sovereignty and national existence. There are myriad flagstaffs in the country, but the official standard staffs are comparatively few, B.A. McKelvie writes in The Vancouver Province.

British Columbia is to have a new official flag pole erected in front of the Legislative Buildings at Victoria. The new pole, which will tower to a height of 155 feet, will be six feet higher than the present pole, which is suffering from dry rot and must be replaced. The big timber that will be used for the new staff was cut at Sooke. It is already on the grounds of the buildings and is being seasoned. It will be a year before it will be ready for erection.

Cost Century Ago

It will be just 100 years ago since the first governmental flagpole was placed in position, for the following entry in the old Account Book in which the Hudson's Bay Company entered all its charges against the Crown Colony of Vancouver's Island says:

"The following distributed by Governor Blanshard — credited his a-c in Victoria Sales Shop:

Outfit 1851, viz.—

Making and erecting a Flag Staff at the Governor's House ....$24. Exchange .... £5.0.0"

There is a great difference in what the cost of the new pole to be erected in 1951 will be, compared with that put up in 1851.

The present flagstaff cost by the time it was placed in position something like $1,750, and it is expected that with the increased cost of labor and materials that the expense will run to more than $3,000.

Fate Uncertain

The first flagstaff—the £5 one was erected in front of Governor Blanshard's residence, in the vicinity of the corner of present-day Government and Yates streets. Here it stood for about 10 years. Just what happened to it is somewhat of a mystery, but in 1860 the Tiger Fire Company was presented with "the old flagpole" that stood in front of the American Hotel. It is thought by some that this was the historic stick from which the first official flag of the Colony of Vancouver's Island waved.

When the Colonial parliament buildings were constructed in 1859-60 on the site of the present magnificent pile, a new flagstaff was erected. Incidentally the first intention was to build the official offices and Legislative Assembly on the site, and adjoining land, where Blanshard's humble residence was located, but the plans were abandoned and the 10 acres across James Bay were set aside for the purpose.

The flagstaff was placed on top of the largest and central building of the several that formed the governmental offices. The main administrative structure was two stories in height and was surmounted with a flat-topped tower, the floor of which was 75 feet from the ground, and the flagstaff rose another 25 feet above this.

Poles Exported

Several big "spars" have been sent from B.C. forests to adorn public places in the United Kingdom. In the early sixties, G. M. Sproat, then at Alberni, undertook to get out a pole and ship it to England for placement in Kew Gardens. He left a record in the the Archives telling how he selected four fine trees. A soft bed of branches was made for the trees to fall upon. Three of them were cut, they fell where directed and all broke. The fourth in the clump fell in the opposite direction. It was undamaged. It measured 203½ feet, but no ship could be found to carry a stick of that length so it had to be reduced to 165 feet. This flagpole stood at Kew Gardens until the second decade of this century.

In 1916 a replacing pole was cut at the logging camp of Brooks, Scanlon & O'Brien on the Gordon Pasha Lakes, south of Powell River. As it lay in the forest, trimmed, it was 237 feet in length, with a four-foot butt and was 14 inches at the top. Finished it measured 214 feet.

The staff at the University of B.C., cut in the same locality, was 208 feet in length, while that at the Vancouver Court House was two feet higher.

FRANKFORD

Sunbeam M.B.

Frankford. — The regular meeting of the Sunbeam Mission Band was held in Rose-Lowery Hall on Monday afternoon. A selection from the Hymnary Psalms was read in unison, after which Mrs. Carlisle read a story. Roll call showed a good attendance. The "World Friends" programs were given out.

The program consisted of a piano solo by Sandra MacDonald; a vocal duet by Kathleen and Beth Bonisteel; a solo by Jean Caldwell; piano solo by Joanne MacDonald; piano duet, by Barbara Stickle, and Beverly Patrick, and a piano solo by Sandra Morrow and Beverly Acton.

Personals

A number of members of Frankford United Church Sunday School attended the convention held in Grace United Church in Trenton, Wednesday afternoon and evening.

The choir of St. Francis church held a social evening at the home of Mrs. Kelly on Tuesday evening. A period of recreation was enjoyed, following which refreshments were served. The choir presented Mrs. Kelly and Mrs. Bennett with cups and saucers, in appreciation of their untiring work with the choir.

Plan to be on hand for the big softball game next Tuesday night as the Frankford Sidney League entry and the Canadian Legion meet at the Lions Park.

Combined United Churches Celebrate Silver Jubilee

Tweed.—On Sunday last, large congregations attended St. John's United Church to commemorate the Silver Jubilee of the United Church of Canada.

Commencing with the Sunday School at 10 a.m., a special order of service was held with a number of the officers and teachers taking leading parts as follows: Mrs. P. C. Barnett read a story to the Beginners and Primary classes; Mrs. C. Sharp sang a solo "The Church's One Foundation"; Mrs. Lincoln Elliott gave a talk on early Methodism. Mrs. S. B. McGee gave an interesting reading on Presbyterian Church work and the Rev. A. L. Sisco spoke of the Congregational Church with its emphasis upon the open Bible and God's truth that makes people free.

Seal Explained

Mrs. B. McCoy explained the symbols of the colored seal of the United Church of Canada which she held in her hand. This seal represents the three churches in one, with Christ in the centre. The name of the church is on the upper border of the seal and the Maple leaves remind us that the church is a Canadian church. The dove in the upper quarter of the seal is the symbol which represents the Holy Spirit, and on this seal it represents a distinctive emphasis of the Methodist church. The open Bible in the left quarter of the seal is the symbol which represents the Congregational church. The burning bush in the right quarter of the seal is the accepted emblem of the Presbyterian church. It recalls the burning bush which was not consumed, this means that the Church of God cannot be destroyed. (Exod. 3:2.) The words on the lower rim of the seal. They are Latin "Ut omnes unum sint". This means that they all may be one. This is a prayer of Jesus for His followers.

John Sager, superintendent of the Sunday School, spoke of the meeting in Mutual Street arena, Toronto, 25 years ago, when Church Union was formed. He said that it was his privilege and pleasure to be present at that meeting. Seven thousand people were served communion in 27 minutes.

Combined Meetings

At 11 a.m. the combined congregations of St. John's Church, Tweed, Bethel, Sulphide and Actinolite, joined in worship to commemorate the Silver Jubilee.

Rev. A. L. Sisco, pastor of the church, outlined the different denominations that entered into Church Union and said how "This is a great day in the history of the United Church".

The senior choir sang as an anthem, "I Love Thy Kingdom Lord". Mrs. C. Sharpe taking the solo. The junior choir sang "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings". Dedication and communion services were conducted by the pastor.

In the evening, a Silver Jubilee pageant was presented by the Evening Auxiliary. The cast were as follows

Lakenheath, Sussex, England, June 17 — (AP) — A United States Air Force plane made an emergency landing at its base here Friday after fire started in one of its engines. Several crew members were burned about the hands.

IVANHOE

Rev. M. Clarke Addresses Closing Meeting Beulah YOU

Ivanhoe.—On Monday evening, the Y.O.U. held their closing meeting in Beulah United Church. A worship centre on the communion table formed the setting for the impressive worship service.

This centre symbolized the open doors of a church with the picture of Christ inside and the words printed in black letters "He is Our Helper". Silver candles on either side and the pulpit light centred on the picture. These were the only lights and helped to bring out the message for this closing meeting.

Two baskets of spirea and peonies adorned the altar.

Quiet music wa splayed by Mrs. George Wood, who also accompanied the playing of the hymns. A call to worship was read by the president and the hymn "Jesus Stand Among Us" was sung. Prayer was offered by Rev. H. G. Steers The scripture lesson, taken from Psalm 51: 1-10 was read by Mariel Prest. A meditation was given by the president, Doris V. Twiddy, linking up a few thoughts based on the theme "He is Our Helper".

In this message an urge was extended for each one to live nearer and closer to the Saviour and accept the Christian way of living, as those who do will find this life to be the finest, the fullest and the freest, when Jesus Christ becomes the Leader and the Guide.

A trio by the girls, Barbara Benson, Annie Crookes and Joyce Reid rendered a lovely number, "Stepping in the Light". With the singing of "Spirit of the Living God" the worship service came to a close.

A brief business period followed. An outline of what work the Union had done since organized last November, was given showing 15 meetings had been held besides several other special events which had taken place within the union.

Rev. H. G. Steers brought a message on a place in the West called "Three Hill Valley", which proved helpful. Mr. Steers briefly introduced the guest speaker, Rev. Morley Clarke, of Thomasburg, who gave an inspiring message and one which will long be remembered by all who had the privilege of hearing it.

Whoosh’ Gushed The Breeze From Moose McCready as Eric Ambled, Rambled, Squeezed

Yukon Eric, the slow freight through Pachydermia, ambled his way to another victory in Memorial Arena last night. Eric the Derrick from the wilds of Alaska Kodiak-Krunched and bunny-hugged Earl, the "Moose" McCready into submission in two of three falls before one of the largest crowds of the season.

McCready, substituted for Fred Atkins, Australian bloke who, it was reported was injured in a bout in Ottawa and was unable to appear.

The ponderous Eric, who is as popular with fandom over the age of thirteen, as a commissar at a Democratic convention lumbered his way around the ring in an Alaskan strut in an effort to pin the elusive McCready with his deadly bunny-hug, or give him the chest treatment.

Not For Us

The latter is a popular method of opposition-deflating, especially with the Yuke He finally pinned the Moose against a ring post, grabbed the ropes and thrust his barrel-like torso against the McCready chest until the wind shot out of him like that of a punctured concertina.

The treatment softened McCready until he looked like a wet dick, then Eric grabbed him midships and applied the pressure. The Moose wilted, and got out of it. Then he got in it again and two stretches was his finish. He toppled through the ropes and was unable to return.

Moose Won Second

The second fall was McCready's. He applied a few solid socks to the Yukon jaw and after eluding those stretching arms finally got the Yuke in a rolling cradle hold and the pair whirlyigged over and over in the ring until the Moose finally balanced himself on Eric's mountainous chest while Referee Bunny Dunlop beat a rapid trio of thumps to signalize the Moose victory.

In the second fall, the Moose decided to try it again. But Eric, egad, was not caught napping. He chest-treated the Moose again for a few minutes and after a few slow-motion polkas inside the ring, hoisted him aloft for the deadly "Krunch". Two applications were sufficient and Dunlop awarded the fall and match to Eric. The Moose had to be assisted from the ring.

Tim Was a Hit

Timmy Geohagen the "strongest man in Ireland" made his ring debut in the preliminary and was an instant hit with the crowd in his bout with wily Pat Flanagan. The young Irishman, bejapers, flung the other Irisher about the ring at times by the sheer power of his neck muscles. Other times he applied what looked like a corkscrew hold to the Flanagan neck and Pat's head looked as though it was liable to pop out at any time.

Flanagan fought back hard and elbow - smashed and drop-kicked the blond Gael just for retaliation but proved no match for the neck-wrenching tactics of Geohagen. The curly-haired Irishman finally hoisted Pat aloft, gave him an airplane spin, crashed him to the canvas and again applied that corkscrew effect on the Flanagan neck until he was in a daze. In fact, after Referee Fox awarded the fall to Geohagen, Flanagan coming out of the daze, or still in it, you guess, promptly flopped the referee to the mat and fell on him for the count.

Warren Bockwinkle and Jack Moore staged a spirited semi final that produced lots of action with the pair wrestling to a draw.

Dauthuille May Meet La Motta In Title Fight

New York June 17 (AP)—Either Laurent Dauthuille of France or Tiberio Mitri of Italy will get the June 28 title shot at middleweight champion Jake Lamotta.

A "break" in the title bout came yesterday when Rocky Graziano was forced out with a left-thumb fracture. The International Boxing Club spent most of the night looking for a "sub." The promoters insist there will be a fight. But Jake has to agree too.

Sugar Ray Robinson, world welter champion and middleweight king in Pennsylvania, isn't interested in being a "sub." His manager George Gainford, said last night in Havana:

"Ray's no sub fighter.

"We hope to fight Lamotta in the future but only when the I.B.C. settles its differences with the New York Managers Guild."

The Guild and the I.B.C. are at odds over a new television contract.

At the moment Duthuille appears out front. His French manager, Andre Barraut, said last night in Montreal that he had been formally invited to replace Graziano. He wouldn't say who invited him.

Dauthuille never has shown in New York but he has a fine record in several Montreal appearances. It was there he whipped Lamotta, Feb. 21, 1949, before Jake lifted the crown from Marcel Cerdan.

Mitri was impressive in his only American start, a 10-round decision over Dick Wagner at Madison Square Garden May 19. The talented Italian is the undefeated European middleweight champion.

Harry Markson, I.B.C. director said Lamotta was too surprised to comment when he learned that Graziano would not be able to fight.

Rochester Wings Gains Ground In Int. League

(By The Associated Press)

John Carl Whittig, veteran righthander of Rochester Red Wings, will always remember his 36th birthday.

Whittig celebrated that event last night by pitching a 9-1 International League victory over his former teammates, Baltimore Orioles, for the 99th triumph of his baseball career which dates back to 1935.

The triumph also was Wittig's fourth without a loss since his purchase by the Red Wings from Baltimore a few weeks ago, thus matching his 1949 output when he won four and lost one for the Orioles.

Wittig stopped the Orioles on six hits while his mates pounded out 12, including home runs by Larry Ciaffone and Hal Rice.

Rochester also grabbed the nightcap 9-0 behind the four-hit pitching of rookie Gene Faszholz. The victories boosted Rochester's first-place advantage over the runner - up Springfield Cubs to 2½ games. The Cubs edged Montreal Royals 1-0.

Warren Hacker blanked the slipping Royals on six hits to record his eighth victory against a lone setback. Hacker scored the only run of the game in the fifth inning when he singled and romped across on Carm Mauro's triple.

Jersey City Giants spoiled the managerial debut of Ray Schalk at Buffalo beating the Bisons 6-1 in the first game of a doubleheader. The second game was rained out after four innings with the Bisons in front 4-1.

Red Hardy lost both his shutout and no-hit bid in the seventh and final inning of the opener when Hank Biasatti homered and Marty Tabecheck doubled.

A scheduled game between Syracuse and Toronto was rained out.

Sports Shorts From Britain

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, June 17 — (CP)—A Johnny-come-lately jockey from Australia has been reported as criticizing local riders' racing methods — and has stirred up a brisk turf controversy.

The down-under newcomer, Jack Thompson, had ridden two winners in England when a Sydney paper quoted him as saying English jockeys nearly all ride with reins loose and legs straight, letting the horse dictate the pace at which it runs. Australian riders got more performance out of a horse.

That got a rise out of the English jockeys. Said champion Gordon Richards, the only man ever to have booted home more than 4,000 winners:

"When Jack Thompson knows more about us and has ridden with us more, he will probably want to change his mind.

"He may even wish to eat his words."

Gordon's closest rival this year, Doug Smith, said:

"The English jockey always comes out top in riding ability. It is stupid to criticize the chaps you have to ride with."

Two Australian riders who have been on British tracks longer than Thompson also sided with the English techniques.

Edgar Britt curtly commented he "did not agree" with Thompson and Arthur (Scobie) Breasely added "Thompson has not seen enough of English racing to be able to give an opinion."

Thompson told reporters he had intended no criticism of English riders.

"I am very upset," he said, after hearing what Richards, Smith Britt and Breasley had commented. "All I said was that there is a difference in style. So there is. But I made no criticisms."

Bullion dealers and pawnbrokers have been warned to keep a lookout for the famous golden guinea which has disappeared from Lord's cricket ground.

It was stolen from its glass case in the "Long Room" of the pavilion.

The coin, dated 1787 and bearing the head of George III, was used for the toss-up in important matches.

Collectors of sporting relics cast covetous eyes on a china jug just acquired by Billy Doherty, veteran boxing manager.

On one side of the jug is depicted the immortal Bristol bare-knuckle king, Tim Cribb, squaring up in 1810 against the Virginia Negro, Tom Molineaux. Cribb defeated Molineaux twice.

On the other side is the rhyme:

"Since boxing is a manly game
"And Britain's reaction,
"By boxing we will raise our fame
"Above any other nation.
"The sons of France their pistols use:
"Pop, pop, and they have done
"But Britons with their hands will bruise
"And scorn away to run."

Heavy Tackle or Light Tackle

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and creator of Solunar Tables)

The national army of light-tackle fans is taking unto itself each year a great many new recruits. And that is as it should be. Anglers are learning that fishing is more fun if the odds are arranged so that the fish has as much chance for victory as does the fisherman.

The trouble is, however, that prevailing notions of exactly what constitutes "light tackle" are apt to be somewhat confused.

At the conclusion of a sportsmen's meeting not long ago a certain gentleman was boasting to me of killing a four-pound trout on a two-ounce fly rod.

At the end of his recital I asked him what size leader he was using.

"Ten-pound nylon," was the reply.

So far as the sporting aspects of that contest are concerned, he might just as well have left his two-ounce fly rod at home and used a ten-pound hand line.

Interest in Light Tackle

The various Florida fishing tournaments and, for that matter, the International Game Fish Association, are paying increasingly more attention to light tackle. Specifications are rigid and well-defined.

The Metropolitan Miami Fishing Tournament was first to set the standard for the "plug-casting division" and the "fly-rod division" in both fresh and salt water fishing.

Each of these classes are restricted to lines or leaders of not more than fifteen pounds tensile strength. The plug-casters are allowed to use a wire-trace between the lure and the line.

Not so the fly-casters. For these the rules are even more drastic. Single-action reels are the only ones allowed, also single-grip rods. Lines are unrestricted but between line and lure must be a leader whose point or end strand must be of nylon or gut not to exceed fifteen pounds pull.

No fish can qualify for entry as a record unless the tackle that took him is within these rigid restrictions.

Some Big Records

Offhand, fifteen pounds seems to be all that a man could want for any fish that can be taken with a fly rod or plug rod.

Consider, however, some of the records. Jack crevalle up to twenty-six pounds; bonefish up to fourteen pounds; and a tarpon, which weighed one hundred and sixty and one-half pounds, killed with orthodox plug-casting tackle.

To take such fish on the prescribed tackle, a man must really know his business. Any of these fish can smash fifteen-pound gear without effort if given the opportunity to do so.

The absence of a wire trace in the terminal tackle of the fly rod fan is a serious handicap. Gut or nylon leader points are comparatively fragile things and a protracted battle with a heavy fish always involves the chafing of the leader point.

This means that the final stages of the fight are increasingly in favor of the fish. Coarse scales alone, such as armor the sides of a tarpon, will chafe a leader to the breaking point in a surprisingly short time.

The gill covers of a snook terminate in razor-sharp edges and these will slice through a leader as cleanly as any knife.

The sharp teeth of many species, such as the barracuda, will sever a leader point without any trouble. All of these hazards combine to hold down the fly-rod records.

Popular in Canada

Going from the deep south to the far north, light tackle is very much the order of the day on the salmon streams of New Brunswick, Quebec, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland.

Not so many years ago standard equipment for Atlantic salmon was a two-handed rod fourteen or sixteen feet long, a 6/0 reel and a leader that would tow the boat.

Not so today. Now single-handed rods, with reels, lines and terminal gear to match, are the rule, rather than the exception. Anglers are learning that the real sport in fishing lies in the sense of accomplishment one finds in a difficult piece of angling rather than in the size of the bag.

However, it is possible to overdo this light tackle business. All too often I find bass-bug addicts boasting of eight or eight and one half foot rods for that style of fishing.

Of course, if you have heavy terminal tackle, landing a large bass on a three-ounce rod is not much of a feat. In other words, you haven't proved anything by so doing.

Suitable Lures Needed

But what about the casting problem? Bass bugs and large streamers are heavy lures when you compare them with orthodox flies. Casting lures with a light fly rod is not light-tackle fishing, per se. Actually it amounts only to the abuse of a fine piece of tackle.

It has always been my opinion that light tackle is really another way of saying "light terminal tackle," particularly in the fly-rod field. The length and weight of the rod itself has little bearing on the matter.

Actually the size of the fly rod should be determined by the size of the casting job. That is true, to a certain extent, of the casting rod as well.

Unless you are subject to tournament regulations the choice of terminal tackle rests with you and it is this choice which distinguishes the true light-tackle fan from the fellow whose real satisfaction in angling is in boasting of his conquests.

Preacher Roe of Dodgers Snaps Seven-Game Cards' Win Streak by Winning 7-3

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Preacher Roe must be public enemy No. 1 in St. Louis. Every time the Cards get hot, the lanky southpaw from Hardy, Ark., holds up the stop sign.

The Preacher did it again last night, snapping a seven-game St. Louis winning streak, as he pitched Brooklyn to a 7-3 victory. The result cut the Cards' National League lead to 2 1-2 games.

Beating St. Louis is old stuff for Roe, who once toiled in the Card chain gang. Last year he whipped the Red Birds four of five. So far this year he's 3-1 against St. Louis with more than half the season to go.

Roe yielded 10 hits. But he didn't need to be a master. Brooklyn scored four runs, three of them unearned, in the second inning to ruin Red Munger.

Johnny Sain, making the pitching comeback of the year, won his ninth on Sam Jethroe's ninth-inning single with two out. Jethroe's hit, prolonging his hitting streak to 12 games, scored Sibby Sisti for a 6-5 edge over luckless Pittsburgh. There were four homers in the game, Earl Torgeson and Walker Cooper for the Braves, Wally Westlake and Ralph Kiner for the Bucs.

Al Dark and Hank Thompson provided the power for New York's 6-1 victory over Chicago, the Giants' ninth triumph in 12 games.

Thompson homered to tie the score in the fourth and Dark's two run double put the Giants out front to stay in the fifth.

The only day game in the majors, Cincinnati at Philadelphia, was rained out.

Hal Newhouser whipped Boston for the second time in six days, 4-1, before 54,086 Detroit home fans. Striking out Johnny Pesky four times, Newhouser scattered nine hits. Hal's fifth-inning double drove in what proved to be the decisive run.

There was a wild rhubarb in the 5th. It was 0-0 at the time, Detroit batting with Johnny Groth on second and Aaron Robinson on first. Dick Kryhoski forced Robinson and Groth scored when umpire Bill McKinley ruled Kryhoski safe at first. A mass protest by the Red Sox followed.

Four of the players involved in the eight-man real saw action as New York Yankees downed St. Louis 7-5. Joe Ostrowski and Tom Ferrick pitched for the Yankees and Jim Delsing and George Stirnweiss played for the Browns.

Alex Kellner hit by a Dale Mitchell line drive, was in hospital when his Philadelphia A's finally lost a 3-2 game to Cleveland. Kellner was hit on the left temple in the fifth. X-rays disclosed no fracture. Shortly after Kellner's injury, Luke Easter hit a two-run homer that won the game.

St. Catharines Undefeated in Lacrosse Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

St. Catharines Athletics and Owen Sound Crescents continued their neck-and-neck race in the Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior series Friday.

Each club won its sixth game, but St. Kitts are undefeated while Crescents have dropped one.

The Athletics got a stiff fight from Hamilton Tigers before nosing out the Mountain City squad 11-8. Croft paced Athletics with three goals, Welch and Damico kicking in with a pair each. For Hamilton, McKenzie scored two goals.

Owen Sound swamped Toronto Riverdales 26-12 in Owen Sound. The loss was Toronto's sixth straight. Harry Kazarian scored six Owen Sound goals, followed by Grant Gillespie and Jack Mason with five apiece.

In Peterborough, the Petes walked to an easy 26-7 victory over Weston Lions. The game was highlighted by the six-goal scoring performance of Dootch Vitarelli and Bob Thorpe of the winners.

Bob Breakspear and Arn Dugan each scored three for Petes, while Harold and Ted Downer duplicated that feat on behalf of the losers.

Napanee Scores 13-3 Victory Over Batawans

Napanee Athletics took a virtual stranglehold on first place in the Central Ontario Baseball League last evening behind the three-hit pitching of veteran Ed Hooper as they bombarded three Batawa chuckers for seventeen hits and a lop-sided 13-3 victory. It was Napanee's sixth win in seven starts. The loss dropped the Shoemen back into a tie for the league basement with Picton.

The Napanee sluggers were in great form as they sprayed out hits, five for extra bases, in shelling three Batawa hurlers.

Wright started for the Shoemen and was nicked for three singles and victimized by an error as two runs scored in the second frame.

Batawa came fighting back in the top of the third to plate all their runs to enjoy a short-lived lead. Wright led off with a single and took second as Solmes got a life on an error to Munroe. Bridgeman skied out to right field as Wright took third. Hayes missed the throw in as Wright galloped home with the first tally and Solmes moved to second. Bush singled to advance Solmes and Watson walked. Hooper wild pitched to score Solmes as Bush moved into third. Spencer flied out to centre field as Bush scored and Rankin was thrown out at second on an attempted steal to retire the side.

Four singles went for two runs in the Napanee end of the third as the Athletics began to take command. A single by Markle and an error that put Hayes on first set up Walt Gerow's two run triple to right field in the fourth. Red Carson came in to retire the side without further damage.

Two doubles and two triples chased Carson to centre field in the sixth as Ken Peacock came to the rescue with one away. He got through the rest of the game with two hits for one run, while walking two and whiffing three.

A strong wind blowing across the diamond made outfield work hazardous in a game called in the eighth inning because of darkness.

Trucks Too Close To Intersections

Toronto, June 17 (CP)—Toronto police plan to make trucks parked illegally too close to intersections the targets of a new campaign by the force's traffic safety division. Trucks parked in that manner were involved in the deaths of two small children during the last three weeks, police say.

The safety campaign was stepped up Thursday after the Toronto traffic safety council, at a special meeting, expressed concern over a sudden increase in child deaths from traffic mishaps.

Corner Shots

A Weekly Peek At The Soccer Picture

BY ELDEE

Both the Bay of Quinte League and the Eastern Ontario League have been reduced to six team loops this by the withdrawal of the Navy squad. All local soccer fans will be sorry to hear that the Navy have been forced to take this step. Owing to circumstances beyond their control they found it impossible to fulfill their commitments this season. They were a grand bunch of sports and were always ready to turn a hand in furthering the cause of soccer. Some of their players will most likely find their way into other teams as the season progresses and others have already indicated their willingness to assist with the refereeing chores.

As all games played by the Navy have been deleted from the League tables Belleville United now occupy top slot with Trenton Flyers both having ten points each. The standing to date are as follows:-

	P	W	D	L	F	A	Pts
Flyers	5	4	1	0	28	7	10
Belleville United	4	2	1	1	15	8	10
Batawa	5	3	1	1	19	5	7
6 R.D.	4	2	0	2	11	9	6
Trenton Merchants	7	1	1	5	6	24	3
Vets	5	1	0	4	7	33	2

Tickets go on sale this weekend for the exhibition match between the Bay of Quinte All Stars and Toronto Celtic at the Fairgrounds in Belleville. Priced at 50c they may be obtained from any soccer player or from Bill Cook's Cigar Store.

Last Friday evening Kingston United ran a very fine dance at H.M.C.S. Cataraqui in aid club funds. A very large crowd of fans and friends attended and quite a sizeable sum was netted to carry them over the season.

All local soccer followers will sincerely sympathise with Don Cully of the Navy and Horace Ellis of the Vets in their recent bereavements.

Several players from this district went to Toronto last Wednesday to see the exhibition between the English Internaional team and Manchester United. When these two old country teams got together it was a real education in the soccer art. The International team won the match by four goals to two. This was the second from last match for them in Canada. They play one match in New York before going on to Montreal. There was pretty much a packed house at this game and goes to show that soccer is increasing in crowd appeal in this country.

Next Monday the Vets are at home to 6 R.D. at the Fairgrounds in the evening, while Batawa entertain Trenton Merchants on the same evening. On Saturday Belleville United will be playing the league leaders Kingston United at the Fairgrounds in an Eastern Ontario League match. This will be an afternoon game and should be well worth watching.

Batawa Nips Trenton 7-0 In Soccer

Batawa beat Trenton Merchants Thursday at Batawa in a Bay of Quinte Soccer League game. The score was Batawa Seven Trenton nil. This was easily Batawa's game and but for some outstanding goalkeeping by Carswell between the sticks for Trenton the score might easily have reached double figures. Carswell saved two penalties during the game and had very little chance with the goals that were scored. Planowsky got the first goal of the match which was followed by one from F. Tlamsa on the right wing. Mueller put the third one in while the last four were all netted by centre forward Hawrylliw who got two in each period of play.

Teams: Trenton: Carswell, E. Helyer, Wick, Taft, Brown, Rushnell, Coulterjohn, M. Mitts, L. Helyer, Campbell, R. Mitts. Subs Terrill, Haker, Martin.

Batawa: Linca, Kuklis, Carter, Hrywnak, Mueller, Aitken, F. Tlamsa, J. Tlamsa, Hawryliw, Paton, Planowsky.

Tennis Talk

Gossip From The Courts of The District

BY "DIG"

On Sunday Point Anne Tennis Club visit Cobourg for the annual inter-league playoff between the Bay of Quinte League champions and the Kawartha League winners. This battle of the champions should be a real tennis treat.

As of Thursday night Trenton lead the field in the Bay of Quinte Tennis League tables and say they intend to stay in that position. The latest standing is:

Teams	played	points
Trenton	3	11
Point Anne	2	7
Quinte One	2	7
Batawa	2	4
Quinte Two	3	4

The new entry Batawa club did very well in their outing when they trimmed Quinte Two by 4 matches to one, but they were certainly set back a pace when they visited Trenton for the League leaders took all five matches.

On Thursday evening a good party of members of the Quinte Tennis Club took a trip out Foxboro way for a very excellent wiener roast capably organized by entertainment chairman Ed. Littlejohn and his committee. 'Tis said a good time was had by all.

Tomorrow the Quinte Tennis Club hold another of their Round Robin tennis tournaments. This tourney is confined to club members only and is quite a novel affair. Players are divided into two groups according to experience and pairs are made up of one member from each group. During the day, if time permits it is hoped to have every pair playing each other pair and the points scored from the complete series of matches will decide the winners. By this method every one has an equal chance to come out on top.

In the Tennis League next week Point Anne entertain Quinte Two whilst on Thursday evening Quinte One visit Trenton. Next Sunday Batawa are at home to Quinte Two who will try to revenge their four to one defeat last Sunday.

Wednesday June 21st has been set as the date of the Annual General meeting of the Tennis section of the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club when officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

The Northern Electric entry in the Lakeshore Ladies' Softball League avenged their lone reverse of the current campaign last night as they trounced Trenton Spotless Cleaners 19-10 at Trenton.

The Electric lassies got away to a fast start, building up a lead in the early innings as pitcher McGrath threw a no-hitter at the Cleaners for five innings. Northern scored in every inning but the sixth, collecting eight runs in the final two frames to stave off a late Trenton rally.

McGrath went all the way for the winners giving up nine hits for 10 runs. Twigg was the losing pitcher giving up 17 hits for 19 runs.

Centrefielder Kay Mills led the winners with five hits in six times at bat. Twigg and Fox with two hits in five trips were best for the losers.

Motormen Win From Bakelite By 24-7 Count

Belleville Motor Car Compan established themselves as soli favorites to cop the Labatt Trophy, premier prize in the section of the Commercial Softball League as they walloped Bakelite 24-7 in a slow nine inning fixture at the Alemite Field last evening.

Bakelite made a game of it for the first three innings as they held the motormen to four runs while scoring three of their own but in the fourth the garage boys took over with a four run outburst and the issue was never in doubt from that point on. They got their 25 hit attack into high gear with five safeties in the deciding fourth and went on from there to pour over five tallies in the fifth, five more in the sixth, four in the seventh, and two in the eighth as Bakelite used three pitchers in a vain attempt to cut down on the slaughter.

Bakelite scored two runs in the fourth on two hits. Two more safeties in the seventh netted them two more runs to wind up their scoring.

Stone went the distance for the Mercuries to claim his first win. Picknell, the first of the Bakelite hurlers, was charged with the loss.

Line ups:

Bakelite: Cook lf; St. Dennis, replaced by Clarke in 6th, cf; R. Burley ss; Lawn c; Arnott 2b; Powers 1b; Van Alstine rf; Littlejohn 3b; Burtch p, replaced by Picknell in 6th, replaced by Lucas in 8th, p.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Elva Tyme keeps weeping over the rule of 11. Her complaint is that she does not like figures. Think nothing of it, dear. Your man likes them, including yours.

When partner leads a fourth best, subtract from 11. This tells how many higher cards in that suit are held in the three hands other than his. See the spades in the four hands here:

♠10 7 6 3 2
WEST ♠J 8 5 4
EAST ♠A Q 9
SOUTH
♠K

South is in five diamonds. Your partner in west leads spade four. Four from 11 leaves seven. Six are in north dummy and your own east hand. South can have only one spade higher than the five.

All the spades lower than the four are showing in the spread dummy hand. Therefore, south can have none lower than the four. If so, the one spade higher than the four in south must be all alone. All you need find out is which card it is.

Against a suit contract, partner should not lead away from a king. So, south has the king. Go up with your ace at once, knowing you will pick off the lone king right there. Easy pickings.

Not good at figures? Then take off your shoes. Count on your toes and fingers how many cards are higher than the four. They are 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, J, Q, K, A; a total of ten cards higher than the four.

Having led his fourth best, how many higher than the four must be in the west hand? Exactly three. If only ten are higher than the four and partner has three, seven are in the other hands.

Of the seven remaining you see six in dummy and your own hand. The one left must be in south. Since partier says he has not the king, it is all alone in south. Since partner says he has where you see them.

Thus can you figure all this out the long way around if you are so inclined. The rule of 11 is simply a short cut to the same result. It is worthy of a Joel Kupperman.

Movie Column

By HOWARD C. HEYN
(For Bob Thomas, on vacation)

Hollywood, June 17—(AP) — Settle down? Not Victor McLagen. He says every time he settles down he loses money.

Just back from Europe, he's already planning a big-game safari in Africa as soon as he finishes a picture for his old friend, John Ford.

McLagen probably has seen more of the world under exciting circumstances than any other actor. All he needs to keep a luncheon table spellbound is to tell where he's been. People around him forget to eat.

He boxed as a heavyweight around Canada's north country, did a strong-man act in Winnipeg, mined diamonds in South Africa, served with the British army in India and Arab countries. He has been a police chief in Baghdad, and speaks several Arabic dialects fluently.

Raised Family

He did settle down in Hollywood long enough to raise a family and make a lot of pictures. It was Ford who directed the best of them, "The Informer." Now they're working together again, in "Rio Bravo."

"I want to make one picture a year, maybe two," says McLaglen, "and travel between roles. Besides, when I buy a house or a ranch I usually lose my shirt. Actors, most of them, are notoriously bad business men."

Vic once bought a beautiful estate, covered with towering deodas and sycamores, in the foothills above Flintridge. He spent $250,000 developing it—and sold it for $55,000.

Lost More Money

Then he bought a thousand-acre ranch in central California. "I stocked it with blooded horses, and lost money," he related. "So I planted fruit trees — and lost money. I ripped out the fruit trees and bought dairy cattle. Milk prices dropped. I lost money. In 10 years I spent almost $500,000. So I decided to sell."

$1,731 Pay-off In Daily Double At Thorncliffe

(By The Canadian Press)

A pay-off of $1,731 was made Friday on a daily double at Toronto's Thorncliffe Park race track. The double—highest of the meet —paid off on Marezzo, winner of the first at $31.75 for $2 and Royal Bomber, which paid $41.35 for $2, in the second.

A daily double ticket costs $2.

One of five persons holding winning double tickets was Tom Anderson, associated with Fred Orpen in operation of other Ontario tracks. Anderson told how he got the big payoff:

"To me Marezzo looked like the best horse in the first race. . . so I bought 10 daily double tickets on Marezzo and spread them across all the horses in the second—then prayed for a long one. And the long one sure came across."

At New Rochelle, N.Y., Lawson Little of Monterey, Calif., retained his lead Friday in the Palm Beach round robin golf tourney with a score of plus 21 after 54 holes. The greying Californian toured the 6,569-yard course in 73-71 for a three-round score of 211.

Claude Harmon of Mamaroneck, N.Y., moved into second place with a plus 18 on two fine rounds of 69-69 over the par-72 layout. Lloyd Mangrum of Niles, Ill., advanced to the third slot, shooting a 70-65 for a plus 17.

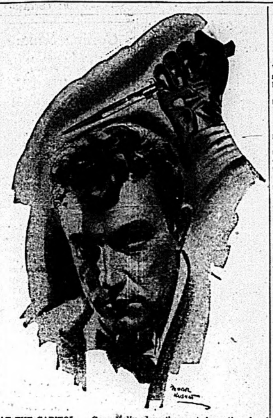
The latter round tied the course record, set last year by Cary Middlecoff.

Guy Lombardo, who likes slow music and fast speedboats, will try out his latest hope for a record-breaking craft on Middle River at Baltimore Friday.

The famed Ontario-born orchestra leader gives his remodelled Tempo VI its first competitive test at the Wilson Point regatta in the Glenn L. Martin invitation race. The race is for 15 miles, nine times around a mile and two-thirds course.

The International Amateur Boxing Association Congress Friday at Copenhagen unanimously decided to add two more weight classes — a light welterweight and light middleweight — making 10 divisions in all.

The rule adding a 140-pound class and a 156 1-2 pound class will go into effect June 15, 1951. The Congress suggested that all national boxing associations use the 10 divisions earlier if possible.



AT THE CAPITOL — Gene Kelly plays the most dramatic role of his career in MGM's thrilling new drama, "Black Hand," in which he abandons his usual song-and-dance roles to enact the part of a young Italian who sets out to avenge the death of his father by a ruthless extortion gang. J. Carrol Naish and Teresa Celli are other principals in the new film, which will be shown Monday at the Capitol Theatre for its first Belleville showing. On the same program, "The Winner's Circle," story of America's great turf kings, with Johnny Longden.

At Wimbledon, England, the United States Friday just about wrapped up the Wightman Cup tennis trophy for another year and needs only to tie the knot today before gaining possession of it for the 14th straight time. The British Court Queens haven't won since 1930.

The Americans Friday took the first three matches in the best-of-seven women's competition against the British. They have to win one of four matches today and if they don't it will be the biggest upset since David whipped Goliath.

Carl Voss of Minneapolis resigned Friday as president of the United States Hockey League.

Voss said at Milwaukee the league's board of directors accepted the resignation and named a committee to select a successor. He declined to reveal the reasons for his withdrawal. The board Thursday transferred the Minneapolis' franchise in the league to Denver.

GUERRILLA SET UP 'FREE REPUBLIC

Caracas, Venezuela, June 17—(AP)—A guerrilla army of 2,400 trained jungle fighters has set up a "free republic of Colombia" and controls the strategic plains, a rebel leader claims here.

He is Luis Buitrago, 26, who says he is secretary to the rebel chief of state, Eliseo Velasquez.

Buitrago said the rebels got their scanty supply of arms by fighting government soldiers with machetes—heavy knives used in cutting sugar cane.

AT THE BELLE — It's a new high in romantic teams when Clark Gable and Loretta Young go into one of their clinches in MGM's joyful comedy drama, "Key to the City," due today at the Belle. Others in a typical big Gable cast include Frank Morgan and James Gleason.

ULTIMATE END

Sports Roundup

By MURRAY ROSE
(For Hugh Fullerton Jr.)

New York, June 17 (AP) — What's wrong with boxing? What should be done to get the game back on a healthy footing again?

Those questions are asked often these days.

What's wrong?

1. Shortage of real talent.
2. Not enough fighting champions.
3. Too many exclusive contracts held on the better fighters.
4. Lack of a real central body to rule the sport.
5. Too much quibbling over percentages by managers of the top battlers.

Dictator Needed

We'd like a see a national commissioner appointed to rule boxing in the United States with dictatorial powers. Jack Dempsey, the old Manassa Mauler, and others have been advocating this for years.

"World" Champs

Take the heavyweight snarl for instance. Ezzard Charles, the ailing Cincinnati Negro, is the National Boxing Association champion. Lee Savold of Eaglewood, N.J., won British and European recognition as "world" titleholder" by stopping England's Bruce Woodcock.

Now a Savold-Charles match, providing Charles gets over his heart ailment, would provide a universally recognized world champion.

What are the chances of such a match? Slim, is our conviction.

A national commissioner could order a featherweight title clash between champion Willie Pep and Saddler, the former champ. That rubber bout is long overdue.

Little Benny's Note Book

Puds Simkins's berthday and my berthday come rite close apart, and we made it up to give each other a seprise for a present, and I was starting to feel kind of nerviss about the whole idea on account of liking to be serprised all rite, but not disappointed at the same time, and this morning we were walking to school together, and I said, Hay Puds?

What? Puds said, and I said, I hope you're not going to be disappointed.

You meen about the serprise present? Puds said, and I said, Yes, I hope you're not going to give me just exactly what I wanted and then get something punky from me. G. that would certainly give me a gilty feeling, I said.

Jimminies, that's just what's been worrying me the other way around, Puds said. I was afraid you'd give me something swell after I made a mistake and gave you some darn thing you wished you had never saw, he said, and I said, Well anyway, I've got yours all saved up for, and if you had the money instead of the present, you could go to see the special Saturday morning kids show at the Little Grand on 2 Saturdays in succession. I can tell you that mutch about it, I said.

G. that's exactly how mutch I'm saving up for yours, Puds said. Hay, I tell you what, he said, and I said, What?

Let's take terns inviting each other to the Little Grand on 2 diffrent Saturday mornings, so then if we're disappointed we can share the blame on each other, he said, and I said, Sure, G. and we'll never tell what we were really saving up for, so we wont really spoil the serprise.

And we shook hands on it and both felt better instead of werse

Baggott's Bay Yielding Many Large Pickerel

Picton—Baggott's Bay in the Bay of Quinte is a favorite fishing ground these days and many fine pickerel are being taken there. Some of the bigger specimens have been entered in Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce fishing contest, in which prizes for biggest fish caught each month, and also during the season, are offered.

Ralph Heffer of Picton jumped into the lead for the prize for the biggest pickerel this season and the biggest fish of the month when he brought in one weighing nine pounds eight ounces. It measured 28 1-2 inches in length and 15 inches around the girth.

Other good catches this week included one weighing 8 pounds and another 7 pounds taken by William Norton, Picton; one weighing 7 pounds nine ounces taken by Wesley Hall, of Rochester, N.Y.; one of 7 pounds one ounce by Vincent Gentile, Picton; and one of 8 pounds six ounces by C. O. Phillips, Picton.

Biggest pike reported was that caught Wednesday in Smith's Bay by Stanley Fraser of Oshawa. It weighed 8 pounds 10 ounces and measured 32 inches in length.

Fire Destroys Home, Contents At Northport

Picton—A house with all contents was destroyed by fire at Northport yesterday. Owned by Canadian Canners Ltd., the residence was occupied by Mrs. Edna MacDermaid, who lost all her belongings. For a time, several other buildings were threatened but were saved largely through the efforts of the Bloomfield fire brigade which rushed 22 miles to the scene.

The fire had gained great headway when discovered and nothing could be saved. Mrs. MacDermaid was in Belleville at the time and the three children were at school. Cause of the outbreak is not known.

Only an alley separated the burned house and the residence of Thomas Potter but it was saved when a bucket brigade was formed and the building kept saturated. Metal roof and siding also helped keep it from being lost. The home of Mrs. Hazel Lambert across the road was saved by liberal applications of water. The Canadian Canners factory and office buildings were also threatened for a time.

MARMORA

St. Andrew's 25th Jubilee

The Silver Jubilee of the United Church was fittingly observed at St. Andrew's on Sunday morning. The chancel was beautifully decorated with flowers. Six of the older members of the junior choir joined with the senior choir in the service of song and also sang an anthem.

The pastor, Rev. George D. Young B. A., B. D., delivered an interesting and informative sermon dealing with some of the events leading up to Church Union, and the ceremonies connected with the founding of the United Church. He also outlined some features of its growth and accomplishments, in the past 25 years.

Beyond The Law

Mary Imlay Taylor

"I've half a mind—" His hand went toward the sealed envelope then he let it fall on the desk. "No!" I'll play fair, and wait six days, though I believe he's going to risk his life doesn't expect to come back alive—and he's a mighty valuable man!"

Again he meditated, strumming on his desk, but he was used to these things Men were sent out to their deaths sometimes, to danger of it often; what matter. If it was for the good of the service? The service was the inspectors second girl yet his eyes clouded a moment later when he saw O'Hara cross the snowy space before his window, erect and strong, in all the vigor of his splendid manhood.

"The best subordinate I've got," he muttered. "I'll wait just six days; then Gayle can go after him." He touched a button and sent orders out about the careful jailing of Nicky Creuse. He's safe anyway," he thought. "One young daredevil behind bars until it's cleared up. I'm far from convinced that he could have done it —or did."

O'Hara, meanwhile, unconscious that he had stirred strange uneasiness in his chief's mind, went about his business, a business that sent an unaccustomed chill to his stout heart. For once, he sickened deeply at his task.

"Hunting men, that's been my business," he mused bitterly. And then, half aloud, "may God forgive me if I'm wrong now!"

He had a sudden recollection of Nicky Creuse on the way to prison, rebellious, snarling, vowing to get even. Yet the boy was so young, and there had been, hitherto, a certain charm in his devil-may-care-freedom. O'Hara had seen him once dancing a jig at French Pete's amid the uproarious laughter of the voyageurs. He had loved his sister too; that first shooting of Gharian had stirred the sergeant with something akin to sympathy. Yet he had dragged the boy to prison, was leaving him in peril of his life.

"My business that!" he cried again to himself, and thrust his hand into his pocket to feel for that small object he had found in the snow beside the frozen creek.

It was strange that Johnson had overlooked it! The thought recalled Johnson; the constable was out of the infirmary but not yet fit for duty. He might explain one point more—if he chose!

But O'Hara did not go to Johnson, instead he took the first train north. He had urgent business at Le Pas, business that must be concluded before the time expired—he had given himself six days As he recalled that a sudden apprehension surged over him, and the perspiration stood out in drops on his forehead though the thermometer registered thirty below.

"My God, six days!" he breathed, and set his teeth hard.

Before him rose a face, a woman's face, wide eyes of terror, a tremulous mouth, The bitter winter night enfolded him. A thick snow mist rose before the twinkling lights where Crees were gathered drinking and gambling while their dogs snarled out in the snow. Other lights shone sparsely. He was in Le Pas and there was grim work to be done; yet—how she troubled him, kept herself ever before the mind of this grim traveller of the barrens to whom women had been little more than shadows in a world beyond his ken.

Then he thrust all thought of her aside and went on. Somewhere here was the man who had driven a dog train back from the creek, a hundred yards below Gharian's cabin, on the very day of the murder! Within an hour of it, unless O'Hara's calculations were wrong. That it was not the same man who had carried supplies to Ninon at the cabin, O'Hara knew; he had searched that out. He had sure information too, of the time Nicky had spent at Churchill, of his threats against Gharian. He needed only to find the man who had rescued the fugitive from the icebound creek; that man held the key to the greatest mystery of all.

Ten minutes later he pushed open the door and looked into a hot, smoke-filled, noisy den of a room, glimpsed, dark, wild faces saw the flash of dice falling on the tables, heard a medly of tongues, half French, half Cree, an oath here, a song there, the uproar of a quarrel that subsided suddenly at sight of his uniform. Then, from somewhere, a derisive laugh. It pricked him like a knife thrust. In an instant he was iron, every nerve strung taunt, the manhunter in him leaped up like a caged tiger. He felt neither pity nor remorse.

Deliberately he thrust himself into the centre of the room and laid his hand suddenly on the shoulder of the man who had laughed. "You're wanted, Duval!" O'Hara's tone was like a whiplash, and the hand that gripped the half-breed had the feel of iron.

Duval started to his feet with a smothered oath, but his dark face changed and paled as his eyes came to the level of the sergeant's. He was a stranger, too, and there was no show of partisan feeling, only a gaping curiosity in the nearest faces. "What d'you want of me?" he asked sullenly.

O'Hara made no answer in words, he kept his grasp on the man and thrust him quickly between the crowded tables toward the door that he had left open when he entered. He felt, rather than saw, a growing sympathy among the men who were his prisoner's equals, if they were not yet his pals. There were some murmurs an oath here and there; in the farther corner one or two rose. O'Hara was alone and there was no love here for the Mounted. But the sergeant got Duval outside and shut the door behind them.

That movement loosed his grip a trifle, and on the instant, the halfbreed was at his throat. They grappled stumbled and rolled over in the snow. Duval had been drinking. OHara was deadly sober, with muscles like steel; a trained fighter. They battled over the edge of a drift and the sergeant held his enemy down and out of sight when someone opened the door and looked out.

"Gone like a lamb!" they heard a voice say from the inside of the cabin, then there was a shout of coarse laughter as the door snapped shut again.

A couple of dogs began to howl a fiddle scraped somewhere, and O'Hara got his knee on the halfbreed's breast, slipped a hand down and disarmed him. "You're making a mistake Duval," he said chokingly, for the struggle had cost him his breath. "I'm not going to run you in, and I'll let you go scot free if you answer me straight and take orders like a man."

A red light shone from a window on the snow beside them, in the weird glow of it he could see the breed's sullen eyds; but his grunt was a half way surrender.

"Let me up—you choke me, by gar!" he gurgled, for O'Hara's grip was on his windpipe.

The seregant rose and ordered him to his feet. "You drove your team up to the creek below Gharian's place the day of his death. No, not a word of denial; I know! If you want to keep out of jail, get your dogs now. I'll go with you. You and I start north tonight. Duval, and on the way we'll settle certain other matters. Ready?"

The halfbreed made a quick movement, but the muzzle of O'Hara's forty five was at his breast.

"Going quietly?" the sergeant snapped.

Duval assented sullenly. "I wish you in hell," he growled.

The officer laughed. "I may send you there, old man, if you don't get started mighty quick."

As he spoke he drove his prisoner down to the vacant place below the huts where he knew Duval's dogs were tied. Half an hour later, to the snap of the halfbreed's whip and the deep baying of the huskies, the sledge started north laden with ten days' rations. Duval walking beside his team and O'Hara close at his heels. Out through the last straggling streets of the settlement, leaving the wicked twinkling eyes of light behind, into a wilderness of snow and ice, in the teeth of a biting wind, they went. The snow was packed tight and the trail they followed through the night was not difficult, except that there could be no turning back.

Morning came, gray with the eternal gloom of the Arctic winter. They sat down and ate resting and feeding the dogs. The halfbreed was sullenly silent, watching his captor with a fierce enmity that he could not disguise.

"He'll get me if he can!" O'Hara thought and watched narrowly as he was watched. Yet later in the day, Duval seemed to relent a little, for he answered now and then, and once he pointed out a spot he had passed before.

"Bad place," he said laconically. "Man slip dere he break his neck, by gar!"

"But you got through safely, with a loaded sled that day." O'Hara countered quickly.

The breed grunted and fell silent again, nor would he speak except barely to answer a word or two for the rest of that long afternoon. But by this time, the man who followed him already knew the story; a gesture there a half admission here, even a startled glance at some particular turn of the trail which he was being forced to follow, were enough to fill out the skelton that O'Hara had constructed from the evidence in his hands. Unconsciously Duval furnished the one clue vitally needed; and the sergeant's face was set and stern as they passed the frozen creek and travelled the last two hundred yards through a little forest of spruce and balsam, half buried in the deep snow.

Emerging from it, the open space of snow-covered ground had a strange radiance; it was bluish white, while the ice covered barrens to the westward stretched out like a sparkling desert, pricked here and there with frozen willows. It was beautiful, so striking that O'Hara drew a deep breath of admiration. Then he saw the windows of Gharian's little cabin and the woman at the door. Her face was turned toward them and, even at this distance, he sensed the light in her eyes.

END OF RACE FOR THIS DRIVER

Flames reach out for Skip Hershey, of St. Augustine, Fla., who feebly tries to crawl away from his burning racer at Lakewood Park, Atlanta, Ga. His stock car caught fire on a curve and hit a fence, dumping him into a mass of burning fuel during a 100-lap race on the mile dirt course. Rescuers dragged Hershey from the flaming mixture of gasoline and alcohol. His condition is critical. — Central Press Canadian.

Parents are Urged To Warn Children Of Road Dangers

Toronto, June 17 (CP)— Alarmed at a sudden increase in child traffic deaths the Toronto Traffic Safety Council held a special meeting Thursday to step up its safety campaign. Inspector Vernon Page, head of the police traffic squad, told the meeting that three children have been killed since May 24 and urged that parents should stress safety to their children with the school holidays approaching.

Man Surrenders Admits Killing Montreal Woman

Montreal, June 17 — (CP) — Gerard Royer, 36, is in police custody today, held as a material witness in the strangulation death Tuesday of Helen Bowmer, 37, in a dingy downtown Montreal hotel.

Inquest into Miss Bowmer's death was scheduled for Friday.

Police say she was strangled. City police also reported Thursday night that Royer had surrendered to the R. C. M. P. and admitted slaying the woman.

"I was too drunk and I got mad at her," police quoted Royer as saying. Royer, an ex-convict who was a cook for a religious order, walked into R.C.M.P. headquarters Thursday afternoon and gave himself up.

"She turned me down because I had not $2 left in my pockets," police said he told them.

Police described Miss Bowmer, a native of Lauzon, Que., as a woman of many aliases who was "a well-known street walker."

Police said they had checked Royer's finger prints against those left in the hotel room and they matched.

"We have no doubt this is our man," said Lieut. Senecal.

Prescott Member Becomes Chief Of Encampment

Toronto, June 17 (CP)—Ontario lodges of the Independent Order of Oddfellows and Rebekahs have spent nearly $250,000 in the last three years in relieving want and suffering caused by cancer, poliomyelitis, tuberculosis or other causes, it was reported at the groups' annual convention.

Under discussion at Friday's session was the rehabilitation centre in the Gravenhurst Sanatarium which the lodges have supplied, equipped and furnished.

W. G. Francis of Prescott became Chief of the Grand Encampment at elections Friday, assuming the title of Grand Patriarch. Second-in-command, Harry Roe of Napanee, moved up to Grand Senior Warden. Also elected were Grand Scribe Angus Munroe of Owen Sound, and Grand Treasurer, George Elson of Toronto.

Other officials for the 1950-51 sessions of the Grand Encampment include Kenneth Zeller, Guelph, Grand High Priest; Howard Guiler, Port Dover, Grand Inside Sentinel; Roy Richard, Prescott, Grand Outside Sentinel; and Hugh Termarch, Grand Marshall.

Minor Lighning And Rain Damage In Many Parts

Toronto, June 17 (CP)— Showers and electrical disturbances swept over large sections of Ontario Friday, causing minor rain and lightning damage.

The storm centred over a line south-east from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., the Dominion weather office reported tonight. A cold air mass moved south-east during the day, bringing thundershowers to western and central Ontario during the evening.

Lightning struck two houses and a barn at Owen Sound earlier in the day. The barn was destroyed and the homes slightly damaged.

Telegraph and radio communications were disrupted for short periods in some sections of Southern Ontario.

Lightning also struck in St. Thomas and Toronto, but no injuries were reported.

In St. Thomas a 15,000-volt hydro wire was hit, and fell over a direct current power line of the London and Port Stanley Electric Railway. Power to the entire city was cut for a short time.

Hail fell for 10-15 minutes at Parkhill, 25 miles west of London causing slight damage to district fruit trees.

In Toronto, a hydro wire in the west-central district was struck and police radios were off the air for a short period. A heavy one-hour downpour brought one-half inch of rain.

Power was cut off for one hour in Guelph, when a transformer caught fire.

QUICK WORK

Boissevain, Man.—(CP) — The abundance of spring moisture here prompted fast growth of wheat and shoots were seen above the ground as soon as three days after planting. Farmers in the district had all their grain in and seeding finished by the second week in June.

Voters in Three Federal By-Elections Go to Polls

Ottawa, June 19—(CP)—Voters in three federal constituencies today will elect new representatives to the Commons.

The voters in Montreal Cartier, in the dual constituency of Halifax and in the Nova Scotia riding of Annapolis-Kings will cast ballots in by-elections to fill the only vacancies in the Commons.

The present standing of the Commons:

Liberals, 186, Progressive Conservatives, 42, C.C.F. 13, Social Credit, 10, Independent five, Independent Liberal, three, vacant, three, total 262.

Attract Little Interest

The contests possibly because of the government's large majority in the Commons, have attracted little interest outside of the constituencies. The campaigns mainly have been fought on local issues.

In Montreal Cartier, formerly held for the Liberals by Maurice Hartt who died several months ago, four candidates are in the running.

Leon David Cresthol, a lawyer, is the liberal candidate. Maurice S. Hebert, another lawyer, is running for the Progressive Conservatives. Kalmen Kaplansky, a printer, is the C.C.F. candidate. The Labor-Progressive party, which twice carried the seat, is represented by Harry Binder, a journalist.

In a 1943 by-election and in the 1945 general election, the seat was won by Fred Rose for the communist Labor-Progressive party. He was convicted in 1946 on espionage charge and sentenced to six years in penitentiary.

In the general federal election last June 27 the vote was Mr. Hartt, Liberal, 11,993, Mr. Binder, Labor-Progressive, 4,868, A. M. Klein, C.C.F., 3,240, and Mr. Herbert, 2,636.

In the farming constituency of Annapolis-Kings, the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives are waging a two-way fight. The seat was declared vacant after the Nova Scotia Supreme Court ruled that the election of Liberal Angus Elderkin in the general election was void because of irregularities.

In that election, Mr. Elderkin polled 13,203 votes to 13,198 for George Nowlan, the Progressive Conservative.

DRINKING PARTY BY JUVENILES BEING PROBED

Toronto, June 19 — (CP) — Police today investigated details of what they described as a drinking and sex party in North York Saturday night in which more than 30 teen-age boys and girls took part.

Two 19-year-old youths were charged with having carnal knowledge of a 13-year-old girl. Three other youths, still unidentified to police, were said to have had improper relations with the same girl.

Police said at least five other boys will be charged with having liquor illegally.

Piecing together information received from various sources, officials said a number of boys obtained five or six cases of beer by asking brewer's warehouse patrons to buy them a case while making their own purchases.

Saturday night's party, which was held outdoors in Hogg's Hollow, at the northern outskirts of Toronto, was reported to have been preceded by a "stag" affair the previous week.

"Saturday night," one official said, "the girl friends of this young gang heard that there was going to be another party and they followed them. They didn't have to be invited."

Police and municipal authorities have ordered a tighter check on beer outlets and urged parents to keep closer watch on their children.

Probe Charges Officers Damaged Furniture in Raid

Toronto, June 19 (CP) — Deputy Commissioner Arthur Moss of the Ontario Provincial Police said today that he would open an inquiry at Beaverton Thursday into charges made by a Pefferlaw woman that officers had damaged furniture in her home during a liquor raid.

Two constables are under suspension pending their hearing. They are William Andrews and Harry Kift.

Mrs. Mary Godfrey, 60, charged that the police officers used obscene language and smashed dishes.

Andrews denied the charge saying that the woman's home had been on the prohibited list for some time.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, June 19 (CP)—Synopsis: Over most of the province skies will remain cloudy today. There is a weak disturbance south of Chicago this morning which will travel eastward passing just south of the lower lakes during the day. At the same time another disturbance will sweep rapidly southeastward over northern regions on its way into Quebec. A few showers are associated with both these systems, that in the north being more active. Cooler air will surge over northern regions later today spreading as far south as the Soo. Muskoka and eastern Lake Ontario by Tuesday night.

Healthy Kidney of Dead Woman Transplanted For First Time

Chicago, June 19 — (AP) — A kidney from a dead woman has been transplanted in another woman in an operation which doctors say is the first of its kind.

Dr. Richard M. Lawler said the surgery was performed Saturday in Little Company of Mary hospital and that the patient was in "good condition" today. Her condition was normal and she had talked to her husband.

Dr. Lawler, a member of the hospital staff and senior attending surgeon at Cook County Hospital, directed the operation. It was begun 10 minutes after the death of the donor of the healthy kidney and required 1½ hours.

Dr. Lawler removed the diseased kidney from Mrs. Ruth Tucker, 49, of Chicago.

The healthy kidney from the dead woman, in an adjoining operating room, was removed by Dr. James West, also a staff member.

Working simultaneously, one team of surgeons removed the diseased kidney from Mrs. Tucker while the other team removed a kidney from the dead woman.

Dr. West handed the healthy kidney through a door to Dr. Lawler and within 45 minutes, the transplantation had been completed and blood was flowing through the kidney placed in Mrs. Tucker.

Mrs. Tucker suffered from polycystic kidney, a disease in which cysts in the kidney fill with urine which cannot be released. The disease usually is fatal.

Mrs. Tucker entered the hospital five weeks ago while doctors sought a suitable donor. The woman who consented to give her kidney after death also was 49 years old, of the same physical size and with the same blood type. She died from haemorrhage of the varicose veins of the esaphagus and cirrhosis of the liver. Her name was not disclosed.

DEFENCE POSITION OF U.S. IN ASIA IS OUTLINED

MacArthur's View Said Serious Not Hopeless

Tokyo, June 19 — (AP) — Gen. Douglas MacArthur today outlined American defence position in red-menaced Asia for Defence Secretary Louis Johnson and Gen. Omar Bradley. He was reported to have called it serious but not hopeless.

The commander of United States forces in the far east, it was understood, also urged prompt American assistance to Formosa, last-stand bastion of the Chinese Nationalists, and for southeast Asia.

Military aspects of a Japanese peace treaty were also believed under discussion in the three-hour conference with the secretary and the chairman of the United States joint chiefs of staff. This would involve the vital matter of American bases in Japan.

The talks here are expected to lay the foundation for decisions in Washington on far eastern policy.

NZ Upper House Will be Abolished PM Announces

Wellington, N. Z., June 19 — (Reuters) — The New Zealand Parliament's Upper House, the Legislative council, will be abolished in the next parliamentary session, Prime Minister Sidney Holland announced today.

Holland, whose National party swept Labor from power at the end of last year, said the present 25 members of the council are predominantly pro-Labor. The council, like Canada's Senate, is an appointed body. The government intends to appoint sufficient new members in the next few days to ensure that the council will pass legislation wiping itself out of existence, he said.

Legislative council members are appointed for a seven-year term by the Governor - General on the advice of the government.

Before last year's election Labor had been in power for 14 years.

Blame Short Circuit For $10,000 Fire

Meaford, June 19— (CP) — A spark from a short circuit in a trucks electrical system was blamed for a $10,000 fire which swept through John Carty's garage today. The loss figure covers the garage and equipment alone, and does not include severe damage to two new cars and several used cars stored in and near the building.

The fire broke out when a flying spark ignited the gas line of a truck which was elevated on a hoist inside the brick garage building. Efforts to tow the flaming truck outside failed, and the inside of the garage was almost completely gutted.

Ministers Oppose Banning Of Shorts on Ottawa Streets

Ottawa, June 19 (CP)— Protestant ministers of the capital, in a letter to the Ottawa Board of Control, today protested vigorously against any proposal to ban the wearing of shorts on Ottawa streets.

Moving against the current "anti-shorts" campaign, six ministers declared that modesty is more than a mere matter of apparel. It is dependent on a proper attitude of spirit, mind and body.

The members of the Central Churches Council registered a four point objection to the proposed ban:

1. They believed that such a by-law could be the precedent for a whole series of such by-laws which would make life "intolerably regulated" within the city.

2. Such a by-law would cause "unjust and unnecessary embarrassment" to tourists visiting Ottawa.

3. Such a by-law would be "inimical" to the liberty of the subject. There were certain spheres of human activity into which legislation should introduce only in broad outline and not in detail. This was one.

4. Such a by-law, instead of safeguarding modesty, might actually, by narrowing the conception of modesty, prove inimical to its true nature.

The letter was signed by Dean Howard H. Clark of Christ Church Cathedral, Rev. Terence J. Finlay of St. John's Anglican Church, Rev. H. C. Vaughan of St. George's Anglican, Rev. Alan Burnett of St. Andrew's Presbyterian, Rev. Colin F. Miller, of Knox Presbyterian and Rev. A. Leonard Griffith of Chalmers United Church.

'Lump Sum' Alimony Payments Argued Before Supreme Court

Ottawa, June 19—(CP)— The right of a divorced husband to settle alimony and maintenance claims by means of a "lump sum" payment was argued today in a test case before the supreme court of Canada.

Mrs. Bertha Maynard of Toronto is disputing a settlement of her divorce from Cecil E. Maynard in February, 1946, in which she was awarded $1,200 outright for alimony and maintenance for herself and their son, Cecil Maurice, then under 16 years.

Her appeal against the divorce court judgment was previously dismissed by the Ontario Appeal Court.

Lewis Duncan, Toronto lawyer, reopened Mrs. Maynard's case before Mr. Justice Kerwin and six other justices of the Supreme Court.

He held that the divorce court had no jurisdiction to order the payment of a lump sum for alimony and maintenance and that the Ontario Appeal Court erred in upholding the other.

Mr. Duncan said that even though the order was made at the time with the consent of both parties, it was not authorized by parliament.

"If there was any agreement on Mrs. Maynard's part not to apply to the court for maintenance and alimony, such an agreement would be against public policy," Mr. Duncan said.

Mr. Justice Kerwin observed that there were thousands of divorce cases in which no application was made for maintenance or alimony.

"But," he added, "there is nothing to prevent the wife from saying, at the last minute, that she has changed her mind and proposes asking for financial compensation."

Mr. Justice Kerwin said he could not see that there was any relevancy to the argument that a final settlement of maintenance and alimony would be "against public policy."

Prime Minister Leads in Tribute To J.R. MacNicol

Ottawa, June 19, (CP)—The Commons broke its own rules today to talk about an old, departed, beloved friend.

Prime Minister St. Laurent touched off the tributes to the late John R. MacNicol, the Toronto man who sat for two decades in the Progressive Conservative benches and roamed the country doing good.

He said House custom excludes such references to former members—Mr. MacNicol was defeated in the 1949 election—but this was one case where no one could object.

"He had none but friends," said Mr. St. Laurent "for he was a kind and gentle man."

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, called him "a truly great Canadian who in his long years of public life served every part of Canada as unselfishly as he did his own community."

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said the west and particularly Saskatchewan would long remember Mr. MacNicol for his "broad vision of a future that age never dimmed" and his interest in irrigation and other projects.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader said the west was grateful to him for interpreting the west to the east and the east to the west and for contributing selflessly to western development.

From a western back bencher, E. D. Wylie (SC—Medicine Hat) came a final tribute for Mr. MacNicol's interest in southeast Alberta.

"We," he said, "have lost a great booster."

SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION

Blind River, June 19 — (CP)— Spontaneous combustion in the feul storage house at the planing mill of the J. J. McFadden Lumber Company here Saturday night, followed by an explosion, caused damage to the building before the resulting fire was brought under control.

The storage house held an estimated 50 tons of shavings from the planing mill.

Extent of the damage was estimated but it is not believed heavy.

Four Drowned In Rondeau Bay On Lake Erie

Chatham, June 19 — (CP) — Four persons were drowned Saturday when a boat carrying five Detroit Negroes on a fishing trip overturned in the waters of Rondeau Bay on Lake Erie. The fifth member of the party was rescued.

The bodies of Mrs. Leona Meredith, 33, and Mrs. Dorothy Mulby, 37, were recovered late Saturday. Police are dragging the bay for the other two bodies.

Still missing are Mrs. Meredith's husband Levi, and Bernard Brown, 43.

Clas B. Hicks, 42, was rescued Saturday by a boat liveryman from nearby Shrewesbury as he clug to the overturned boat.

Hicks, who said he was unacquainted with the other members of the group, told police the boat capsized when one of the women reached over the side to recover a tackle box from the water.

All five clung to the boat but "dropped away one at a time." Hicks said. Hicks had been in the water five hours when rescued.

All members of the group were wearing life-jackets, Hicks said, but they were strapped on backwards, hampering the wearers as the struggled in the water.

He said the inflation pockets of the belts were at the back, tending to tip the occupant forward in the water.

Pasture and Beef Production Studied

Toronto, June 19 — (CP) — Appointment of a committee to study the relationship between pasture and beef production was announced today by Agriculture Minister Kennedy.

Mr. Kennedy said the committee, headed by Livestock Commissioner W. P. Watson, will work in co-operation with a number of farmers in beef-raising areas of Ontario. Farms will be specially selected. The research work is to be conducted at the farm of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph.

GERMAN VOTERS IN RUHR REJECT SOVIET POLICIES

Communism Given Crushing Defeat

Duesseldorf, Germany, June 19 — (AP) —The miners and steel workers of the Ruhr valley rejected Russia's policies in Germany and gave communism a crushing defeat at the polls Sunday.

But while they rejected communism, the same workers voted for a state constitution calling for socialization of the Ruhr's basic industries.

The Ruhr workers elected a legislature for their home state of north-west Phalia, in the British occupation zone. It is the most populous state of west Germany with 9,000,000 registered voters.

The Ruhr once was Germany's communist stronghold. Three years ago, the communists polled 14 per cent of the vote. They were the third largest party in the state.

Sunday, they received 5.5 per cent, and went into fifth place Max Reimann, their leader, trailed badly in Dortmund.

At the same time, the north Rhine - Westphalian voters also showed that they have no love for resurgent German nationalism. The noisy militant candidates—some of them with Hitler-like ideas—got only 1.9 per cent of the ballots.

The voters turned to their traditional parties—the conservative Christian democrats and the socialists (social democratic party).

Nature Not Clear

The exact nature and extent of possible socialization is not clear in the constitution. It speaks of "large factories of the basic industries and undertakings which because of their monopolistic position have special significance."

With final provisional returns completed the conservative Christian democrats and the right wing free democratic party had 121 seats in the 217-man legislature, winning 49 per cent of the popular vote. The social democrats obtained 68 seats, the communists 12.

The Zentrum (centrist) party, which sometime votes with the right, sometimes with the left, won 16 seats with 7.5 per cent of the valid vote.

Neither the communists nor the extreme right wing and nationalist parties elected a single man directly.

The communists received their 12 seats on the basis of votes cast throughout the state.

Because the extreme right wingers did not receive as much as five per cent of the vote, they get no seats in the legislature.

Will Stay in Tank Until Tax Removed

Monticello, Ind., June 19 (AP) —Paul G. Abbott submerged in Lake Shafer Sunday and said he'll stay there until Congress reduces "hidden" taxes.

The 27-year-old war veteran has a $3,000 tank with a glass top and a catwalk around the top just above the waterline for the curious. An escape hatch permits food to be lowered, but it's too small for Abbott to get out.

The space is six by six by 10 feet.

Four Days in Jungle After Crash Just Like Movie to Three-Year-Old

Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, June 19 — (AP) — Three-year-old Pamela Gafford from Texas, who survived a plane crash to last out four long days in a lion-infested African jungle, says the whole thing was "just like a movie."

She arrived here Friday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gafford of Tulsa, Okla., and three other persons rescued from the wild-game country along the Ethiopian - Somaliland border where their plane crashed last Sunday. Pamela arrived still lugging her doll.

The survivors, all unhurt, include the pilot, Kenneth Horton, of Tulsa. He is reported to be formerly of Brockville.

Pamela said she was "never afraid during the four days they awaited rescue by Italian army tanks.

Hyenas and jackals made inquisitive nocturnal visits to the wrecked plane but no big wild animals threatened them.

Their plane was en route from Mogadiscio, Italian Somaliland, to Ethiopia. A broken pin in the gasoline tank selector jammed the fuel line and compelled pilot Horton to crash land.

"We had sufficient food for a few days and on the third day one search plane dropped more by parachute, but we had no water," said Gafford.

Another dark moment, said pilot Horton, was when the first search plane to come near passed by without spotting them.

"We built fires, waved handkerchiefs, blankets, but the plane disapepared in the distance. Our spirits sank to a low level."

Horton said he finally got the attention of search planes after he repaired the motor and propellor of his wrecked plane. The whirling propeller stirred up the sand which attracted the searchers

They eventually got the radio going and established contact with Addis Ababa. Friendly natives appeared on the third day and gave them goat meat and water.

Montreal Murder Suspect Captured In United States

Believed to Have Killed RCMP Constable in Holdup

Regina, June 19 — (CP) — A burly, gun-toting vagrant was in jail here today awaiting interrogation by Montreal police in connection with the May 25 slaying of R.C.M.P. Constable Alexander Gamman, 58.

The vagrant, with 26 cents in his pocket, his shoes worn through and a recent bullet wound in his left thigh, was captured by Sheriff Pat Horton near Whitetail, Mont., Saturday night, a dozen miles south of the Saskatchewan border.

The R. C. M. P. said the man, who gave his name as Thomas Rossler, 45, made an "oral admission" while in custody here.

"I didn't mean to shoot the mountie," police quoted him as saying.

Detective Lieut. Russell Senecal of the Montreal city police is expected to arrive here late today by plane to question Rossler.

(In Montreal, Inspector J. R. Lemieux of the R. C. M. P.'s Criminal Investigation Bureau, said: "We're pretty sure this is our man. He answers the description of the man who killed Constable Gamman.")

Gamman, unarmed guard at the Bank of Canada in Montreal, was shot down when he tried to stop an unsuccessful bank bandit May 25.

The bandit, fleeing from the Bank of Toronto branch on downtown Beaver Hall Hill, first shot down bank Manager Stan Bickley and then shot Gamman when the policeman grappled with him. Gamman died 35 hours later. Police believe the gunman accidentally shot himself in the leg during the scuffle.

Extensive Search Made

When Gamman died, an extensive police search was touched off. Montreal taxi-driver Dorilas Bolduc said he drove the bandit from the downtown area to the eastern tip of Montreal Island. There, the killer obtained soap, a towell, overalls and disappeared.

A check of hotels and rooming houses disclosed that the most-likely suspect was a "C. Laring" or "C. Loring" who had lived at a dingy downtown Montreal hotel. Police said he was more than six feet tall, from 40 to 45 years of age and weighed about 215 pounds.

The killer's trail then showed up in Hornepayne, in Ontario. The key to "C. Loring's" Montreal room was found in a trash barrel near a Hornepayne hotel.

Police speculated that he was "riding the rods" out west and sent tracers through Ontario and western Canada.

Last Wednesday, a Canadian Pacific Railway policeman in Moose Jaw, Sask., was threatened in the C.P.R yards by a freight-riding vagrant who waved a gun at him.

On Friday, Sheriff Horton of Scoby, Mont., received word that the suspect might be heading south over the border. An R.C.M.P. plane spotted a powerfully-built man walking toward the boundary.

Seen Begging

Horton and Deputies Marven Cutt and Ray Hunter found that man answering the killer's description had been seen begging in the streets of Whitetail and later had walked south along dusty, dirt road.

The officers caught up with Rossler, limping and exhausted, two miles from Whitetail. He gave up without a struggle.

Sheriff Horton said Rossler carried a loaded .32-calibre automatic and extra cartridges.

Rossler was turned over to the Canadian authorities Sunday.

A taciturn fellow, Rossler would tell the sheriff only his name, age and weight, which he gave as 18 pounds.

Horton said Rossler's physique was similar to that of Gamman's killer.

R.A.F. VETERAN TO BE HANGED ON SEPTEMBER 21

Napanee, June 19 — (CP)— James Fosbraey, 29-year-old English-born veteran of the Royal Air Force, displayed no emotion when he was sentenced late Saturday to be hanged Sept. 21 for murder in the knife-slaying of his pretty young wife.

A supreme court jury under Chief Justice J. C. McRuer, ending the trial which started last Monday, required just less than one hour to return the guilty verdict. His lordship was visibly affected as he asked the accused whether he had anything to say before sentence was passed. Fosbraey replied "no, sir."

During the trial 60 letters written by the accused while in England and while in jail here were introduced in evidence. The crown contended the letters contained threats against his wife and that the accused had also admitted in letters written from jail that he had known, five days before the slaying, that "she was going to die."

Fosbraey married the Napanee girl while he was training at Kingston during the war.

Witness Denies Accusation

In his letters Fosbraey accused his wife of being intimate with Stanislaw Steinbach, a Polish army veteran who came to Canada after the war. Steinbach, called by the crown, denied the accusation. He admitted spending a weekend in Kingston with Mrs. Fosbraey but said they occupied separate hotel rooms and a hotel clerk corroborated this testimony.

3,000-Foot Jump Made At Crystal Beach

Spectators gasped and some turned their heads as the figure of a man plummeted earthward from an aircraft over Crystal Beach near Madoc on Sunday.

As the man neared the surface of the water, at least 200 feet away, a white chute mushroomed into the air, and he executed a perfect landing unharmed.

The jumper was Charles Murphy of this city who has been parachuting in the district for some time. Sunday's leap was his 67th jump.

Murphy left the plane at a height of 3,000 feet and did not "pull the ripcord" until he was some 200 feet above the surface of the water. He wears but one chute as in delayed jumps such as this, there is not time to fumble with another.

The Sunday exhibition was one of a series planned by Murphy for Crystal Beach. On Sunday, July 2, he will jump from a plane at 3,000 and drop, blindfolded to 2,000 before using the chute.

Eight of 12 Municipalities Submit Briefs

Toronto, June 19 (CP) —Eight of the 12 suburban municipalities in the greater Toronto area today filed with the Ontario Municipal Board a joint submission opposing the city's application to amalgamate the smaller units.

Toronto's first application for "progressive amalgamation" was dismissed on a technicality. The city made a new application on which the board today opened hearings.

The joint submission agreed that unification of certain services is necessary, but challenged the city's annexation plan for achieving it.

The brief proposed a metropolitan area board which would have jurisdiction over certain essential services only: water supply, trunk sewers and sewage disposal highways an dtransportation.

The joint brief was the county of York, the towns of New Toronto and Weston, the townships of Etobicoke and North York, and the villages of Forest Hill, Long Branch and Swansea.

Leaside, Scarboro, East York and Mimico have filed separate briefs.

Today's joint brief, attacking the city's application on general terms noted: "There is no evidence that the city of Toronto has shown any wisdom or discretion in planning its affairs which justifies its demand to obliterate the surrounding municipalities."

Outboard Motor Catches Fire, Tank Explodes

Catching afire when it backfired as the ignition was being turned off an outboard motor and motor boat owned by Edmund Campion, Edgetown Apartments, Trent Road, were badly damaged Sunday noon.

Campion had been out on the bay enjoying a morning run when in returning to the dock at the filtration plant the motor backfired as it was being shut off.

Flames leaped ten feet into the air and defied efforts of the owner to extinguish them. Finally just as Campion stepped out of the burning craft into another boat which put out from the dock, the gasoline tank exploded with a loud report sending a blast of flame 25 feet into the air. Campion was uninjured as result of the incident.

Campion had only recently purchased the boat and the ten horse power outboard. The stern of the boat from amidships back was badly charred, while the outboard was almost completely ruined.

Donald Carter's Barn Destroyed With Pigs, Fowl

Tough luck seems to dog the Carter family.

Last winter Floyd Carter, Ameliasburg township farmer lost his barn in a midnight blaze which destroyed over 30 head of cattle together with feed and equipment.

On Sunday Donald Carter, residing in the 7th concession of Thurlow township, nine miles north of Belleville, lost his barn, together with a horse, four brood sows and 26 young pigs. Twenty chickens were also lost in the blaze.

The fire started from an unknown origin Sunday afternoon, the blaze being discovered by Mr. Carter and his father who had gone for a walk in the fields. By the time they got to the barn the stables could not be entered.

The wind was blowing diagonally across the road toward a barn owned by Charles Huffman, the wooden shingles catching fire in several places. The building was saved by members of the Belleville Fire Department who answered the alarm.

Last week Carter had been assisting his brother rebuild the barn which was burned last winter. He had taken his four year old horse from the field and put it in the barn where it could be easier fed. One brood sow escaped from the burning barn, but was badly burned.

Mother Duck Stages Thrilling Performance to Save Brood

A strange convoy wended its way across the highway three miles north of Bannockburn Sunday evening.

A party of Belleville motorists returning to the city pulled up the car when they saw the strange object slowly crossing the road.

Surprise grew more or less into amazement when they saw the convoy was a blue wing teal duck escorting her young brood across the right of way. The small ducklings, no bigger than young chickens waddled their way to safety in the swampy terrain at the side of the road, but Mama Duck had other ideas.

She apparently feared the intrusion of the car which by this time was standing at the side of the road. She went to a small pond in the ditch, ruffling her feathers and spread her wings in deceptive distress in an exhibition that was thrilling to watch. This having no effect, she deliberately crossed the road and repeated the performance in another pool of stagnant water. Then she went into the woods.

The party moved down the road, keeping a careful eye on the spot. A minute or so later the duck feeling that danger had passed, flew across the road and joined her young brood wherever it was.

Perhaps the sight of a duck and her young, waddling across a road is not so strange, but the onlookers wondered "how come a blue wing teal, of all ducks, happened to be so far away from a large body of water.

Banking Function Is 'High One' Pontiff Declares

Vatican City, June 19 (AP) (AP)—Describing banks as "hearts of economic structures" Pope Pius urged world bankers to act with "true, Christian spirit."

The Pontiff addressed 1,200 employees of the Bank of Rome Sunday, defending banks and bankers.

It is not true, the Pope said that the banking system "is one that by its nature is tainted with fault."

Both humble workers in banks and financiers, the Pope said, can work in the true spirit of the gospel, with hearts removed from the money they manage and the material goods they administrate.

The function of banking, the Pope said, "is a high one, and of great importance."

Mrs. Theodore West's wife said a search party today found oil and gasoline cans, believed from the men's boat, on a beach at nearby Parry Island.

Charge is Laid Against Alleged Zoot-Suit Leader

Kitchener, June 19 (CP)—A charge of conspiring to commit an indictable offence has been laid against Ronald Ashley, 19, of R. R. 4, Kitchener, said by police to be leader of the armed zoot-suit gang broken up by police in a raid Saturday.

Ashley and two others, Fred Smyth, 18, and Darcy Tanner, 18, are the only three members of the group of 19 still at large. Police have not been able to locate them since they were allowed to go home from the police station Saturday.

Thirteen others, including John Sienek, 23, the owner of the truck which the zooters had planned to ride to Stratford and Crystal Beach, and John Benin, 23, the driver, were taken into custody during the weekend. They are charged with unlawful assembly. Five others were held Saturday on charges of carrying offensive weapons.

Police said the arrests prevented a sand dune battle at Crystal Beach between the Kitchener youths and a rival gang from Stratford.

There has been bad blood between the two groups for more than a year following a police court session in which several youths were jailed for beating up two Stratford girls.

Police said those charged will appear in court Wednesday.

Fishermen Will Be Protected By Government

Ottawa, June 19 (CP)— The Canadian government is taking measures to protect fishermen of this country from interference by vessels from other nations on the North Atlantic banks, Fisheries Minister Mayhew told the Commons today.

The minister said these steps were planned:

1. The government was taking up the matter with European countries whose vessels are alleged to have interfered with operations of Canadian fishermen on the grounds.

2. It is sending a patrol boat to the banks to give "what protection it can" to the fishermen, though Mr. Mayhew emphasized the vessel would not be acting as a police boat.

3. It is asking captains of Canadian vessels to keep records of any destruction of their gear or interference with their operations by foreign ships.

The minister was replying to a question from Gordon Higgins (PC-St. John's East), who asked what action was being taken in connection with the endangering of lives of Newfoundland and Nova Scotia fishermen by foreign trawlers.

INVESTMENT IN CANADA'S FUTURE

Apparently many Canadians have little confidence in future of Canada. This may be a rash judgment but easing balances in individual savings accounts coupled h the continuing reluctance of the majority of Canans to invest in job-creating and dividend-paying investt opportunities testify to the truth of this statement.

This year, 240 oil companies are expected to spend 0 million in developing the oil fields of Western Canada. too much of this risk capital will come from outside ada. As a result, a large portion of the dividends which uld be re-invested to develop other resources in this ntry are being drained off and exported to foreign stors.

J. U. Boyer, president of the Canadian Bankers' Associon told the association's annual meeting recently that ngs in deposit accounts increased by $426 million durthe year ending March 31, 1950. At that date, the pubad $6971 millions in nearly 8,000,000 individual sevings ounts. The average savings account increased from $532 945 to $637 in 1949.

At the present time, we are faced with the supply of which is greater than ever before and still increasing. One solution to this economic paradox is stepped up estment by Canadians in the profitable development of resources and opportunities of their own country.

WHICH FLAG?

Hon. L. P. Cecile, Ontario's Minister of Travel, wants American flags in Canada given less prominence dursummer months. The minister, speaking to an Eastern ario conference of boards of trade, said that the proon of American banners that Ontarioans in the tourist le show each summer is not in good taste. Not only , he claims that the tourists themselves would rather Canadian flags.

From the provincial point of view, it is much better ee Canadian banners flying from the service stations, ist homes, street corners, stores and at summer resorts. think that it is very well to welcome the visitors, but blatant profusion of the Stars and Stripes since the of the war indicates too much commercialism. In reyears, there has been too great an outright attempt to e the Americans feel at home — by making Ontario like home.

Instead, let us leave Ontario the way she is. The Minr says that the visitors would rather we put our own s out front. Then let us do so. We can make them at e without sacrificing our own heritages and characters. That is not to say that we should bar the Stars and pes. But we should use it with discretion, so that it bees not a symbol of the money our guests bring with n, but a salute to them and their country.

CHURCHILL'S WALL

a letter from London to The Ottawa Journal is a short cle which clearly shows how the master statesman ston Churchill can prove his skill as a bricklayer, refce to which occupation made it common knowledge in days of the Second World War.

"Those who went to Chartwell last week, Mr. Churchcountry house near Westerham in Kent, saw the fas wall in the grounds which was built by the great esman's own hands.

"It is well known that bricklaying is Mr. Churchill's r hobby apart from painting and also that he is hony member of the appropriate union. But down below Admiralty, at the approach to the great fortress-like ar building which was added during the war, there is a gment of brickwork which has a history. It was made Winston Churchill in 1939 when he was First Lord of Admiralty for the second time.

"He was passing through the corridors when he saw kmen bricking up the walls to strengthen them against sible air attack. Taking a trowel, he spent some time ng bricks while he meditated the next movement of the t."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

A NINETY-MINUTE TALK

I was interested as I hope all lovers of freedom were, in the press report that U.N. secretary-general Trygvie Lie had flown several thousands miles to have a talk with Prime Minister Stalin but that the latter could spare only ninety minutes to talkover world peace! And this Stalin the one who professes that his country is the only one that desires peace above all else!

Does anyone think that, should Stalin come to America, all he would be given would be a brief ninety-minute audience? It would take that time just to introduce him around in Washington to a few Senators and Generals. And we would like to show him a few of the historic high spots that mutely celebrate the miraculous triumph of freedom on this side of the water. Then we would want him to see the Statue of Liberty, and the bell in Philadelphia that was cracked ringing out the news of independence, and we would like to have him know that we have tubes under the Hudson, and under the surface of great New York City; and a nice sight atop the Empire State Building would not be amiss, either.

These things would open the eyes of stalwart Stalin I am sure, and I am sure he would be welcomed to Lake Success for a visit. Then, if he would only consent, we would fly him across the great farming country of the middle west with a stop over at Chicago, if only to see the stock yards, on a little jaunt to the Golden Gate. We would gladly give him ninety days in our midst, if he could only spare the time—and why not? We could probably arrange an afternoon of baseball for him, as well. That would convince him that we are not worried over here as he may think! And he would see a happy prosperous nation in action with hands out to help all the world back to a happy peace.

The people of no nation on this globe want war. What they want is peace to engage in useful pursuits, and live happily. I am convinced that the Russian people want this above all else. What higher objective than peace and good will toward all the peoples of this earth?

Mr. Matthews mentioned four candidates now in the running. They are Campbell Calder, member of the legislature for London; W. A. Benidickson, member for Kenora-Rainy River; A. St. Clair Gordon, former provincial secretary; and Peter Wright of Toronto.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

A YIP-YIP FOR MOON PITCHERS

For the past eight months the Roses have been sticking pretty close to home, hearth and television set, and as I've reported in this space from time to time, Eleanor and I have been pleasantly overwhelmed by some of the shows we've seen on our one-foot screen. A couple of weekends back, however, my missus dusted off the projector in the midget movie theatre we built in our barn in Mt Kisco several summers ago, and since then we've been catching up with some of the films we've missed. And from what we've seen to date it's as plain as the moustache on Groucho Marx's face that a good film is still a country mile ahead of anything TV has to offer.

Let's see if I can't make my point with four flickering for instances. . .

"Annie Get our Gun." If video has put on a musical to compare with this technicolor translation of the Rodgers-Hammerstein stage hit, I haven't seen it. What's more I'm willing to bet a candied apple that it'll be several years and inventions before it does.

Speaking generally of chorus girls—and that's what I'm generally speaking of—the five-inch glamor-puss on television is a novelty and, in an academic way, interesting but she'll never hold candle or come-on to the bigger-and-buxomer-than-life cuties on the king-size movie screen.

"The Asphalt Jungle." There are plenty of thrillers and shoot-'em-ups on the cathode circuit these nights, but for my pesos and applause they're high-school productions alongside the panel-by-panel slickness of this new film directed by John Huston. And this isn't meant as a thumb in the eye to the lads who produce for TV. Until such time as their sponsors can afford the luxury of months of preparations and weeks of rehearsals, I don't see how they can begin to compete with top Hollywood product.

"Father of the Bride." I don't know whether you've seen this one yet but it's a celluloid cinch that TV hasn't as yet come up with a comparable 90 minutes in either the laugh or tear departments. The Ford dramatic hour is plenty good but no performance on it has ever reached out and grabbed me by the heart and funny bone as Spencer Tracy did in his Elizabeth Taylor's distracted pop. I don't know how this feature is doing at the box office, but if I owned the movie studio that produced it and didn't clean up, I'd nail the front door shut.

"The Next Voice You Hear." This strange and provocative chunk of film was produced by Dore Schary who less than two years ago took over the wobbly MGM lot and got the kinks out of its legs. Production-wise, Voice is as unpretentious as an Italian movie—I understand it was bought for about $400,000, which is peanut brittle money in Hollywood. Yet it has been booked into the Radio City Music Hall—the first quickie ever to crash its platinum precincts—and the smart talk is that it will wind up with plenty of cash and comment.

"Voice" delineates, in terms of the family next door, what would happen if God were to go on the radio and present His case for decency and kindness to the world. As a one-shot on video, I doubt if this theme, played by a cast of unknowns, would find either sponsor or audience, but with the Metro boodle-bag behind it it figures to reach at least a hundred million people around the world and do a lot of them plenty good.

Does this yip-yip for movie pitchers mean that I'm planning to give my TV set to the spiders? Not on your selector switch But as long as I've a couple of loose quarters in my pocket, I do intend to keep up with the more eye-worthy films—at least until such a time as TV can match the better stuff at my neighborhood theatre.

Of course, on the nights when the Bijou is playing one of those ho-humdingers, it will have to get along without my four bitses. If I must look at fair-to-piddlin' entertainment, I'd rather do it for free in my parlor with my shoes off.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

DON'T LOITER IN THE CORRIDORS

Most colleges and universities have mottoes engraved somewhere over an archway or a door. Frequently those mottoes are in Latin and Greek, and hence go unread by most students. But there is one administration building in an eastern college displaying a Latin inscription over the main entrance which has its most effective motto inside in English: "Don't loiter in the corridors."

There are good reasons for not loitering in corridors. In the first place, as anyone who has ever worked in a busy building knows groups of people standing around in the halls chatting often block the passage and get in the way. But what about loiterers themselves? Presumably they too were on the way somewhere before they stopped, but they have never arrived at their destination. Whatever their goal was, it remains unreached; and their work remains undone.

One reason for the unhappiness of a great many people is that they are loitering in the corrinor of life. For a corridor is just a passage between other places, not a destination in itself. Many a man has set out to become a great and successful lawyer, physician, teacher, preacher, or banker and never arrived because he stopped too often along the way for trivialities. The accomplishments of life are made in its rooms and offices, not in its corridors.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Judge Shaughnessy of Sarnia has suggested to a grand jury that they recommend whipping for juvenile first offenders, and that request for a change in the criminal code be forwarded to Ottawa.

"A first offender" outlined the judge, "so treated would be humiliated more than he would be hurt; and he would be the laughing stock and not the hero of his gang."

The question is: who would do the whipping? If police or prison warders were to be employed to do the whipping, practically nobody in the country would approve of the change.

But if the parents of the juvenile offender were obliged by law to administer the spanking ordained by the court, and had to do it, in the presence of court officers, then it seems to me we are getting somewhere. It is only a few years since every school in Canada had a fat black strap in every principle's office. A good many schools still have them; although in quite recent years educationists have frowned on the strap as part of the mechanics of popular education. That good old strap has been felt by thousands of us who are now middle-aged. There was no cruelty in it. There was as Judge Shaunessy says, a good deal of wholesome humiliation, plus a darn good sting.

If those school straps were added to the equipment of the courts of law, and if it were the law that the sentence of the court were to be executed by the parents of the offender in the judge's chambers or other immediate and available room, in the presence of the sherriff, a great step in the direction of solving our teen age slowly rowdy problem would be taken. For the parent are considerably to blame for the behavior of their children and ought to share in the consequences.

What if such a law did make for bad blood between parents and children? That is a better place for bad blood than between delinquent minors and the innocent neighbors.

SO YOUR HEART IS WEAK?

I offer here some general conclusions of mine in reference to the heart. Remember, please, that I am just an ordinary family doctor turned newspaper quack merely because I couldn't make an honest living in private practice. I tried to prove G. Bernard Shaw had been wrong when he told a convention of doctors in London that the family doctor dare not tell patients the truth lest his patients change doctors. Shaw was right. So, after eighteen years of country, city and hospital practice I hit upon this way of living without working.

The familiar complaint of "weak heart" is based on morbid fancy, in most instances The complaint is particularly questionable when it is the patient's chief complaint, that is, when the patient tells the doctor at the first interview that his or her weak heart is what brings him or her to the doctor.

As a general rule people with actual functional heart weakness or insuffiency seek medical advice for manifestations which they do not associate with the heart. This is not the place to suggest what manifestations or symptoms these may be, but I assure you it is so in everyday practice.

Palpitation, throbbing or forcible beating or rapid action of the heart which is felt by the patient, usually depends on emotional disturbance, excessive indulgence in alcohol, tobacco, tea, coffee or other cause than heart disease. Occasionally a patient with heart disease complains of palpitation, though not as the chief or only complaint.

Speaking of coffee, it is my conviction that ordinary moderate use of good coffee (brewed as described in the red book What to Eat and Why—for a copy send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope) is beneficial for adults with weak heart heart disease or slow heart muscle failure or coronary thrombosis or angina pectoris. Caffeine, the active principle in coffee, in a cup of good coffee, gently stimulates the heart without after-depression as when other heart stimulants are used. Moreover caffeine tends to dialate the coronary arterioles which feed fresh blood to the heart muscle and thus to prevent or relieve anoxia or oxygen-defiency in the heart muscle.

So I advice people with any kind of heart trouble to continue to enjoy their morning coffee and another cup or two at dinner if they do not retire until four hours or longer after dinner, if they like.

Whether a patient's heart is really weak or not a heart tonic which, if it does no good at least can do no harm, may be just what the doctor should order. If your subscription is paid up and the space is not needed for more important matter, I'll give my ideas about heart tonics in the next talk about heart trouble.

Mackenzie's Column:

Warlike Toys May be Banned In West Germany

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The Parliament of Western Germany has under consideration an extraordinary measure which might well be studied by other countries.

That is a proposal, introduced by Chancellor Adenauer's Christian Democrat party, to prohibit the manufacture or sale of warlike toys in Western Germany. It also asks that the Allied High Commission forbid the members of the occupation forces to give such toys to German children.

This odd measure obviously is inspired by the fact that warlike toys tend to create glorification of war in youthful minds. In that sense such playthings may be breeders of aggression which shows itself in later years.

Hitler — the last great exponent of Prussianism — recognized fully the advantage to be gained by beginning militaristic training among the youth — both boys and girls.

In days not so long past Prussian militarism showed itself in many walks of life, even in peace time. We saw the little boys graduate from their war toys to student days at the great universities, where the neccessary badge of valor was a scar across the face from dueling. Often youths deliberately disfigured themselves to get this distinction.

This Prussianism, largely responsible for both world wars, was strongly in evidence in the first global conflict.

Small wonder that the Allies swore to smash Prussianism as the mainspring of Germany's transgressions. They failed to succeed after the First World War, and they now are faced with the same problem again.

From here it looks as though the suggestion to abolish warlike toys in Germany is a good and hopeful sign, especially since it comes from Germans themselves.

Senator Fraser Criticizes Hospital Financial Statement, Requests Extra Appointees to The Board

Trenton (Special)—Senator W. A. Fraser appeared before council Friday night and charged that the interim financial statement of Hospital Board operations up to April 30, 1950 "is not a financial statement but a statement of assets and liabilities arrived at no one knows how. It does not convey anything and is absolutely useless for the purpose for which it was prepared.

The interim financial statement was published recently after the firm of J. Bowman Boyter, town auditor, completed an audit of the Hospital Board's books. The report prepared at the request of council and presented under the signature of G. W. Richardson, is an analysis of hospital board transactions to date and states that cash in the bank has been verified, donations subscriptions and grants actually deposited in the bank have been listed along with all expenditures, including those for fixed assets such as land, buildings and equipment. The reports also includes all other deferred expenses which have been incurred in operations of the board.

Emphasizing that he was "not talking against the hospital or thrilling areial offering in years; judgmentt' of the board or any of its members, Senator Fraser said there should be two members of council on the board and also two members appointed by council. (The mayor is already an ex-officio member of the board.)

Urges Proper Set of Books

"It is imperative that the board hire a chartered accountant to set up a proper set of books and they should have a competent bookkeeper to look after their books," continued the Senator again stressing that his remarks should not be interpreted as reflecting on the "integrity or management of the board." It seems incredible that a business running between $500,000 and $600,000 is being carried on without a proper set of books," said Mr. Fraser. "All good men are not practical men,' added the Senator. "Council has a responsibility to the shareholders in this town who have a 50 per cent investment in this hospital." Once more restating it was "not a question of judgment or integrity," the Senator declared "There is no safeguard like the safeguard of publicity."

When asked to comment on the Senator's remarks, Mr. Terrance Reid, certified public accountant, who had been employed by the Board for the last three years to look after their books said, "We are running a proper set of books and they have just been audited by the town auditor."

Mayor Defends Board

His Worship Mayor Ken Couch replied to Senator Fraser's statements by saying, "Sherman Graham, hospital board treasurer, deserves a great deal of credit. During the course of construction, in order to save every dollar, Mr. Graham has been called upon to do a lot of work for nothing. He could hardly be expected to keep a full set of books. For $350,000, the people of Trenton have received good value for their investment.

"You cannot run a half million dollar business in a slip shod manner" declared the Senator. "Council should insist on appointing half the members of the board and every account except operating accounts should be tabled before this council."

"The hospital board an account for every nickel," replied Mr. Couch.

Expressing his opinion of the financial report, councillor W. C. Saylor, chairman of the Finance committee commented, "It does not mean anything and it's just our hard luck to be mixed up in the business."

Will Need More Money

Senator Fraser went on to say he did not believe the proposed debentures would be sufficient to complete the hospital and meet the initial operation cost. "They'll be back to you for more money. Let's run a business," he said. "There is no question under a democratic set-up the majority rules and the minority accepts this," said the Senator referring to the recent debenture referendum which passed by a majority of three and one-half to one. "There is minority responsibility as well as rights and 241 people voted against the by-law. It is absolutely imperative that council make sure a proper financial statement is prepared."

After listening to the Senator's arguments, council passed two resolutions covering his requests. (1). "Council requested representation of the Trenton and district Memorial Hospital Board of two councillors and two other appointees. (2). Council requested the Trenton and District Memorial Hospital Board to employ a chartered accountant to set up a proper set of books."

Council Defers Action on Request For Sewer on Victoria Avenue

Trenton—(Special)— "It's the dirtiest hole in Trenton," Percy N. Gauen, 85 Lorne Avenue, told council Friday night in requesting a sewer on Victoria Avenue. Mr. Gauen told council, "sewage from the dye works dumps in at McGill and flows down McGill into a ditch on Victoria. The sewer has been overflowing into the ditch for over a month. You had money for a sewer on Wilkins Street why not for this one?

"The sewer is overflowing steadily from McGill to Wragg and it is backing up into my cellar. Tenants are paying good money for rent and deserve better facilities," said Mr. Gauen.

A similar request was voiced by Albert Sprung, 41 Hanna Street who presented a petition from Hanna Street residents asking for a sewer between Hanna and Lewis Streets. Town engineer Rex Davey said, "It is not feasible, the sewer in only three feet deep at the corner of Bocage and Hanna."

Must Await Approval

"There is no point in paying out money for a sewer and then having to tear it up if it does not fit in with the whole plan," said councillor W. C. Saylor, referring to Mr. Gauen's request. Council pointed out to Mr. Gauen that the Ontario Municipal Board had failed to approve the expenditure of $12,000 for a sewer in that district.

Council deferred action on both requests, pending the arrival of a report from a Toronto engineering firm that has been engaged to survey sewage conditions in the entire town.

Final reading was given to by-laws appointing R. G. A. Weaver deputy-clerk treasurer and Harry A. Seeley dog catcher for the summer months.

Debenture by-laws authorizing the borrowing of $126,800 for local improvements, $3,200 for improvements on Dundas Street West between Division and Queen and $5,400 to purchase a new pick-up and dump truck for the town were also given third reading.

Senator Fraser asked council to consider (1) erecting street lights along the north side of Senator Fraser Park (2) making the street along the west side of the government dock a one-way street to avoid traffic tie-ups (3) lowering and lengthening the ramp on the western approach to the bridge from the roadway along the west side of the dock (4) altering the sidewalk along the west end of Senator Fraser Park to leave parking space (5) cutting down the lilac bushes at the corner of Henry and Catherine Streets (6) having the fire marshal "inspect some of the fire traps in the centre of town and see about having them removed."

Agrees to Proposals

After discussing the Senator's proposals, council decided to install three lights on the right of way along the north side of Senator Fraser Park between Albert Street and the Government dock. It was also decided to install three lights on Kidd Avenue between Byron and Sidney Streets and a street light on John Street and also one on Wragg between Lorne Avenue and Queen Street.

With regard to making the street along the dock a one-way street, it was decided to refer the matter to the traffic committee. Council recommended that Senator Fraser and engineer Rex Davey discuss the lowering of the ramp on the western approach to the bridge. Engineer Davey was instructed to remove the bushes obstructing the view at the corner of Henry and Catherine Streets and to look after all other bad corners as well. A representative of the fire marshal's office will be asked to inspect the buildings in the centre of town that are a potential fire hazard.

On receipt of a request to park a house trailer, council passed a resolution asking the Medical Officer of Health to investigate all trailers parked inside the corporation.

Music in the Operating Room Lessens Tension of Patients

Chicago, June 19 (AP) — What will you have for your operation tomorrow —classical, semi-classical or popular music?

This is a routine question anaesthetists ask surgical patients at the university of Chicago medical clinic. The serenading is combined with anaesthesia. It's a method of soothing the sick while they undergo surgery.

The music with anaesthesia, surgeons said, relaxes the patients while working.

The music-with-surgery program was expanded when the Nathan Goldblatt Memorial Hospital on the campus opened last week. The hospital specialists in cancer research. Its six major operating rooms and six preparation rooms for surgery are equipped with music dispensing facilities.

The surgical patient hears the music he likes. It is called "music for surgery." The work is headed by Dr. Lester R. Dragstedt chairman of department of surgery of the university's clinical centre.

The idea of providing music during the administration of the clinics in 1947. It was a research experiment to help lessen tension of patients undergoing major surgery It is used with spinal, local or regional anaesthesia.

Patients hear music in the room where they are prepared for surgery. The music of their choice is heard from a mounted wall speaker. The soft music reduces the tension and allows the anaesthetist to converse with the patient during the administration of the anaesthetic.

Lightweight stethoscope-type earphones are fitted to the patient in the surgery room. Only the patient and the anaesthetist hear the music as the surgeon works.

The practice of furnishing music for surgery however, is not a new idea. It is as old as Egypt. The Pharoahs' physicians chanted while treating the sick. In the Middle Ages, groups of singers were employed to soothe the ill during epidemics.

The neckline featured a deep bertha collar, also appliqued with lace flowers. The long, tight sleeves came to lily-points over the hands. Her full length veil of embroidered illusion was held in place by a satin and seed pearl headdress. Her only ornament, a double strand of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom. She carried a cascade bouquet of cala lilies and lily-of-the-valley.

GOOD MANNERS

Distressing social error on part of fiance's parents

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother and I need your advice. . .my mother particularly. My fiance and I have been engaged for several weeks, and the engagement is to be announced publicly quite soon. My fiance lives with his family in the next town to ours, he has told them of our engagement of course, and I am positive they approve. But although before the engagement I met them on several occasions in their home and other places, they have not come to see Mother and me since they knew about the engagement. I do realize that many people have no idea that there is such a rule of etiquette that says that the fiance's family should come to call on the fiancee and her family . . . but my mother, and father too, constantly harp on the 'discourtesy' of my fiance's parents. I'd like to break this deadlock some way. Would you advise that I speak about it to my fiance . . .or what?

I just can't understand why it isn't the most natural thing in the world for a young man's family to make some gesture at once to tell their son's fiancee that they are happy about the engagement and that they joyously, proudly, welcome her into their family. But some of them don't do this; they seem to have no natural inclination even to "sense' the rule.

However, when there is this impasse, as in your case, I think it's foolish for the girl's family to stand on ceremony . . . . .I think the girl's mother should take steps as soon as possible to establish the so-important social relationship between the two families. Therefore I suggest that your mother write at once to the mother of your fiance, and invite his parents to your house for a definite time. . .Saturday or Sunday afternoon, to tea; or Sunday luncheon or midday dinner; or Saturday or Sunday buffet supper; or to dinner, if more convenient. (Such a straightforward invitation, which is gracious as well as "functional" probably would cause less complication than any suggestion of yours to your fiance about his family, a suggestion which might seem too much like a criticism of them.)

Marking "family luggage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We have two boys in boarding school, one at home, and a teenage girl at home. They have their own pieces of luggage, for school, camp, and so forth; but now I am going to buy some new pieces which might be used by any member of the family. What would be the proper way to have these pieces marked as to initials?

M. L.

Properly, and very conveniently, the family luggage may be marked with the initial of the family surname, with some easily-identifiable symbol added; for example, the surname-initial enclosed in a circle or diamond or oblong of a color contrasting with the color of the initial; or two or three dots or dashes before and after the initial; or, if you wish, the name of the city under the initial.

Gloves for the graduate?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am graduating from High School soon, and am wearing a sky-blue silk brocade evening dress. Is it necessary for me to wear long evening gloves with this type of dress? Some do here, and others don't.

Katherine C.

You might wear, and very becomingly I believe, the so-fashionable short, pert, white kid gloves. They are just as correct as long evening gloves. . . and much more youthful!

Coffee urn will be treasure for buffet service

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

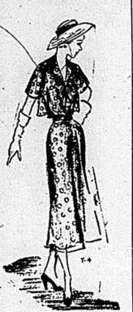
We were married several months ago, are just settling our new house, and are planning the special use of several of our wedding presents. One of these is a coffee urn, very handsome and quite large, which is an heirloom in my husband's family and which his grandmother gave us as one of her wedding presents to us. Since we havn't a dining-room, our plans must be for buffet service in entertaining, and we are wondering if it would be proper for us to use such a coffee urn for the serving of coffee at a buffet meal. of our silver tea set?

If so, could we properly use the urn with the traditionally-designed sugar bowl and cream pitcher

Roberta M.

Yes, this is entirely correct and gracious service . . and you are fortunate indeed to own such a treasure as a handsome and commodious coffee urn! A coffee urn, particularly an old one, is usually very decorative, and is ideal for buffet service. With this you may very conveniently have the complete coffee service set at one end of the buffet table, the guests to help themselves. Many hostesses place large coffee cups on one side of the coffee urn, and some after-dinner coffee cups at the other side of the urn, for the preference of the guests. And yes, it is correct and appropriate to use this urn with any design of sugar bowl and cream pitcher.

Womanly Flattery



Dress with matching bolero.

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

POLKA-DOT sheer is used for this hot weather favorite with its matching bolero. The dress is almost sleeveless, barely covering the shoulders, and has a bow at the base of the V neck. The skirt is moderately flared. The jacket is gently full and has short sleeves. This is an excellent selection for the woman's figure, as it is comfortable and figure-kind and smart without being coyly youthful.

FOR
MODERN
2277

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about Food . . . What's Cooking?

Edward VI had a good eye for food. He selected his dinner each evening from drawings. The artist who submitted pictures of the specials prepared by the court chef must have known how important was the shade of gravy or the glossy egg wash on the loaf of bread..

No artist could possibly duplicate the rich brown on a pan of fresh sticky buns just removed from the bake oven. These are small rolled buns with raisins, baked in a syrup of sugar and butter or mollasses.

They may be served at the end of meal as a sweat or served in place of bread with the main course.

There are two types of these buns—one made with a yeast dough and one with a biscuit dough. You can use prepared mixes to make either type.

The baking powder buns in the recipe below are the quickest to make because they require no rising. The amount of liquid you will need to make this batter is never exactly the same because different floors take up varying amounts of moisture. But you should only add enough liquid to form a light tender dough. If the dough is too wet and sticky before it is rolled, the buns will be tough.

Raisin Buns

Cream 1-4 cup butter or margarine until soft. Add half cup brown sugar. Spread mixture over the bottom of a 7 inch round cake pan.

Measure 2 cups of previously sifted all purpose flour. Combine with 1-2 teaspoon salt, 3 teaspoons baking powder and 1-4 cup granulated sugar. Sift all ingredients together.

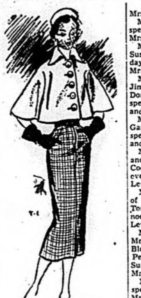
Cut in 1-4 cup butter or vegetable fat until mixture resembles coarse meal. Use a pastry blender or two knives to chop shortening.

Beat 1 egg and combine with 1-2 cup milk. Add liquid to dry ingredients in mixing bowl. Use only enough liquid to make a dough that holds together and follows fork around mixing bowl.

Turn out on lightly floured board. Knead 10-12 strokes Roll dough into a rectangle about 8 to 10 inches. Spread generously with softened butter or margarine. Sprinkle with 1-2 cup brown sugar. Dust with cinnamon. Sprinkle 1-2 cup raisins over dough.

Roll dough lengthwise, jelly roll fashion. Cut into 2 inch pieces. Place cut side down on prepared pan.

Preheat over at 425 degrees for 15 minutes. Place pan in oven. Bake until brown, about 18-20 minutes. Turn pan upside down to remove buns.



Short coat of fleece

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

VERY new and different looking is the flared short jacket that looks more like a cape than what it really is. The illusion is created by flared sleeves from a very sloping shoulder. This version is fashioned of fleece in canary yellow, a color and shade thatis starting to register. It has matching yellow bone buttons. The jacket is good looking over slim skirts such as this gray on gray checker worsted.

Mrs. Gregor Murray's Pupils Present Pleasant Recital

On Thursday evening a piano recital by the pupils of Mrs. Gregor Murray, A.C.C.M. in the High School auditorium offered a pleasant evening of entertainment to the parents and friends of the young artists. Assisting in the program were Mr. Martin, Douglas Murray and Mr. Rothwell, principal of Madoc Public School, who acted as chairman for the evening.

In his opening remarks the chairman said the purpose of the recital was not to reveal any musical geniuses, but rather to give the pupils an opportunity of playing before an audience, and to give them confidence and poise, a very necessary part of their musical training. The proceeds were donated to the Home and School Association, of which Mrs. Murray is an active member and convener of the committee of music and art.

Following the program a social hour for guests and pupils was held in the Home Economics room of the Public School.

'Bring 'Em Back Alive' Boys Suffer No Longer in Jungles

Bangkok, June 19 (AP) —Drop into the hotel Trocadero lobby and see how the snarling beasts of the jungle are rounded up by the world's animal collectors.

Most of the collectors who supply tigers, elephants, tapirs, pythons, leopards and other jungle creatures to zoos and circuses seem to be using Bangkok as a base these days. For one thing, there are more animals more readily available in Siam and for another, they are cheaper here.

These collectors usually gather around a table at the Trocadero or the Oriental. Seated in deep leather seats and sipping iced tea or lime squash, they can spend a pleasant afternoon "bringing 'em back alive."

The animal collectors — let's face it— don't go in for capturing the beasts in the jungle. The Siamese dealer who sells them the caged beasts doesn't capture them either. He buys them.

The reasons wild game collectors don't get their beasts in the jungle are few and simple.

It costs too much. Few of the collectors speak Siamese so it is difficult to work with the trappers. The government doesn't want them in the jungle anyway. And, perhaps above all they just don't know how.

Not that they can't handle wild animals. On the contrary, some of the collectors are more adept at that than the young jungle people who snare the beasts, box them and bring them to Bangkok.

If a white man goes up country to hunt wild game and one of his native entourage gets killed, it would cost him plenty.: There are casualties, since it isn't easy to bag a killer. However, since Thailanders usually handle all the trapping themselves, the cost of a boy killed rarely runs more than $25.

Lumber Shortage Due to Demands Of United States

Toronto, June 19 — (CP) —Big United States demand—at good prices—has caused a serious lumber shortage in Canada.

So bad is the situation, it was learned Saturday, that many retailers are unable to fill the orders even of regular customers.

Lumber-market informants said the increased flow of lumber to the United States has caused trouble for Canadian builders—and that the worst apparently is still to come.

Some Ontario retailers are considering informally, advisability of asking the federal government to impose export restrictions such as were applied during the war.

But many feel nothing would be gained by such a request, it was reported.

"The cabinet probably would tell us to go to the devil," said one retailer, "because both the Bank of Canada and the government want those American dollars badly."

Trade sources said producers in British Columbia, the Maritimes, Quebec and northern Ontario — chief Canadian lumber regions— "are just shooting the stuff across into the States and getting splendid prices."

Canada Facing Period of Tight Lumber Supply

Ottawa, June 19 (CP) —Canada is facing a period of tight lumber supply but prospects are that the situation will ease with the end of the big summer building rush, an official of the Central Housing and Mortgage Corporation said Saturday.

It was not so much that Canada actually was short of lumber, he said, but prices were going up in anticipation of one. The lifting of restrictions in March of lumber exports to the United States combined with a "terrific American shortage" had boomed the market in this country with U. S. builders buying huge orders of Canadian lumber.

"It began on the west coast," he said. "Prices of some types of building material there have doubled and the situation now is being felt on the prairies. It hasn't yet hit Ontario or Quebec to any extent and I think it will ease off as demands become satisfied and building drops off in the fall.

"I wouldn't go so far as to say the situation was threatening Canada's house-building program, but the situation is tight and if there is more labor trouble in the lumber camps of the west coast that won't help."

In Donegal, fisherman William Bonner, 23, celebrated his release from jail for allegedly shooting Wayman. Bonner was freed on $560 bail, which virtually the whole town of Portaleen helped raise, and reiterated "we will fight again if there is any more infringing on our waters." The Lock Esk was on a fishing trip. — Central Press Canadian.

Killer Gives Self Up to Winchell In N.Y. Station

New York, June 19 — (AP)—One of two men accused of killing a Garment Workers' Union organizer gave himself up Sunday night. He was accompanied by radio commentator Walter Winchell.

The man, Benedetto Macri, is under indictment for the stabbing of William Lurye, May 9, 1949.

Winchell earlier had predicted that an unnamed accused killer would surrender to him.

The columnist said he will turn a $25,000 reward over to the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund.

The reward was posted by David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union (A. F. L.) two days after Lurye was stabbed.

The union had been conducting a drive against what is termed "non-union sweat-shop employers," and linked the killing to them.

The investigation led to the indictment of Macri, 36, and John Giusto, 31-year-old paroled convict.

Macri walked into the West 20th Street police station late Sunday night. Still accompanied by Winchell, he was taken to the District Attorney's office.

Winchell said a rendezvous with Macri had been arranged by a third person "absolutely unknown to me."

First Boy Scout Troop Holds Wiener Roast

Frankford—The first Frankford Boy Scout Troop held a wiener roast on the Gair Company Island, Wednesday evening. The turnout was good, as could be expected among a group of teen-age boys with good appetites. Prior to the wiener roast, four of the newer Scouts were given their fire-lighting test, which consists of lighting a fire without the use of paper, dry bark or grass and not using more than two matches.

Then came the food! Scout Earl Rose, it was discovered, likes the odd bit of wiener with his mustard. Ken Letch had to be watched closely, since he was still hungry, and there were horses running loose in the vicinity. "Pete" Stickle is going to try to invent a wiener that won't curl up when roasted. The ends protruding from the side of the bun have a nasty habit of smearing mustard on the hands.

Following the feast, a council fire was held, and Scoutmaster Gene Lohnes outlined some of the plans for the coming camp trip. A short sing-song was enjoyed. The Frankford Boys believe that they hold the honor of having the worst singing voices in Ontario.

All in all, it was a very enjoyable evening for the boys, who are already asking "when we gonna have another?"

The Mocking Bird of Human Diseases Gives Medical Men Lots of Headaches

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

New York, June 19 (AP) — ctors are getting wise to a dis- se that has fooled them more almost than any disease ever did.

This fooler has made them think a person had any one of 60 other illness. It's a mocking bird among diseases imitating things it isn't. It is far more common than polio.

It has a terrible name — infectious mononucleosis (mahn-oh-new-klee- oh-sis). Another name is glandular fever. It makes you feel rotten. But it's not nearly so bad as its name. With rest, it goes away by itself and rarely causes complications.

But it can be especially wicked when it makes doctors suspect you have some fatal disease. Blood tests unmask the real culprit.

This disease can make doctors suspect cancer of the blood (leukemia) or cancer of the lypmph glands (Hodgkin's dis- e). It can lead them to sus- ct tuberculosis, kidney or liver diseases, mumps, measles, syphilis, food rash, chickenpox, meningitis, typhoid fever, scarlet fever, tumors, nerve, eye or heart diseases to mention some ferent diseases were diagnosed in 61 patients before they were shown to have mononucleosis. Other reports add 19 other mistaken diagnoses. On physician puts the total number as high as 60.

Twenty years ago, infectious mononucleosis was scarcely recognized. Today it is fairly common, but there are no figures on how many persons get it.

Children and young adults are the main victims. It bursts forth in epidemics, or may occur here and, there for no apparent reason.

It probably is caused by a virus. In epidemics it is probably air-borne, says an account of the ease in the new eighth edition the Merck manual, a sourcebook for physicians.

It brings an increase of white blood cells having one nucleas, hence the name mononucleosis.

Town Not Liable For Fire Damage

Montreal, — (CP) — Towns have the discretionary power to oganize fire protection, but are not under legal obligation for this protection under the municipal code, according to a superior court decision.

The decision came with dismissal of a $70,000 action by the Stonewill Clothing Co., of St. Lin, Que., against the municipality of St. Lin after their textile plant was destroyed by fire Jan. 13, 1948. Damages were sought on the unds that the factory owners d taxes to the municipality for fire protection.

In handing down the judgment, Mr. Justice Theodule Rheaume said ineffective or inadequate fire protection given by a municipal fire department cannot be made a liability to the municipality in the event of loss by fire, regardless of the fact that the department is maintained by taxes.

Company spokesmen said firemen arrived in time but due to shortage of hose and pumping difficulties didn't get at the fire until the plant was destroyed.

Too Much Brushing Said to Harm Teeth

Wellington, N.Z., (CP)—Brushing teeth after every meal or drink makes them susceptible to dental decay. This is the conclusion reached after a year's tests by Dr. R. E. T. Hewat for the dental committee of the New Zealand Medical Research Council.

Dr. Hewat thinks as a result of the tests that there is a maximum level of dental hygiene and that excessive brushing and rinsing beyond that point may do more harm than good.

The tests were carried out with a group of student nurses who observed the strictest dental hygiene for a year. As a result they showed more dental decay than a group of nurses who had no special instructions.

On the other hand Dr. Hewat found that a group of nurses who cut out biscuits, cakes, sweets, chocolates, ice cream, free sugars and cordials for six weeks during the year had less dental decay at the end of the year than either of the other groups. The weight of the nurses who adopted this diet system remained stable and they gained in mental and physical alertness.

John MacNicol Former M.P., Dies Suddenly

Toronto, June 19—(CP)—John R. MacNicol, one of the most colorful figures to enter the Canadian colitical scene in the last 20 years, died suddenly Sunday night.

The former Progressive Conservative member for Toronto Davenport dropped dead at Malton airport, where he is believed to have been waiting for a friend.

An ardent booster of Canada's natural resources, Mr. MacNicol built up a reputation as one of the most widely-travelled members of parliament during his 20 years in the Commons. First elected to parliament in 1930, he was returned in the 1935, 1940 and 1945 general elections but was defeated in his bid for re-election last June.

The portly figure of the Toronto businessman was almost as well known in some sections of the Maritimes and western Canada as in his home consistuency.

A man of wide interest and broad outlook, he was always travelling from one part of the country to the other and rarely confined his speeches in the Commons to the needs of his own constituency.

Mr. MacNicol continually called for irrigation projects in the west and power developments in the Maritimes. He often told the Commons that his travels had convinced him that all Canada would benefit from such work.

In 1946 he toured the Maritimes and came back with a suggestion for a canal across the Chignecto Isthmus, linking the Bay of Fundy with the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Laden With Specimens

It was not unusual for the grey-haired, bushy-eyebrowed member to enter the Commons laden with specimens of ore or coal picked up from various Canadian mines during his summer trips. One of his pet topics was the need for greater development of British Columbia and Alberta coalfields and of mechanization of the Maritime fields. He pleaded for greater use of the produce of those fields in central Canada.

His travels carried him to most parts of Canada—to the Shipshaw power development on the Saguenay; to the Ohio River watershed; to Steep Rock Lake to see the iron ore operations there; to the ore-loading docks at Port Arthur; to Fort McMurray to examine oil developments, and to Aklavik, White Horse and Dawson City.

"I like to see these things and understand them before discussing them in the Commons," he explained once.

Born at Beaverton

Born at Beaverton, Ont., he married Maisi MacKinnon of Gery county. She died in 1932.

He taught school in Algoma and Grey counties of Ontario at the beginning of his career and later was associated with the Radiator and Boiler Manufacturing industry in Canada for more than 20 years.

A jovial, soft-spoken participant in Commons debates, he habitually smiled at the government benches while urging his pet projects, but could show a flash of anger if irritated.

Only a few months before the last general election, he banged his desk in the Commons and shouted angrily at Colin Gibson, then secretary of state, for dismissing a returning officer in his riding.

Mr. MacNicol was president of the Ontario Conservative Association. He served as joint chairman of the Dominion Conservative convention at Ottawa in 1938.

In the last general election in Toronto Davenport Mr. MacNicol lost to P. T. Hellyer, Liberal, who polled 11,431 votes to 10,476 for Mr. MacNicol. A C.C.F. candidate ran third.

New Trombone Eases Wear and Tear on Player

New York, June 19 (AP) — Davis Shuman has invented a new trombone.

Now wait, don't rush off. This really concerns an act of mercy. For years—hundreds of years — trombonists have been stretching themselves out of joint, have suffered dancing eye balls and gone lame in their pitching arms.

The principal obstacle has been the failure hthe lodrd man fentn the slide. It slides straight forward, right in the line of fire of the music stand, and this is hard on the players eyes. The trombonist has to point his slide downward, throwing the sound down and losing much of it in the basement.

Now, at long last, these dangers and difficulties are reduced. Now even a midget can play a trombone.

For Davis Shuman has invented a trombone which slides off to the right at an agle, somewhere between 30 and 45 degrees.

"The big advantage" says Shuman "is that my trombone eliminates fatigue. It breaks out of the straight jacket of the old trombone and makes possible a new freedom and gracefulness."

Shuman, 37, baldish and gray, is an authority on the problems of the trombone.

"I'm hoping more people will learn to love the instrument," he says, "and more composers will write for it. Men like Beethoven, Brahms and Mozart limited the trombone to very brief or very slow passages in a symphony. They'd give it eight or 16 measures and then let the trombonist rest.

"Now with my new slide, composers no longer need to worry about the fatigue problem. The trombone is no longer a weak stepchild in the orchestra."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

HOW ABOUT IT?

It is about time something concrete was done about the Central Ontario Baseball League situation in this district. Picton and Batawa teams' managements have been having a wing-ding over the eligibility of Belleville players and the result is that a spot of hard feeling is cropping up between the two squads. It is all well and good to be rivals on the diamond but when personalities creep into the picture, it is not only bad for the game but displays an attitude of ignorance and bad sportsmanship on the part of all concerned.

Ill feeling, as we said before, is beginning to rear an ugly head. Both Picton and Batawa are and have been angling for the services of Belleville Players with little or no regard for the feelings of the management of the Belleville Cubs, the city's entry in the Belleville and District League. Picton grabbed Dick Fitzpatrick and Jackie Wardhaugh (we hear he's back from Brockville, and the ears of the COBL executive should be pinky on that one). Batawa protested on the grounds that the mentioned players had to be waived by the Shoemen on account of residence. Saturday big Vern Goyer was seen in a Picton uniform. It so happens that Goyer has signed a Cub certificate. True he can play three games with a senior league team, but again pops the question of waiver by Batawa. The Shoemen say nix, the Cub management has a signed certificate, so what now, little men?

The situation as it stands at present is not doing this so-called senior baseball any good in general nor the Picton and Batawa teams in particular. Right now they are twiddling thumbs at each other at the bottom of the league standing and their "to-hell-with-each-other" attitude, with the Cubs in the meat role of the argumentative sandwich is anything but sauce for the baseball fare. The fans are getting a bit disgusted with this foolish jockeying, and attempted efforts to find a loop-hole in the walls of Ontario Baseball Association regulations. It is not getting either team anything, and surely there are, or should be, sufficient brains in both managements to realize that sooner or later they must abide by what is officially laid down.

What actually is needed, if senior baseball as it is tabbed by its executive and with which we with a lot of others disagree, is to live up to its alleged calibre, is the insertion of a few good baseball players in both the Picton and Batawa teams. Brockville, Smiths Falls, and Kingston, have not spared the horses nor the do-ray-me to strengthen their teams, and while some will say they have been defeated by both Picton and Batawa, we are of the opinion that the league standing as at present, tells the story. At least, there has been some degree of consistency in the top-teams play.

We, naturally, stand behind the district teams. We would like to see them up there battling each other for the league title. But this useless bickering about players, releases, waivers, with both sides showing plain signs of stubbornness, and ill-feeling is not getting anyone anywhere. What should have been done by both Batawa and Picton, knowing they were entering senior baseball, and with the league letting down the bars as far as imports are concerned, is to have secured whatever outside help they deemed necessary before the season started. This extension of the OBA to July 15 to sign players has not done the situation, locally at least, any good.

* * *

Baseball, in this city, after a more or less spirited revival is again tottering on the brink of oblivion. There is and has been a definite lack of co-operation between those who could make the game a success, the inability of the City Parks Board to furnish a proper playing field, and the lackadaisical attitude of the city fathers on the matter. Joe Fan, after all, is nobody's fool. The success of any sport depends on his attitude. He can make or break it. And after all, the man who pays the bills, via the box-office, should be given some consideration.

BROTHER, 'TWAS COLD!

What is as rare as a day in June with the frost on the punkin and icicles on the moon. There wasn't anything resembling the soft balmy zephyr the poetical fraternity rave about in that breeze that swept across the Picton baseball diamond on Saturday. About the only comfortable bloke in the stands was the engineer of the broadcasting unit who had earphones wrapped about his noggin. They served a dual purpose, one that for which they were intended and the other to keep the lad's personal receivers at a comfortable degree of heat.

Ron Sivel, the Picton Times demon reporter, shook and shivered like a freshly-turned-out jelly. Jack Devine's voice tremolo'ed on the air as the frosty breeze struck it and the fans in general were huddled in groups reminiscent of a late Autumn football game. Louis Yanover's hands shook as he took the money and not from the cause you think. It was the weather. It was dag-nabbed cool and the red woolies lying in their summer mothballs would have come in handy. It was weather anything but conducive to baseball, good or bad.

But weather or no weather, the Picton squad went down to a 10-3 defeat before the rampaging Memos from Brockville while the Smiths Falls Royals were lambasting the bejapers out of the Kingston Leafs to win by 9-0. Napanee is now perched comfortably on the top rung of the COBL ladder with Brockville, Smiths Falls and Kingston following in the order named. Batawa and Picton are playing peek-a-boo with each other at the bottom of the heap.

Hot weather may be the cat's whiskers for baseball players in general and pitchers in particular, but that is a lot of malarkey as far as young Jimmy Tomlinson, Brockville southpaw is concerned. Jimmy revelled in the frost-tinged breezes and fork-handed his way to a clean-cut 10-3 victory over the prides of the "little Spanish town". True, he yielded up nine clouts, two of them a triple and single by another Sivel-described "fugitive from Belleville", one Vern Goyer. And thereby hands something of a tale.

Two Picton huriers, Frankie Dyer and Miller failed to stop the Brockville bludgeons. Miller toiled in his share of the mounded assignment to give up eight hits for seven runs and Dyer took over and was treated almost as roughly. The hits were clustered among the players with Atkins of Brockville stabbing out a pair of two-baggers and a single and Dad Ashley and Dafoe spearing a brace of one-baggers each. In addition to the Goyerian clouts mentioned before, Ray Carson of the Picton team grabbed himself a pair of bingles.

Brockville pounced on the Miller offerings for a single run in the second and exploded for four in the third. They added three in the next inning to tuck the ball-game away and for good measure tacked on a brace in the ninth. Picton's offensive such as it was, bore fruit in the sixth for two and a single in the seventh.

Tigers' Success in Loop May Trace to New Found Ability To Beat Boston Red Sox

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

"If we could only beat Boston we might have a chance."

This was manager Red Rolfe's stock answer to spring queries regarding Detroit's pennant chances for 1950.

Rolfe's Tigers won only seven games from the Red Sox in 1949 while losing 15 They finished fourth, 10 games behind New York Yankees. That was the number they won from Boston in 1948 when they finished fifth.

The Tigers have met the Red Sox a dozen times thus far and have come off with nine victories. That is the chief reason why the Bengals are leading the rest of the American League by two full games today.

Detroit made it nine victories in the last 10 games Sunday by trouncing Boston 10-2. Art Houtteman allowed seven hits, but two of them were homers by Ted Williams and Vern Stephens to account for Boston's runs.

The Tigers' 12 hits included four-baggers by George Kell, Aaron Robinson and Hoot Evers.

Margin Shaved

Despite the victory, Detroit's first-place margin was shaved a half-game by the Yankees who whipped the Browns 15-5 and 9-0 in St. Louis.

Cleveland's Indians blasted Philadelphia Athletics twice, 7-0 and 21-2. After Bobby Feller blanked the A's with two hits in the first game, the Indians scored a record 14 runs in the first inning of the nightcap.

Brooklyn's Dodgers climbed to within a half-game of the National League-leading St. Louis Cardinals by whipping the Red Birds for the third straight time 9-0. Philadelphia's third place Phillies moved to within 1½ games of the top, tripping Cincinnati Reds 4-3 and 4-2.

Giants Move up

The Giants trounced Chicago Cubs 6-0 and 10-5 to creep up to within a half-game of the fifth place Bruins. Boston's Braves won their sixth straight defeating Pittsburgh 8-6 in the first game of a doubleheader. The second was called after nine innings on account of darkness with the score tied at 8-8. The game will be replayed tonight.

Cleveland's 14 runs was the most ever made in the first inning. The previous high was 13 made by the Braves in 1900 and the Giants in 1911. The A's held the American League mark of 12 set in 1937.

Three other clubs since 1900 tallied 14 runs in an inning. They were the Yankees in the fifth inning in 1920, the Cubs in the fourth in 1922 and the Red Sox in the seventh in 1948. The old Chicago Nationals got 18 in the seventh inning of a game in 1883 for the all-time scoring record.

TRYS FOR RETURN TRIP

Dover, Kent, England, July 19 (Reuters) — Philip Mickman, brawny young Yorkshireman who last August swam from France to England to become at 18 the youngest successful channel swimmer, has begun training for the return trip.

Philip has set his mind on tackling the 21-mile swim "the hard way"—from England to France, with less friendly tides.

This year Mickman is being trained by his father, a Yorkshire business man. In the role of "consulatant," he will have E. H. Temme, first man to swim the channel in both directions.

Noor Makes it Three In Row Over Citation

(By The Canadian Press)

Irish-bred Noor made it three in a row over mighty Citation Saturday with a world-record shattering 1¼ miles at Golden Gate Fields in Albany, Calif. The time was one minute, 46 4-5 seconds, clipping 4-5 of a second off the old mark.

Roman was third.

The five-year-old son of Nasrullah, sold by the Ali Khan to the late Charles S. Howard, proved his superiority with a tremendous stretch run after trailing the five-horse field until the far turn.

On Trust ran fourth and Stepfather fifth and last.

Noor beat the old record jointly held by Indian Broom, Shannon II and Citation's stablemate, Coaltown.

Noor paid $5.50 and $2.30. Citation, the 3-to-5 favorite, returned $2.20 for the place position. There was no show betting.

The touring English All-Stars Sunday downed the United States select squad 1-0 before 8,241 fans in an international exhibition soccer match at New York's Triborough stadium. The teams were in a scoreless deadlock at half time.

The victory gave the Britons a record of nine victories and one tie for their long goodwill tour which took them through Canada before their lone appearance in the United States.

Weary from an all-night train ride from Windsor, Ont., where they trounced the Ontario All-Stars 9-2 Saturday night, the All-Stars were not at their best and played without two ranking stars—Stan Matthews and Jim Taylor, both of whom suffered minor injuries in the game against Manchester United at Toronto last Wednesday.

At Arcadia, Calif., Jerry the First, taking charge of the race in the drive down the stretch captured the $50,000 Golden West pace for the second straight year Saturday at Santa Anita Park.

The six-year-old chestnut owned by Eddie Cobb and Jerry Burdick of Washington Court House, O., and driven by Cobb finished 1½ lengths in front of the California-bred Patchen Axworthy, while the popular Dr. Stenton faded back to third place in the field of 10 standard-breds.

Don McEwen, Michigan's brilliant two-mile star from Ottawa, and the defending shot-put champion, Jim Fuchs of Yale, shattered records in Saturday's finals of the N.C.A.A. track and field meet at Minneapolis.

McEwen ran his vaunted Indian rival, Jim Newcomb, into the ground, as he won the two-mile by 100 yards in 9:01.9, shaving seven-tenths of a second from Greg Rice's 1939 N.C.A.A. record of 9:02.6.

For the second straight day, Fuchs topped the shot-put mark with a winning flip of 56 feet, 11 3-16 inches Friday, Fuchs broke his own 1949 record of 56 1½ with a toss of 56 7¼.

Ralph (Cooney) Weiland, who coached Boston Bruins to two Stanley Cup victories, Sunday night was named hockey coach at Harvard University.

Weiland holds the distinction of being the only professional hockey player to be named both a National League all-star player and all-star coach.

He set the league record for the most points in a season when he tallied 43 goals and 30 assists as a member of Boston Bruins in 1929-30, still a record for 44 games. He piloted the Bruins to victory in the Stanley Cup play-offs in 1938-39 and 1940-41.

Don MacFarlane of Western University, London, Ont., Sunday beat Arthur Wint of Jamaica, 400-metre Olympic champion, in the 400-metre event at Amsterdam's Olympic day athletic meet, witnessed by members of The Netherlands royal family MacFarlane won with a time of 47.5 seconds, compared with Wint's 47.8.

MacFarlane then went on to win the 800-metre race, with an exciting finish over Jan Kist of The Netherlands. The Canadian put on a spurt in the last 50 metres to come in in 1:56.8. Kist's time was 1:58.0.

Orioles' Hurling Staff is Talk Of the League

(By the Associated Press)

Baltimore Orioles' pitching staff is the talk of the International League today.

Russ Bauers, Bill Kennedy and Irv Medlinger accomplished what no other pitcher has done so far this season—shut out the pace-setting Rochester Red Wings. They performed this amazing feat in three consecutive games during the last two days.

Bauers, veteran righthander, started the ball rolling when he blanked the Wings 4-0 Saturday to become the first pitcher to whitewash the Wings this season.

Southpaws Kennedy and Medlinger carried on by blanking the Wings, 6-0 and 1-0 Sunday. Kennedy scattered six singles in posting his sixth victory and third shutout. Anse Moore and Butch Woyt accounted for all of Baltimore's runs with their seventh homers.

Medlinger restricted the Wings to two singles in the seven inning nightcap and drove home the only run of the game with a double in the second inning. It was Medlinger's fourth victory.

The defeat cut Rochester's lead over the runner-up Springfield Cubs to a half game. The Cubs divided with Montreal Royals, winning the opener 4-3 but dropping the nightcap 17-2

Les Peden singled Bob Talbot home from 3rd with two out in the ninth inning to win the opener for relief pitcher Frank Lamanna.

Snap Loss Streak

The Royals snapped their nine-game losing streak with a 15-hit barrage in the nightcap.

Syracuse split a pair with Toronto Maple Leafs, dropping the opener 6-4 but taking the finals 1-0 behind the one-hit pitching of Eddie Blake who gained his fourth victory without a loss.

Catcher Ed Oswald singled in the second inning for the only hit off Blake. Elbie Flint, who homered in the opener, drove home Russ Burns with the game's lone run in the fourth inning.

Art Hartley had the Leafs beaten 4-0 going into the eighth of the opener when Toronto erupted for six runs to pull the game out. Ed Sanicki featured the rally with a pinch-hit homer.

Jersey City Giants took both ends of a twin bill from the last-place Buffalo Bisons 6-5 and 10-2.

Waterloo Tigers Rally to Win In Ninth Frame

(By The Canadian Press)

Waterloo Tigers, who have been methodically shellacking most of the other teams in the Intercounty Baseball League all year, showed Saturday the stuff that has put them well atop the league standing.

Tigers have showed right along they could hold a lead. But Saturday they came from behind when it counted. They beat Guelph Maple Leafs 7-6.

Tigers trailed the Leafs 6-4 going into the last of the ninth, and it looked very much like the cellar-dwelling Leafs might hand the Waterloo team a defeat. But Tigers exploded for three runs and the ball game.

Augie Herchenratter plated the winning run with a single after the tying run came in on an error by Nick Ciani. Mike Kvasnak, signed by the Tiges last week, was given credit for the win, although he didn't finish. Cy Bricker pitched the last two innings.

Tigers dropped a night game in Brantford, when the Red Sox beat them 5-1. Guelph lost their second of the day when London Majors beat them 4-2. Stratford Nationals defeated Kitchener 13-4 and St. Thomas Legion nipped Galt Terriers 4-3.

Lloyd Mangrum Golfer to Watch P.G.A. Tourney

New Rochelle, N.Y., June 19 —(AP) —Wheeling along the road today toward Columbus O., and the Professional Golfers' Association championship is a guy who will bear watching.

Lloyd Mangrum rates as the man to beat in the P.G.A. event he currently is the hottest thing in golf, with $8,100 in prize money to show for the last three weeks of play.

He picked up $3,000 Sunday by winning the ninth annual Palm Beach round-robin tournament, the sum going into the kitty along with the $2,500 he won for finishing second, after a playoff, in the National Open, and the $2,600 he pocketed in winning the Fort Wayne, Ind., Open the preceding week.

There was nothing flukey about the dapper guys triumph. He demonstrated convincingly that he was the best of the field of 16 star pros in every phase of the four-day, five round event.

He had the highest point total, 37, with Lawson Little a distant second with 20 points.

His medal score of 344 for the five rounds was nine strokes better than that of the second low man in that department, Claude Harmon.

He shot one round of 65, tying the competitive course record.

Under Par in 5 Rounds

He was the only entrant to be under par for each of the five rounds.

He beat the two men with whom he tied in the Open —Ben Hogan and George Fazio —by 20 and 21 strokes, respectively. As they suffered a letdown, Mangrum's game blossomed.

The Palm Beach tournament schedule provides that each players play in a foursome with each other player in one of the five rounds. Points are computed by comparing the medal scores of the foursome members. That is, a man shooting a 70 would be plus—two over a rival shooting a par 72.

Little, with a point score of plus 20 and a medal score of 353, took second money of $2,000 in the $15,000 event, and Claude Harmon won $1,500 for third place. He had plus 15, three points better than fourth-place Herman Barron.

Behind the third-place Harmon the players finished as follows: Herman Barron, plus 12; Art Bell, plus 10; Carry Middlecoff, plus 10; Jimmy Demaret, plus 2; Sam Snead, plus 2; Jim Ferrier, zero: Jack Burke Jr., zero; Hogan minus 12; Norman Von Nida, minus 13; George Fazio, minus 15; Paul Runyan, minus 18; Red Hass, Jr., minus 20 and Chick Harbert, minus 31.

Plane Missing For Nine Days With 15 Aboard

Miami, Fla., June 19—(AP)—A twin-engine DC-3 passenger plane carrying 15 persons on a flight from Miami to Venezuela had been missing for nine days, the coast guard was advised Sunday.

Owned by the new Tribes Mission of Chico, Calif., the plane carried a crew of three and a passenger list which included three missionaries and five children.

It left Miami about noon June 9, stopped for fuel at Kingston, Jamaica, and was last reported at 7 p.m. that night over the Venezuelan coast.

Mrs. Donna Wetherald, wife of the pilot, who is waiting in Miami for her husband's return, said Venezuelan authorities have refused requests that a search be instituted for the missing plane. There was no explanation for the refusal.

Sweden, Italy, Denmark, Poland In Semi-Finals

London, June 19 (AP)— Sweden, Italy and Denmark joined Poland Sunday in semi-finals of the European zone Davis Cup eliminations.

Italy's defending champions had the roughest sailing, being forced the limit before expelling Belgium, 3-2.

Trailing 1-2 going into the final day, the Belgians pulled level when Philippe Washer turned back Italy's Rolando Del Bello 6-4, 6-1, 6-1.

But the Italian ace, Gianni Cucelli, outlasted Jackie Brichant in the decisive singles match, 6-2, 5-7, 6-4, 6-2, and sent Italy into the sim-finals against Denmark.

The Danes qualified by subduing France 3-2, their first Davis Cup victory in history over their rivals.

Young Kurt Nielsen was the hero of Denmark's triumph, scoring two singles conquests and sharing in the doubles victory.

Sweden swept past the Philippines 5-0 to go into the round of four against Poland, which had advanced earlier over Ireland.

Washington Crew Wins All Races At Regatta

Marietta, O., June 19 (AP) — Washington sped homeward today with the crown of college shell racing, but the crew really bustin' with pride was "Orphan" Stanford.

Stanford won third place in Saturday's 48th annual Inter-Collegiate Rowing Association regatta on the Ohio River.

But that third place was far more than the Stanford crew and the 11 other colleges competing against them expected of the westerners in the two-mile varsity race.

More important to the Stanford boys, however, is the fact that when they get home they can say to their school's officials:

"Look wat we did at Marietta! Now, will you recognize rowing as an official sport at Stanford?"

Since Stanford does not recognize rowing, the crew had to raise their own funds. Students and alumni provided $3,500 for the trip east, and rival California (which placed second Saturday) provided transportation for the Stanford boats.

That's how Stanford got the name, "Orphan Crew."

Washington's Huskies finished first in Saturday's Varsity race, just as they and their coach, Al Ulbrickson, and most of the rival coaches had predicted.

Washington's oarsmen went further. They captured also the freshman and junior varsity races, the fourth time their school has done this.

The 61-foot Washington shell skimmed the two miles on a river muddied and debris-strewn from flood waters in eight minutes, 7½ seconds—a speed of about 15 miles an hour.

Tiberio Mitri To Meet La Motta In Title Fight

New York, June 19—(AP) — There'll not only be a new face but new surroundings and a new date as well when Jake Lamotta defends his world middleweight championship.

Forced by Rocky Graziano's hand injury to do a quick job of improvising, the International Boxing Club announced the following substitute set-up.

Principals—Jake Lamotta vs. Italy's Tiberio Mitri.

Date—July 12.

Place—Madison Square Garden.

Original plans were for Lamotta to risk his rusting diadem against Graziano June 28 at the polo grounds. But Graziano broke a thumb in training last week.

Mitri, the substitute, probably is amazed at the speedy way things are breaking for him since he came to the United States in the spring.

He got off the ship March 14. May 19 he was a headliner in Madison Square Garden, without the necessity of club build-up, and winner over light-heavy Dick Wagner of Toppenich, Wash.

Today he is challenger for Lamotta's controversial 160-pound title, recognized everywhere except in Pennsylvania, which recognizes Ray Robinson as king of the middleweights on the basis of his recent victory over Robert Villemain.

Has Imposing Record

Mitri, who hails from Trieste, has an imposing record of 52 professional victories and three draws without a setback.

He numbers among his victims Cyrille Delannoit, who whipped the late Marcel Cerdan, and Laurent Dauthuille of France, rated a leading middleweight contender.

The I.B.C. announced that the fight was being pushed forward two weeks to allow Mitri more time for training. It was moved into the air-conditioned garden, the I.B.C. said, as a "break for the fans."

In Montreal Sunday night promoter Raoul Godbout said he has offered Lamotta $35,000 or 40 per cent of the gate to defend his crown against Dauthuille at the Montreal baseball stadium during the last week of July. He said the chances of a title fight being held in Montreal were about 60-40. He estimated such an event should draw "in excess of $150,000."

DROP TO CELLAR

Picton, June 19—(CP)— Picton McFarlands dropped to the cellar of the Central Ontario Baseball League Saturday when they were defeated 10-3 by Brockville. Brockville piled up a lead of 8-0 by the end of the fourth on the pitching of Gerald Miller of Picton, but Frank Miller limited Brockville to four hits for the rest of the game. Atkins led the Brockville attack with two doubles and a single.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

There is no mystery to the rule f 11. It is plainly a matter of imple mathematics applied in he form of a short cut. Nothing ut taking a group of figures in ull form.

When a player leads the fourth est card of his suit, subtract the umeral on the led card from 11. his tells how many higher than he led card are in the three ands outside of leader.

Against a three no-trump contract by south, west leads the lub four when the clubs in the ands are as shown here:

♣7 5 2

WEST ♣A 10 6 4

SOUTH
♣K J 8

Deduct the led card four, from 1 and the answer is seven. This eans that north and east and outh must have exactly seven lubs that are higher than the our. Exactly that many.

Sitting east you see two higher han the four in dummy north nd two higher in your east hand. herefore, south must have three lubs higher than the four. Valuble defensive information for ou.

But why deduct from 11 to get his information? Why not from ome other number like 10 or 12 r 13. The answer lies in the umbers on the cards if all had umbers instead of some having etters.

Starting with the lowest, the ards rank as follows: 2, 3, 4, 5, , 7, 8, 9, 10, J, Q, K, A. If the etters are numbered, jack would e 11, queen 12, king 13, ace ould be number 14.

In other words, the cards are ot numbered from 1 to 13. They re numbered from 2 to 14 in the howing of 13 cards of any suit. Keep in mind, therefore, that the ighest is 14 not 13.

A player who leads his fourth est must have three higher, of ourse. Deduct his higher three rom number 14 and result is 11. Deep stuff for you mathematical ounds.

Remember to subtract the led ard from 11 and you can forget he reason. My only purpose in xplaining it is to show how mart I am.

Hollwood June 19 —(AP) — Rearing three children is trouble enough but Mrs. Eleanor Perreau has double trouble —hers re movie moppets.

"I don't know what I'd do if I ad any more," she sighed on the et of "M" where 7-year-old Janine is acting in her fifth picture.

Role Switch

Movie comedian Eddie Bracken has packed his joke books with moth balls and says he wants to become a "Louis B. Mayer of television.'

"Gosh this is interesting," beamed the new producer from behind the scenes of his first movie for video.

As for his screen career, he said: "I just turned down a contract offer for the 11th time. It would have meant no television."

Eddie's television plans include a 13 week schedule for 26 films.

"We plan everything out in advance," he said. "Everything is put down on paper. That way. all you can lose is ink."

HAD TO SAW WALL

Toronto, June 19 — (CP) — Firemen had to saw a piece out of a garage wall to extricate Gordon Dickson, 8, when he got trapped between two garages while searching for a ball Sunday. The space was only six inches wide — a shade narrower than Gordon's head.

AT THE BELLE — Frank Morgan doesn't approve of Clark Gable's obvious interest in Loretta Young in this scene from "Key to the City," new MGM attraction continuing today and Tuesday at the Belle. The laugh-studded romance also features Marilyn Maxwell and James Gleason.

Little Benny's Note Book

can wiggle my scalp whenever I feel like it, which I did in school today during geogriffy, making diffrent fellows look and laff, and Miss Kitty said, Benny Potts, are you delibritly trying to distract the attention of the rest of the class?

No mam, I said, and she said. Then may I inquire the perpose of that unseemly action?

I was just doing it for exercize, I said, and Miss Kitty said, Very well, if you're sutch an authority on exercize, you may prove it by remaining after the class is dismissed and writing a composition on the subject.

Which I did, being:

Exercize

Exercize makes you too hot in the summer but it keeps you nice and warm in the winter, so if you get twice as mutch as you need in the winter, you can afford to spend all summer leening back and watching an electric fan get all the exercize.

A good exercize is walking 4 legged on your hands and feet without bending your knees, the only trubble being that hardly anybody can do it except the people that dont need exercize.

Running upstairs is suppose to be bad for the hart, but you probably dont need to start being careful as long as you can run up 2 steps at a time without thinking.

A healthy combination is exercize and sleep, and a good lazy way to get it is to keep terning in bed while you dreem about chopping wood.

The most injoyable place for exercize is out in the sun and air, and also the water if possible.

THREE MORE ARRESTS IN FUCHS CHAIN

Three more arrests have been made in the U.S. in the chain of investigation set off by the conviction of Dr. Klaus Fuchs in London on charges of passing secret information to Russia. Dr. Sidney Weinbaum, above, left, taken into custody by the F.B.I. in Pasadena, Calif., is a research fellow with the chemistry department of the California Institute of Technology and formerly was employed on a top-secret jet-propulsion project. In New York, David Greenglass, is accused of passing on secret atomic information to Harry Gold, already in custody as a go-between for Fuchs. In Syracuse, N.Y., Alfred Slack is accused of having "transferred classified material on a powerful new explosive" to Harry Gold. The explosive, presumably RDX, is the same as that which, during Canada's 1946 spy probe, Dr. Raymond Boyer, Montreal scientist, confessed to having passed on information. — Central Press Canadian.

87 DEATHS ATTRIBUTED TO SABOTAGE

An aerial photo of the scene where an Air France DC-4 crashed into the Persian Gulf with 47 persons aboard. All perished. Launches (foreground) converted into floating morgues are standing by. Part of the wreckage may be seen submerged. Many bodies were still in the wreckage. Nude bodies can be seen in the water, where they appear as white streaks on the picture. A second Air France plane crashed a half-mile from this spot, killing 40 persons. Both craft were on regular flights from Saigon, Indo-China, to Paris. Authorities are investigating the possibility of sabotage. — Central Press Canadian.

Beyond The Law

Mary Imlay Taylor

He gave sharp orders to Duval. The halfbreed and the dogs preceded him, but there was no change in that figure by the cabin door. Calmly the woman waited for him. Duval had assented readily to halt here. "To help madame, hein?" He knew her, he would stay, he swore and since O'Hara knew he would, he let him drive the dogs to the rear of the cabin, to a shelter Gharian had built for his own team in the old days.

The dogs knew the way and so did the halfbreed, but they seemed to pass Laure almost unnoticed. She did not move. She still was here, her pale face touched with snow-light, her mouth a little curved as if with anxiety, her deep eyes unfathomable. She did not hold out her hand, but there was a sweet, low note of welcome in her voice.

"I knew you were coming," she said simply, "I have your supper ready."

O'Hara started, "you knew that—I was coming?" he gasped. "In this wilderness how could you know?"

"In solitude one knows things, m'sieur, it's as though—the heart had ears!"

A deep wave of crimson went up over his bronzed face. "And in your heart you heard me coming?" But he did not speak the words aloud.

She turned and led the way into the little log ceiled room. It was changed as if by magic; a woman's touch had worked a miracle. A snowy cloth covered the table. It was daintily set; the disorder of the room had been transformed into a lovely orderliness; the fire burned clean and bright; a work-basket stood on the bench; there was the savor of well cooked food.

O'Hara stood staring at the preparations, his breath coming slowly. A scowl was on his forehead— possibly corrugated the deeper because right then he had no desire whatever to frown. "So you thought I was coming!" he said harshly.

She turned from the fire, a little flush on her pale face, bringing a dish for the table. She smiled at him without words, and her eyes were shining, A long moment passed.

"When one is alone—it's pleasant to make ready for a friend, m'sieur!" she said unexpectedly, then.

He was silent. In the little room there was no sound but the soft rustle of her garments and the crackle of the fire, the merry crackle of the fire! Through the window behind her he saw Duval feeding the dogs. They were alone. She spread the table while he watched her deft hands and her white wrists.

At last she brought the steaming tea and poured it into his cup. "It's ready," she said softly. "Sit down, m'sieur; you must be hungry. The bread is new, m'seiur. I baked today," she went on talking softly, her eyes still shining. I used to make good things, but here one can't tell."

Still he did not move. He laid a heavy hand on the edge of the table and stared before him with unseeing eyes. This woman a murderess? He seemed—it had to be —beyond belief.

She returned to the stove, busy with food for Duval. "I must have something hot for him," she said pleasantly. "He's a faithful man and he's long out there with the dogs. I'm glad there's such a good shelter for them; it's growing horribly cold tonight."

O'Hara said nothing. The snow gloom outside deepened. Laure took the lamp from a shelf and lit it, bringing it to the table. It lifted her face out of the gathering shadows of the room and showed it clearly as she looked across at her guest. "You haven't eaten a mouthful," she exclaimed in blank surprise. And then, flushing, "Is it then so bad m'sieur?"

He did not lift his eyes. Mechanically he picked up a fork and tried to render justice to the food on his plate, but he could not. He dropped the fork, rose with a poignant gesture and turned away. "I can't eat your food!" he cried with sudden passion. "I'm not such a Judas!"

It was hard to speak, something seemed to choke his utterance, but at last hoarsely, "do you know why I've come?"

"No, m'seiur," she replied steadily, "but I thought you were—my friend!"

There was a terrible pause, then his harsh, rasping voice broke it. "Then know me for what I am—a manhunter!"

HOUSECLEANING BY THE TON

Tons of plaster and wood are being carted out of Winnipeg homes as citizens concentrate on repairing flood damage. Water destroyed walls and foundations as well as flooring and furniture. This pile of wallboard, plaster, furniture, and miscellaneous household equipment comes from one house, that of George Gilmour in the Wildwood Park area. — Central Press Canadian.

She did not speak, but he saw her hands go suddenly to her breast.

He took a step nearer and drew that small dark object from his pocket that he had dug from the creek ice. "Do you know this?" He held it out to her with a hand that shook.

She did not touch it but she stared at it with wide eyes. "It's my other glove, m'sieur, the mate to the one you found before. You knew it by the beading on the gauntlet top?"

"Yes, I knew it. Heaven knows I wish I hadn't recognized it!"

She was far more calm than he was. "Where did you find it m'sieur?"

"Where you trampled it into the ice of the creek, the day you fled later—after you had shot your husband and Ninon Creuse!"

She drew a quick breath. "So, you came here for this?"

"I came to charge you with that double murder, Laure Gharian, and to take you back with me."

His voice grated harsh and unfeelingly, but his face was ashen. For the first time in his life O'Hara knew the depths of an earthly hell.

She did not blench, but lifted her eyes to his unfalteringly. "You'll tell me why you make this charge against a friendless woman m'sieur?"

"Yes, I'll tell you, though the chief would charge me to hold my tongue. But you're a woman and you shall know. That pistol Creuse found here was yours. You bought it at Le Pas on your way here. This man, Duval, drove you over. I've checked up all this. you can't deny it!" he added sharply, as if she had tried, when in fact she had said nothing. "You found Ninon taking care of your wounded husband. I don't know what passed, but I can conjecture that you, his wife, were furious; that you tried to drive the nurse out alone in the bitter cold of a coming storm, that Gharian, who loved her, would not let her go alone, that he dressed and followed her, you overtaking them. Your tracks showed that; you all three quarrel violently. You fired two shots, both were fatal. Ninon caught at your coat, she clung to it dying, and tore these away. He held out his hand. In it lay the two fur tails.

The woman stared at them, white-lipped but she did not speak. He pointed to her coat upon a chair. "They fit, I've tried them, the hole's torn jagged!" he said.

There was a terrible silence; in it the man's breathing was audible. She did not speak, nor did she touch the two fur fragments which had betrayed her. At last he went on chokingly. "You couldn't go. You hung about the edge of the creek until Johnston caught a glimpse of you, then you fled, stumbling, and all but lost Duval on his way back to the cabin; but he came after you and helped you, taking you back to Le Pas. At the edge of the creek you dropped your glove and trampled on it, it's stained with blood. I found it before I came here that day and found you and Creuse.'"

As he finished his accusation he turned away from her and rested his elbow on the shelf from which she had removed the lamp. In that attitude he could not see her face, but he did not want to see it now. Something like fire was running through his brain; there seemed to be a clamor in his ears.

It was her voice that broke the awful pause. "And you had this in your heart when you arrested Creuse and took him away. Why did you do that, m'sieur?"

"Partly to see if you would let an innocent man suffer! Besides I hadn't then found Duval: I didn't—

Suddenly the woman screamed. O'Hara turned in the nick of time. The breed was at his throat, a long knife in his hand. "You no find Duval den? By gar, you find heem now, m'sieur!" he shouted. "My knife, he found you too."

O'Hara reached for his pistol too late. He felt the breed's iron grip on his wrist. They clasped and grappled, the knife was at his throat, he felt it rip the flesh and then a woman's sharp cry, a blinding rush past the lamp and the grip on his throat loosed suddenly. Duval had him down, his knee on his breast, and Laure was holding the furious man back, crying to him, begging him for a life!

"But madame, eet's righ' he die!" Duval said fiercely. "I leesten at de door—mon Dieu, madame, he got to die—me, Duval, me he charges wid saying you kill Gharian! He die, by gar!"

"Jacques," she peaded, "give me that knife!"

"An let heem live, madame? He kills us both! He's got pistol; he took mine, he made me come; like a dog he drive me. Me, Jacques Duval! an he drag me an' you to prison madame."

"Jacques, give me the knife!"

Erect she stood and beautiful, Slowly, reluctantly, the halfbreed gave up his weapon, but his long sinewy fingers lingered at O'Hara throat.

"I take his pistol den, madame?"

"No!" she said sharply, "not even that, Jacques!"

The halfbreed muttered but her eyes held his. Like a faithful dog the man hung upon her words. He hated to yield, but he did not move. He waited.

Laure, sure of him, stood looking down at the fallen man's flushed face. "M'sieur Police," she said gently and gravely "this man's my friend; as my friend he fought for me. You'd trusted him. He would have kept faith with you but for me. I ask you a favor to a woman to spare him. If he lets you go you'll spare him, m'sieur?"

"If he leaves my gun alone and surrenders," O'Hara answered grimly "and you keep his knife from me."

"Jacques," she put her hand on the man's shoulder, "for my sake!"

Sullenly the halfbreed released O'Hara. Then, as both men stumbled to their feet. "But for yourself, madame, you didn't make heem promise!" Duval stood ready to sprin gagain. "You madame!" he gasped, his fierce eyes ablaze.

ROSSMORE

Rossmore — A community shower was held at the home of Mrs. M. Belnap, Thur. to honor her daughter, Verna, who is to be married on the 24th.

About 30 friends and relatives attended. The evening was spent in bingo and much merriment as Mr. Frank Belnap ably filled the roll of master of ceremonies.

About ten o'clock, the gathering was called to order and a gaily decorated basket was wheeled in and the bride-to-be was given the seat of honor and Mrs. A. C. Alyea read the address.

Verna unwrapped the gifts which were both beautiful and useful, graciously thanking one and all and inviting them to visit her in her new home.

Most delicious refreshments were then served by Mrs. Belnap assisted by her two daughters, Miss Joan Belnap and Mrs. G. Blair.

Rossmore — Mr. Fred Pollitt, of Peterborough, visited his parents at Rossmore over the week-end.

Miss Mona Empey is visiting her sister, Mrs. B. Westfall, of Trenton, for a few days.

The community extends its sympathy to Mrs. Vance on the loss of her brother, Mr. W. Wood.

"I thought I was getting old, old, OLD!

"How well I remember the time when sluggish 'half-sick' feelings inside—digestion troubles—and the run-down misery they brought on—made life almost unbearable. Even worse . . . I could feel my husband drifting away as my temper got more and more 'edgy', and my complexion became so sallow and 'old-looking'. Then, thank goodness, I started with Kruschen Salts and soon got the relief I needed. I found that just a dash in my morning tea seemed to start the day right. Now, I feel—and look—like a new woman! Best of all—John's so attentive and thoughtful . . . makes me feel like a girl again!"

Liberals Win Two By-Elections; P.C's Take Third

Three Opponents in One Riding Lose Their Deposit

(By The Canadian Press)

The Liberal government Monday retained two seats in three federal by-elections. The Progressive Conservatives won the third.

Widely outdistancing their opponents, Liberal Leon D. Crestohl won in Montreal Cartier in a 4-man fight and Samuel Balcom, another member of the party, won over two opponents in Halifax.

It was a different story in Annapolis-Kings, second Nova Scotio constituency voting. There George Nowland won back the seat he held before the 1949 general election and appeared to have lost by five votes last year.

The result in the general election was declared void because some servicemen in the riding at the time voted when not eligible under the Elections Act.

The standing of the House of Commons, now without any vacancies, is:

Liberals, 188; Progressive Conservatives, 43; C. C. F., 13; Social Credit, 10; Independents, 5; Independent-Liberals, 3. Total, 262.

Mr. Crestohl's three opponents in Montreal Cartier lost their deposits and one candidate in Halifax suffered the same fate.

Voting in Annapolis - Kings was the heaviest of the day, more than two-thirds of the eligible voters turning out. In the other two contests, both in city ridings, about 50 per cent of the voters went to the polls.

Wins by Plenty

In his rural riding in Nova Scotia's orchard country, Mr. Nowland was opposed by the same candidate, Angus Elderkin, he fought in the general election last year.

The narrow Liberal decision that was subsequently thrown out by a court decision was turned Monday into a Progressive Conservative victory by a majority of nearly 1,500 votes. Mr. Nowland is President of the National Progressive Conservative Association. The complete vote: Nowland, 11,802, Elderkin, 10,316.

SIX COUNTRIES MEET TO POOL STEEL AND COAL

By CARL HARTMAN

Paris, June 20 — (AP) — Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France today told delegates from six western European countries, assembled here to plan a merger of their coal and steel industries, that "we feel we will not be permitted to fail or quit without finishing the job."

The conference which Schuman opened in the foreign ministry Salle de L'Horloge (clock room) was historic, he said, because never before had the west European states delegated a "fraction of their sovereignty to an independent, supra-national authority."

Must Find Means

Urging his proposal to put western Europe's coal and steel and industries under control of an international body empowered to make binding decisions, Schuman said the countries must find means "outside our national limits" to create a more rational economic structure, to cheapen production and to open new markets.

Shuman expressed a hope that Britain later would join the pool.

"We cannot conceive of Europe without her," he said. "We know, and this reassures us, that the British government hopes for the success of our work."

Following today's opening meeting, the delegates will hold secret sessions to plan details of the working of the pool and its controlling authority.

France, Western Germany, Belguim, Italy, The Netherlands and Luxembourg have agreed to the idea. Britain has held back.

The delegates were traditional diplomats, meeting amid traditional surroundings—the French foreign ministry's ornate Salon de L'Horloge (Clock Salon).

But they had uppermost in their minds the revolutionary part of the scheme proposed May 9 by Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France: the giving up of the sovereign right to say the last word about important industries within their borders.

Schuman proposed that the coal-steel pool be controlled by an international authority with power to tell the industry of each country what it can and cannot do. The current discussions will determine how the merger will operate.

Britain, wary of giving final control of her vast coal and steel industries to someone else, will be informed of the progress of the talks.

Robins Determined, Hatch Their Family

Buffalo, N.Y., June 20 (AP) — Two determined robins have set up housekeeping in a partly-built house.

Contractor Otto Nagel twice tore down their nest but each time the robins built a new one. When Nagel saw five eggs in the third nest, he moved it to a joist

As work progressed, the nest was moved to another room. The birds stuck to their home and all five eggs have hatched.

Car Pushed Up, Down Tracks by Trains

Auburn, Ind., June 20—(AP)—Julian Willford's automobile went up and down railroad tracks Monday while he stood and watched, glad he wasn't in it.

The 19-year-old youth got out of the stalled car just before a train hit it, carried it a quarter of a mile and dropped it in front of an eastbound train.

Back came the car, past Willford and on up the track.

TWO MEN KILLED AS CONSTRUCTION TOWER BUCKLES

180-Foot Tower Used In Hoisting at Chatham

Chatham, June 20 — (CP) — Two men were killed here today which a construction tower at the Canada and Dominion Sugar Company collapsed. The dead are: Earl Ward, 35, of Blenheim and F. N. Kennedy, 37, of Chatham.

The 180-foot tower had been constructed to hoist cement for the building of sugar storage silo. As a load of cement was being hoisted towards the top, the tower buckled, broke in two and crashed to the ground.

One of the guy wires struck and injured Alfred Boulley, Chatham, who was working at the 30-foot level. He was taken to hospital.

The firm in charge of the building project is MacDonald Engineering Co., Toronto.

Tower Set Swaying

Edward Hardman of Welland, the hoist operator, said a pulley at the base of the huge tower gave way and threw the entire strain on the top. A huge bucket loaded with cement, dropped nearly 60 feet inside the tower before catching up with a terrific strain which broke the cable and dropped the bucket to the bottom.

Set swaying by the various forces working on it, the tower buckled in the middle throwing the top section and the men one way and the centre section the other.

Boulley was injured when he jumped from the lip of the loading platform to the lip of one of the silos.

Kennedy and Ward had gone to the top of the tower to check some parts and grease the pulley wheels.

The bucket was lifted up about 100 feet much higher than would be needed normally at this stage of construction to give the men adequate test.

Hardman said he was letting the bucket down slowly on signals from one of the victims when the pulley gave way.

Four Senegalese Held on Charge Of Eating Youth

Istanbul, Turkey, June 20 (AP) — The Turkish press reported today that four former Senegalese living near the Black Sea north of Izmit have been arrested on charges of cannibalism.

They were arrested after a 12-year-old boy said he saw the men eat a 16-year-old youth.

Plant Executive Master of Situation

Omaha, Neb., June 20 (AP)—Advertising solicitors sometimes find themselves in embarrasing situations.

Walter S. Campbell, vice-president of the Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising managers, told the group's convention here Monday of a new woman solicitor who got in the wrong room at a plant. It was filled with undressed men, job applicants waiting for physical examination.

A plant executive saved the day, Campbell said. He said "good morning, nurse, we've been expecting you," and led her out.

May Motor Deaths at All-Time High; Stiffen Drunk-Driving Penalties

Toronto, June 20 — (CP) — An all-time high of 67 traffic fatalities in Ontario during May drew from Highways Minister Doucett today the statement that the government will "get tough" with drunken drivers.

"We thought our program of public education was bearing fruit until we got a look at the figure for traffic fatalities in May," the minister said. "The number of deaths in that month jumped to 67, compared with 44 for May in 1949.

Not only is this figure the highest for any month in the history of the province, but it reversed a trend which had begun in January of this year."

He added that the Highway Traffic Act will be amended to provide stiffer penalties for drunk driving.

Fatalities in the province for the first five months of the year, with figures for last year in brackets, were: January, 31 (34); February, 35 (58); March, 33 (36); April, 33 (36); and May 67 (44).

Morris Main Street Looks Like Run-Down Auction Yard As Rubble Replaces Flood Lake

Morris, Man., June 20 — (CP) —Puddles are all that remain of a great lake which once coursed eight feet deep through Morris, the southern Manitoba town worst hit by the Red River's month-long flood.

Flood waters, which forced the 1,100 residents to flee, have gone down. But their grip on the 500 who so far have come back is almost complete.

The entire town 41 miles south of Winnipeg—once the heart of a lake measuring 60 by 25 miles—is strewn with debris. Every house and building has been hit. Some have vanished. Many have been destroyed. Dozens are beyond repair.

Outside the town the fields sprout acres of muddy water, debris and bloated carcases of cattle and hogs. At one spot along the rail line the shrivelled corpse of a lamb is pinned to a barbed-wire fence.

Main street looks like a rundown auction yard. Furniture, store stocks, vehicles, barber chairs, radios and business records are piled in the street. Only two grocery stores, quickly rehabilitated to stock needed food, are operating. One drugstore sells its new stock of merchandise from a granary on the main road.

Everyone is busy. Everyone is cheerful.

Only a few houses have been declared fit for occupancy, out the returners, including many children, crowd into second-storey quarters, the court house, a public hall and any available space. Meals are served from the court house, six trailers and a railway diner.

Power is Back

Power is back in a few houses. Water for drinking comes from Winnipeg by railway tank car; for other purposes it is purified Red River water.

The half dozen telephones essential to municipal life run through the Winnipeg exchange. Morris' own, after holding out for weeks at the height of the flood, is ruined.

Personal rehabilitation is the real problem. Red Cross resources are tiding families over until they get back in their homes. That may take weeks.

Then where do they go?

Ancient Crown of St. Stefan Asked as Ransom for Vogeler

Vienna, Austria, June 20—AP—Hungary is demanding the ancient crown of St. Stefan as ransom for Robert A. Vogeler, imprisoned United States business man, it was learned here today.

Reliable sources said the communist-controlled Hungarian government has offered to swap Vogeler in an even trade for the symbol of Magyar royalty. The crown is nearly 1,000 years old.

The negotiations were said to have reached a point where Vogeler's release from prison may be effected within a few weeks.

The famous crown was taken from Hungary by the Nazis during the war and later was found by U.S. troops in Germany. It is believed now to be somewhere in western Germany, probably Wiesbaden.

The informants said no other demand had been made by the Hungarians in conversations which began immediately after Vogeler's arrest in Budapest last November on charges of espionage and sabotage.

The U.S. has consistently refused to give the crown to Hungary's present communist government, despite repeated demands for it.

Trial Recalled

Vogeler, 39, an executive and roving European representative for the International Telephone and Telegraph Company, and Edgar Sanders, a British associate, were convicted by a Hungarian People's Court last Feb. 21. Vogeler was sentenced to 15 years imprisonment and Sanders to 13 years.

Many Hungarians attribute miraculous powers to the crown and believe that no government holds power legitimately unless it has possession of the relic.

The famous crown was given by Pope Silvester in 1,001 to Stefan, Hungary's first king—his title was "Apostolic King"—for converting the Hungarians to Christianity.

Sources here added that no demands were made for either reopening the U.S. ban on American travel in Hungary. The U.S. ordered the consulate closures and the travel ban after Vogeler's conviction by a Hungarian People's Court.

The United States almost five years ago returned to the Hungarians another highly-prized relic of the king-saint, his embalmed hand. Its return in August, 1945, before the communists seized power and just in time for the annual St. Stefan's Day observance, touched off one of the greatest celebrations in the country's post-war history.

In Frankfurt, an allied high commission source said he had been told today that the priceless crown has been moved from place to place for security reasons but that he has "strong reason to believe it is in Frankfurt now."

Importing Cost Cut on Automotive Gearshift Devices

Ottawa, June 20 (CP)— The government has moved to cut the importing cost of new gearshift devices manufactured in the United States and to be used on some low-priced Canadian motor vehicles this year, it was learned today.

The cutting of costs has been made effective through the elimination of a 25 percent tariff on American transmission mechanisms having automatic or semi-automatic drive selecting devices.

Elimination of the tariff was brought about through an order-in-council passed a week ago and made retroactive to June 1. It will be effective for a full year to May 31, 1951, when it is expected Canadian companies will be able to produce the equipment in Canada and no longer need to import the transmission parts from the U.S.

When that comes about the tariff once more will be raised to the pre-June 25 percent status.

COULDN'T STAND IT

Windsor, June 20 — (CP)—An unidentified American soldier last night took a look at himself in a hotel washroom mirror — couldn't stand it — and smashed his fist into the image, shattering the six-by-four mirror.

The soldier's only remark was: "I can't stand it."

With his hand bleeding badly, he walked away.

Nationalist Planes Destroy Foochow Airfield

Taipei, Formosa, June 20 (CP) — Nationalist air headquarters announced today Chinese planes destroyed the communist airfield and installations at Foochow, the capital of Fukien province.

Foochow is 100 miles northeast of Formosa, base of the Nationalist forces.

The air announcement said the field was one of the most strategically located airports in China for support of a sea-borne invasion of Formosa.

Plan to Build Five Low-Rental Apartment Houses

Owen Sound, June 20 (CP) — City council agreed last night to advance $25,000 toward the cost of constructing five low - rent apartment houses. The remainder, estimated at $200,000, will be advanced by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

The buildings, containing eight apartments each, will be rented to old age pensioners, veterans on partial pensions and widows receiving mother allowances. Rents will be $22 and $26 a month.

EMPLOYMENT WILL BOOM PREDICTS LABOR MINISTER

Claims Boom Will Start By Middle of July

Ottawa, June 20—(CP)—A mid-summer employment boom across Canada was predicted in the Commons Monday night by Labor members pressed for federal action Minister Mitchell as opposition to save off widespread pools of unemployment.

By the end of July, he said confidently, Canada will be undergoing its "tightest" labor situation. To back that up, he suggested that the country never has been "richer than it is at this moment."

The debate, devloping as the house studied labor department estimates, produced these proposals by party spokesmen:

1. A. L. Smith (PC—Calgary West): Labor should get a bigger share of industry's profit dollar. There should be some means of giving the worker a steady year-round income instead of prosperity at one period and starvation at another.

2. Clarie Gillis (CCF —Cape Breton South): the government should go ahead with job-providing public work projects and assist municipalities to relieve unemployment.

3. C. E. Johnston (SC—Bow River): the federal government should take some responsibility for the more or less permanently unemployed and help provide work in the coal fields of west and east by bringing down a national coal policy.

Top Officials On Both Sides Work on Contract

Toronto, June 20—(CP)—Top officials of both General Motors Company of Canada and the United Auto Workers (C.I.O.) Monday night joined the marathon negotiations on a new contract to replace the contract which expired Monday.

George Burt, Canadian director of the union, broke the silence surrounding the negotiations with a statement Monday night that the union has set as its minimum terms the economic package won by the union in the United States from the parent firm there.

The U.S. contract provides a pension plan, a hospital-medical-insurance program and a wage increase which the union estimates at 19 cents an hour for the first year, climbing to 35 cents at the end of the fifth year.

General Motors of Canada, with its main plant at Oshawa, has offered the union a five year contract but Burt indicated it was unacceptable in its present form, both in regard to pension plan and contract terms. Details of the offer were not disclosed.

Burt and other union negotiators conferred most of the afternoon with T. A. Johnstone, director of the union's General Motors Department at Detroit. General Motors was said to have the company's assistant industrial relations also on hand from Detroit. It was uncertain when the company and union representatives would meet.

Film Actress Judy Garland Gashes Her Throat in Moment of Anguish

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, June 20 (AP) — Judy Garland cut her throat in a fit of anguish, her studio disclosed today. The wound is not serious.

After Miss Garland's husband Vincent Minelli, earlier denied such a report, Ralph Wheelwright, studio publicity aide, made the following statement to reporters who gathered at the distraught actress' home:

"Miss Garland was in conference last night at about six o'clock . . . with her husband Vincent Minelli, her business manager, Carlton Alsop and her secretary, Myrtle Tully. They were discussing Miss Garland's future.

"At one point in the discussion Miss Garland who has been under strain and ill became very despondent and hysterical and rushed from the living room through the bedroom and into the bathroom, locking the door behind her. She broke a drinking glass and with the broken glass made a superficial laceration on her throat.

72 Crew Members Missing, Freighter Explodes, Sinks

Carrying Load of Explosives Consigned to Indian Govt.

Suez, Egypt, June 20 — (CP)—The British freighter Indian Enterprise exploded and sank in the Red Sea late Monday night and 72 crew members are missing, agents for the vessel announced today.

Only one member of the crew of 73, an injured man, was rescued after a blast tore the ship apart 300 miles south of Suez.

Spokesmen for the agents said the 7,100-ton ship, en route from London to Indian ports, was carrying 580 tons of explosives consigned to the Indian government.

The vessel, which carried no passengers, was officered by Britons. The crew members were mostly Laskars.

The sole survivor is said to have been a Laskar seaman, picked up by the Norwegian tanker H. Westfal-Larsen, which is en route to Suez.

The Indian Exporter, a sister ship of the sunken vessel, searched the blast area throughout the night in search of survivors, and found none, a spokesman reported.

First report of the explosion came from the 7,161-ton steamship Lake Chilliwack of Vancouver, which said she was going to the scene and called on all ships in the vicinity to keep a sharp lookout for survivors.

Other ships were in the area, and 250 miles away was the British destroyer Chequers with the Duke of Edinburgh aboard as first Lieutenant.

Toronto, June 20 — (CP) — Premier Frost Monday announced that the motion picture, "Bob and Sally," now showing in some Ontario theatres, will be taken off the screen and reviewed in the light of complaints received by the government. HURLEY ASKED TO ELABORATE ON HIS CHARGES

Washington, June 20 — (AP) — Patrick J. Hurley, former United States ambassador to China, was asked today by Senate investigators to elaborate on his charge that the State Department had shielded officials who "sold or gave" top-secret United States documents to pro-communists."

Hurley made the charge Monday in a statement at Santa Fe, N.M. It was linked to the 1945 Amerasia documents theft case now under investigation by a Senate committee.

Chairman Millard Tydings (Dem. Md.) told reporters that the committee would call Hurley to testify.

Hurley charged that the State Department has for five years "kept the people from knowing the truth about the theft of top-secret documents by officials of the Sate Department who sold or gave them to pro-communists."

He also accused State Department officials of sabotaging U.S. policy in China while he was ambassador there in 1944 and 1945.

One Official Named

Hurley named John S. Service State Department foreign service officer as one who he said supplied Chinese communist leader Mao Tse-Tung with secret information in 1944.

Service was one of six persons arrested in 1945 after federal raiders siezed hundreds of government documents in the New York offices of Amerasia magazine which has since gone out of business. He was not indicted.

Last March he was charged by Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.) with having "communist affiliations." A few days later he was called back to the United States from a new assignment in India, to face a fresh State Department loyalty quiz.

Service, who denied McCarthy's charge, is scheduled to appear before the committee Thursday to testify about the Amerasia case. He was not available for comment on Hurley's statement. The State Department said Monday night that it had no comment.

Paris Taximen Not Impressed

Paris, June 20—(AP) — A woman's club gave prizes Monday to a department store saleslady, a schoolgirl and three policemen for being the politest people in Paris.

It was the climax of a "Be-nice-to-tourists fortnight," but apparently didn't impress Paris' individualistic taxi drivers.

Hackies refused to pick up persons who had attended the prize-giving at an air lines terminal because, unlike arriving travellers, they had no luggage.

Paris cab drivers get 10 francs (three cents) extra for each piece of luggage.

The entire color party and buglers paraded to the cenotaph and during the ceremony Last Post was sounded and the Reveille. On return to the band shell the closing Legion Ritual was given by Commander Threadgold.

The parade marched back to the starting point and as they passed the town hall, the salute was taken by Comrade Major John Weir Foote, V.C., and standing immediately behind the Padre were District Commander Threadgold, Deputy District Commander E. H. Liddle and Comrade Chas. Rutherford, V.C.

After the parade was dismissed the veterans were entertained by the host branch. It was announced from the band shell that the 4th annual drum head service would be held in another town within the district, the date and place to be decided within the next few months.

By-Law Amended to Allow Royal Bank to Complete Building Under Present Plan

The city building by-law with respect to the height of buildings in the business section of the city will be amended to allow the Royal Bank to erect a new one-storey bank building at the corner of Front and Campbell Sts., it was agreed Monday evening by council.

Agreement to amend the by-law came following a rather spirited discussion led by Alderman William Argue, chairman of a special council committee to investigate zoning and other building regulations. Mr. Argue pointed out that the by-law with respect to buildings in the business section required that they be at least two storeys with height from the street to be a minimum of 35 feet above the sidewalk.

Plans for the new Royal Bank building call for a one-storey structure which at the same time complies with the 35 foot height minimum.

Manager Appears

Mr. I. G. Hefkey, manager of the local branch of the Royal Bank, appeared before council with plans of the proposed new structure and assured the structure would comply with regulations regarding height. "His bank had constructed buildings of similar plan in Oshawa and other centres across Canada," he said.

But Alderman Argue was adamant in his view of the matter. "The by-law calls for two storeys, and applies to the Royal Bank or any other organization," he said. "Either we have a by-law or not."

Mayor Allin did not see how council could hold the Royal Bank up in the construction of their building when other one-storey buildings had been permitted.

Able to Investigate

In reply Mr. Argue said the Royal Bank was well able to investigate conditions of the local by-law and if it had been so lax not to do so then it could not expect consideration from council.

Alderman Butler took much the same view, noting that the idea of the by-law calling for two storeys undoubtedly had been to foster additional office space. He observed that the onus was on the builder to find out conditions of the by-law.

City Engineer Chas. Mott said the architect for the Royal Bank had visited the city hall. Mr. Mott said his interpretation was that as long as buildings complied with the 35-foot height minimum they would conform with the by-law. He indicated this had been inferred to the architect.

Felt By-law Indefinite

Alderman Haig felt the by-law was indefinite in interpretation and could be broken. He did not think it mattered greatly as long as the proposed new bank building did not interfere with the facial characteristics on Front Street.

City council will take an option of three building lots at the east side of Parkwood Heights to provide for an extension to Victoria Ave. through to Herchimer Ave.

This was agreed upon by council members after they had been addressed by Mr. J. J. Trudeau, chairman of the local planning board who pointed out the advantages of Victoria Ave., being extended. However, he said it would be necessary to have the street swing slightly to the north and for this purpose parts of three now vacant lots in Parkwood Heights would be needed. Council agreed that an option should be taken on the three lots awaiting definite action with respect to extending the street.

Many Enquiries

Under enquiries Alderman Argue asked why the stop sign on Charles Street at Queen had been changed to make Queen Street a through street. He was told by Alderman Lattimer, chairman of traffic, that Queen Street had been made a through street because it was considered this would reduce the possibility of accident for students attending the local collegiate.

Alderman Hyde thought it was a waste of money to paint traffic lines on Front Street when the street would shortly be resurfaced. It was noted by Ald. Lattimer that the cost of the work was not great and in any event it would be six to eight weeks before resurfacing commenced.

To a question by Ald. Liddle, as to when street oiling would commence, Ald. Thomas replied the work would start this week. Ald. Clarke noted that a funeral procession had been broken on Monday by the red light at Pinnacle Street. Mayor Allin replied that the police would give attention to such matters if requested.

General Business

Under general business Mayor Allin referred to the expected amicable settlement between the county and city with respect to indigent hospital rates. The committee of Mayor Allin, Alderman Lattimer and P. C. McGuire were authorized to meet with the county committee to work out details.

Alderman Armstrong asked regarding the proposed Quinte High School Area. Mayor Allin noted that the county of Hastings at its recent session had taken no action in the matter therefore, there was no particular hurry on the part of the city.

'Porky' Takes to Tree To Avoid Humans

You never can tell what this apparently-whacky Mother Nature will pop up with next.

The other day a blue wing teal duck matron was seen convoying her young across a highway in the north country, far from a body of water.

The old girl is apparently making a play for Jack Frost, for didn't she send the city ashivering over the weekend with the mercury flirting with the freezing point.

A city resident found a large-size pebble at the bottom of his market-purchased box of strawberries. This is the first instance of petrified berries to come to light here.

Sturgeon have been reported flipping their tails in greeting to travellers driving along the Salmon River near Shannonville.

And the latest quirk on the part of Mother Nature is the discovery yesterday of a porcupine nestling in the top of a large tree in the vicinity of Burton Street.

While the curious stared, efforts were made to dislodge the "porky" who defied all attempts to remove him from his lofty perch. The net result was a few quills that floated earthward and a haughty disdain on the part of the animal for his human admirers.

Reports late last evening stated that the porcupine was all "balled up" and sleeping peacefully. He was still in his aerie this morning.

Death Accident Jury's Verdict, Rider Attached

Recommendation that wherever construction work is being carried on near a King's Highway warning signs be placed at suitable distances, was carried in a rider to the verdict returned at the adjourned inquest looking into the death of Vernon Bradshaw, 23, R. R. Belleville.

The inquest was held at the County Court Room Monday evening before Coroner Dr. J. Russell Scott with Assistant Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson acting for the Crown.

The jury found that Bradshaw had come to his death as result of injuries sustained when he crashed into the side of a dump truck while riding his motorcycle on No. 2 Highway west of the city on June 5th. He died in hospital three days later.

A verdict of accidental death was returned, the jury suggesting the accident may have been caused as result of excessive speed on the part of the motorcyclist. No blame was attached to Jack Clarke, driver of the truck, which crossed the highway into which the motorcycle crashed.

Copies of the verdict with the attached rider will be forwarded to the Ontario Minister of Highways; the Attorney General, and the local Inspector of Provincial Police.

Four Months On Theft Charge Given Accused

Appearing for sentence following conviction on a theft charge, Jack Marsh, Benjamin Street, was given four months in the county jail by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in city magistrate's court today.

On two other charges forwarded from Kingston, one of assault and another of theft, Marsh pleaded guilty and was given one month concurrent on each charge.

A number of traffic charges, including speeding, overtime parking and failure to observe "stop" signs, were settled out of court.

1,800 Scrolls For Veterans Now Delivered

Some 1,800 scrolls from the City of Belleville in honor of wartime service have been received by veterans in Belleville and district, it was reported Monday evening by Alderman Everett Liddle.

Mr. Liddle said that 500 of the scrolls had been delivered by mail; 1,200 had been delivered by Boy Scouts, and another 100 had been delivered by him personally.

There was still a number of scrolls however, which could not be delivered through lack of the correct address and the names of these veterans will be advertised so the scrolls may be picked up at the city hall by veterans or their relatives.

Mr. Liddle noted that there were many veterans in the city whose names did not appear on the list published three years ago. He said if a scroll is wanted by any veteran whose name did not appear there are some available at the city hall. These scrolls of course would have to be inscribed.

"I assure council that it has been a pleasure for me to carry out the wishes of Mayor Allin in getting these scrolls delivered," stated Alderman Liddle. "I hope that the recipients of the scrolls will appreciate receiving them at this late date."

That many veterans did appreciate receiving the scrolls in recognition from the city for their service in the forces, was indicated by the several letters received expressing appreciation. One of these was from Everett Harding, now of Marmora. The letter indicated the scroll from the city was one of the few things he had to remind him of his service for his country.

Mayor Allin added his appreciation to Alderman Liddle for seeing that the scrolls were delivered. "Alderman Liddle had done a remarkable job and I am gratified the job has been completed."

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 20 (CP)— Sellers predominated on the Toronto stock exchange today battering leading issues steadily lower. Industrials and western oils, leaders in recent advances on the market, paced the declines. Volume for the first three hours was 2,465,000 shares.

In industrials, papers, utilities, liquors and banks sagged steadily. Today's sudden downturns followed advances into new high price ground Monday and in recent weeks by industrials.

In western oils traders rushed in to collect profits on recent gains that pulled the list to the highest average price levels in 13 years. The list opened higher but suddenly reversed itself and slumped.

Base metals slipped quietly with individual issues holding against the trend. Anacon Lead was a standout. Falconbridge boomed early in the day but slipped into the minus column at the half way mark.

Senior and junior gold producers resumed their slow steady decline into new low price ground for the year.

"Minelli got her to open the door and she was immediately very repentant and weeping. They sent for Dr. Francis Ballard who treated the wound. He said it was very minor and attributed it to an impulsive, hysterical act.

"Miss Garland is now resting under her doctor's care. She is asleep. I saw her and she had a slight bandage on her neck.! No stitches were taken.

"She is not to be disturbed and no pictures will be taken."

Wheelwright explained that Miss Garland was suspended by M-G-M for not reporting to a rehearsal with Fred Astaire for a forthcoming picture. She is still on suspension, he added.

Friends said she took the suspension badly.

Judy failed to report for work on "Annie Get Your Gun" last year and was suspended by M.G.M. Betty Hutton took the role and Miss Garland went to a Boston hospital for treatment.

She returned and did "Summer Stock," which has had excellent reviews.

She and Minelli have a daughter, Liza, four. They once were estranged, but reunited after Miss Garland came out of the Boston hospital.

Stock Dividends All Will Become Non-Taxable

Ottawa, June 20 (CP)—A new government income tax regulation, expected to become effective before the end of June, will declare that all stock dividends are non-taxable, a government official said today.

The official said that the new regulation is embodied in Income Tax Act amendments, now approved by the House of Commons and Senate, and awaiting royal assent before becoming effective. The official believed royal assent likely will be given before the end of the month.

In effect, said the official, the amendment will mean that all recipients of stock of a Canadian or foreign country as dividends will not have to pay income tax to the Canadian government on those receipts.

Sailor and Bride On Motorcycle Capsized in Ditch

Owen Sound, Ont., June 20 — (CP) — A young sailor and his bride were injured near Chatsworth last night when the motorcycle on which they were riding capsized in a ditch. The condition of both was described as "satisfactory" at hospital today.

Jack Chatterton, 21, of Southampton, 21 miles southwest of Owen Sound, was en route from Halifax, where he is stationed with the Royal Canadian Navy to his parents home at Southampton. He was accompanied by his bride of a few days, whom he had married at Halifax. The motorcycle on which the couple were making their honeymoon journey, skidded on a turn.

The Polanski car was heading east, and, according to police, was going too fast to make the sharp curve.

Council Defeats Debenture By-Law to Build New School Asks New Tenders be Called

Construction of the proposed new public school in East Belleville appeared shelved indefinitely today as neither city council nor the Board of Education have shown any compromise in their four-month controversy regarding the awarding of contract.

City council at their regular meeting Monday evening ratified a recommendation requesting the board to call for new tenders and at the same time turned down the third reading of a by-law which would have provided the school board with funds up to $300,000 to build the school.

Anticipating action of council in ratifying their recommendation requesting that new tenders be called, the Board of Education at their last meeting Friday evening indicated that they had no intention of calling for new tenders for the construction of the school.

Began Last March

The controversy between the two local municipal bodies began late last March, when the Board of Education after calling for tenders for the construction of the new school awarded the contract to the second lowest bidder at a figure $23,000 higher than the low tender. Council on their part by a majority vote refused to provide the money for the construction of the school, claiming the lowest tender should have been accepted.

Last night at council many of the old arguments were again heard with but very little new light cast on the picture.

When the recommendation requesting that new tenders be called came up for ratification Alderman Chas. Hyde said if the Board of Education would guarantee a good job at the lowest tender he had "no objection". In the view of increased prices, he said the board would be foolish to call for new tenders, also pointing out awarding of the contract was the responsibility of the board.

Exception Taken to Statement

Ald. Haig took exemption to a statement made Friday night by a member of the Board of Education that councils request that new tenders be called was "more delaying tactics."

In view of the fact that the recommendation had been passed with only one dissenting vote he said the remark was "uncalled for", that it was an infringement on the dignity of council and was "unnecessary, unkind and untrue."

Alderman Duffy, however, agreed that the recommendation was delaying and he did not agree there had been but one dissenting vote. "Several aldermen" he said, "had not bothered to vote on 'such a silly recommendation' while at least three had opposed it."

Alderman Tice noted the Board of Education had no intention of calling for new tenders, while Alderman Liddle said the Board still had confidence in the McFarland Construction Company as Friday night it had awarded a contract to this firm for laying of asphalt platforms outside public schools.

Lined Up 8 to 7

Council lined up eight to seven against the school board in two recommendations and by-law tabled with respect to the school question. The recommendation included the request for new tenders and also one by Alderman Hyde authorizing the city clerk to advise the board of education that council will accept their requisition for $295,000 for construction of the new school, the treasurer to be authorized to advance the money.

There was a rather spirited discussion as the by-law came up for its third reading as City Solicitor R. A. Pringle pointed out its passing would empower the school board to go ahead and award the contract for the construction of the school.

Quoted From Memory

Here Mayor H. J. Allin quickly stated that at the previous council meeting when asked a specific question regarding the council status if the by-law were given its third reading the solicitor had replied it would make no difference — that council could still decline to provide the money.

"It doesn't look like that now," returned Mr. Pringle, as he read the by-law. "I was merely citing conditions of the by-law from memory."

Mr. Pringle noted that the by-law could still be amended if council did not wish to provide the money.

"What happens if this by-law passes?" asked Alderman Clarke. "It would be a carte blanche order for council to provide the money to the school board," replied the Mayor.

There was continued discussion as to the advisability of voting on the by-law, amending it, or laying it on the table to be voted on at a later date.

Heated Discussion

"I would like to make a note that there are eight members of this council, who are holding up the construction of the new school," objected Alderman Potter just before the vote was taken on the by-law.

"By the same token there are seven council members who would willingly spend an additional $23,000 of the city's money needlessly," returned the mayor.

Alderman Tice wanted to know how far council was going to go with the school question. "How far can you go with a body who say they will not give any ground," replied Alderman Armstrong.

"The same thing might be said of council," returned Ald. Tice.

Opposing the by-law were Mayor Allin and Aldermen Armstrong, Butler, Clarke, Deacon, Haig, Lattimer and Liddle. Voting in favor of the by-law were Aldermen Allen, Argue, Duffy, Hyde, Potter, Thomas and Tice.

Fire Department Burns Brush On Coleman Flats

Members of the city fire department turned forest rangers yesterday afternoon, the only difference being that they were encouraging the fire instead of seeking to put it out.

Firemen took advantage of the comparative absence of wind to burn off the brush which had accumulated on Coleman Flats during the winter months.

The Department of Public Works had used the Flats as a dumping ground for the brush from trees cut in various parts of the city and large areas of the Flats off Wallbridge Road were covered with small branches and brush. With the weather gradually drying out the brush it was considered a fire hazard.

"Boy, was it hot!" commented one fireman today.

Dutch Elm Disease Hits Windsor Area

Ottawa, June 20 (CP)—Dutch elm disease, a fungus which works in the sapwood of healthy elms, eventually killing them, has struck for the first time in the Windsor area.

W. N. Keenan, chief of division of plant protection at the agriculture department, said today that it is the first time the disease has been found in southwestern Ontario.

Source of the outbreak is a mystery.

The disease is spread to healthy trees by bark beetles. While it is known to occur in Quebec and to a more limited extent in Ontario, Mr. Keenan said the nearest point of infection in Canada was at least 500 miles east of Windsor.

Under the Destructive Insect and Pest Act regulations prohibit importations of all species of elms as well as controlling the movement of elms and elm products from areas found infected in Canada.

First observed in Holland in 1919, the disease was first found in Quebec in 1944. Since then infected elms have been found in 39 countries in Quebec and six in Ontario.

All infected trees are removed as soon as possible after their location is determined.

Control measures consist in the detruction of infected trees and spraying with DDT to kill the beetles.

AN IMPORTANT INDUSTRY

This month the annual northward trek of American mmex vacationers swings into high gear. Every day, in-easing numbers of cars bearing United States licence ates can be seen on Ontario highways and tourist resorts roughout the province report more advance reservations is year than ever before.

Second only to newsprint as a source of much needed erican dollars, the tourist industry is of basic import-ce to the economy of Canada and the standard of living every Canadian is to a large degree determined by the ccess or failure of the tourist trade.

In predicting that 1950 will see our fifth successful vel year, Hon. Louise Cecile, Ontario Minister of Travel d Pulicity, said recently that "in this province alone, all dications point to our intake of tourist business reaching 00 million this year."

The fact that tourist travel has increased every year ce the war is no reason to suppose that it will continue do so as a matter of course, because holiday horizons are der than ever before. At the same time, forty-six Ameri-n states have stepped up their publicity campaigns to courage Americans to take their vacations in their own ghboring states and travel restrictions in most Euro-an countries have been eased also.

Those engaged in the tourist industry should avoid e temptation to charge all the traffic will bear and do eir best to give the tourist full value for his vacation llar. If we intend to continue exporting vacations, high ality service and courtesy are two commodities that are sential.

This industry does not deplete our natural resources to y extent. If adequate conservation measures are prac-ed and high quality accommodation and service are ailable, our unlimited vacation attractions will attract re American tourists every year and Canada will con-ue to reap an increasing harvest of United States llars.

GOOD MANNERS

The recent 40th Annual Convention of the Hotel eeters of America, held in Denver, Col., brought out a w side to the business of hotel guests. It appears that the tel people don't like the way some hotel visitors act any re than the general public does. In fact, they claim they uld rather be in any business than the one they are in.

The average hotel guest, they say, is a fine fellow. But cohorts who hold all-night parties in their rooms, carry ay towels, light bulbs, soap and ash trays, make it tough everyone. Thus, when the average visitor takes a room a hotel, he pays not only for his room, but for rugs ned by overflowing bathtubs, burned and stained furni-re, detective service, damage suits and losses of revenue inging from bad publicity.

During the past few years, particularly in the larger ies, it seems that some hotel guests take it for granted at they must tear things apart. Perhaps some of the me can be laid at the feet of the younger generation, h their football weekends and their natural exuberance.

Such nonsense can only lead to suspension of privil-es for certain guests. We know of several cases where ole groups have been refused admission by hotels be-use the managers felt that the risk wasn't worth the mage they were sure would be incurred. If pushed to remes, managers may have to screen all applicants for oms much the same as employers screen job-seekers. The ed for such a step can be eliminated by common courtesy d good manners.

HUMAN TOUCHES

The little human touches that come spontaneously m Robert H. Saunders, chairman of the Hydro-Electric wer Commission of Ontario, and Premier Leslie Frost, factors that contribute to the popularity of these two n in Ontario's public life.

Dignitaries by the dozen were present at the official ening of the hydro Tunnel project near Thessalon on dnesday. Many would have enjoyed the honor of press-g the button that put the 56,500-horsepower plant into eration.

Both Premier Frost and Mr. Saunders stepped aside in vor of a workingman — a master mechanic-blacksmith, o had toiled by the sweat of his brow by the side of his low workers to materialize a blueprint.

The gesture was a fitting tribute to the men who per-rmed the actual manual labor, and the tribute was ex-ded verbally in the official speeches that marked the ening.

Men may dream and plan, but the best-drawn plans only pencil scratches on pieces of paper until the work-gmen apply their skill and brawn to create reality out of eams. — Sudbury Star.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WAYFINDERS

There are few people more inspiring than the ones who go right ahead, under all sets of circumstances, and make a way for themselves, incidentally setting a fine example for others. Our pioneers, inventors, and scientists have been wayfinders.

When an animal is cornered it works fast to seek a way out, and that is exactly what each of us must do all through life. We must keep finding ways to get ahead, to better our standing, and to get out of difficulties. Historic people have always been wayfinders — people with the will who went ahead and made the way.

I still keep marveling over the invention of the radio, whereby I can set a little box on my desk and get the voices I wish from thousands of miles away — and our latest television invention leaves me wondering more than ever at man's ability to find a way to such miracles.

Great thinkers have led the way to revelations and conclusions never before reached. They have been wayfinders to trains of thought that have enriched thousands of other minds. Just think of what Darwin did in his theory of evolution! Consider what the Wright brothers did in their persistent belief that man could conquer the air through the airplane. They were inspired wayfinders.

We owe more to others than we realize, for so often being guided into ways that have meant so much to us, adding materially to our happiness. On the other hand, we gain great satisfaction, in return by helping others to find a solid way ahead.

The hunter places full confidence in his guide through strange territory and thick forests, for he knows that he will not be led astray. Undoubtedly that guide takes pride in his wayfinding.

Many times in life we are beset with a feeling of lostness and isolation! It is then that "a feller needs a friend," if ever, and we hope to find someone who will lead us back to ourselves. Often that one is the Heavenly Father of us all, in whom we can well place our trust, and to whom we can always turn for guidance to the safe way ahead.

FEARS "JOBLESS TREND"

Portsmouth, O., June 20 (AP) —C.I.O. president Philip Murray Monday forecast a return to the "dire days of the early '30s" if the present "jobless trend" in the United States continues. Murray, dedicating a $100,000 building for C.I.O. steelworkers, said: "Before we put new machines into service, we must provide new jobs for displaced employees."

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 20 — (AP) — Janitors should be given a more dignified title to boost their morale and thereby get more work out of them, an industrial hygiene conference was told today. Mohe H. Solworth, industrial sanitation counsellor fom Louisville, Ky., suggested a new title. It's sanitor.

Trend of Events Gives Optimism For Greater Peace

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The trend of political events in western Europe is an invitation to optimism among workers for peace and prosperity.

One of the most encouraging events of our troubled times is the agreement of western Germany to join the council of Europe made up of representatives of non-comunist governments. This ranges the western Reich on the side of amity with neighbors against which it twice waged world wars of aggression.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer summed up the action as a commitment on the side of the west against the east.

This historic move came on the heels of western Germany's acceptance of the French plan to pool Europe's coal and steel. Thus these two traditional enemies finally have joined hands at least temporarily to work for peace.

The Times of London sums up the development thus:

"The Schuman Plan which, in the German view, is intended to lay the economic foundation for political union in western Europe, was largely responsible for the federal German government's decision to accept the invitation to join the council of Europe. By voluntarily joining it, the federal German government of 50,000,000 people nailed its political colors to the western mast

"There is no doubt that the present temper of the German people as a whole is pacific and that the idea of a federated Europe in which they can peacefully deploy their energies and talents is the one which, for the time being at any rate, has most strongly seized the public imagination".

An interesting corollary to the west German action in joining the Schuman plan is seen in the smashing defeat given the communists in a Rhur election Sunday to choose a new legislature for the state of North-Westphalia. The Reds got only 5.5 per cent of the vote.

Police Chief In Cleveland Heights Fired

Highland Heights, Ohio, June (20)— (CP)— The police chief of this village, who described himself as "an errand boy for a bunch of women," won't have to run errands any more. He was fired early today for "consorting" with the mayor's wife.

By a vote of 6 to 2 the council of the Cleveland suburban village of nearly 500 ordered the dismissal after listening for 5 1-2 hours to the case of Fay and Faye.

Fay Dalrymple, the chief, was accused by Mayor Clem (Bud) Ley, 40, of consorting with Ley's wife, Faye, 39.

Ley testified that he suspended the chief May 9 from his $300-a month job when he found him with Faye in the mayor's home.

The chief said his visits, "maybe four or five a week," were either on official business or errands for the village women.

Ley said he was unable to produce any evidence of actual "illicit relations" between his wife and the chief.

But it "looked. . funny" that the police car was reported in his driveway every morning after he went to work at a downtown automobile body shop he operates.

Mrs. Ley has sued for divorce. The Leys have three children age 18, 16 and 10.

Milk Strike Near Settlement Says Mayor

Pittsburgh, June 20 (AP) — Mayor David Lawrence today held out hope for settlement of a milk strike that has virtually shut off dairy supplies to seven western Pennsylvania counties for the last 11 days.

After a meeting of company and union officials broke up early today, Mayor Lawrence said: "They are surprisingly close together."

Some 3,000 striking dairy workers demand a 40-hour, five-day work week, rather than the present 48-hour, six day week, with no reduction in pay. The milk dealers offered 48 hours' pay for a 5 1-2-day, 44 hour week.

The union also demanded a daily minimum of $13.50 for driver-salesman rather than the present $10. The dealers offered to raise the minimum to $11.

LARK FLIES HIGH

In this photo just released by the U.S. department of defence, the new navy surface-to-air guided missile, Lark, is shown being launched at the naval air missile test centre, Point Mugu, Cal., where developmental testing is being conducted. It's powered by a liquid rocket engine. Smoke trails visible in the picture are from booster rockets used to accelerate the missile up to its flying speed. — Central Press Canadian.

Empty Shelves Confront Wives In Bread Strike

Los Angeles, June 20 (AP) — Empty bread shelves confronted housewives in five west coast cities again today, with no signs of a settlement in a strike of 3,100 A.F.L. bakers, now in its second day.

An industry spokesman in Los Angeles, where 1,800 bakers are idle, said: "The strike can go on for months if the union insists on a 35-hour week." The union was still insisting.

The affected bakeries produce about 90 percent of the bread sold in Los Angeles, Portland, Ore., Seattle, Everett and Bremerton, Wash. The strikes, called Saturday night, have cut off bread supplies to grocery stores.

The Seattle area's 70 strikebound plants are suing Local No. 9 of the Bakers Union for $20,000-a-day damages. The companies accuse the union of breaking its contract by not giving 60 days' notice of contract termination.

Negotiations also were stalemated in Portland. The union offered to forgo its demand for five consecutive work days in exchange for higher night pay, Sunday time-and-a-half and more sick leave. The bakeries said no.

About 5,000 other workers in the industry are idle by the walkout.

The strikes are not affecting independent concerns and restaurant suppliers.

The main issue is the 35-hour week with no pay cut. Portland companies made the best offer—a 36-hour week. Elsewhere, management wanted to maintain the 40-hour week with wage increases.

Hot Weather Farther North

Edmonton, June 20 — (CP) — If hot weather is getting you down don't wish you were farther north. They're having sunburn problems in the Yukon and North west Territories these days.

The Dominion Meteorological Bureau here reported Monday night that the temperature at Mayo and Dawson City in the Yukon skyrocketted Sunday to 95 above — believed the hottest mark for Canada so far this year.

Monday it was a trifle cooler at those spots — 81 and 86, respectively. Dawson City's 87 was equal to the highest temperature in Alberta, at Medicine Hat.

The Mercury reached 95 Saturday at Wrigley, on the Mackenzie River south of Norman Wells.

And at Snag, Yukon, where the temperature plunged to 83 below Feb. 2, 1947, for a North American record, thermometers registered 85 Monday. Whitehorse, Yukon, 200 miles south, showed the same temperature.

Personal Health Talks

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis, or treatment will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letter should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address: Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

FROM THREE TO TWENTY YEARS FOR STUPIDITY

From the letters I receive it would seem that some old timers still in practice tell their patients that the ambulant, office, injection treatment of internal piles (hemorrhoids) is "dangerous," "not effective" or "has been tried and found wanting" and that the only effective treatment is hospitalization and radical operation.

I told readers virtually the same thing in the early days of this column. But in 1929 in an article I acclaimed the twentieth century treatment of piles—ambulatory, office, injection treatment, which I had investigated with a good deal of skepticism if not downright antipathy. I am reminded of this by three letters from readers in widely distant sections of the country who express their satisfaction with the results of injection treatment of piles—one of them having received the treatment nearly twenty years ago. This reader comments: "While I have enjoyed freedom from the old trouble another member of the family has suffered a great deal from the same trouble for more than twenty years—because his doctor still insists that nothing short of an operation in hospital can do any good! Stupidity is right!"

It seems that many victims of internal piles are lured to the operating-room by the false notion that piles (hemorrhoids) are "growths" and hence must be "removed." Are varicose veins "growths"? Of course not. Piles (hemorrhoids) are of the same nature—weakening and swelling of overdistension of veins in the lower rectal wall, from prolonged stagnation of blood in the veins.

Once the veins become varicose, in the legs, in the rectum or elsewhere, the condition is likely to be permanent, although the victim may have only mild discomfort or annoyance from the trouble ordinarily.

It is often when the piles become inflamed or bleed freely or become extruded and strangulated that the victim suffers an "attack" of piles—becomes acutely aware of the presence of piles. When the inflammation subsides or the excessive bleeding stops for a while or thrombosis (clotting) occurs and nature eventually heals or obliterates that particular pile, there follows an interval of comparative comfort. Too often the poor ignorant victim attributes this spurious "cure" to whatever nostrum he happened to "try" at the time.

Although the immediate pain, bleeding, thrombosis or other manifestation of an "attack" of piles may come from one particular point, and treatment should be applied first to that point, the overdistended, swollen, weakened state of the veins is almost always multiple—that is, obliteration or removal of the one vein that is the seat of the immediate trouble will not give any prolonged relief. It is usually necessary to obliterate (by injection treatment preferably) several of the affected veins (piles) at successive intervals, if lasting relief is to be obtained.

Whether the victim of piles chooses the painless and nondisabling office injection treatment or the atrocious, hospitalizing old Spanish custom, this fact should be clearly understood: It is not within human power to guarantee or promise that the victim will never again have piles. He or she is liable to suffer from piles in the future as is any one ese, if he continues to commit the sins and errors of hygiene that cause venous stagnation.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Old Skin Itches

Mother, 92, would be quite comfortable but for the intense itching of her hands. The skin is parchment-like and apparently has oil left in it. (L.M).

Answer avoid soap. Main difference between soft, clear, smooth young skin and dull, gray, sallow, dry or harsh old skin is in the quantity of sebum or skin oil. Send twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope for booklet Save Your Skin.

Gold Jewelry Blackens Skin

Why gold jewelry blackens my skin. (M. L. H.)

Answer—Silver or other base metal in the alloy forms black silver sulfide through contact with sulfur compound in skin secretions—much as silver cutlery is stained by egg yolk etc. It has no significance so far as your health or personal cleanliness is concerned, and it may happen with the finest gold jewelry.

BETTER POLITICS

Have you ever stopped to ponder the statement that the people of a nation always get the government they deserve?

Well, if you have not the statement is worth considering. William Penn declared that governments like clocks go from the motion men give them, "and as governments are made and moved by men, so by them they are ruined, too. Wherefore, governments rather depend upon men than men upon governments."

Let us be very sure that if there is anything the matter with our local, state, or national government, it is nobody's fault but the people's. We have the kind of government we choose in this country, and if we do not like the men who are running our affairs, just remember that they were chosen by a majority of the people who went to the polls. If a number of people played golf that day or went to the movies or were too busy in office, home, or mill to get to the polls, let them not protest now over what they consider a bad choice. If we let other people run the politics in our communities and states and then complain about the corruption or inefficiency of political machines, we are simply rendering ourselves ridiculous. Governments rather depend upon men than men upon governments."

We will have better politics in the United States when more and better people interest themselves in politics.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

One result of the Winnipeg floods has been to inform the rest of Canada of the enormous water resources of a country that is widely presumed to be the edge of the prairie. And prairie, to eastern and far-western Canadians, means vast expanses of treeless grassland.

But Lake Winnipeg happens to be the fifth largest lake in North America. Its area is 9,414 square miles, 2,000 more than that of Lake Ontario and only 500 less than that of Erie. Its greatest length is 260 miles, with a varying width that gives it a tremendous shore line. It is fed by the great Saskatchewan on the west, and Lakes Winnipegosis, Dauphin and Manitoba: from the south, by the namely Red and Assiniboine that got into the world news for several weeks; and from the east by a great many streams, notably the Winnipeg and Berens rivers, the former bringing into the great lake the waters of the Lake of the Woods system.

All this huge drainage of a pretty noble chunk of the continent goes out of Lake Winnipeg by the Nelson River into Hudson's Bay.

For close to three centuries, all these waterways have been the highways of exploration, settlement and trade. As a matter of fact, as the means of a contacting the Great West, the Winnipeg water system ranks with the St. Lawrence, the Mississippi and the Great Lakes among the major factors in the history of the continent.

Both the east and the far-west of Canada are a little water-proud. They have their spectacular and rampageous rivers, their mighty falls and profound gorges. The Winnipeg flood had a slight sense of improbability to the outer peoples of the Dominion. Despite the enormous publicity of recent weeks, they probably still can't concede to Winnipeg what you might call bigtime water.

Tourist Industry Importance To Nation's Economy Stressed By Leo Dolan of Travel Bureau

Trenton—(Special)— Canada's master tourist salesman, D. Leo Dolan in an address here last night described the Canadian tourist industry as "a tremendously important link in the type economy we all like to enjoy."

Mr. Dolan was guest speaker at the regular weekly Trenton Rotary dinner held Monday evening in the Queensway Hotel.

As director of the Canadian Government Travel Bureau in Ottawa, Mr. Dolan has been selling Canadian vacations to U.S. tourists ever since the bureau was set up in 1934.

Not only would those engaged industry be affected but many ings manufactured in Trenton and Ontario would have difficulty finding markets if the tourist industry slumped, declared Mr. Dolan.

He went on to say, that no industry is of more importance to agriculture than a buoyant and prosperous tourist industry. The five to six million U.S. tourists, who visit us every year, spend millions during their short stay. American tourists spent $270,000,000 in Canada during 1949. They must eat and consume a considerable amount of agricultural products.

Today tourist travel is not only an integral part of the economy of North America, but also of the nations of Europe receiving aid from the Marshall Plan, Mr. Dolan continued. Travel is so vital that the U.S. government has issued a directive urging its citi- ns to travel outside the U.S. rticularly in Europe.

One Way To Restore World Trade

Terming this one way to restore world trade, Mr. Dolan said that the U.S. government was encouraging Americans to spend more money abroad so that other countries will have more U.S. dollars with which to purchase the goods and services of the U.S.

A veteran of more than 20 years in the travel business, Mr. Dolan said that tourist travel should not be developed and promoted for the financial aspect alone. "A vacation is nearly as good as a university course," he said, "because you don't read a vacation out of a book, you experience it. A trip is a lesson in a nation's geography."

Mr. Dolan told the gathering that tourist travel by Canadians within their own country "is an instrument for the development a true spirit of Canadianism at is essential if this nation is to take its place in the development of world internationalism among all free peoples of the world."

He patted Americans on the back for boasting about their country when he said "behind the spread of eagleism of the American people is a great devotion to the institutions of their country and a high regard for the history and traditions that made their country great.

Praises National Pride

Poking a gentle verbal gibe in Canadian ribs, he added, "I don't like to see Canadians wrapping themselves in a garment of humility because this is the wrong garment for a young and virile nation" that has made such a contribution to world freedom in two world wars.

The Canadian travel chief said "this is the greatest nation in the history of the world. The 14,000,000 people of Canada have made the greatest contribution to liberty of any country in the world. Praising the Canadian brand of democracy he severely reprimanded those Canadians who are aiding the invasion of communist doctrine, which Mr. Dolan described as an "atheistic ideology. It is up to those who have prospered in and enjoyed our present society to stand up and not be backward in saying something for it, he added.

'A Productive Civil Servant'

Introduced by Senator W. A. Fraser as "a productive civil servant charged with the responsibility of channelling and siphoning the tourist trade into Canada," the senator said "Trenton has never before been favored with a guest speaker or visitor who is capable of doing more in the way of publicity for Trenton."

Flavoring his remarks with a liberal sprinkling of humor, Mr. Dolan replied that Senator Fraser had been even more insistent than ever before in urging the tourist bureau to do things for Trenton. "since being appointed to that distinguished club of which he is a distinguished member."

Turning to Trenton's harbor facilities for pleasure craft, Mr. Dolan said that Senator Fraser had been instrumental in getting the travel bureau interested in building up water tourist traffic by developing transportation facilities for inland water vessels. Since doing so, Mr. Dolan said he was "tremendously surprised at the number of requests for information from people who are giving up the highways to explore some of the beauties of our inland waterways. We are endeavoring to make this part of the country more of a lure and have contacted several yachting clubs in the U.S. through advertising.

Attracting Cruiser Vacationists

Considerable work has been done on the canal system, better charts and other navigation aids have been made available during the last two years, he said. "Both the federal and provincial governments are continuing to improve facilities to encourage cruiser vacationists to come in. Mr. Dolan said he was impressed with Trenton's dock anchorage, "located in the centre of prosperous and pleasant surroundings."

In view of the general interest in the tourist industry and its importance to the community, the Rotary Club invited members of Trenton Chamber of Commerce and Kinsmen and Lions Club to hear Mr. Dolan. A male quartet from Brighton entertained with two vocal selections. G. W. Richardson thanked Mr. Dolan on behalf of Trenton Rotary.

Many Dogs Running at Large Says Catcher

Trenton—Trenton is going to the dogs according to the town's new dog catcher Harry A. 'Dick' Seeley.

"Gentlemen, you have no idea how many stray dogs there are in Trenton," declared Mr. Seeley before council Friday night.

"This building is not big enough to hold all the dogs that are running loose," continued Mr. Seeley. He said that he had captured about 50 dogs without tags during the first five days he had been on the job and he added that he had the street addresses of some 45 or 50 other persons who were harboring dogs without licences. Many people refuse to give their names complained Mr. Seeley.

"Lay a charge against them at the police station," said councillor Vic Ryan. In reply, Mr. Seeley stated that he would charge everyone who failed to co-operate after being warned, even if it fills the court house.

Introduced to Mayor

Trenton's international good will ambassadors, the three Boy Scouts who will represent the local group at the American Scout Jamboree being held in Valley Forge, Pennsylvania, in July, were introduced to Mayor Couch and council by District Scoutmaster R. F. McInnes and WC H. W. Hows, president of the local Boy Scouts Association.

The boys, King's Scouts John McConnell and Paul Davis and First Class Scout Leroy Wannamaker, plan on exchanging greetings from Trenton with Scouts from Trentons in the United States. Mayor Couch in expressing the best wishes of the town to the boys, commended Mr. McInnes and WC Hows for the interest they are taking in the youth of Trenton and said that council would do its best to reciprocate their efforts.

WC Hows replied that council was playing an effective role in supporting their efforts on behalf of young people in the community.

Freed on Charge Of Entering, Stealing $10,000 Furs

Chatham, June 20 — (CP) — Frank Benmore of Windsor Monday was freed on a charge of breaking, entering, and stealing $10,000 worth of furs from the Gower fur store in Wallaceburg.

The Crown's case hung on the credibility of testimony of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. McIntosh of Windsor. McIntosh served a term of two months for being in possession of most of the loot from the fur store robbery.

The couple said they thought they recognized Benmore's voice as that of the man who took the furs to their home, but under cross-examination they said they were not sure.

Benmore said that during the weekend of the robbery he was ill in bed with hives.

Picture in Fraser Valley Greatly Changed From '48

Mission, B.C., June 20 (CP)— This year's flood picture in the Fraser Valley is different from 1948's $30,000,000 disaster.

Two years ago, men and sandbags and inadequate dikes were no match for the Fraser. This time there are many heavy trucks and equipment, the dikes are more accessible and are topped by roads. There is an efficient organization.

In 1948, men fruitlessly threw small sandbags into gaping holes in the dike. This time, at the first sign of seepage, fleets of trucks pour tons of rock into the weak spot.

The dikes have held so far. Built at a cost of $11,000,000, the system protects 50,000 people, 178,000 acres of land and $135,000,000 worth of property.

But 1950's freshet has still left a handful of beaten men. These are the farmers who live outside the dikes.

Water has covered hundreds of acres of their farmlands and swished into their homes.

The farmer outside the dikes syestem protects 50,000 people,

Maj. Lloyd Hill Plans to Go Over Falls in Barrel

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 20— (CP) Major Lloyd Hill said today he plans to go over Niagara Falls in a steel barrel June 16.

He will have a helicopter drop him and the barrel upstream from the 200-foot falls. Thus, he expects to evade police, in case they try to head him off.

Only two other persons in this century have survived a barrel trip over the falls.

Hill, who almost lost his life a year ago while shooting the lower river rapids in a barrel says he hopes the barrel will gain sufficient momentum in the upper river to shoot clear of the rock bed at the base of the cataract.

The 32-year-old army veteran, member of a family of Niagara river men added that he is having difficulty in arranging construction of the metal barrel. The welding workers are demanding payment in advance.

Young Worker Is Badly Burned In Flash Fire

Sarnia, June 20 — (CP) — Kevin Hummel, 20, of Sarnia is in serious condition in hospital with three quarters of his body badly burned, the result of a flash fire Monday at the Polymer Corporation synthetic rubber plant.

Two other Polymer employees were injured by the fire which broke out in a drum at the Dehydro B unit which was shut down for maintenance operations. Both in hospital, they are, Harry O'Connor, 22, and Almo Morgan, 44. Their conditions are not reported to be serious. O'Connor suffered facial burns while Morgan was burned about the arms.

CHARGE MALICIOUS DAMAGE

Toronto, June 20 — (CP) — David Marnie, 28, a construction worker, walked up to a police station window last night, poked his elbow through the glass, showering a desk sergeant with splinters.

$50,000 FIRE LOSS

Williamsburg, June 20—(CP)—Fire of unknown origin Monday night destroyed a combination garage and automobile supply store and a two-storey frame dwelling in this village about 45 miles south of Ottawa. Loss was estimated at about $50,000. No one was injured.

Firemen from Morrisburg, Winchester and Iroquois helped the Williamsburg volunteer brigade fight the blaze.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about Food . . . What's Cooking?

Pasteurized vegetables are now possible.

Among the simple blessings which we take for granted are ordinary garden vegetables free from contamination. In Africa and Asia, however, this is not the case.

In those continents, vegetables do not grow free of bacteria. The use of fertilizers makes it impossible for Americans to eat fresh produce in those areas without ill effects. Natives seem to be immune to these difficulties

American troops in Japan, until now, were unable to eat local produce. Recently a method of pasteurizing vegetables by heating them at 140 degrees F., developed at Rutgers University for the Army Quartermaster Corps made it possible to eat home grown vegetables in any part of the world. Pasteurization does not change their flavor.

The approach of warm weather and the arrival of many fresh vegetables suggest hearty salads and cold cuts for the family table

The celery in the potato salad below should only be cooked until it is barely tender, not wilted. While green salads should be coated only with the thinnest film of dressing, a potato salad should be creamy and tangy with mayonnaise. Cooked salad dressing may be substituted for mayonnaise if desired.

Celery and Potato Salad
Serves 4

Separate stalks of 1 small size bunch of celery. Cut off leaves. Wash. Cut into pieces approximately 1-2 inch square. Place in boiling salted water and simmer until tender. Drain. Cool completely.

Boil 4 large size new potatoes in jacket until tender. Drain. Cool Peel and cut into small slices.

Combine celery and potatoes.

Combine 1 cup of mayonnaise with 1 tablespoon vinegar, one tablespoon cream, 1 chopped hard boiled egg, 2 tablespoons of finely chopped stuffed olives and one teaspoon horseradish. Mix dressing well.

Add dressing to celery and potatoes. Stir well. Add salt and pepper to taste. Let vegetables stand with dressing several hours before serving.

Place salad on lettuce leaves in centre of serving plates. Place alternate slices of cold tongue, corned beef and swiss cheese around salad. Other cold cuts or sliced cooked cold meat may be substituted if desired. Garnish plates with sliced tomato.

Imports of Furs From Russia Make Mink Farmers Unhappy

Denver, Colo., June 19 (AP) — There's nothing like a mink coat to make a girl happy.

But to men in the mink-raising business, minks are nervous, vicious animals who can spray an odor rivalling that of a skunk. And they can bite through a leather glove.

The little animals' unpleasant nature, however, is the least of the hazards facing the fur farmer. The most formidable is Russia—and perhaps the fickleness of women's tastes. The flood of pelts from Russia and other countries since the war has hit the American industry a hard blow.

First off, the fur farmer tells you he doesn't want price supports. "We just want to get our fair share of the American market," says Harry Lee, president of the Rocky Mountain Fur Farmers Association. To get it, he says, American fur farmers want:

1. Relief from the 20-percent federal excise tax on furs.
2. A tariff of quotas on imported furs.
3. A "truth-in-labelling" law which would force furriers to label their fur coats with the true American name of fur, country of origin and whether the fur is new, old or dyed.

Fur farmers fear that imported pelts can do to the mink market what they helped do for silver foxes. There now are less than 500 fox farms where 7,000 existed before the war.

The United States imported $161,775,000 worth of furs in 1948 nearly one-fourth —$38,823,000 —of that amount was paid to Russia. Canada, China, Norway and Sweden accounted for the bulk of the other three-quarters The fur farmers claim the other countries must subsidize their fur industry to compete with Russia.

The mink and foxes bear their litters of one to 10 pups in the spring. There's an average of three in a litter. The baby mink weigh less than an ounce. If the mothers—both foxes and mink — get upset, they eat their young. There have been several lawsuits after law-flying airplanes frightened mother foxes into canibalism.

Blame Short Hose For Foot Trouble

Manchester, England (CP) — Are your feet killing you and do you blame tight shoes? Maybe you should blame your stockings, madame.

That's the theory of department store manageress Elsie Ashforth, who checked up on the hose her dissatisfied shoe customers were wearing.

It was found most women bought correct-sized shoes but many wore stockings half a size or more too short. Miss Ashforth now has instructed her sales girls to advise longer hosiery.

"Sometimes a woman who is told she should wear bigger stockings is indignant," Miss Ashforth reported. "But most accept the suggestion —and then come back to tell me the bigger stockings have made the 'foot-happy.'"

Senior Pupils Albert College Give Recital

As the final event in the closing exercises at Albert College the Conservatory of Music presented the senior pupils of Miss Bessie Handley and Mr. Wm. G. Connor in a piano recital on Monday evening in the Memorial Hall.

Parents and friends were there to encourage the young performers with enthusiastic applause. The guests were welcomed by Mr. Taylor Franklin in the absence of Dr. Howard. In his introductory remarks, Mr. Franklin assured the artists that this was not a critical audience, but one which was going to relax and enjoy the program.

The presentation showed that hours of concentrated practise had gone on before the young pianists made their appearance on the platform, and the result was a credit to their teachers and to their own effort. Many difficult passages were executed extremely well. Some of the performers were recognizable as graduates of the junior department of other years. The duo piano arrangements were especially enjoyable. The vocal numbers by the pupils of Mr. Sinnett gave the program a pleasant variety.

Baskets of daisies and jardinnieres of ferns were used to decorate the railing at the front of the hall.

The program was carried through without interruption in the following order

Piano Sonatina in F, Beethoven, Ronald McBride; piano, (a) Yellow Butterfly, MacLachlan, (b) Turkey in the Straw, Rasbach, Beverly Flower (pupil of Wm. GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

THE BRIDE'S THANK - YOU NOTES SHOW HER QUALITY

There are two kinds of notes written by brides-to-be to friends who have sent them wedding presents. One kind "acknowledges" the present . . . and that is all. Such perfunctory notes are too general, grimly impersonal, immature. The generous friends who spent time, thoughtful planning, and perhaps more money than they could afford, are chilled by the few bleak words in these notes, and have no assurance whatever that their presents were really welcomed. And the pity is too that the remembrance of such superficial notes stays long in the thoughts, a tepid, unattractive memory.

Now lets look at the other kind of note. . . the happy, enthusiastic note that really says "thank you," that graciously expresses appreciation of the present and of special features of the present. And the remembrance of these graceful notes also stays long in the thoughts, a most attractive, a most endearing, memory!

Wedding presents are important presents, an expression of the devotion and affectionate interest of relatives and friends, time, thought, budgeting. Such special goodness and generosity deserve especially charming and appreciative thank-you notes. The mannerly bride-to-be does not take her wedding presents for granted . . . is not casual in her point of view toward such thoughtlessness . . . does not write 'short-measure' notes.

Please, brides-to-be, write your thank-you notes promptly . . . the day the gifts are received, if you possibly can. Then you've just opened the gifts . . . your enthusiasm and appreciation are fresh . . . and so it will be easier for you to write enthusiastic notes. Naturally there's a special glow about a thank-you note written immediately after the gift has been received!

Use your very best letter-paper or note-paper, or provide yourself with white, double-sheet note-paper of as fine quality as you can afford. (The bride who sends a ready-made card of thanks shows the low in bad taste . . . she doesn't deserve to receive a wedding present!),

Your thank-you note needn't be long . . . but it should be warm-hearted, gracious, joyous. Imagine that you are chatting with the giver. Let your "tone of voice" get into your words!

Get a good start by bowing your thanks for the thought behind the gift . . . a charming prologue may be, "How kind and generous you were to plan to make Bob and me so happy!"

Then mention the gift specifically: don't refer to it vaguely as "your gift," or even as "your beautiful gift" . . . thus giving the impression that you don't really remember what it was.

Naturally the most endearing thank-you note makes the giver feel that his or her gift is "just the right one": "Bob and I had dreamed of having a pair of crystal candlesticks shedding light on our table, but we never thought our dream would come true so soon and so perfectly as you and Tom have made it come true!" Enthusiastic comments about special features of the gift can be the crowning glory of your thank-you notes. "Such grace of design and such charming color in the pair of vases you sent us . . . just the color to harmonize with the color-scheme of our living room. We are enchanted with them! . . . "Our breakfast table will be bright indeed" with the sunny yellow breakfast set you sent us. The green leaf-pattern on the yellow background is lovely, and we are delighted with every piece of the set." . . . "You and Bill are pyschic! How else could you have known that Bob and I have been yearning to own a table broiler? The one you two dears sent is a masterpiece gift . . . and since we aren't to have a dining-room, it will be a most practical gift too. We'll send our blessings every time we use it . . . and we're sending our high-hearted thanks now!"

Smart Summer Touches

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Yellow, a favorite color this season, is used for this cool little cotton glove dressed-up with an applique of small circles down the back. It is also the shade of the straw portion of this summer handbag. Black velvet makes a nice contrast as it is used for the dome-shaped top with a facile opening that is pulled apart by the two tabs. The ankle-strap pump is black shantung with a small platform. Cut low at the instep it has multi-colored kidskin discs across the vamp.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

THE BRIDE'S THANK - YOU NOTES SHOW HER QUALITY

There are two kinds of notes written by brides-to-be to friends who have sent them wedding presents. One kind "acknowledges" the present . . . and that is all. Such perfunctory notes are too general, grimly impersonal, immature. The generous friends who spent time, thoughtful planning, and perhaps more money than they could afford, are chilled by the few bleak words in these notes, and have no assurance whatever that their presents were really welcomed. And the pity is too that the remembrance of such superficial notes stays long in the thoughts, a tepid, unattractive memory.

Now lets look at the other kind of note. . . the happy, enthusiastic note that really says "thank you," that graciously expresses appreciation of the present and of special features of the present. And the remembrance of these graceful notes also stays long in the thoughts, a most attractive, a most endearing, memory!

Wedding presents are important presents, an expression of the devotion and affectionate interest of relatives and friends, time, thought, budgeting. Such special goodness and generosity deserve especially charming and appreciative thank-you notes. The mannerly bride-to-be does not take her wedding presents for granted . . . is not casual in her point of view toward such thoughtlessness . . . does not write 'short-measure' notes.

Please, brides-to-be, write your thank-you notes promptly . . . the day the gifts are received, if you possibly can. Then you've just opened the gifts . . . your enthusiasm and appreciation are fresh . . . and so it will be easier for you to write enthusiastic notes. Naturally there's a special glow about a thank-you note written immediately after the gift has been received!

Use your very best letter-paper or note-paper, or provide yourself with white, double-sheet note-paper of as fine quality as you can afford. (The bride who sends a ready-made card of thanks shows the low in bad taste . . . she doesn't deserve to receive a wedding present!),

Your thank-you note needn't be long . . . but it should be warm-hearted, gracious, joyous. Imagine that you are chatting with the giver. Let your "tone of voice" get into your words!

Get a good start by bowing your thanks for the thought behind the gift . . . a charming prologue may be, "How kind and generous you were to plan to make Bob and me so happy!"

Then mention the gift specifically: don't refer to it vaguely as "your gift," or even as "your beautiful gift" . . . thus giving the impression that you don't really remember what it was.

Naturally the most endearing thank-you note makes the giver feel that his or her gift is "just the right one": "Bob and I had dreamed of having a pair of crystal candlesticks shedding light on our table, but we never thought our dream would come true so soon and so perfectly as you and Tom have made it come true!" Enthusiastic comments about special features of the gift can be the crowning glory of your thank-you notes. "Such grace of design and such charming color in the pair of vases you sent us . . . just the color to harmonize with the color-scheme of our living room. We are enchanted with them! . . . "Our breakfast table will be bright indeed with the sunny yellow breakfast set you sent us. The green leaf-pattern on the yellow background is lovely, and we are delighted with every piece of the set." . . . "You and Bill are pyschic! How else could you have known that Bob and I have been yearning to own a table broiler? The one you two dears sent is a masterpiece gift . . . and since we aren't to have a dining-room, it will be a most practical gift too. We'll send our blessings every time we use it . . . and we're sending our high-hearted thanks now!"

Sign your notes with your name only . . . but remember always in your notes to include the appreciation of your bridegroom-to-be.

These notes you write on this most important occasion of your life are not only the golden links in the chain of old friendships but are revealing introductions of you and your quality to many new friends, relatives and friends of your bridegroom.

So . . . don't just "acknowledge" your wedding presents. Thank them!

Smart Summer Touches

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Yellow, a favorite color this season, is used for this cool little cotton glove dressed-up with an applique of small circles down the back. It is also the shade of the straw portion of this summer handbag. Black velvet makes a nice contrast as it is used for the dome-shaped top with a facile opening that is pulled apart by the two tabs. The ankle-strap pump is black shantung with a small platform. Cut low at the instep it has multi-colored kidskin discs across the vamp.

BEAUTY

Teen-Agers and Make-Up

There is an unwritten law to the effect that when a girl reaches the age of fourteen, ready for high school, she is entitled to use lipstick. How this mandate came about nobody seems to know. Most mothers accept it, realizing that they can't do anything about it, modern youth being as it is, but fathers often raise the roof. A lot of good it does them. After all, it is not a matter of great importance.

Young girls don't realize that their fresh loveliness is priceless, that women wish theirs could have lasted. To use a vivid lipstick is to make the skin appear colorless so one of natural tone should be selected. It should be applied with restraint, blotted carefully so it will not look too much like artifice. That can be done. Applying any item of make-up is more a matter of method than material. Be stingy with it. A little may enhance; too much and the picture is spoiled.

Not every girl can have a complexion like porcelain or the petals of a magnolia bloom, but every girl can have a clean, clear, attractive skin if she will take care of it properly and mind her diet habits. Too much ice cream, butter, cream and pastries will excite the sebaceous glands. If they become overactive, pour out too much of their oily exudations, the pores may exhibit wax-like deposits. These deposits attract atmospheric dust. blackheads may be the forerunners of acne—than which there is nothing much more heartbreaking to a pretty lassie.

The girl of fourteen is entitled to use lipstick

A thorough, soapy facewashing at night is the first law of complexion care. Use clean washcloths. Rinse all the suds away. If there are signs of black dots sponge the skin surface with a soda solution after the facewashing, one teaspoonful of baking soda dissolved in a cup of warm water. Let it dry on. In the morning lave your face with clear, tepid water.

Every girl should be supplied with a jar of cream of light consistency to be used for the removal of powder before the face is washed, to apply if the skin is chapped or has been subjected to strong sunlight.

At the age of sixteen a girl will need powder. It is a nice habit. A shining nose never increased any girl's beauty rating. Ordinarily, there is no need for rouge before the age of twenty. Synthetic cheek roses are being seen less and less and during the teen years, when there is plenty of exercise, the skin has sufficient coloring. To play with the rouge compact is to gild the lily.

A hand lotion is a necessary item, to be used daily all the year round.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Confused About Her Feelings for Her Boyfriend

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 18 and my boy-friend is 21. I have been going with him since I was 16. He is a wonderful fellow, but I am confused about whether I really love him or whether I'm just trying to feel an emotion that isn't there.

For weeks at a time I feel as though I were floating on clouds, and within a matter of hours I completely change, and seem to have no feeling for him at all.

I am a very domineering person, and often hard to please, but he overlooks my faults and is very understanding, even when I know he is hurt.

I suggested that we stop seeing each other for a few months, and that after that I might know definitely how I felt, but he objected to this. I also thought it might help if I went out with other fellows, but fellows stopped asking me out a long time ago because I was going steady.

Helen.

Dear Helen:

I think you have the right idea in thinking that you should see less of this boy in order to give yourself a chance to find out how you really feel.

After all, 16 is pretty young to start going exclusively with one boy, as you did. It's a very rare girl who can know her own mind at any such age, and that's why I wish there were not so much of this "going steady" business among young people in their early teens. If they would only be content to go around with a lot of boys and girls, the kind of complication you're in right now wouldn't happen nearly so often.

I don't think you should feel you have to stick to this boy just because he doesn't want to fall in with your plan of letting you go your own way for a while. Of course, you don't need to brush him off entirely just because you want to see other people, too. See him now and then, but not all the time.

Try and make it clear to him that you are very confused right now, and you think it is only fair to both of you that you should have a chance to find out where you stand.

As for the other boys not asking you out, they probably would soon do so again if they realized you were not tied up to one particular boy. Just let one or two of your girl friends know about this situation and word will soon get around that you are free to go out with whomever you please..

He's 25, She's 15 — He Should Keep Away

Dear Miss Fairfax:

The man I have been going with lately is 25 and I am 15. Because of this, I thought he might like to go with a girl nearer his age, but when I spoke to him about it, he said age makes no difference.

Recently, I went away from home, and while I was gone, he called me up three times. I don't think he believed it when those who answered the 'phone told him I wasn't home, because he hasn't called me since.

Do you think it would be wrong if I called him up and explained to him that I really was away, or should I wait for him to call?

Betty.

Dear Betty:

My own suggestion would be that you neither call him up nor wait for him to call.

It is very foolish for a girl your age to waste time going around with a man of 25. If he doesn't want to go with girls nearer his own age, there must be something wrong with him. But don't forget that this works both ways. In other words, if a teen-age girl doesn't want to go out with boys in her own age group, she's off the beam, too.

The only sensible thing to do is to cross this man off your list entirely.

Wonderful Wedding Gown

White satin, deftly moulded and draped and delicately frothed with fine lace tells the sweet story of the most beautiful of all dresses — the traditional wedding gown. Designed by a famous New York house for a summer bride is this exquisite gown of pure white silk satin and fine lace. The deep neck yoke is trimmed by a soft lace ruffle and circled with self cording. A similar treatment at the hips gives a softly rounded effect.

The chamber, before turning to labor estimates, adopted a bill nending the Dominion Elections t after defeating, by a standing mmittee vote of 57 to 21, an opsition proposal to extend the te to all Indians in Canada.

Two bills broadening the investnt powers of Canadian insurce companies received third ading.

Second reading — approval in inciple—was given a bill amend the Canada shipping act to hten its safety provisions. It s referred to committee for dy.

mpetent Officers

An echo of charges by George rew, Progressive Conservative der, about engines in North r aircraft was heard as the use studied a bill to finance deits incurred by Canadian Nanal Railways and Trans-Canada r Lines.

Trade Minister Howe, in charge T.C.A., said it was "absurd" for . Drew to suggest that T.C.A. ould accept the advice of parmentarians on what to do about rcraft engines. The airline's icers were competent.

Mr. Drew suggested it was just much the duty of members to amine the details of aircraft gine operations as it was for em to consider the comparative vantages of diesel engines and am engines.

The house, moving towards orogation, adopted a governnt motion to sit Wednesday enings, a "free" night up to w. The chamber will sit from a.m. to 11 p.m.—with breaks lunch and dinner—five days a eek.

In the early stages, Fisheries nister Mayhew said the governnt hopes to initiate an intertional conference to deal with mplaints that foreign trawlers interfering with Canadian ssels on the North Atlantic fishbanks.

edit Given Canadian

Mr. Mitchell gave credit for his edicted employment boom to the ive of the Canadian people.

Mr. Smith suggested that instry and labor should find e way of giving the owners greater portion of the profits they increased. Labor should be bound to so much an hour a day.

Mr. Gillis said the federal govnment appeared to have elved" its so-called shelf of blic works projects to relieve unemployment. He criticized the National Employment Service. Regional offices were not doing all that could be done and "political pressure' was being brought to bear in the giving out of jobs.

Mr. Johnston said agriculture, before the use of improved farm machinery, had been able to take care of many unemployed during seasonal periods. The labor department, he suggested, must tackle the problem of how to take care of men being displaced by machinery.

Julian Ferguson (PC — Simcoe North) said that as an employer of labor he felt the minister should leave no stone unturned to emphasize to employers the question of sharing of profits.

Plants should be kept clean and modern and up to date. An employee felt happier and had a better output working in bright factories.

The Labor Department should advance those theories.

MORRIS MAIN

R. Bartlett, a barber with 10 children—one born during the flood—hasn't earned any money in seven weeks. His shop is ruined. His chairs are rusting in the street.

It will be months before Bartlett gets back into his shop.

Asked how he is going to make out financially for home, family and business, Bartlett replied:

Wants to be Assured

"I wouldn't care if they (government, municipality, flood fund) didn't give me a red cent if we were assured that it won't happen again."

Like many another, the barber remembers 1948, when the Red and its tributary Morris River covered homes to above the ground-floor level. Many were just getting over the repair bill for that one.

Town secretary Andrew Swain, who lived in his office from the end of April to last weekend, said he expected all former residents back except about four families.

Carpenters, electricians and general laborers from outlying towns are pouring in to make homes liveable. About one-third of them should be in shape within two weeks, he said. Things would be "reasonably normal" by the time the snow flies.

Weather a Factor

Jim Pottinger, municipal secretary, said the weather will determine what seeding is done around Morris this year. Some 125.000 acres were flooded in the municipality and only a small percentage has been seeded since. Most of the land will be used for early-ripening grains.

Farmers' losses are impossible to estimate, he said, as are these of townsfolk. Side roads still are so bad that municipal officials can not tour the area. Dozens of small bridges are gone.

Immediate relief came from the Red Cross for farmers. Provincial and Federal legislation may ease crop and feed losses.

But, for the returnees, the problem of rehabilitation is not one for governments and funds. It is an immediate, personal need to be doing something toward their own recovery.

One old woman, planting potatoes along the river bank with her husband and daughter-in-law, pointed to her house nearby its roof lying almost on the floor, its walls crushed to the ground.

"Its gone," she said, "and we wont be able to rebuild here where the bank is sliding away, but we need groceries next winter, and no one will plant them if we don't."

LIBERALS

In the other two contests the Liberals had things pretty much their own way. Mr. Crestohl, a Montreal lawyer making his first campaign, rolled up 9,701 votes. His nearest opponent was Harry Binder, Labor-Progressive, who had 3,907. Trailing were Maurice Hebert, Progressive Conservative with 2,836, and Kalmen Kaplansky, C.C.F., 1,461.

The Montreal Cartier by-election was made necessary because of the death of Maurice Hartt, Liberal, who in the 1949 general election had a margin of some 7,000 votes over Mr. Binder, and a woder margin over C.C.F. and Progressive Conservative candidates.

In Halifax where Mr. Balcom, a druggist and President of the Board of Trade, took a long, early lead, the count was still incomplete early today. Lloyd Allen, Progressive Conservative, was far back with little more than half of Mr. Balcom's vote. The The C.C.F. candidate, Rev. J. W. A. Nicholson, a retired United Church minister, trailed badly.

Mr. Balcom takes over the seat in the two-member riding made vacant when Gordon B. Isnor, Liberal, was appointed to the senate.

Statements Made

Prime Minister St. Laurent, in a statement Monday night, said the results of the three by-elections indicated that "proportionate distribution is much the same and shows continued support of the Liberal government's policies and administration."

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said Mr. Nowlan's victory was a "well-deserved tribute to an outstanding Canadian" a "splendid tribute to the fine constituency which has elected him."

The election campaigns were quiet and the only election-day incidents were reported from Montreal Cartier, a multi-racial constituency that has traditionally returned a candidate of the Jewish faith, as it did Monday.

Thirty persons were arrested for distributing Labor-Progressive party pamphlets without a permit.

A warrant was issued for John Switzman, agent for Mr. Binder, the L.P.P. candidate. Mr. Switzman was said to have given a false address at a polling station.

In addition, two women were arrested at the polls on charges of impersonation.

SIX COUNTRIES

France has a plan drafted by Jean Monnet, top economic planner, that included an entire treaty. It will be submitted to the other delegates for negotiation.

May Have Drafts

Other countries also may have drafts of their own to put forward.

Little of the French plan has been allowed to leak to the public. At a recent press conference reporters drew from Schuman these few hints:

The pool might be put into effect by stages. At the beginning individual countries might have a veto power over the acts of the "supra-national" authority Schuman wants to control the pool. The authority itself may be tied to the Council of Europe.

The council, a year-old organization of western Europe countries, has no executive power. In private, the British government often criticizes it as a "talk shop."

In London Monday night a team of British government experts was reported preparing to recommend to the cabinet that Britain join in the merger if each country is given a veto on the international authority.

These experts, whose report will be discussed by Prime Minister Attlee's cabinet Thursday, were said to feel the status of the west's cold war with Russia made western unity more important than any economic disadvantages Britain might suffer from the pool.

RESCUES CHILD

Jordan Harbor, Ont., June 19 — (AP) — Afraid of 'getting wet' close to a dozen onlookers watched a four-year-old Hamilton girl flounder helplessly in Lake Ontario Sunday night.

A nearby youth, attracted by the watchers' cries, came to the rescue pulling the child to safety.

Sheryl Atkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reg Atkins, was throwing pebbles into the water when she lost her balance. Robert Pitkeathley, 17, of Hamilton, fishing nearby, rushed to the scene where the child had fallen in, plunged in and brought her to shore.

Fall Wheat Well Headed in all Parts of Ontario

Toronto, June 20 — (CP) —Fall wheat is well headed in sections of southern and central Ontario, the Provincial Agriculture Department said Monday in its weekly crop report.

Rains in the last week gave a generally rosy future to all grain crops except hay.

In some areas the hay outlook is so bad that the farmers are already cutting fall rye and permanent pasture for hay, the department reported. Many farmers are putting up silage for winter fodder as insurance against a light hay crop.

It was also reported that first strawberries of the year are moving to market for southwestern Ontario. Lack of moisture in Lincoln county has delayed ripening there

Dark spots on the crops picture were aphid raids on turnip fields in Perth County, and attacks of cut worms and maggots on vegetable and corn crops in Brant County. Second plantings were required in some cases.

WANT NEW HEDGE

St. Thomas, June 20 (CP)—A hedge, now eight feet high, was planted on the wrong property 20 years ago and the London and Port Stanley railways is cutting it down to make room for new building. Residents are asking for a new hedge to screen the railway yards—this time placed on city property.

SIGN NEW CONTRACT

Oshawa, June 20 (CP)—The Ontario Malleable Iron Company and the United Steel Workers of America (C.I.O.) signed a new contract Monday night providing hourly wage increases of five to eight cents, bringing the basic wage to $1.04 an hour. The union said it is the highest basic wage in Ontario for this industry.

RAWDON

Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Celebrates 25th Anniversary Of Church Union

Mount Pleasant United Church was filled to capacity on Wednes[illegible]fternoon last when approxi[illegible]ly 165 ladies gathered from nearby points to join in a special W.M.S. rally to celebrate 25 years of union.

Lovely ferns, baskets of white snowballs, and red peonies enhanced the beauty of the newly decorated church. Mrs. Herbert Smith, and Mrs. Raymond McConnell were in charge of the flower arrangement, and the Memorial Baptismal font dedicated a few years ago, was filled with yellow roses in silent tribute to a charter member, life member and honorary president, Mrs. Allan Bailey, who passed into higher service in May.

Guests Welcomed

[illegible] Frank Smith, and Mrs. B[illegible] Sharpe, welcomed the guests from River Valley W.M.S.; Hoard's W.M.S.; Stirling W.M.S. and W.A.; Wellman's W.MS. and W.A.; Carmel W.A.; Salem W.A.; Bethel W.A. and Springbrook W.A.

It was regretted that four members were absent through illness, Mrs. George Weaver, Mrs. John Mulheron, Mrs. Milford Wrightman and Mrs. John Hay.

The afternoon service opened with quiet music played by the pianist, Mrs. John Holmes. Mrs. Roy Thrasher, president, took charge of the service and welcomed the guests. She reminded her audience that they should begin a further advance toward 50 years of union.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen read the May minutes. Four life members and 15 annual members were in attendance.

[illegible]s. Kenneth Weaver, in her fi[illegible]cial statement, reported $91.59 givings for the first five months.

On July 5th, one week earlier than usual, Mount Pleasant W.M.S. will entertain mothers, members of Mission Band, and Baby Band, and Mrs. W. B. May, Belleville, will be guest speaker.

The offering was gathered by Mrs. Burton Sharp, Mrs. Frank Spicer Jr., Mrs. H. Smith and Mrs. R. McConnell and Mrs. Ross Hoard dedicated it to Missions. The silver collection amounted to over $30 and there was also the members envelopes.

Mrs. Thrasher used for her worship service the outline in "The Missionary Monthly" with the rendition of "The Church's One Foundation" to Bible lesson in John 17, the watchword "The World for Christ."

Presidents Decorated

At this point, lovely badges [illegible]ned in silver with the years o[illegible] service made by Mrs. Ross Jeffs and her committee were pinned on each lady present who had served as president during the 25 years. It was regretted that Mrs. George Weaver was absent through illness and all mourned the recent passing of Mrs. F. G. Joblin, of Port Perry, as Mrs. Joblin had made her plans to be in attendance at this special rally.

Letter of greeting was read from Mrs. T. F. Townsend, of Deseronto, and Mrs. Wilbert Jeffs, of Beaverton, sent regrets.

The presidents in attendance were Mrs. John Holmes, Mrs. Ross Hoard, Mrs. Thomas McKeown, who now resides in Springbrook; Mrs. Arthur Phillips, Mrs. Percy MacMullen and Mrs. Roy Thrasher.

Resume of 25 Years

Mrs. Percy MacMullen then gave a resume of the history of Mount Pleasant Woman's Missionary Society which was organized in 1901 by Mrs. Levi Massey with ten members. Mrs. James Williams served as president for the first ten years and on her 78th birthday, she was presented with a flowering rose. Mrs. Williams died in 1939, and 20 members sat in a body at her funeral and a special memorial service was held the month following her death.

Only one lady of that first group survives, Mrs. James Honeywell, Castleton, formerly Miss Phronia MacDonald, of Pump Street, Mount Pleasant. At the 45th anniversary she sent a special poem and Bible verses to be read as she was unable to be in attendance.

The other four presidents, up till union, were Mrs. Allan Bailey and Mrs. John Reid, with five years each; Mrs. Thomas McKeown two years and Mrs Holmes one year.

Mrs. John Reid, was able to attend this special rally, and many old friends greeted her.

In 1912 a Mission Circle was organized with Mrs. Robert Pounder as leader for six years.

Mrs. George Weaver has been a member of Mount Pleasant auxiliary for 48 years and Mrs. John Holmes since 1918.

Mrs. Frank Jeffs made herself a life member in 1920. Mrs. Ross Hoard, Mrs. Arthur Phillips and Mrs. Percy MacMullen have been members all of the 25 years.

Mrs. Allan Bailey had been a continuous member since 1901 until her death a few weeks ago.

All through the years bales have been packed for Coe Hill, Indian Missions, Hearst Hospital, numerous parcels have been sent to the Presbyterial supply secretary with dozens of new quilts, layettes, etc.

Mount Pleasant-Rawdon

In June 1924, Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Mission Band was organized and during the 26 years the children have had several leaders which included six years leadership by Miss Edna Thrasher now Mrs. Milton Shaw, Ivanhoe, and seven years by Mrs. Cyrus Summers.

At the 14th annual meeting of Belleville Presbyterial, the first certificate of award was given Mount Pleasant and they have won all certificates and stars since 1938.

Each year Board members sell Christmas cards and in 1949 Mrs. John Mulheron held 14 meetings and remitted to Presbyterial over $50.

Mrs. MacMullen read a memorial poem in tribute to three ladies who have passed into higher service: Mrs. Frank Williams, a charter member who died in 1947; Mrs. Allen Bailey and Mrs. F. G. Joblin who died in 1950.

Mrs. John Holmes has the unique honor of being last president before Union and the first after Union and also 1948-49.

The officers for 1925 were read and three are deceased, Mrs. F. Joblin, Mrs. Arthur McAdam and Mrs. Will Hubble. All others were present for the 25th celebration: Mrs. John Holmes, Mrs. Frank Jeffs, Mrs. Frank Spencer, Mrs. Thomas McKeown, Mrs. John Reid and Mrs. Edgar McKeown.

Mrs. Frank Spencer, who with her husband recently celebrated their diamond wedding anniversary, also met many old friends at this gathering.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

IT COULD BE!

Don't look now, kiddies, but this city might be represented by a senior baseball club next summer. This corner has it on very good authority that a movement to organize such a squad will be started in late Autumn, with all-winter activities going on tap to get the team off to a good start come Spring.

* * *

Of course, there are the inevitable "if's". It is felt that with the acquisition of three or four players, mostly battery and infield, the city will have the nucleus of as good a team as any at present in the Central Ontario Baseball League. However it will require funds to operate such a squad, and it is with this fact in mind, winter activities will be started.

A strong organization, it is hoped, will be formed, and inasmuch as any organization is as strong as its execcutive body, efforts will be made to line up the best baseball administrative brains in the city. Some people have been approached and have indicated their willingness to get behind such a team. And if the proper procedure is undertaken and carried out, we can see no reason why the Belleville entry will not be the first to make application when the COBL annual rolls around next Spring.

WELL . . . LOOK WHO'S HERE!

None other than "Da Preem" the Ambling Alp of Italia will make his wrestling debut here next Friday night. Primo Carnera, former world heavyweight boxing champion, is making his second appearance in Belleville since he decided that lotsa American bucks wouldn't do him any harm. He meets the towering hillbilly from the Ozark Mountains, Ski-Hi Lee in a battle of the monuments scheduled as the main bout on next Friday's card.

"Da Preem" won the world's heavyweight boxing championship on June 28th., 1933 when he clipped Jack Sharkey with a tremendous uppercut in the sixth round of their bout in the Long Island Bowl. He held the title until June 14, 1934 when Max Baer defeated him by a technical knockout in the 11th round of their titular battle in Madison Square Gardens. Carnera hit the deck twelve times in eleven rounds and Referee Arthur Donovan called the show off when the huge Italian, a bloody, battered mess, staggered about the ring, a beaten fighter. Primo collected $122,782 for the night's work.

Stripped of his glamor, and worst of all, clipped of his winnings by promotorial and managerial wise gentlemen, Carnera returned to Italy a disillusioned broke fighter. He went into retirement on a small farm and a couple of years ago, feeling the need of good American dinero in his jeans, returned to the USA, billed as a wrestler. His success in the gripe, grunt and groan game has been more or less sensational and besides, the Carnera jeans are plentifully lined with lush lettuce that doesn't grow in gardens.

In any event, he tangles with the huge Lee here Friday night in what should be a battle of the skyscrapers. Both men tower well over six feet and both tip the beam around the 280 mark. About the best seats in Memorial Arena for this scrap would be, we presume, on the lower length of the rafters. There'll be many kinks in the neck for the ringside ladies and gentlemen.

* * *

A welcome member of the pachydermic fraternity is young Johnny Barand, out of Rochester. Johnny, who is the idol of the fans around the Buffalo - Rochester circuit, and who is barely out of his teens, has shown exceptional promise as a wrestler. In his first appearance here a couple of months back, Barand delighted the faithful with his wide-open clever style. Johnny meets one Mr. Stanlee who has been wowing the bobby-soxers all over since he won the "Mr. America" title. Stanlee is possessed of a magnificent physique and it should be the gals night to howl on Friday. In the opener the popular Irish strong man, Timmy Geohagen, who made a hit last Friday in his first appearance, tangles with Johnny Bell, a newcomer.

SMITHS FALLS HERE TONIGHT

Tonight the Smith's Falls Central Ontario Baseball League entry makes its first appearance in Belleville in a diamond battle with the Bill Easton Batawans. With the Falls team will be Allen Kelleher who has been going great guns with the hickory since he was farmed out by the Ottawa Nationals of the Border Baseball League. Batawa are snuggling down at the bottom of the loop head playing peek-a-boo with Picton, and they're definitely out to win tonight's game. Just who will get the pitching assignment was not disclosed today, but it is likely Maestro Easton will send Gordie Muffitt to the post. Game gets under way at 8.30 and will be aired over CJBQ.

HELP WANTED!

Attractive Kay Mills of Moe Fogarty's Northern Electric ladies softball entry in the lakeshore League is proving the "DiMaggio" of the skirt-wearing diamondears. Kay smashed out five solid hits the other night in a league game against Trenton to pace her team to a 19-10 victory. Moe is doing right well with his team and the sparsely-thatched (we should shout) mentor has rounded out a fine team. They have dropped only one game in four starts and at the moment are mooted as the league champions, or at least champions of the eastern section of the league. Just what they will do, when they represent this city in the intermediate "A" ladies playdowns is a matter for conjecture as they will meet stiff opposition with the western teams which have been playing softball consistently. However, Moe's Misses will give a fine account of themselves and the opposition will know they have been in a softball game. More power to 'em, God bless 'em.

* * *

At the moment, Moe is scratching his balding pate in an effort to dig up another pitcher. Pee-Wee Colden, who with Ann McGrath has been carrying the hurling load is away honeymooning, and yuh can't expect the gal to take time out from an important engagement like that to play softball. So if any past or present hurler is on the loose in the city wontya puleeze give Moe a call and tell him you're all set to go. You can get him at the Northern Electric Company, via the phone.

NOOR DID IT AGAIN

Irish-bred Noor (5), formerly owned by Aga Khan, is shown as he made it three in a row over Citation by finishing the $10,000-added Forty-Niners Handicap at Albany, Cal., in the world-record shattering time of 1:46 4-5. Jockey Johnny Longden gave coal-black Noor a championship ride as his steed came from far back to flash past the Calumet comet in the home stretch and chalk up a new time, clipping nearly a full second from the old mark held by Broom, Coaltown and Shannon II. — Central Press Canadian.

Brooklyn Dodgers Move into Tie for N.L. Leadership With 8-5 Win Over Giants

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Tip to the National League clubs—don't bring a winning streak into Ebbets Field. The unsympathetic Brooklyn Dodgers are sure to crack it.

It's uncanny the way the devil-may-care Dodgers cool off the "red hot" clubs.

First it was Philadelphia. The eager Phillies stormed into Ebbets Field May 30 in first place as a result of winning five of their previous six starts. The Brooks immediately polished them off twice to knock them off the top perch.

Then it was St. Louis. The Cards came into Brooklyn last Friday leading the league by 3½ games. The Dodgers thrashed them three straight times.

Monday night it was New York. The Giants moved in with four victories in their last five starts.

Brooklyn collected 10 hits off five Giant pitchers for an 8-5 victory.

Ralph Branca pitched his first complete game for the Dodgers since Aug. 1, 1949, although he was tagged for 12 hits. Four errors helped get Brooklyn as many unearned runs. Branca started with a rush, striking out 10 Giants in the first five innings. But he was lucky to finish.

Brooks Tied

The victory, Brooklyn's fourth in a row, moved the Dodgers into a first-place tie with the idle Cardinals. Each team has won 32 and lost 20.

Boston Braves fell three games off the pace Monday night when Cliff Chambers of Pittsburgh Pirates bested lefty Warren Spahn 1-0 in a game enlivened by a skirmish between Chambers and Boston's Earl Torgeson. The latter rushed Chambers in the third inning after he was grounded by a close pitch. The two wrestled to the ground before the umpires and players of both teams separated them.

Torgeson was ejected from the game. Chambers had hit Torgy on the back with a pitched ball in the first inning of Sunday's second game.

The only other scheduled game in the National—Cincinnati at Philadelphia—was rained out.

In the only American League game, Chicago White Sox nipped Washington Senators 4-3 in 11 innings. Outfielder Marv Rickert's home run in the 11th enabled Randy Gumbert to gain his first victory of the season. He pitched two scoreless innings of relief.

Ontario Most Heavily Taxed On Continent

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, June 20 — (CP) — Ontario race tracks, the most heavily taxed on the North American continent, are taking a pasting at the parimutuel wickets this spring. And you can get odds that the reasons for the slump are the provincial government's 12 1-2-per-cent levy on the tote—and the bookies.

Figures from three 1950 meetings at Toronto—Dufferin, Woodbine and Greenwood—show that $6,354,406 has been wagered through the mutuels, a decrease of $912,682 from the corresponding 1949 period when the tax was 10 per cent.

Here is the three-track wagering for 1950, with 1949 figures in parenthesis, as released by the federal department of agriculture which controls pari-mutuel betting in Canada:

Dufferin, 14 days: $3,012,180 (12 days: $3,316,170); Woodbine, seven days: $2,291,740 (seven days: $2,629,382); Greenwood, five days: $1,049,586 (five days: $1321,536).

Ontario's total tax is 21 1-2 per cent—12 1-2 to the government on the tote and a graduated take-out of from nine to five per cent plus "breakage" on $2 bets by the operators. This is 6 1-2 per cent more than the highest total take-out on United States tracks.

Breakage Uniform

The graduated tax and breakage is uniform on all Canadian tracks under provisions of the criminal code.

Ontario's pari-mutuel tax compares with a 12-per-cent tote tax in British Columbia and the Manitoba government's bite of 10 per cent. Saskatchewan's tote tax is five per cent—same as Alberta—but the Saskatchewan treasury turns back 75 per cent of the amount to the provincial fair board as a grant. The Quebec government's pari-mutuels take is 5 1-2 per cent.

Highest levy in the U.S.—State and track taxes—is 15 per cent.

There is still plenty of money around Ontario for flings on the horses, but bettors here are hightailing it underground to the bookies where it probably costs them a five-cent telephone call to place their bets. They don't like the idea of paying about 45 cents on a $2 bet to the provincial government and track operators.

Untold thousands of dollars are wagered every day with Toronto's hundreds of bookies while tracks are operating.

In addition, track admission tickets are subject to a provincial amusement tax of 15 per cent, down five per cent from 1949.

The happiest guys in the game are the bookies.

Batawa Edges Trenton 4-3 In Soccer Tilt

Batawa beat Trenton Merchants in a Bay of Quinte Soccer League match played at the shoe town last night by a score of four goals to three. The game was very closely contested and each side was ahead at different stages of the game. The Trenton boys were the first to take the lead on a goal by R. Mitts. Hawryliw equalized for Batawa after a few minutes. Midway through the first half Campbell got one in the net to give the merchants the lead for the second time, his lead was short lived for Pakas put one in for Batawa from the penalty shot after an infringement by the Trenton goalkeeper. There was no further score in the first and the teams changed over on even terms at two goals each. Batawa were the first to score in the second period from a goal by J. Tlamsa with about twenty minutes to go Brown tied the score again when he counted for Trenton. The last and winning goal was probably the best shot of the match and came from a cross from the left wing by Planowsky.

Teams: Batawa—Linca, Kuklis, Carter, Hrywnak, Mueller, Paton, F. Tlamsa, J. Tlamsa, Hawryliw, Kravacek, Planovsky. Subs — Aitken, Davies, Pakas.

Trenton—Carswell, E. Helyer, Wick, Taft, Brown, Rushnell, M. Mitts, Collerjohn, Campbell, R. Mitts, L. Helyer. Subs—Terrill, Haker, Martin.

Referee — Les Digby.

In the other match scheduled for last night 6 R.D. beat the Vets 6-0 in a game played at the Belleville fair grounds. Referee Tom Sneddon.

SANICKI RALLIED TO HELP LEAFS SPLIT DOUBLE-HEADER WITH CHIEFS

Sanicki is welcomed home by Collins, left, and Rhawn.

Eddie Sanicki, who has been at loggerheads with fate all spring, finally scored a decision which helped the Toronto Maple Leafs to split Sunday afternoon's diamond loot with Syracuse Chiefs. Sanicki pinch-poked a home run over the left-field fence, to provide the winning run of a 6-4 victory the Leafs claimed before Eddie Blake shut them out one hit, 1-0, in the second game. A chilled Toronto gathering of 6,647 saw the Leafs held runless in all but one inning of the double-header. But in that one inning the Sanfords scored more runs than the visiting Chiefs coralled in four productive rounds during both games. — Central Press Canadian.

Players Insist Tigers not Playing Over Their Heads

Detroit, June 20 (AP)— Detroit's amazing Tigers are leading the American League by two full games and the fans here are slightly gaga over the prospects of a pennant winner.

But are Tigers playing over their heads?

The answer was an emphatic no from manager Red Rolfe, coach Dick Bartell, and Hal Newhouser, a Tiger pitching ace. Here's what they had to say:

Rolfe—"We're a long way from a pennant. But if we keep on going and making our own breaks, we can get there."

Bartell—"We're not over our heads. We're winning the close ones. We haven't dropped an extra-inning game. We're taking most of the one-run games. That's the mark of a real good ball club. We've got a great chance"

Newhouser—"This is the best Tiger team I've ever been with."

Manager Rolfe said, however: "We can't stand any injuries to key men. We still have secondary pitching problems. I still fear Boston. Cleveland is coming fast again. We're in a fight, that's sure."

The Tigers engage Washington Senators tonight after sweeping three Boston games here.

Rolfe hopes that Virgil Trucks, out of action with a sore arm for a month, will be able to pitch Thursday's game against the Senators. Trucks has been throwing batting practice and says the aches are disappearing.

Cubs Defeat Cannifton 17-3 For Third Win

Belleville Cubs, playing their best game of the season sidetracked the Cannifton Clippers in a Belleville and District Baseball League game at Exhibition Grounds last night by a 17-3 score.

The win was the third straight for the Cubs who came up with a flawless fielding display behind the airtight four-hit pitching of the veteran hurler "Chuck" Barriage.

Barriage was practically invincible throughout the nine-innings session. For five and two-thirds chukkers he flung hitless, runless baseball, only eighteen men facing him over that period. The first hit, a homer by Hazard which centrefielder Garry Schreider misjudged came in the last of the sixth, but that was all. Barriage yielded three more hits, with Cannifton scoring the remaining two runs in a belated ninth innings rally.

The Cub infield came up with the best defensive game of its career. Not one error went into the records and proof of the efficiency of the inner gardeners is seen in the fact that first baseman Peter Jones was credited with 15 putouts.

Cub Bats Click

The Cub bats made merry at the expense of two Clipper hurlers. They banged out an assortment of 17 hits with homers, triples and doubles spicing the parade. Timmy Williams, starting hurler for Cannifton labored for six innings and was greeted with twelve clouts for 13 runs. Barberstock relieved him and and yielded five hits for four runs over the rest of the route. Williams walked nine and struck out three.

The Cubs scored four runs in each of the first two innings added one in each of the next three, two in the sixth and three in the ninth. The Cannifton errors amounting to thirteen paved the way for the greater part of the Cub tallies.

"Elder" Neilson, Cub second sacker led the Cub hit parade with a homer, triple and single. Peter Jones lined out a triple and two singles; Chuck Barriage helped his own cause with a trio of clouts with Reeves, Lockyer and Mulvihill getting two each. Soules and Galbraith got singles. Garry Schreider was the only Cub who failed to connect.

Lawrenson, Cannifton skipper accounted for two of his teams hits one a two-baser. Hazard hit for the circuit and Williams accounted for the other.

The teams:

Cannifton:: Hazard, 3b, c; Cook, ss; Sheffield, 2b; Lawrenson, 1b; Harden, cf; Barberstock, p, lf; Waite, c; Williams, p; Kimmett, rf; May.

Belleville: Schrieder, cf; Jones, 1b; Soules, c; Neilson, 2b; Reeves, ss; Galbraith, lf; Lockyer, 3b; Mulvihill, rf; Barirage, p; Doran, c; Heinson, lf.

U.S. MADE IT 14 STRAIGHT IN WIGHTMAN CUP TOURNEY

The U.S. Wightman Cup team, which is composed of Doris Hart, left, Louise Brough, Mrs. Richard Buck, non-playing captain, Mrs. Du Pont and Patricia Todd, is shown here with the trophy after America's four women tennis aces won it for the 14th straight time since 1930 with a 7-0 victory over English racquet wielders. U.S. singles champion Margaret Osborne Du Pont and former champion Louise Brough capped the sweep by beating a British pair 6-2, 6-0 in the doubles at famed Wimbledon, Eng. The British team fought hard but could offer little except accommodations as the Americans won all of the seven matches for the fourth time in five meetings since the war. — Central Press Canadian.

Winner Will Get Shot At Title Says Godbout

(By The Canadian Press)

The winner of the Laurent Dauthuille-Tuzo Portuguez fight at Montreal tonight will get a shot at the world's middleweight title, promoter Raoul Godbout said Monday.

The Montreal promoter said that such a championship fight was "99 percent certain" to be staged in Montreal this summer.

Dauthuille of France, who registered a victory over Jake Lamotta last summer before he captured the middleweight crown, takes on Portuguez in a 10-rounder that will pave the way for the winner to move into top challenging ranks for the world title.

The Frenchman was considered by the International Boxing Club of the United States as an opponent for Jake Lamotta, June 28 at New York. Lamotta was originally scheduled to fight Rocky Graziano for the title, but the bout was called off after Graziano reported he had suffered a fractured thumb. However, the I.B.C. named Tiberio Mitri of Italy as a replacement for Graziano and postponed the New York battle until July 12.

Godbout said Monday that he had "positive assurance" from the National Boxing Association that a world middleweight championship bout would be staged at Montreal.

At Chicago, Don Millar, vice-president of the United States Trotting Association, Monday said the U.S.T.A. has filed a motion to quash a $1,200,000 damage suit brought by a Buffalo, N.Y., lawyer.

Millar said it is "his understanding" that the motion will be heard July 10 in Buffalo.

The suit was filed May 24 by John J. Carlo, part owner of harness-racing tracks in Illinois, Ohio and Michigan.

Carlo alleged the association violates the anti-trust laws and is a "monopoly, combination and conspiracy in restraint of trade between the several states and Canada."

As a result, he alleged, he and his associates have been "wrongfully prevented from engaging in harness-horse racing in 1949 and 1950."

H. A. (Jimmy) Jones, trainer for the West Coast contingent of Calumet farm's racing stock, said Monday at Albany, Calif., that Armed, an older star of the stable, has been retired.

At present Armed is third on the all-time money winning list, behind Calumet's Citation and second-place Stymie.

He has won $817,475, making him the champion money earner of all the geldings in turf history.

Jerry Kesselring, Kitchener amateur, shot a sizzling six-under-par 65 over Kitchener's Westmount Golf Club golf course Sunday to smash the course record. Kesselring tied the previous mark 67—10 days ago.

Kid Gavilan, the Cuban middleweight, outpointed Bobby Mann of Trenton, N.J., Monday night in a 10-round feature bout at Hartford, Conn. Gavilan weighed 155; Mann 154.

FORCED TO "SIT THIS ONE OUT"

Rocky Graziano, who was scheduled to fight Jake Lamotta for the middleweight title on June 28th at the New York Polo Grounds, is shown woefully looking at his fractured left hand which he injured while sparring at his training camp at Greenwood Lake, N.Y. He paid no further attention to injury until it started to pain him a few days later. Further examinations revealed a fracture. Until Graziano is able to fight again, the bout will be held as scheduled with France's Laurent Dauthuille, Italy's Tiberia Mitre and Sugar Ray Robinson subbing for Rocky. —Central Press Canadian.

Cellar-Dwellers Blanked 3-0 By St. Thomas

(By The Canadian Press)

Baseball fans in Guelph may be justifiably forgiven if they should start taking to dope.

Their erstwhile pride and joy —the Maple Leafs— just can't seem to do anything right in the current Intercounty Baseball League race. Every time the Maples come through with what would ordinarily be winning baseball, their opponents play as though inspired.

So far, it has cost the Leafs 13 losses in 17 Intercounty starts.

Loss number 13 went into the records Monday night when St. Thomas Legion blanked the cellar dwellers 3-0. It was Walter (Doc) Doherty's turn to get hot — the St. Thomas southpaw pitched a four-hitter, struck out seven and walked two.

Bill McCarthy pitched well enough for Guelph, giving up nine hits, fanning five and walking four. But Legion plated one run in the sixth on two hits, and added two more in the seventh on a single, a double by Doherty, and a double steal.

That was enough for the ball game. Guelph's batters just couldn't solve Doherty, no batter getting more than one safety.

In London, the Majors' three-game winning streak was snapped by the league-leading Waterloo Tigers. Husky Joe Yosurak pitched Tigers to a 5-4 victory in scoring in seventh straight win without defeat.

The only time Yosurak found himself in trouble was the third, when Joe Bechard clouted an inside-the-park homer with one man aboard to bring Majors within two runs of the Tigers. The third London tally was added in the seventh.

Stratford Nationals chalked up a 5-3 win over Galt Terriers in Stratford. Nats poured across three runs in the sixth on three hits and two errors to take down the win.

Alex Martin, former International League hurler, suffered the Galt loss in a tight pitching duel with Vern Richardson. Andy Garbas of Galt was batting star of the night, nicking Richardson for three hits in five at bats.

Tiberio Mitri Surprised to Get Title Shot

New York, June 20 — (AP) — "Wouldn't it be nice for me, Tiberio Mitri, to come home to Trieste, champion of the world? They might even give me a medal."

Mitri, a likeable Italian, smiled as he talked about the twist of fate that will give him a shot at Jake Lamotta's middleweight crown July 12, night of his 24th birthday.

"I came here to win the title," he said. "I'm surprised I get the chance so soon. What a nice birthday present."

Mitri said he lived in Trieste all during the war until the Germans called all young men to work in the "bunkers." He took a train to the country. While the heat was on he lived on a farm near Venice, his mother's birthplace. After the war he took up boxing. In four years, he held the European title.

Unbeaten in 53 pro fights and 19 amateur, Mitri said he never has been knocked off his feet. Among his more important victims were Laurent Dauthuille of France and Cyrille Delanoit of Belgium.

Mitri owes his chance to Rocky Graziano who pulled out of the title bout Friday with a left thumb fracture.

Sandy Saddler Defeats Forte In Third Round

Toronto, June 20 (CP) —Sandy Saddler of New York, former world's featherweight boxing champion, scored a third-round knockout over Johnny Forte, also of New York, in headline bout of an outdoor professional boxing show at Oakwood Stadium Monday night. The crowd was about 3,000.

The end came at 1.38 of the third round after Saddler scored a stiff left hook to the jaw. Saddler weighed 129, Forte 137.

It was a dull bout, Forte coming in with a crouch and all of the fighting done inside at close range. Saddler scored with short lefts and rights and had Forte down for a nine count in the first round.

It was Forte's first knockout in his professional career. Saddler won the world title with a four-round knockout over Willie Pep at New York in October, 1948. The Connecticutt kid regained his title four months later with a 15-round decision over the spindly Negro.

Earl Walls, Toronto Negro heavyweight, scored a quick knockout over George Abinet of New York in the semi-final. Abinet was counted out after 30 seconds, taking four lefts and rights to the chin. Walls weighed 189, Abinet 200.

In other bouts George Sinclair Winnipeg, got his 12th consecutive victory with a six-round decision over Calvin Leigh of Rochester, N.Y. Sinclair weighed 128, Leigh 123.

James J. Parker, Toronto, knocked out Johnny Adams, Rochester, N.Y., at 1.30 of the first round of a six-round heavyweight bout. Parker weighed 187 Adams 214.

In the opener Johnny Ashley, Buffalo, defeated Jimmy Steeves, Port Arthur, in four rounds. Ashley weighed 131, Steeves 127.

Springfield Cubs Move to Top Of International

(By The Associated Press)

It took Stan Hack's Springfield Cubs 60 days to do it, but today they're on top of the International League.

The Cubs, lodged in the basement April 21, climbed into the lead Monday night with a rousing 14-1 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs. Springfield replaced Rochester, which was idle.

Righthander Bill Molsan held Toronto to two hits, while the Cubs cracked two Maple Leaf hurlers for 20 blows. Ransom Jackson, with two singles and two doubles, paced Springfield.

Baltimore Orioles pounded Buffalo Bisons 12-2 to take third place. Catcher Clyde Kluttz led Baltimore's 14 hit attack with a home run, triple and two singles, Ray Poat picked up his first victory.

Montreal bombed Syracuse for five runs in the fifth inning and a 6-2 victory. Seven hits, including doubles by George Schmees and Rocky ridges, featured the big inning. Turk Lown won his seventh game.

The Kibitzer

Sharpen your bridge play with the rule of 11. It tells you when to play third hand high or low. It advises you what the declarer holds. It warns you what to return to partner.

When partner leads the fourth best of a suit, subtract from 11. This tells you how many higher than the led card are outside of the leader's hand; in dummy and your hand and in declarer.

With south as declarer at four spades, the clubs in each hand are as shown here:

NORTH
♣Q 7 4

WEST ♣J 9 8 5 EAST ♣A 10 2

SOUTH
♣K 6 3

Opening lead from west is the club five. When dummy hand goes down decide what to do with your east clubs.

Five from 11 is six. So there must be six clubs higher than the five in north and east and south. Two are in north. You have two. South must have the other two clubs higher than the five.

Against a suit bid, partner should not lead away from a king. So, what must you assume? The king must be one of the two south cards higher than the five.

If so, the play of your ace on the first trick is bad bridge. It will give the declarer two club tricks with the south king and the dummy queen. Your correct first play is the club ten.

South can win this with the king. When west gets in again his next club lead blocks any further tricks in that suit for the bidder.

East knows he is taking no chances of losing his ace. Why? The rule of 11 has told him that south has two clubs higher than the five. Therefore, south is known to have at least two clubs.

In an expert game east would be embarrassed if he used up the ace on the first trick. His partner might not say anything. But one of his opponents would cut him with: "Your partner is not going to think much of you now. Better settle your rating points at him again."

Movie Column

By GENE HANDSAKER
(For Vacationing Bob Thomas)

Hollywood, June 20 — (AP) — Southern California's "little people"—dwarfs and midgets—have been busy in a movie the last several days. By grapevine word spread through midgetdom that they were needed to people a Johnny Weissmuller picture called "Pygmy Island."

Along came Marion Nichols, a produce company bookkeeper, to don a leopard skin and body make up. Little Angelo Rossitto deserted his news-stand. "The world's smallest cowboy fiddler," 52-inch Buster Resmondo, joined up with his diminutive wife Hazel.

The little actors' pay was $22.-33 a day.

One day 65 worked—all wearing black wigs, the women in gay sarongs, some with animal-tooth and bone necklaces. Ordinarily, Waine Johnson works on a ranch. His little wife Lillie is the cook. Mary Brown is a bookbinder. Jeanette Fern dances in night clubs as "The Miniature Sally Rand."

Old Stuff

For one of them this was old stuff, Billy Curtis—four feet, two inches tall and 42 years old — has been in pictures 12 years. He said about 15 little people earn a regular living in films. Most of the work is standing in for child actors while electricians rig lights and the youngsters get their required schooling.

For featured actor roles like his present one as a pygmy leader Billy receives $750 a week. Between such assignments he stands in and doubles in dangerous stunts for the child. Bobby Driscoll apparently plunged 36 feet from a teetering beam into a fireman's net in "The Window." Actually it was Billy, who says he got $1,-500 for the leap.

Cigar Smoker

Wearing long blonde curls and a dress, he hung out a 25-foot-high window as a double for Lora Lee Michel. His disguise was so good that one day the assistant director told him, "all right, Lora Lee, we're ready." Billy turned around with a cigar in his mouth and said drily, "Okay." He's proud that he has cut his cigar consumption from 22 to eight a day.

Mercuries Earn 15-11 Victory Over Batemans

For four innings last evening, Bateman Motors and the Belleville Mercuries carried on an Alphonse-Gaston routine that had them 10-8 respectively on ten hits and about the same number of errors, when the Mercuries suddenly tired of the whole thing and began to play a neater brand of ball that netted them an eventual 15-11 victory.

The game was further marred in the seventh inning, when centrefielder Vickers was called out sliding at the plate. He was so incensed at the decision that he aimed a poke at plate umpire Young but cooler heads prevailed and the rhubarb simmered down with a great deal of chest being pushed against chest and a few curling lips. A close play at first in the ninth frame in which Vickers was called out gave promise of a healthier brawl but petered out in no time at all.

Mercuries opened the scoring in the top of the first frame, counting one run on a single, an error, and a fielder's choice. Bateman's promptly swamped them with a five run rally in their end of the first taking full advantage of a single, two walks, three errors, and two passed balls. They added another run in the second without benefit of a hit.

Kept Whittling

Mercuries kept whittling away at the lead coming up with two in the second on a single, a double, and an error, and three more in the third on two errors, a walk, a fielder's choice and a single. Batemen's gathered in two in the third on a walk, a double and an error.

Mercury hurler Emmerson opened the fourth with a home run to left field while a triple by Moore and a single by Miller gave them another run.

Stone came on to relieve Emmerson in the fourth setting down Batemans with five hits over the rest of the course. Three singles in the fourth netted them two runs, while a walk and a double gave them their final tally in the ninth.

The Mercuries got one in the sixth, three in the seventh, two in the eighth and one in the 9th to wrap up their second win in four days.

Line-ups:

Mercuries: Emmerson p, lf; Moore c; Vickers cf; Culhane 1b; Garvin 2b; Burns 3b; Tapp rf; Miller ss; Dell lf, replaced by Stone in 4th, p.

Bateman Motors: Thompson, cf, replaced by Carmichael in 2nd; Hatfield ss, replaced by Brown in 9th; Bone c; Jud Semark 3b; G. Graham 2b, replaced by John Semark in 8th; L. Wright lf; J. O'-Brien rf; Callaghan 1b; Hedger p.

Slept With Shoes On in Jungle Bed, Man is Robbed

New York, June 19—(AP)— Mary Hagenah, 83, stabbed August Adam, 73, Sunday night in a Bronx hobo "jungle" because, she said, Adam slept with his shoes on in the bed of an absent friend.

The woman, who has lived in the squatters' camp 30 years, was charged with felonious assault.

Adam, wounded in the abdomen, was in serious condition.

Police quoted Mrs. Hagenah as saying she found Adam sleeping in the bed of an old friend of hers, Frederick Geis, 70, who was removed to hospital. Saturday.

When she found Adam with shoes on in Geis' bed, she said:

"That's not nice. Don't dirty Fritz's bed. Put a newspaper under your feet."

"He came for my throat," police quoted her as saying. "I pulled out my pocket knife and let him have it."

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper pop lit a cigar with a thawtful expression, saying to ma, I'm going to try a noble experiment tonite. I'm going to limit myself to just this one cigar, instead of indulging in my usual 2, he said.

Well, I'm sure you'll have my moral support, ma said. Congradulations, William, I'm glad to hear you're getting sensible at last, she said, and pop said, I hope you wont object if I smoke it all the way down.

Well naturelly not, how could I be so unreasonable? ma said, and pop said, Of course when it gets very short it's libel to slip through my fingers and spray fire and ashes into my lap.

Goodness, ma said, and pop said, Oh, dont worry, my dear. I'll be prepared to carry rite on, if you can supply me with a hat pin.

Now you're getting redickulous, ma said, and pop said, On the contrary, my dear. When both ends of the cigar have drawn so close together that I can no longer hold it in the normal manner, I'll simply spear it with a hat pin and in that way I'll be garanteed several more delicious puffs. At that stage of the game you may notice a peculiar smell of something being scortched or bernt, but please dont blame it unjustly on my cigar, because I assure you it will only be the fringe of my mustash. When that happens, I'm afraid the cigar will be practically exhawsted, he said.

And so will I, for land sakes, ma said. You win, William. Smoke your 2 cigars just as you probably intended to all along she said.

Which he probably did.

Historic White Chapel Church Scene of Service

Picton — The historic white chapel, just east of Picton, was filled to capacity Sunday afternoon, when the annual service was held. Rev. C. D. McLellan, Napanee, was guest preacher. This chapel, erected in 1808 stands today as it was in the pioneer days. The interior has huge hand-hewn beams holding a flat balcony. Over the high pulpit is a sounding Board.

Under the care of Picton United Church, it is a shrine of Methodism. Rev. Mr. McLellan spoke on "A Heart Set on Virtue". We must thirst after righteousness. To do well is not enough. There must be action to prove the motive, said the preacher.

In this day, said Mr. McLellan, the old Jewish law still stands, but it must be tactfully presented, using modern language to encompass modern conditions. "Thou shalt not kill," may it not include a broader meaning than actual wilful murder? May it not include the ever-increasing toll of death by accidents on our highways? "Thou shalt not steal" —may this be a censoring of the manipulation of money in dishonest dealings which are yet within the law? Can the decalogue not be translated tactfully to refer to both moral and immoral developments in our modern life?, asked the preacher.

Rev. A. E. McCutcheon officiated and also baptized Steven Everett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Gyde. Picton United Church choir provided music.

QUEBEC MAN ELECTED

Detroit, June 20—(CP)—A Quebec City business man was elected president of Rotary International here Monday.

Arthur Lagueux, 48, president of the investment firm of Laguex and DesRochers and a member of Rotary since 1934, in accepting the presidency, told 6,500 delegates to the club's annual convention:

"In the complex world of today, Rotary fills a great and primal need. It has a strategic function to perform in the battle against discord and division."

"It is not enough for us merely to talk about our ideals. Ideals without action are almost as unfruitful as action without ideals".

FLYING BOAT SETS RECORD

After the navy flying boat Hawaiian Mars arrived at the Alameda, Calif., naval air station with 105 marine reservists on a flight from Pearl Harbor, the passengers posed beside the giant craft. The Hawaiian Mars and her sister ship, the Caroline Mars, which landed in California on the same day, carried a whole company of marine reservists, 234 of them, and 28 crewmen — a record number of servicemen on a flight from an overseas base to the U.S. mainland. Marine corps officials said this was the first time an organized unit of reservists has been transferred from an overseas base to the mainland by air for training. — Central Press Canadian.

Toronto, June 20 — (CP) — The Ontario Labor Relations Board Monday revoked bargaining rights of the Teamsters Union (A. F. L.) at National Grocers Co. Ltd., Sarnia, and of the International Union of Operating Engineers at Marathon Paper Mills, Ltd., Marathon.

The action was the first of the kind since the 1948 Ontario Labor Act came into effect. Employees of the firms voted on whether they wanted these unions as their bargaining representatives.

The Board also dismissed a protest by the International Union of Electrical workers (C. I. O.) against the result of a vote at the Phillips Electrical Works, Ltd., in Brockville. The vote favored the rival United Electrical Workers (Ind.).

White's District — The Rev. C. D. McLellan, and Mrs. McLellan, of Napanee, were callers at Bayside parsonage on Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sandercock and Mrs. James Sandercock were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bride Hough, of Burr's District, Prince Edward.

Residents in this district voted regarding the Sidney School Area at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Arthurs, on Friday.

A number from this district attended the funeral of Mr. Warner Wood, on Saturday afternoon. The service was conducted at the home by the Rev. A. C. McCallum, pastor of Wesley United Church. The sympathy of the community is extended to the family.

The Rev. J. F. Everson of Belleville assisted the Rev. A. C. McCallum in the service at White's Church on Sunday afternoon. He spoke on the evils of alcohol, as a representative of the Ontario Temperance Federation. Alcohol is both a private and public evil, and is the cause of many accidents It is not a stimulant as many believe as proven by medical tests, but slows the action of the brain. He told of several incidents where accidents resulted from its use. One user mended his ways and became a faithful church worker. Today women are addicts too. This is more common in England but is prevelant here especially during the holiday season.

Little Miss Sharon Jeffery was an over-night visitor with her grandparents Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Jeffery.

Mr. and Mrs. George Youker of Belleville were Sunday tea guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Jeffery.

Beyond The Law

Mary Imlay Taylor

O'Hara's hand dropped on the holster of his pistol, but she stood between them, holding them apart her hands against their breasts. She did not look into the sergeant's flushed face; her clear eyes held Duval's steadily.

"I'm going with him, Jacques," she said gently, "of my—free will."

It was morning when they started back over the trail, the woman on the sled, the halfbreed beside his dogs. Behind them stalked the tall figure of O'Hara.

The dazzling whiteness of the ice fields caught them. It played on the buckles of the sled traces darkened the wild face of Duval, and lit up the profile of the woman. They were scarcely a rifle shot from the little cabin when she turned now and looked back at it as if in last farewell. O'Hara caught the look, saw the mystery of those haunting eyes, the tender mouth, and his hands clenched at his sides.

Suddenly he remembered the letter in the inspector's desk. The full story was there, all the clues checked up, and at the end his own words, "if I fail to bring in the prisoner in six days send someone else to do it."

He had not trusted himself. Yet he was doing it. She was guilty and he was taking her back. He had put the case out of his hands had given it over to the chief. No lie could save her now. Then he remembered the breed's hands at his throat, the flash of his knife and her intercession for his life. Duval would have killed him and freed her, she had all to lose and nothing to gain by saving him, yet she had done it. Why? Not from womanish pity, since she had killed her husband and the girl. Then why?

The question had throbbed like a pulse in his brain all night. She had saved him when his death would have set her free. She even had left him armed. For some reason Duval seemed to be her devoted slave; O'Hara knew now that the fierce halfbreed had come with him, not through fear, but to kill him and save her.

Duval's attitude was one of humble gratitude, of blind devotion. O'Hara passed it over as no further concern of his. The woman was his prisoner. Perhaps in weakness he had promised her to let the halfbreed go free. He would keep his word. But why had she saved him? Why? The question possessed him, ran through his veins like fire, but he set himself against it, he fought it—as a man must fight an unseen but deadly enemy.

He set his teeth and mushed on through the snow. Already they had travelled miles. It would soon be time to stop for noonday rations, as the dogs already were showing hunger, they balked at little or nothing, snapping at each other; and the breed whip cracked sharply in the frosty air.

The team had come to a narrow bit of trail between two clumps of willows. On one side were steep rocks crusted with ice. Beteen the boulders the open rents were filled with bluish snow; it took a keen eye to detect the dangerous slides along the brink of the precipice. Duval had spoken of it dubiously the day before, but he negotiated it now with wonderful skill and speed. Once the sled swayed, but he guided the gee-pole so deftly that O'Hara marvelled at the man's skill. No wonder he had carried Laure safely away on that day!

Following in their footsteps, with more thought of them than of himself, O'Hara took no heed of the snow and ice that the sledge runners had cut loose. A mass of it suddenly gave under his feet. He slipped over a sheer rock, striking his head sharply on its keen edge, fell into a snow filled crevice, and caught on the jagged rocks ten feet below A rending pain shot through him—then oblivion.

How long he lay unconscious he never knew. He sank deep down into velvet blackness, and came out of it in stinging pain. At first he could not see. Then he tried to lift his right arm and could not; it hung helpless. A throbbing pain swept every limb. He tried to think and seemed to be wrapped in a gray mist. Then he remembered how he had fallen He struggled to his knees and tried to clutch at the slippery ice with his left hand. He gripped a bit of the ledge and clung to it, his eyes still blinded by the pain in his head. The wide stretch of snow about him seemed to reel crazily, to be dyed all colors of the rainbow. Then, knowing himself caught and helpless, he called for help, shouting to them—Duval and the woman. Where were they? He tried to raise himself so he could see over the rocks.

The trail dropped from the ledge, where he had fallen, into the snow barrens. For miles there showed no other break, only the rise and fall of drifted snow on a flat land where only the tops of young spruce trees showed above the white waste. The ice fields stretched endlessly; and the wind swept across them with light flurries of dry snow, frosted spume of the great frozen drifts beyond. Duval had halted the sled and was looking back.

O'Hara shouted to him. "Duval come back. I'm helpless. Come back!"

For an instant the breed seemed to hesitate. Then his long whip whirled, the huskies answered with sharp yelps. the sled lurched forward and broke into wild flight.

O'Hara shouted again, furiously, desperately. Then he tried to climb and fell forward into the snow, the burning ache in his broken arm and the dizzy blindness besetting him, while the cold seized him and held him like a vise. Icicles were forming on his hair and in the corners of his eyes. He breathed with difficulty. Soon he would be able to move. He struggled madly but every movement increased the agony. Duval was escaping with his prisoner; they had abandoned him to his fate. His fate? How well he knew what it would be! After long agony he would freeze to death. And afterward, perhaps before the end—wolves!

He was able to make little effort after that, but fell into kind of twitching stupor. The sooner the biting cold got in its work, the better. He no longer tried to think but buried his head on his left arm and set his teeth to keep back the groans which sprang to his lips. Once his hand went to his pistol, but he did not remove the weapon from the holster. No, please God, he would die like a man, not a coward afraid to face mortal agony. He felt the chill of it creeping into his senses. Again that deadly faintness seized him. The cold enfolded him like a mantle, he raised his head feebly but he could see nothing but wastes of snow and above them the inexorable Arctic sky. Then he grew dizzy again, dizzy and unearthly cold, only the burning pain in his broken arm keeping him conscious of life. Objects swam before his eyes. He lost all reckoning of time. A face haunted him, her face. His stiff lips formed a word and whispered it—

"Laure"

A long time after that he heard voices, but took no heed of them. The cold and the pain were still at odds over his body. When the cold won he would cease to feel the pain. He almost had attained the point of detachment from which he could view the suffering of this thing which had been himself, with impersonal calm. That calm was death, he suspected. Strange how people feared it!

Suddenly he felt human hands busy with him. His head was lifted, a flask pressed to his lips. He opened her eyes, saw her face close to his, heard her voice. "Put your arm about me, lift yourself on my shoulder, m'sieur!"

"Laure," he gasped faintly.

"You're hurt—but how?" She busied herself trying to lift his head upon her arm and force brandy down his throat. "Can you get up m'sieur?"

"My arms broken—but it's my head—" his voice trailed.

She muttered a little cry of commiseration, touch his cold cheek with her hand. 'Mon Dieu, how you must suffer! And at first Duval wouldn't come back; he was bent on saving me. Jacques" she called sharply. "His arm's broken and his head is bruised and bleeding. We must get him on the sled."

Half conscious after that, the injured man felt himself lifted bodily, felt the sled under him and knew, in a dim, confused way, that they were travelling—not south but north. Then pain deadened everything, and something akin to delirium gripped him. He mumbled her name and cried out for help. It was a long while before he felt them carry him on a blanket into Gharian's cabin, knew that he was lying on a bed and the woman was ministering to his hurts. His blurred eyes followed her, saw her figure outlined against the light from the outer room, heard her kindling a fire.

"Laure," he cried, "Laure."

She came at once carrying a lamp in her hand and lifted her pale face out of the gloom and made it beautiful. She set the lamp down and knelt down beside him as a mother might soothe a child. Duval's gone for a doctor. He is staying close by; there's been—illness near. He'll be here by morning anway. Meanwhile, m'sieur take but a little of hot broth. It'll give you strength to fight the fever."

But he would do not more than taste it to please her. "I can't eat, Laure, why should you feed me? I was taking you to prison!"

"I don't think of that now, m'sieur; you are suffering I must do what I can. Your head is hot with fever—I'll bathe your forehead."

And in a moment he felt her hands busy with cooling water on his wounded head. Her gentle touch soothed. She raised him a little on the pillow, eased his strained attitude. The fever had seized him, and the swollen arm throbbed painfully. But, all the while her face hovered before his burning eyes, her voice tried to comfort him. He called her an angel and again through ensuing delirium, he cursed himself for betraying her; she was innocent and he loved her.

In the long hours of the night he raved. He had run her down. From that moment when first he saw her face at French Pete's, his accursed instinct had set him on her track. He had hunted her, trapped her—but he loved her! The woman tending him through the long night, heard it all.

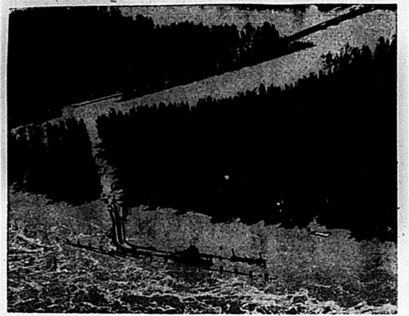
FIVE TOWNS UNDER WATER IN B.C. FLOOD



Five towns and several hundred acres of farm land are under water in British Columbia as melting snows from the mountains swelled rivers and streams. Halted by the flooding Fraser River is the Agassiz-Rosedale ferry, 75 miles east of Vancouver. The muddy river water cut off the approaches to the ferry slip on the Rosedale side and covered tha road to a depth of 3 feet. Greatest fear is held for Aggasiz, potential danger zone if the dykes fail to hold. — Central Press Canadian.

Leigh, Neb., June 20 (AP) — Mrs. Henry F. Bahns, 48, and her three children, Eldon, 20, Ardith, 14, and Helen 8, were found dead in their beds in a blood spattered farmhouse near here Monday. The body of the father, Henry F. Bahns, 48, was hauled from an abandoned well.

County Attorney Lloyd Pospishil said: "Every indication points to quadruple murder and suicide by Mr. Bahns."

He said Bahns slew his family with a sledge hammer, walked into a field, stepped into the 10-foot deep well and drowned himself.

The objects were blasting caps.

GM Workers Sign Five-Year Contract With Company

Get Boost in Pensions, Pay and Hours of Work

Toronto, June 21 — (CP)—An agreement, unprecedented in Canada because of its five-year term, was signed last night between General Motors Corporation of Canada and the United Auto Workers Union (C. C. L.-C. I. O.) the contract provides wage increases, a $55 monthly pension at age 65 and welfare benefits.

Some 6,500 unionists in the company's plants at Oshawa and Windsor are affected. The contract comes before a union meeting today at Oshawa for approval.

Following 90 hours of almost continuous bargaining sessions, the company and union announced siging of the agreement. Both sides called in top negotiators from Detroit before settlement was reached.

William A. Vecker, G. M. president and general manager, said:

"We look forward to a period of five years without work interruptions . . . the settlement should mean facing the future with confidence."

George Burt, Canadian director of the U. A. W., said:

"Although the agreement is to run for five years it includes factors guaranteed to safeguard the welfare of the workers automatically each year . . ."

The agreement provides an annual increase of three cents an hour, effective immediately. The union estimates that the wage-increase and other clauses mean an increase of 14 cents an hour for the first year, climbing to more than 26 cents at the end of five years.

GOVT. PLANS BAN ON IMPORT OF U.S.-BUILT SHIPS

Ottawa, June 21 — (CP) — To promote business for Canadian shipyards, the government plans to ban the import of ships built in the United States.

Transport Minister Chevrier disclosed to the commons shipping committee yesterday that that is the purpose of a 2 1-2-line clause in a bulky series of amendments to the Canada Shipping Act which already have passed the senate.

The clause gives the minister power to ban from Canadian registry any ship built outside Canada. He said it was not planned to use it against shipping built in the United Kingdom.

The objective, he told committee members, was to prevent Canadian ship operators from bringing in old U.S. tonnage—often "dilapidated"—for use on the Great Lakes and coasts.

While Mr. Chevrier did not tell the committee the purpose of this ban, he later told reporters that the idea was to assist Canadian shipyards, which could be expected to fill orders for new vessels of the type now bought second-hand from the U.S.

Mr. Chevrier said that up to now the government has been unable to keep out the U.S. imports.

Substantial Amount

Though he was unable to say how much additional construction might fall to Canadian yards as the result of the move, the minister said there was a substantial amount of U.S.-built tonnage in the Canadian coastal and lake trade. Applications for the purchase of American vessels were being made every week.

Clarie Gillis (CCF—Cape Breton South) suggested before the committee that some restrictions be placed on the entry of British vessels into the Canadian coastal trade.

However, the minister said nothing could be done about this while the British Commonwealth Merchant Shipping Agreement remained in effect.

He made it clear that he did not intend to use against British-built shipping the discretionary powers which would be given him to refuse Canadian registry of all ships built outside of Canada.

Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C., (PC—Nanaimo) suggested they might be used against Japanese tonnage. Mr. Chevrier did not indicate disopproval of that.

The committee also heard urgings from west coast members that radio regulations on British Columbia coastal passenger shipping be tightened. Suggestions for a Canadian coastguard were renewed by Howard Green (PC—Vancouver-Quadra.)

THE WEATHER

Toronto, June 21 (CP)—Synopsis: Below normal temperatures prevail throughout Ontario on this first day of Summer. Temperatures were near freezing in Northern Ontario this morning and are dropping slowly over southern sections of the province. Scattered showers occurred during the night over Southern Ontario as the cooler air moved in to replace the milder air over that region.

Generally sunny and cool weather will continue over the province on Thursday.

STORMY DEBATE OCCURS IN SENATE ON CONSCRIPTION

Commons Discusses Health Insurance

Ottawa, June 21 — (CP) — Charges that the Progressive Conservative party attempted to force conscription in the Second World War plunged the Senate yesterday into probably its hottest debate of the session.

The charges by Senator Arthur Roebuck (L—Ontario) ended in a verbal tussle between Senator Roebuck and Senator R. B. Horner (PC—Saskatchewan).

In the Commons, Health Minister Martin said that the long-debated question of a national health-insurance program is expected to come before the forthcoming Dominion-provincial conference.

At least one province, he disclosed during study of his departmental estimates, has asked that the question be placed on the agenda.

In the operation of such a plan, he said, he did not believe anything should be done that would interfere with the traditional doctor-patient relationship as it is known in Canada.

For the first time in weeks Senate Speaker Elie Beauregard called for order as cross-fire erupted on second reading of a bill to give Trade Minister Howe power to stockpile war materials and take other independent steps for Canadian defence.

Senator John J. Haig of Manitoba, Progressive Conservative leader, led a parade of opposition speakers against the measure, termed "dictorial." Liberal senators replied and one—Senator Vincent Dupuis (L—Quebec)—said the next war probably would start "with an atomic bomb" and there would be no time to call parliament to put the country on a war footing.

Shriners Stage Mammoth Parade In Los Angeles

Los Angeles, June 21 — (AP) — With three days of pranks and parades behind them, a few of the 135,000 fun-loving shriners in convention here settled down today to transact a little business—as little as possible.

Host Nobles of Los Angeles laid claim to the biggest parade in Shrine history, a five-hour procession yesterday of 14,000 marching and mounted men.

More than 50 brass bands, a dozen squeaky oriental bands and a score of drum corps spaced at intervals in the impressive cavalcade blared and throbbed hour after hour as the precision-trained patrols passed before 50,000 spectators.

Aged Missing Man Is Found Dead Caught in Fence

Brockville, June 21 — (CP)— The body of an aged man missing for almost a month was found by a berry-picker Tuesday, hanging on a barbed-wire fence.

Police said that 72-year-old William Towsley apparently accidentally became caught on the fence. Lacking strength to free himself, he hung there until he died.

Towsley's body was found by Fannie Miller as she returned home from a berry-picking expedition in rural Augusta township.

Shrunken Heads Market Shrinks, Native Indians Keeps Them Home

New York, July 21 — (AP) — Demand is running ahead of supply in the shrunken heads market.

Fakes are available, but the real thing — the orange-sized, long-haired human head from the Jivaro Indians in Ecuador — is scarce.

This grim economic note comes from Julius Carlebach, who collects primitive art and objects.

Carlebach recently sold the last of eight authentic shrunken heads he had in his shop. The price ranged from $60 to $150.

The "best ones," he explained, were about the size of an orange, had hair hanging down about 10 inches and still retained 'very expressive features.' He said the heads were about 50 years old.

Now the collector is having difficulty replenishing his stock because the government of Ecuador no longer permits the handiwork of the Jivaros to leave the country.

"If you know anybody who has any," says Carlebach, "tell them to come see me. I'll pay well. But the heads have to be from the Jivaros. They are the only head hunters who shrink them. It's a secret process."

The longer the hair, the bigger the price. In an authentic product, all bone matter has been removed and the surface has achieved a leathery condition, though still retaining the features.

"But there are a lot of fakers in this business," Carlebach warns. "Even the Jivaros themselves. The fakers use some kinds of animal skin or furs, and only the experts can tell the difference.

"One way to tell is studying the eyebrows. A real one will have eyebrows with hair slanting in opposite directions. This is very hard to fake. A phony almost always has the hair going in the same direction."

Although he's out of shrunken heads, Carlebach still has two Tibetan wine cups in stock. They are made from human skulls and sell at $75 each.

Wedding Reception Breaks up, As Guest Wounded in Arm, Jealousy Believed Motive

Fort Coulonge, Que., June 21— (CP)—Quebec provincial police said today that jealousy was the motive behind the shooting which broke up a wedding reception and sent one of the guests to hospital with a wound in the arm. Fort Coulonge is 70 miles northwest of Ottawa.

The guest, Mrs. Reginald Pare, 27, of Fort Coulonge, was shot in the left arm Tuesday night by a man said by witnesses to be wearing a brown suit. The shooting occurred at a wedding reception in honor of Sam Frost, 20, and Irene Gervais, 19, both of Fort Coulonge.

Police said they believed the shot had been intended for the bride. It barely missed a four-year-old boy Mrs. Pare was holding in her arms.

Police said they have rounded up a number of suspects for questioning. They refused to disclose their names.

Mrs. Pare was taken to hospital at nearby Shawville, Que., following the shooting. Hospital authorities said her condition was satisfactory.

Police said that when the shot rang out the bride collapsed and had to be given restoratives.

Father of the groom, Joseph Frost, had erected an open-air dance platform in front of the house and guests were celebrating when the crack of the bullet threw them into panic. Some guests fled.

In hospital Mrs. Pare told reporters:

"It was standing on the dance floor with my son. I heard a loud report and felt a shot enter my left arm. I thought one of the gas lanterns had exploded.

"When I took off my coat, the bullet fell out on the dance floor. I had no idea who they were shooting at or who did the shooting. But the people at the dance told me that they saw a man with a brown suit running from the dance floor."

Dr. S. E. McDowell of Shawville said that if Mrs. Pare had not worn her coat, the bullet would have penetrated her heart.

"I feel that the lining of the coat acted as a stopper for the bullet," he said.

Medical Care Plans Will Be Enlarged

Halifax, June 21—(CP)— The medical profession is working to establish a Canada-wide system of prepaid, voluntary medical care plans, Dr. J. F. C. Anderson, Saskatoon, retiring president, told the Canadian Medical Association here today. It is hoped to accomplish this by correlation of present provincial plans, he said.

Medical care plans should expand their coverage, and with government assistance, be brought "within the means of those citizens who now find it difficult or impossible to pay the necessary premium," he added.

Attempts were being made to find ways of extending coverage to individual subscribers and rural groups.

Dr. Anderson urged that medical care services be brought in by stages, with hospital care first on the list.

ASKS CHINESE AID

Taipei, Formosa, June 21 (AP) —Chiang Kai-Shek appealed Tuesday to Chinese living overseas to help overthrow the communists who have seized China. "Soviet aggression knows no bounds," declared the Nationalist leader in a special overseas broadcast. He again vowed to defend Formosa and to launch a counter-offensive to rescue 'our compatriots on the mainland."

Foreign Policy In Far East To be Renewed

Washington, June 21 —(AP)— sweeping reviews of American foreign policy under way in Washington and Tokyo have torn wide open the dispute on whether the United States should help Chiang Kai-Shek defend formosa.

Official informants emphasized today that present U. S. policy is against any military assistance to Chiang in his island stronghold. The fact that policies are being reviewed, however, at least opens the possibility of a reversal of this position.

Several factors apparently will enter in the final U.S. attitude toward Formosa. Perhaps the most important of these will be Gen. Douglas MacArthur's views. If MacArthur strongly favors strengthening Formosan defences and if this is reflected formally in some new decision of the joint chiefs of staff, the pressure on the administration to change its attitude will be great.

The administration has completely written off the Chiang government. But reports now reaching official Washington are that Chiang has taken steps to strengthen Formosa's defences and improve its administration.

There now is some feeling here among officials that the island may remain in Chinese Nationalist hands indefinitely.

ATOMIC SECRETS WILL BE GUARDED MORE CLOSELY

F.B.I. Director Wants 300 More Agents

Washington, June 21—(AP) — High Canadian, British and American officials are meeting here to plan tighter safeguards around atomic secrets.

Officials attending the sessions were close-mouthed and the A. KE.C. did not say when the new series of conferences began.

However, the recent arrest of three Americans by F.B.I. agents have brought new congressional demands for tighter control over atomic secrets.

J. Edgar Hoover, F.B.I. director has called for 300 more agents to hunt down spies. Hoover testified that Red spies are trying to steal secret data on atomic research, jet propulsion, radar and germ warfare methods.

Speculation surrounding the present atomic meeting centred on two major points:

1. That the three powers are considering joint machinery for maintaining common standards of security on a more rigid basis than heretofore.

2. That they must solve the security problem before they can get on with talks begun last fall toward a closer atomic partnership.

Fifteen Youths Plead Guilty

Kitchener, June 21 — (CP) — Fifteen youths, members of a zoot-suit gang picked up by a sudden Kitchener police swoop last Saturday, this morning pleaded guilty to charges of unlawful assembly. They were remanded a week for sentence.

Five of the group also pleaded guilty to carrying offensive weapons. A joint charge of conspiracy against the 15 was dismissed and the charge of carrying offensive weapons against the 10 who pleaded innocent was similarly dismissed.

Three members of the gang, which was leaving for a descent on Crystal Beach when police moved in asked for trial by a higher court. They were D'Arcy Tanner, William House and Walter Slusarek.

Alleged by police to be leader of the gang, Ronald Ashley obtained a week's remand without plea on request of Walter McGibbon. He is faced with the three charges which were read out to the 15 others today, plus an additional count of counselling the committal of an indictable offence.

Hearing in the four cases will be one week from today.

Charges against John Benin, driver of the truck in which the zooters were apprehended, and John Sienck, truck owner were withdrawn. They had been faced with the same set of charges as the group whose trial was held today.

Awards Announced in Competition For New Canadian Five-Cent Piece

Ottawa, June 21 — (CP)—Stephen Trenka of Green Lane, Thornhill, Ont., today was named winner of the design competition for a new Canadian five-cent piece.

Finance Minister Abbott announced today that Mr. Trenka's design had been accepted for the new coin which will commemorate the 200th anniversary of the isolation of nickel.

Total to date $5,947.33

When Mr. Trenka submits a satisfactory plaster model from which a die can be made he will receive first prize of $1,000. His design is a representation of a nickel refinery with "Canada" at the top, "nickel" and the figures "1751-1951" at the upper left and the figure "5" and the word "cents" on the upper right. At the bottom are three maple leafs.

The coin will be 12-sided as at present and this particular design will be minted in 1951 only.

Four other Canadians won honorable mention and prizes of $250 each:

Norman D. Storey, Toronto, with a Canada goose design; Charles F. Comfort, Toronto, a cluster of maple seed pods; Fritz Brandtner, Montreal, head of grain design; Steven Myer, Montreal, in collaboration with Sydney Massari, of Montreal, nickel-mine design.

Announcing the results, Mr. Abbott said:

"Since the beginning of this century, the world has been largely dependant on Canada for its supplies of nickel. Today, this country produces nearly 90 per cent of the world's supply, consuming only about 5 per cent of her own production.

"Accordingly, it was considered appropriate that Canada should commemorate this important anniversary in the history of the metal which has become so beneficial to her economy."

C. Nobes Thrown From Car Which Goes Out of Control

Wm. Hewitt in Hospital With Serious Injuries

One man was killed and a second man is in Belleville hospital with critical injuries as result of being thrown from a car which went out of control and rolled over in the village of Madoc shortly after midnight Tuesday.

Killed was Charles Nobes, 48, of Rawdon township, while in hospital with serious injuries is Bill Hewitt, 36, also of Rawdon township.

The two men were riding in a southbound car on No. 62 highway when just at the village limits the car went out of control and left the highway. As it overturned, Nobes and Hewitt were thrown 25 feet out of the car which came to rest in the ditch. Driver of the car Charles Gordanier, 46, Rawdon township, escaped with little more than a shaking up.

All three men were riding in the front seat of the 1950 auto.

An inquest looking into the death of Nobes has been ordered, the preliminary hearing scheduled for this morning before Coroner Dr. R. S. Beatty. The accident was investigated by Cpl. Jack Hatch of the Provincial Police at Madoc, assisted by Constables Gould and Lummiss.

Baby Moose Outwits Crowd

Hearst, June 21— (CP) — Hearst citizens learned never to underestimate the power of a moose—even a baby moose.

When a mamma moose and her youngster decided to take a stroll through the centre of this northern Ontario town Tuesday and a crowd tried to corral the young fellow, baby had to use his head to get out.

Surrounded by townspeople, the calf lowered his hornless head, bowled over a small moosepouncher and joined mother.

Together they trotted out of town.

STUDIO SAYS YES, HUSBAND SAYS NO

While her studio was saying that Judy Garland had cut her throat in a fit of anguish, her husband was saying there was nothing at all to the report. The singing movie star failed to report for work on a new film last week, was dropped from the cast. Husband Vincent Minelli, reported to have taken a knife away from her after she had inflicted a slight wound on herself, denied the incident. — Central Press Canadian.

Woman Improves After Receiving New Kidney

Chicago, June 21 — (AP) — A woman who now has another woman's kidney is continuing to do extremely well, hospital officials said today.

She is Mrs. Howard Tucker, the operation, described by doctors as the first of its kind, took place Saturday. A kidney was taken from a woman who had died a few minutes before, and transplanted into Mrs. Tucker's body. Her own kidney had to be removed because it was disease-stricken.

Further tests must be made, doctors say, to determine whether the transplanted kidney is really working, or whether Mrs. Tucker's remaining kidney is taking the load.

Death Accident Jury's Verdict

Mrs. Ivy Ellis died of accidental drowning, a coroner's jury decided at the adjourned inquest held at the Court House on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Ellis was found in her bath tub at her home, 286 Ann Street shortly after ten o'clock on the night of June 8th by Miss Elizabeth Summers, who called to pay a visit and enquire as to her health. Her husband stated that his wife was in good health when he left home on Thursday morning although for some time she had been somewhat depresesd after her operation in January. He stated he had been called home, when Miss Summers had discovered the body in the bathroom.

Dr. J. H. Bateman, who made the autopsy stated that the lungs were full of water and there was considerable water in the stomach. He thought that the woman might have had a fainting spell shortly after drawing the water for her bath and had drowned in the tub.

Miss Summers stated that the house was in the usual order, when she called but that no lights were on in the house. When she lit the light in the bathroom the body was discovered. It was presumed that the woman had been dead for some time.

Dr. J. Russell Scott was coroner for the inquest with Assistant Crown Attorney Gordon S. Robertson, K.C. interrogating the several witnesses heard. The jury was composed of Claude D. Tice, foreman, "Paddy" Nash, Richard Beare, Clarence R. Clapp and Carl Sills.

Causes of Juvenile Delinquency Outlined to Kiwanis Club

"Lack of parental control, interest, and influence, and broken homes are the chief causes of juvenile delinquency," stated Mr. D. McKinnon, probation officer of the Hastings County Family Court in an address to the weekly luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club held Tuesday afternoon.

Lack of outside interests, insufficient funds for wholesale recreation, poor reading habits, poor movies, and mental dullness were also cited as contributing factors to the delinquency of juveniles. Crime "comic" books were scored by the speaker in deploring the poor reading habits of the young people today.

"The purpose of the Family Court is to reduce delinquency by preserving harmony in the home, and by mending homes broken by separation or divorce," the speaker stated.

Lack of funds, lack of housing, and liquor were cited as the main contributing factors in the breakup of homes according to the speaker, who was probation officer of the Family Court in Ottawa for four years prior to taking up his work in Hastings County last February.

Other factors stressed as the cause of broken homes, in descending order, were in-law trouble, abuse of one of the married partners, mental cruelty, other women mixed marriages, mental incompetence, lack of respect and confidence in one another, foolish spending, and household shopping on the part of the man.

Cause of Much Grief

Mr. McKinnon, in elaborating these points stated that his experience in Ottawa had revealed that mixed marriages, "both religious and racial, had been the cause of much grief" and that in his opinion a mixed marriage is "a grievous mistake."

Mental cruelty was not so much the physical injury accompanying discord but was rather an inability of one or other partner to understand and to accept seemingly irrelevent idiosyncrasies in the other, the speaker pointed out. "Women love to spend the household money,' he said by way of an example. "It is very important to them to do so. A husband should not spend the household money but rather should let his wife spend it to the extent which he can afford."

Mr. McKinnon gave a brief history of the growth of Family Courts in this province, pointing out that the first juvenile court was established in Toronto and the first Family Court in Ottawa.

"It was largely through the work of J. McKinley, a plumbing contractor that the Family Court was established in Ottawa and he was instrumental in having passed much of the legislation now governing the action of the courts."

Trenton Not Included

"The jurisdiction of the local court extends throughout Hastings County, with the exception of the town of Trenton," Mr. McKinnon stated. "Its purpose is to deal with and to reclaim juvenile offenders against the criminal code, city bylaws and so forth. Juveniles must be dealt with as delinquents and not as criminals."

The speaker pointed out that the officials of the court included a judge, "whose powers are very wide," an assistant judge, and a probation officer.

"Cases are heard in the centre closest to the point where the offence is committed making hearings easier for the involved parties to attend. Every juvenile is thoroughly investigated and the services of a psychiatrist are available once a week," Mr. McKinnon said.

"The law forbids the incarceration of a juvenile in a jail, or penitentiary. For this reason a detention home is necessary," the speaker went on.

All Hearings Private

"All hearings of the court are private, with only the injured party and the offender and the parents of the offender being present. At times even the parents can be barred from the hearing if the judge deems it advisable. Newspaper publicity is rigidly restricted. Adult offenders against children are also heard in the court."

"The duties of a probation officer include the investigation and supervision of juveniles and the representation of the juvenile in court."

Mr. McKinnon was introduced by Everett Fairman and received the thanks of the club as expressed by Bill Lockyer.

Ted Schwab, on behalf of the club, expressed the great regret which all Kiwanians feel on the departure of Major Ken Graham for Vancouver. He presented Major Graham with a token of the club's esteem.

The sing-song was led by Vic White accompanied by Phil Huddlestone at the piano.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 21 — (CP) — Gold stocks jumped into the trading limelight as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Leading senior and junior gold producers forged ahead for the first time in recent weeks.

Volume for the first three hours was 1,963,000 shares.

Senior gold producers advanced fractions and leading juniors showed gains ranging up to 10 cents. For several weeks traders have ignored producing golds as market attention centred on western oils and the more speculative golds. In recent sessions, the average price level of producing golds has slipped to the lowest point in a year.

The remainder of the market found mild support following a steady decline Tuesday.

Leading industrials recovered fractions and individual issues were active. Westeel jumped $4 to new high at $65 following reports of a stock split.

Base metals brightened quietly with Falconbridge Nickel pacing the gainers and western oils held firm in brisk dealings.

Final Arguments Scheduled on Power Project

Washington, June 21 — (AP) — Final arguments were scheduled today before the United States Power Commission on New York State's proposals to develop, with the province of Ontario, the huge power potential of the St. Lawrence River.

The proposal, which has been before the dommission for nearly two years, was initiated by Governor Thomas E. Dewey after the United States Senate refused — early in 1948 — to approve legislation that would have authorized construction of the St. Lawrence seaway and its related power project.

Dewey said, in effect, that as long as Congress refuses to approve the dual St. Lawrence project, it is up to New York and Ontario to do everything possible to develop the river's power potential on their own.

Engineers estimate that the St. Lawrence, in the vicinity of Massena, N. Y., and Cornwall, Ont., can produce annually more than 13,000,000 kilowatt hours of energy.

Testimony given at an earlier commission hearing showed that the power development would cost New York and Ontario $463,374,000.

Following the hearing, Glenn R. Law, the commission examiner, recommended that the application be rejected and that the matter be referred to Congress with a suggestion that the federal government develop the water resources.

The commission counsel took an opposite stand. He recommended that New York be granted the licence.

The commission's legal staff contends that New York, by developing the power now, would save the government $100,000,000 to $200,000,000, because some of the construction would aid "and in no wise hinder" the further development of the river for navigation (seaway) purposes.

Assuming that the commission would approve the New York application, further approval must come from the International Joint Commission, which regulates uses of boundary waters.

O.S.D. Holds Commencement Exercises; Miss Catherine Ford, Teacher, Signally Honored

Yesterday afternoon saw the grand finale of another school year at the Ontario School for the Deaf, when parents, relatives, friends, and teachers gathered in the large auditorium to rejoice with their sons, daughters, and pupils as they received the awards of good and faithful work done through the year, in academic, vocational and gymnasium activities.

On the school stage, behind the baskets of lovely pink, white and dark red peonies, were arranged the long tables, bearing the school colors of blue and yellow, and on them attractively displayed, were the awards, the scroll-like diplomas tied with their colors; the certificates, silver cups, prizes, pins and shields, and behind the tables, in crescent formation, were seated the superintendent, Mr W. J. Morrison, B.A., B. Paed.; Miss C. Ford, supervisor of professional; Mr. C. A. Holmes, B.A., B. Paed., assistant principal; Miss H. M. McCammon; Mrs. H. Fetterley, wife of the former superintendent, Mr. J. Boyd, physical training instructor, and Miss E. M Nurse. In the immediate front row of the auditorium, sat the five sweet girl graduates, lovely as vestal virgins in their dainty snow-white graduation gowns and shoes, each wearing a shoulder corsage of summer flowers: both gowns and corsages had been made by the girls themselves.

Awards Presented

After the singing of "O Canada", which was flashed on the wall so that the students might easier follow, and the brief, but kindly welcome by the superintendent, in which he pointed out that four of the graduating girls had been with the school for 13 years, and one for 1 the following academic awards were presented, that of the superintendent to the graduating class for academic, vocational and out-of-school achievements during the students complete school life at the O.S.D. Miss Ford Honored

One of the outstanding portions of the splendid program was the presentation to Miss Catherine Ford, of a life membership in the Volta Speech Association of Washington, D.C. Miss Ford is the first Canadian to have her name enrolled as a life member of this association. Miss E. M. Nurse made the presentation, on behalf of the Volta Speech Association.

In her reply, Miss Ford said that she was greatly honored in having her name attached to the Catherine Ford Scholarship fund, and to be thought worthy of a life membership of the Volta Speech Association, and that her grateful thanks went out to the friends, both past and present who had accorded this great kindness to her.

Mr. Morrison, in closing, said that it was a wonderful achievement to serve for 42 years for others as Miss Ford had done, and that the progress which the Ontario School for the Deaf had made, was largely due to her untiring and splendid contributions to the work which she has so unselfishly given throughout the years.

Will Retire

Miss E. M. Nurse, will be retiring after serving faithfully for 32 years; Miss O'Connor is also leaving the OSD to begin her own home, and Mr. Holmes, assistant principal, after 13 years will be leaving to take up his duties as Public School Inspector; Miss L. Reid, after 36 years as house mother, will be retiring, and Mr. F. H. Chesher, engineer, is also leaving after 17 years of untiring attention to the needs of the school. So, said Mr. Morrison, many changes are taking place, new faces will be seen next fall.

To the graduating class of five girls, whose faces were wreathed with smiles, and later clouded with tears at leaving their Alma Mater, he wished for them, the greatest happiness, and the finest success in the future which was opening out before them, knowing that the years they had spent within the walls of the Ontario School for the Deaf would not soon be forgotten.

Senators Talk Of Taking Share Away From U.K.

Washington, June 21—(AP) — Leading Republican Senators drafted a proposal today to strip $343,000,000 out of Britain's recovery funds unless the Labor government joins in a pool of Europe's coal and steel.

The penalty proposed against Britain would be in the form of an amendment to the economic cooperation administration act which sets the rules for the European Recovery Program.

A draft of the plan is being passed around among Senators as the first step toward placing the proposal before the Senate Appropriations Committee.

In its present form, the amendment would cut Britain's Marshall Plan aid to half during the time Britain "fails to participate in the Schuman Plan for pooling western Europe's coal and steel."

Britain's share of Marshall Plan funds authorized by Congress is $685,000,000.

The British Labor party's executive committee has shown a marked coolness toward the pool plan, advanced by Foreign Minister Schuman of France. Prime Minister Attlee has said that the government is not now ready to take part in the pool, although it is "fully prepared" to seek closer economic integration of Europe. "We frankly want to put pressure on Britain to join the pool," said one Senator—who asked that he not be identified by name.

SUMMER COMES

Summer is here and that means in a few days the holiday season will begin, with the people beginning to take vacation and schools closing for the next two months. Travel on the highways and byways will grow in volume especially at the close of this month with visitors from the United States and Canadians touring the Dominion.

This part of Ontario is favored by nature with countless places of retreat from the rush of traffic, places where the Canadian summer can be enjoyed in all its beauty.

Well supplied with highways and roads of modern construction, Ontario offers just off these roads numerous secluded spots which thousands will desire to visit.

The official Weekly Road Bulletin of Ontario calls attention to "these secluded spots which nature withholds from all but the most persistent seeker.

"These are roads of yesterday, leading seemingly nowhere, and bearing little resemblance to the modern paved thoroughfares of two, or more, lanes that link the towns and cities, the farms, mines and summer playgrounds, and over which pass endless streams of motor traffic with a minimum of delay,—roads of a day when time was not all-important, and leisure could be enjoyed.

"These are the devious paths that lead you most directly to the soul of the country. They have no pattern, never do you find two alike. This one winds down to a little cove along the lakeshore with its miniature sandy beach—your private beach for the moment. The next leads upward to the crest of a rocky wind-swept plateau from where you may watch the glorious sunset of a summer's evening. A third takes you to the site of an old stone grist mill, a forlorn landmark of the commerce of an earlier day. Another brings you to the bank of a tiny sparkling stream in which you just know fish lurk. And yet another ends abruptly in the shade of a thickly-wooded dell. Many afford a restful drive through an avenue of trees; all have the charm of providing the unexpected.

"They are the roads we knew in our youth, in the days before the advent of the motor car. The same narrow dirt surfaces we trudged along barefoot, winding around, and over, natural obstacles, bounded here and there by rail and uprooted stump fences erected by our grandfathers."

Such wonder spots support the view that Canadians hold that their country and its climate are the finest in the world, nature having bountifully supplied in the earliest days the wants of the people. Such a hinterland is what the holiday seeker wants in this fast-moving age. It has all the charm of an old romance and finds its way into the heart. This explains why more and more people are finding their way to these spots where nature wears her calmest mood and where she brings the visitor close to her heart.

Schools will be closing and into scores and hundreds of beauty spots, the pupils will go with their parents to enjoy the country's vast outdoors, one of the great vacationlands in the world.

GREAT EVENT COMMEMORATED

At Elverum, Norway a few days ago a monument was unveiled to commemorate an event which will ever inspire the people of Norway. There King Haakon had said a defiant "No" to the Nazi demand for surrender in 1940. Thousands journeyed to the scene of the dedication of the memorial and welcomed the King and Crown Prince Olav.

The world outside Norway recalls that time when the descendants of the Vikings of old gave the answer to the Nazis' ultimatum. The people of Norway followed the way of honor even at a heavy cost of war. Their faith in the justice of their cause and of the final triumph of democracy over Axis tyranny was to be expected of the descendants of the Vikings who made history many hundreds of years ago.

Norway had faith like that of other democratic peoples that after tyranny had run its course peace and liberation would come. They were justified and their heroic endeavor was one of the mainstays of freedom in the dark days of the war and an earnest of the peace that was to come with the return of freedom to their land.

SHIP-BUILDING NATIONS

Britain and France, which have been great powers for centuries, are still in the lead in shipbuilding. During the first quarter of this year Britain came first with 1,895,219 tons and France became the second greatest shipbuilding country in the world with a tonnage of 473,573 tons to the end of March. The United States was third with 441,640 tons.

Example is the school of mankind; they will learn at no other. — Burke.

We judge ourselves by what we feel capable of doing; others judge us by what we have done. — Longfellow.

It is with our judgments as with our watches; no two go just alike, yet each believes his own.

SEASON'S CHANGE

If it were always summer and all the long year through
The sun was never hidden and skies were always blue;
If green things never rested
beneath the winter's snow,
The charm of young flowers budding would not be ours to know.

The everlasting blossoms with petals stiffly made
Grow dusty as we keep them;
their brilliant colors fade.
But lovelier blooms are fragile,
their charm is for the day,
And they the more are cherished
because they cannot stay.

Without the winds of winter we'd miss the joys of spring.
Were there no cares behind us
and no cares following,
Of pleasure we would weary,
and that is why appears
Of all the smiles the brightest,
the one that follows tears.

ESSAYS

There are no writings in literature more delightful than essays. They are written for pure entertainment and personal delight. In addition, fine essays are rich in stimulating ideas. They are also bits of personal revelation.

Recognized as the father of the essay is Montaigne, born in 1533. He would tell his friends that if they wanted to know about him all they had to do was to go out and buy his book of essays—and they are read to this day with enthusiasm and profit. Scores of other fine essayists have followed in his train, such as William Hazlitt, Hunt, and Charles Lamb, all of whose works I have long loved.

In 1853 there was published a volume of the most beautiful of all English essays, "Dreamthorp," by Alexander Smith, which the author called "a book of essays written in the country."

It has been a favorite of mine for years, and I have collected every edition from the first. I have no less than a dozen editions, published by different firms, though its popularity remains among lovers of the essay, mostly. But there is something notable about a book that will last, and be loved by selective readers for nearly a hundred years!

Never do I tire of reading the essays of Charles Lamb. Once you read him you will return again and again to him. A veritable classic is each one he wrote. "Dream Children" is my favorite. The late E. V. Lucas, himself one of the finest of modern English essayists, was a great admirer of Lamb, and wrote the best four-volume edition of his life and letters. I have at least thirty small volumes of the Lucas essays in my library.

An American essayist of great talent, as well as a poet and novelist, is Christopher Morley. His recent collection of essays under the title of "The Ironing Board," I read with delight. He says that they were written "in fun and fury over the last ten years." But Morley has written hundreds of essays over a long term of years, and all are entertaining and stimulating. There is no American writer of essays superior to Christopher Morley.

Few novels get into a second reading, but fine essays can be read again and again, with increasing delight. I highly recommend the essay habit! It will both inspire and relax.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

WHERE THERE'S A WILL THERE'S A WAY

If you've nothing better to do for the next three minutes, let's play a game called "Answer Yes or No."

Question: If a doctor were accused of allowing a mean old man to die who only had a week to live anyhow, and you were on the jury, would you find him guilty of murder?

A dopey question, you say, because it leaves you no choice? Well, let me brief you on the events leading up to crime and then put the question to you again. . .

The mean old man—let's call him Andrew Horton—was a millionaire of the almost extinct rough-'em-up Jay Gould school, and among the people he delighted in pushing around was his son, Andrew, Jr., To round out the picture, it must be admitted that the youngster pretty much rated this treatment: He was a weak-chinned and weak-willed society kid who in his teens had developed a cordial dislike for two things—(a) work, and (b) his father who insisted on it.

A few months after the boy's 21st birthday, the old man came down with a heart attack that all but did him in, and the specialist who was called in informed the son that his pop didn't figure to live more than a week or so.

That night, to celebrate his coming of fortune, the young man went out and tied on quite a package, and on the way home drove his car through a plate-glass window on Madison Avenue. He was arrested and promptly bailed out, but the story hit all the front pages.

When his father saw the papers the next morning, he almost had another stroke, and it didn't help when the boy faced up to him and blurted out that in a short time he'd be doing as he darn well pleased.

When his son left, the millionaire sent for his lawyer. "I'm going to teach that kid of mine a lesson," he told him. "Fix up a new will where he doesn't get a penny and bring it back this afternoon. The doctor can witness my signature."

"What beneficiary do you want to name?" asked the lawyer.

"Make it out to one of those outfits for medical research," said the old man.

That afternoon the will was executed in the presence of the doctor.

"That's a fine gesture," the physician told his patient when the lawyer had gone. "That amount of money will finance lot of important work."

"Only idiots leave money to institutions instead of their own kin,' said the old millionaire. "I didn't bother telling that fool lawyer, but the will you witnessed is only intended to throw a scare into my son. Tomorrow or the next day when he come to his senses, I'm going to tear it up and reinstate the old will."

Late that night the patient had another attack, and when the doctor examined him he knew it was touch and go — given the proper medication, the old skinflint might be kept alive long enough to reinstate the original will; a slighty different dose, however, and he didn't figure to survive the night.

Well, as I got the story, he died a few hours later and his millions were used to set up one of the important research centers in the east. As for the son, he turned out to be as big a bum without money as with. . .

Now to get back to my original question: With the facts before you, would you find the doctor guilty or not guilty of murder?

I thought so.

British Atomic Spy Knew All Top Secrets

New York, June 21— (AP) — Klaus Fuchs, the British atomic spy, knew all the top secrets not only of atom bombs but of the hydrogen bomb.

William L. Laurence, New York Times science reporter, tells the Fuchs story in the Saturday Evening Post under the tile, "The Truth About The Hydrogen Bomb".

Before the first atom bomb, Laurence was at Los Alamos, New Mexico, talking to Dr. Hans A. Bethe, who headed physicists at the bomb-making plant. Atomic scientists were talking even then about the hydrogen bomb. Laurence asked Bethe if this bomb were really possible. Bethe replied yes, and it could be made equal to a million tons of TNT and "even more than a million."

Twenty thousand tons of TNT was the rating of the atom bomb.

"And there in our midst," Laurence continues, "stood Klaus Fuchs. There he was, this spy standing right in the centre of what we believed at the time to be the world's greatest secret. As he confessed five years later, he betrayed to the Soviet the most intimate details he learned—as a member of the innermost of inner circles—not only about the A-bomb but about the H-bomb as well. . . His associates at Los Alamos today sadly admit that Fuchs made it possible for Russia to develop her A-bomb at least a year ahead of time."

CAN WITHDRAW BILL

Ottawa, June 21—The Commons Tuesday night gave Ross Thatcher (CCF—Moose Jaw) permission to withdraw a bill calling for abolition of capital punishment.

Is the citadel of communism beginning to get shaky?

Paul G. Hoffman, United States Foreign Aid Administrator, voiced the belief before the State Governors' Conference at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., that tensions are building in Russia and her satellites. He said: —"Once the communist world starts to crack it can disintegrate very rapidly indeed."

That isn't a new thought for this column, but it's good to get the viewpoint of a high official whose business it is to keep a finger on the pulse of communism. Hoffman holds that "the free world can win out in this battle with the Kremlin."

"I am assured by the positive knowledge that tensions do build up in a dictatorship," he told the governors. "A dictatorship is only successful when it is dynamic and expanding. Once you stop that forward movement — and that we have had some success with—the mechanism is subject to strains.

"The very fact that Russia must hold between 12,000,000 and 15,000,000 of its citizens in forced labor camps is striking evidence of strain . . ."

Communism Imposed

The only places where communism has had marked success are where it has been backed by military force and secret police. The spread of the red-ism hasn't been spontaneous, on the whole. It has been imposed, although it has had the support of fifth columnists among the cictizens of the countries which it has absorbed.

Daily the evidence piles up of widespread revulsion against the red rule in such unwilling satellites as Czechoslovakia, Poland and Hungary.

Meantime, as Hoffman says, "We have had some success" in stopping the forward movement of communism. As a matter of fact the red advance has been halted altogether in Europe along the front formed by the satellite countries.

Moreover, the gains achieved by the communist parties in countries like Italy and France has been largely nullified. In the great industrial Ruhr of Western Germany, where the reds had shown much strength, communism took a beating in Sunday's election.

Small wonder then that the Foreign Aid Administration should find optimism in the situation.

SPIRITUAL FUNDAMENTALS

The World Council of Churches, composed of over one hundred fifty denominational bodies in fourty-four countries throughout the world, issued a statement recently which would do well at this season to ponder.

The statement is signed by the President of the World Council, the Archbishop of Canterbury and five other churchmen known throughout the world.

"We need to hold fast to the promise of God for our Churches. We need to be reminded of the original confidence of the Church that the Holy Spirit which created a people of one heart and one mind would maintain and, if need be, restore their unity. The word which we spoke together at Amsterdam that our Churches intend to stay together may easily fade away as we turn our daily concerns and as we confront the difficulties of living and acting together as one fellowship. Let us then believe in the power of the Holy Spirit. He draws us together. He says to us. . .that He can overcome all the barriers that still exist between us. If we live in humble dependence on Him, we are enabled to pray and work for the unity of God's children in order that the world may believe in the Son."

Here is a program that gets down to spiritual fundamentals.

NOT JUST AMAZING BUT STARTLING

I feel quite indebted to your common sense column, writes a reader. After taking iodin ration as you suggest in your pamphlet about iodine deficiency, and eating wheat in place of refined white flour as you suggest in your pamphlet Wheat to Eat, for only a few months I am happy to find I am pregnant.

How was that again?

You see, I had been trying to become pregnant for nearly three years. We were beginning to fear that our marriage was to be a barren one. You may say what you will about old A. J. Coincidence, but we give your fine advice all the credit. (Mrs. L. B. ———).

No, I'm relaxed and at ease, now that your husband has turned up, so I'll say nothing about old A. J. All I need say is that if the iodin ration and the wheat do you no good at any rate they can do no harm.

On written request, accompanied with stamped self - addressed envelope, any reader may have a copy of either pamphlet—The Iodin Ration or Wheat to Eat. If you ask for both pamphlets inclose ten cents in coin.

The reader says or implies that conception did not occur until nearly three years after marriage. As a general rule a marriage should not be considered barren until a full three years has passed without conception.

The reader implies that her failure to conceive must have been her own fault. Well, maybe it was. But in all marriages the chances that the husband is the sterile partner are fifty-fifty.

In every case of the kind, therefore, it is the husband's duty to be examined by his physician first. My microscopic test the physician can determine whether the husband is fertile. If he isn't, if the test shows he is sterile (this has nothing in particular to do with a man's virility or potency) it would be worse than useless for the wife to undergo any kind of treatment.

If the microscopic test gives evidence that the husband is fertile, then it is in order for the wife to seek medical examination and advice or treatment for any remediable impediment the physician finds present.

The notion that a suitable daily ration of iodine may have contributed to the reader's happiness is by no means fantastic. People who get insufficient iodine, in food or water, to maintain normal metabolism, are likely to be low in vitality and correction of their nutritional deficiency may restore lost vitality. On the same basis there have been several scientific reports in recent medical literature of apparent increase in fertility or cure of sterility from a year of basic health diet—reducing diet—such as that outlined in The 7 Keys to Vite—for this booklet send twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope. This applies to either or both husband and/or wife. Not any reducing diet, but only one that improves nutrition.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Booster Injection

Daughter, 5, requires vaccination. Physician wants to give her an injection to immunize against diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus at the same time. She has already had diphtheria and whooping cough injections and we don't think she needs any more, but the doctor says it is a booster dose. (Mrs. S. P.)

Answer—The doctor is right.

Running Ear

Two years ago a specialist said there was nothing he could do for my husband's running ear. I sent for your jamphlet, my husband used a bottle of the drops you recommended and he has had no more trouble with his ear. (Mrs. F. F.)

Answer—On written request (no clipping, please) accompanied with stamped self-addressed envelope, any reader may have the pamphlet on Running Ear. If the drops do no good at least they can do no harm.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

When a man is young, he never ceases to marvel at the time it takes a woman to dawdle and fiddle and faddle in front of mirrors and in the bathroom, doing her hair and preparing herself for the light of day.

When a man is young, he can slosh himself in the basin in one minute; shave in two; give his hair aswipe with the comb and leap full panoplied into life's arena ready for the fray.

But, as the years go by, a man begins to slow down at his toilet. He starts taking a little longer over the basin in the morning. Shaving, for example, becomes a bit of a chore. The years bring increasing wrinkles, grooves, hollows and depressions in his once rounded visage. His whiskers grow coarser. Razors seem to grow duller. His hands appears to be losing some of its courage. Where, in his twenties, he used to sweep his razor over his face, now he whittles it, in small, shakey scrapes.

When a man reaches the age that he has to have false teeth, the time spent over the morning wash basin begins to assume alarming proportions. These useful and comforting articles require about four or five times the number of minutes it took to brush the old indigenous teeth. First, you have to take them out. Then you have to locate a cleared space on the side of the basin to set them down. Instead of a neat, slim tooth brush hanging handy on a little hook, a scrubby little denture brush must be groped for in the medicine chest.

Next, you have to grasp the slippery objects cautiously, and scrub them top and bottom. Time goes by before you gape in the mirror and restore them to position.

And as for the hair!—even a bald man can't save time: he has to wash his pate as thoroughly as he does his cheeks and chin.

Some time after a man is fifty, he wakens to the fact that instead of three minutes, his toilet takes twelve: and it shocks him to note that where his wife used to take twelve, now she whips through the job in three.

Trenton Comes From Behind To Win 9-8

Trenton — (Special) — Stirling was coasting behind a comfortable seven-run lead in the last half of the eighth in a Trent Valley Softball League game at Bayshore Park Monday evening when they decided to change pitchers.

The strategy backfired. Trenton pounded relief pitcher Rodgers for six runs before they were retired in the eighth and added two more in the ninth to outscore their visitors 9 to 8.

Monday evening's Stirling - Trenton feature was a carbon copy of the game between the two clubs in Stirling last Friday night when the Weesemen overcame a one run deficit in the last of the ninth and went on to win 17 to 11.

The win, Trenton's sixth straight in seven starts boosted Trenton into first place in the league.

Stirling Blows Big Lead

For eight-and-one-half innings it looked like a sure thing for Stirling. Starting off with four runs in the first inning, Stirling added three in the second and picked up another in the sixth to lead 8 to 2. Stirling's starting pitched Faulkner had Trenton hitters popping all over the infield and held the home team crew to one run. In the third, Faulkner pulled a Charley Justice act as he loaded the bases with nobody out then forced the next three batters to hit pop flys.

Faulkner started the eight by walking Austin Scott for the 4th time in four times at bat. The next Trenton batter went to 3rd on a Stirling fielding error and Faulkner was relieved by Rodgers.

From there in, Trenton proceeded to blast Mr. Rodgers' offerings right out of the park. Picking up two doubles, a triple and a two - run homer by Lou Istead, six Trenton runs crossed the plate before Rodgers could stop the rally.

Scott Connects with 3-2 Pitch

With two away in the last of the ninth, and a two-three count on the batter, Stirling was still just one out away from a one-run victory when Joe Scott lambasted the payoff pitch for a spectacular homer. Harry Farr who took over the Trenton mound duties from Don Forbes in the ninth, followed Scott with a single, scored on a three base fielding error and Trenton won the ball game.

Don Forbes worked on the Trenton hill for eight innings and gave up 10 hits and three free trips to first. Harry Farr relieved in the ninth and gave up a single. Trenton tagged Faulkner for seven hits and five walks in seven innings and slammed Rodgers for six hits and seven runs in the last two frames.

Few Strikeouts

Trenton struck out five Stirling batters, three via Forbes and Farr added two. Rodgers and Faulkner claimed one strike out victim each.

Seven of Trenton's 13 hits went for extra bases, two doubles, 3 triples and two home runs. All Trenton extra base hits were at Rodgers' expense. Stirling connected for one two-bagger off Forbes, the rest of Stirling's 11 hits were singles. Trenton miscued on eight while Stirling booted four.

For Trenton, 13 hits, nine runs and eight errors; Stirling, 11 hits, eight runs and four errors.

The teams:

Trenton: I. Istead rf; B. Miller lf; Lou Istead cf; M. Jordon, 3b; M. Jeffery 1b; A. Scott 2b; J. Jordan ss; J. Scott c; Don Forbes p; Carswell; Ron Mitts; Curtis, Harry Farr.

Stirling: B. Mason lf; F. Donaugh ss; Rodgers 3b; Dafoe 1b; Wright c; Montgomery 2b; Faulkner p; Zufelt rf; Ross Mason cf.

Fifty Children Will Get Holiday Through Tag Day

Trenton — Fifty underprivileged children from Trenton will have a one week vacation at a supervised holiday camp this summer, thanks to the generosity of Trentonians who contributed $353 to the Kinsmen Club's tag day on Saturday.

Kinsmen President Jack Goldberg reports that more money was donated to the fund this year than ever before. "We feel that this is the most worthwhile project in town," stated Mr. Goldberg, "because it gives 50 children a chance to have a holiday that they otherwise would not have."

Miss C. Haslam, Public Health Nurse, draws up a list of children eligible for the fresh air vacation and members of the Kinsmen Club go around to the homes and investigate each case individually. The children selected are "strictly underprivileged", said Mr. Goldberg.

Inspirational Addresses Feature Council of Christian Education

The annual convention of the Sidney and Trenton Council of Christian Education was held in Grace United Church in Trenton, with an excellent attendance. The convention was officially opened shortly after 2:00 last Wednesday with President J. A. Warren presiding. The president called on Mr. L. Myles, superintendent of Grace Church, who expressed a hearty welcome to the visitors.

Mr. Warren outlined briefly, the work of the S.T.C.C.E. He explained how this organization was in turn affiliated with the Ontario Council and it with the World Council. Mr. Warren gave a report on the course held at King Street United Church last winter, calling on Rev. Puttenham of Grace Church for a few attendance figures on the course. Mr. Warren stressed the fact that the council is interdenominational, and that all are welcome to work with this fine organization in the service of God.

As the name of each Sunday School was called, representatives from each stood up. Only a few of the registered schools were not represented.

Reports Progress

Mr. Warren gave a report on the progress being made in trying to incorporate religious education in the regular public school curriculum. It was noted that New Testaments had been given out by a business men's organization to the senior pupils of public schools, and that this would be extended to lower grades in the near future.

Mr. McLean, representative of the Ontario Council of Christian Education, gave a talk, the theme of which was "Next Step Forward." Mr. McLean outlined the work being done by the Ontario Council, particularly in training schools, such as the one held in Albert College last summer. He explained about the large map in headquarters in Toronto, where a star is placed for each leadership training course carried on through the year. In 1949, there were 39, and this year, on the occasion of the 85th birthday of the O.C.C.E., it is hoped that 85 such courses may be held.

World Convention

Mr. McLean next spoke on the coming World Convention of Sunday Schools to be held in Toronto August 10 to 16. There will be at least 46 countries represented, with a possible 7,000 in attendance. It was pointed out that unless a delegate were registered for the whole week, it would not be possible to sit in on sessions, except for the special Sunday, August 13, when a special outdoor service would be held in honor of Robert Raikes, founder of the first modern Sunday School in Gloucester, England. There will also be a special Youth Rally in Maple Leaf Gardens on that night, which all may attend.

Mr. McLean made reference to the Welcome Book, which many officers and teachers signed local Sunday Schools. The purpose of this book was to raise funds in the amount of $25,000 or better, to assist members of the war-torn countries' Sunday Schools to make the trip, and to ensure them adequate comforts while they are the guests of Canada. On opening night, the Welcome Books will be presented to Lord McIntosh, president of the World Council.

The possibility of a Sunday School Rally, for Sunday Schools in the district was mentioned. Another suggestion was a conference for parents. One held in North Bay proved very successful. The theme there was "Religious Questions Children Ask."

Worship Service

A very inspirational worship service was conducted by Centenary Sunday School, under the direction of Mr. Way. The theme of the service, based on a verse from Joshua was "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord." The responsibility of parents in seeing that their children receive proper religious education was the subject of a short talk by Mr. Way.

Evangelism and Christian Education was the theme of Mr. McLean's next talk. He explained the change in the meaning of the word evangelism in modern times. The true and original meaning was: "Witnessing and bringing good news of God's redeeming love." Every Sunday School teacher is to some extent an evangelist if he or she is doing the work properly. Every properly functioning Sunday School is an agency of evangelism.

Sunday School vacation schools were discussed, and two Sunday Schools gave reports on their own successes in the field.

The speaker gave a brief talk on books available for Sunday Schools, and invited all to examine the display at the front of the church.

The meeting adjourned for the afternoon with the nomination and resolutions committees meeting.

A delicious and bountiful banquet was served in the Sunday School room of the church. Mr. McLean led in a couple of amusing stunts which added a great deal of enjoyment to the meal.

Evening Session

The evening session opened with the worship service, conducted by Marsh Hill Sunday School under the direction of Mr. Hollinger. The theme was "The Master's Yoke." Miss Parks and Miss Brown sang a duet, "Tell Me the Story of Jesus." A very inspiring message built around the worship was given.

Mr. Warren spoke briefly on the necessary co-operation among the home, Sunday School and church if Christian work and teaching are to progress.

Reports of the nomination and resolutions committees were given.

Johnstown Sunday School presented a dramatized demonstration, entitled: "The Teacher Visits the Home." In the first scene, the indifferent teacher was shown. The second scene showed the sincere and enthusiastic teacher. The moral of the presentation was the results that can be obtained when parents and teacher work together.

Mr. Warren welcomed Padre Rogers and Padre Smith from the RCAF Sunday School at Trenton.

Sunday Schools Report

Members from four Sunday Schools were called on for a short talk on "It Happened Here." Mr. Martin of Frankford spoke on the increased attendance of the Sunday School, and the various factors contributing toward this. He mentioned the Sunday School attendance certificates and seals, the Monthly Messenger, official monthly publication of the school, the twenty-one classes, and 45 members of the executive. Mr. Martin spoke of the re-organization within the Sunday School in September, and the foundation of memory work and inspirational worship services contributing greatly in laying a foundation for church membership.

Mr. Smithrim of King Street United Church in Trenton gave a report on the fine progress they had made in their primary department, which has an average attendance of 70 to 80. He said that they had found that the use of envelopes contributed to increased giving. He also spoke on the "Family Day" services, formerly known as Mother's Day.

Mr. Floyd McInnes of Sidney Baptist Church explained that each school age child in their Sunday school was given a Bible by the school for good attendance and memory work. A fine example for other schools to adopt.

Mr. Lawrence Ketcheson of Wallbridge United Sunday School spoke on the subject "Quality and not Quantity in the Sunday Schools." He mentioned attendance pins which had proven quite successful in their Sunday School. Mr. Ketcheson spoke of the need for more officers and teachers, and believed that vacation schools would be one solution to that problem.

Mr. McLean was then called on again, and delivered an inspirational talk on "The Precious Material with Which We are Working." He spoke on the care we must exercise, lest we waste this precious material, the very soul of boys and girls. There is always the danger of attracting boys and girls to ourselves rather than to Christ. Mr. McLean said that as teachers, we often need magnifying glasses for God ourselves, and that we should make certain that we polish the lens. He concluded his talk with the suggestion that we all thank God for entrusting to us the task of working with His Precious material.

Following his address, a film entitled "Who Is My Neighbor?" was shown. This depicted the story of the Good Samaritan.

Rev. Puttenham closed a most successful convention with prayer.

Slate of Officers

The new slate of officers for 1950-51 is as follows:

B. Finkle, Marsh Hill S.S.; teacher training, Rev. G. A. Puttenham, Grace United, Trenton; missionary dept., Mrs. Harold Jeffrey, Grace United, Trenton; temperance dept., Mrs. M. B. Sine, Scott's S.S., and press secretary, Raymond Scott, Frankford S.S.

Resolutions Adopted

The report of the Resolutions Committee was received at the evening session and accepted.

1. We reaffirm our conviction as to the continued necessity of a policy of vigorous temperance education through the church school.

2. We heartily recommend the action of the Gideon Society in supplying our Public School pupils with Testaments.

3. In order to provide a better promotion of the convention, we recommend that a copy of the program be sent to every minister and enough copies to be sent to the superintendents to supply all their teachers.

4. We recommend that the executive appoint a nominating committee at an early date which will in turn appoint a new nominating committee to act in the following year.

5. We recommend that Rev. Neelands, Mr. Warren and Mrs. M. B. Sine be a committee to promote and charter a bus to carry a group of people to the World Sunday School Convention on Aug. 13, 1950 in Toronto.

6. We would instruct the executive to arrange a meeting for a coaching conference for Vacation Bible School leaders in 1951.

7. We commend the action of the Trenton Ministerial Association in the promotion of its leadership training course and would encourage the promotion of at least one other such school in our township this coming year.

8. We would like to express our appreciation to Rev. Mr. McLean for his splendid contribution to the convention.

9. We also extend our hearty thanks to Mr. Puttenham and to the workers of Grace United Church who have made our stay here today so pleasant and comfortable.

At the close of the convention the new executive met and set Sept. 14th, for the date of the first meeting.

THE WINNER

George Nowlan, president of the National Progressive Conservative Association, won the by-election in Nova Scotia's Annapolis-Kings riding and will return to Ottawa after a 10-year absence. WEDDINGS

HYDE—McLEAN

The marriage of Margaret Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyal E. McLean, Belleville, to Mr. Gerald Bateman Hyde, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Hyde, Belleville, took place in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville, on Saturday, June 17th, at 2.30 p.m. The Rev. J. G. Hornsby, assisted by the Rev. D. C. Amos, officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, chose a gown of misty-white imported chantilly lace over heavy slipper satin. The bodice was fashioned with a petal-scalloped neckline below the yoke of sheer illusion, and long, tight sleeves. The billowing skirt was gathered to the corded waist and fell over a crinoline to a full sweep. The hemline, also, was accented with the scallops. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion flowed from a matching lace brim.

She carried a cascade bouquet of Butterfly roses.

Mrs. James Ward, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Miss Lorraine Hopkins as bridesmaid, were dressed similarly in pale orchid nylon marquisette over apple green corded taffeta under slips. Their redingote type gowns featured deep V-necklines, edged with soft folds of the material, buttons at the Empire waists, and cuffed, cap sleeves and gracefully flaring skirts. Their head-dresses were off the face brims. They carried cascade bouquets of picardy gladioli.

Mr. Austin Watkin, was best man, and the ushers were Wilbur Countryman, William Gilbert, James Ward, all of Belleville; and Robert Bateman of Toronto.

Miss Helen Cook, cousin of the bride, sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "Beloved it is Morn."

After the reception at Albert College, Ackerman Hall, the couple left by car for New York and by boat to Bermuda.

Upon their return they will reside at 88 Victoria Ave., Belleville.

Prior to her marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Countryman entertained at a dinner party and Miss Lorraine Hopkins at a shower for the bride.

Out-of-town guests were, Mr. and Mrs. Thornhill, Mrs. Krausman, Mr. and Mrs. Don Sargeant of Toronto.

COTTON satin, a fabric particularly nice for the teen-ager, is seen here in a versatile little dress, a nice dance number, that fares forth with its waist-length cover-up jacket. The blouse is sleeveless the string straps tie in shoulder bows. The skirt, in contrasting color, is gathered in front, and gored in back. The blouse and skirt are linked up with a leather braid belt. The twosomes can be mixed and matched in such luscious colors as raspberry, turquoise, black, beige and yellow.

Women's Activities

BETHANY W.M.S. & W.A.

The June meeting of the Bethany W.M.S. and W.A. was held on Wednesday afternoon last at the home of Mrs. William Doxtator, 3rd line, with a good attendance.

Mrs. John Ritz presided. Mrs. W. Clarke gave the scripture lesson taken from Luke 2; 25-38. Mrs. Ritz gave a reading on "Growing Older."

Letters of appreciation were read from Miss Bessie Way and Mrs. Connie Wilkinson. Business was discussed.

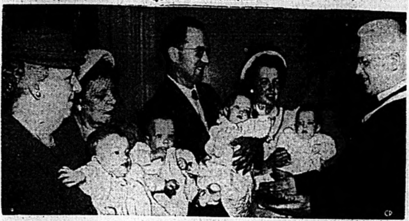
Mrs. Charles Hinze invited the ladies to her home for the July meeting.

It was decided to give a donation of money instead of having a lawn social. Mrs. Orval Beer gave a reading "When the World Sees Christ in Us," readings "The Church," by Mrs. D. Tummon. "Christian Stewardship" by Mrs. Grant Cole and "The Secret of Tranquility" by Mrs. F. Walker were greatly enjoyed.

Mrs. Frank Walker conducted a short business period for the W.A. and the offering was taken.

Mrs. Doxtator served dainty refreshments and a social time was spent.

QUADS CHRISTENED



The famous Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Hargreaves quadruplets were christened last Sunday. Only Joan — the "baby" of the foursome — did any fussing, with a good, healthy cry. Pictured are, left to right, Mrs. Bessie Hargreaves, an aunt, holding Jean Dianne; Mrs. Kendall Knight, grandmother of the quads, with Joyce Carol; the father, Ossie Hargreaves, holding Janice Barbara; and the mother, Eileen Hargreaves, with Jennifer Ann. Belleville Pianist Gets Good Notice For Impersonations

Bill Navin, well known Belleville pianist, who in years past has given freely of his time and talent for various good causes in the Quinte district, is doing all right by himself as a member of the Chuck Allen Trio at the Club Norman's Circus Room in Toronto.

In fact Bill is doing so much all right that he has rated a bit of comment by Alex Barris in his "Night In, Night Out" column in the Toronto Globe and Mail.

The columnist cites Chuck as having a startlingly fine baritone voice but states that he and his bass fiddle are not all the show. He says "Bill Navin, the pianist, who comes from Belleville, does several amusing impersonations of Jimmy Durante and Jerry Colonna".

The trio have been playing for some time at the Circus Room.

ORPHAN OMITTED

Washington, June 21 — (AP)— The House of Representatives passed yesterday a bill to admit a 15-year-old Hungarian orphan to the United States for adoption by Mr. and Mrs. Eli Beaumont of Burbank, Calif. The bill now goes to the White House. The boy, Thomas Pfeiffer, now lives in Canada.

British Cities Pan Actress For Recent Roles

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London (CP) — Jean Simmons has discovered that a big buildup can mean an equally big letdown.

Once the darling of the film critics, hailed as potential First Lady of the British screen, 21-year-old Miss Simmons now is being panned instead of praised.

What she needs now, the critics say, is less publicity and a few good stories. Her latest film, "So Long at the Fair," brought this criticism to a head.

Jean first blossomed as a star in "Great Expectations." Then came her resounding success as Ophelia in "Hamlet." The J. Arthur Rank Organization, suddenly realizing it had a really talented actress on its hands, gave her the star-dust treatment.

There was a big party on her 21st birthday. She played the night-club circuit, moved into a Mayfair apartment and drove round in a shiny automobile. Her picture appeared on all the front pages, showing a carefully-cultivated blonde streak in her dark hair.

Meanwhile, the let-down was looming. Pictures like "Uncle Silas," "The Woman in the Hall," "The Blue Lagoon" and "Adam and Evelyne" did little to boost her reputation.

"So long at the Fair," released early this month, is an old story about a girl and her brother arriving in Paris for the 1889 Exhibition. The brother vanishes, leaving the girl alone in Paris ignorant of the French language and the city.

The newspaper reviewers all agreed that this was no vehicle for Miss Simmons. Milton Shulman, formerly of Toronto, wrote in the Evening Standard:

"I went along expecting to see a more mature, more experienced and more moving Jean Simmons. I saw instead a Jean Simmons who had barely advanced one step from the 17-year-old ingenue who delighted us with her promise."

The Evening News called "So Long at the Fair" one of the most exasperating films the Rank Organization has made. The Daily Express termed it a "five-finger exercise" for an actress. The Glasgow Herald said it would make a name for no one.

Miss Simmons apparently took these criticisms seriously. She is said to have telephoned Basil Dearden, director of "The Blue Lamp," a recent British hit at the box office. Dearden provided the script for a film tentatively entitled "Cage of Gold," now in production.

"This is for me," Jean told reporters, promising them that the dead-end phase of her career now is over. The critics said they would wait and see.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about Food . . . What's Cooking?

Before they had a name bananas were called the apples of paradise. The word banana was adopted in the 16th century, after an African tribe of that name. Not all of the 72 varieties of bananas are fit to be eaten in paradise. One kind is so hard that it is used to make rope.

The fruit brought to the United States, however, is adapted to an almost limitless number of dishes.

Bananas are not only eaten as a dessert but as a garnish to give richness to many meat and poultry dishes. Breaded fried banana or broiled banana can be used in place of a vegetable. Baked banana, as in the recipe below, is particularly good with any form of chicken.

The fried chicken in this recipe is first simmered in water until tender and then dipped in batter and fried. This method of cooking chicken gives it a delicious coating but does not cause it to become dry.

Bananas baked with cranberry sauce should be served in side dishes. No potato or other starch is necessary with this chicken dinner.

.. Batter Fried Chicken with Bananas. Serves 4

Have a 3 1-2 pound young spring chicken cut for frying. Wash well. Remove any loose particles in cavity of chicken. Singe if necessary.

Place chicken in boiling water to cover. Add - teaspoon salt, 1 medium size onion and 1 stalk celery. Simmer slowly until chicken is tender, about 1 hour. (Chicken broth will be weak because of short cooking period. Add bouillon cubes if broth is to be used for soup.)

Drain pieces of chicken well. Cool completely.

Prepare a batter as follows: Combine 1 1-2 cups all-purpose flour with 2 teaspoons baking powder and 1 teaspoon salt. Sift all dry ingredients together. Beat two eggs and combine with 1 cup of milk and 1 tablespoon salad oil. Add liquid to dry ingredients. Beat until smooth.

Chicken must be dry before dipping in batter. Dry on clean cloth towel or absorbent paper. Dip pieces of chicken in batter. Fry in deep hot fat heated to 380 degrees. Remove browned chicken from fat and drain on absorbent paper.

Peel 4 firm bananas and cut in half crosswise. Place in buttered baking pan. Pour 1 cup cranberry sauce over bananas. Bake about 15 minutes in a moderate oven 375 degrees or until bananas are tender when pierced with fork.

BEAUTY

When Golden Tresses Become Tarnished

Blonde hair requires the greatest care, and fastidious attention cannot start too early. The mama of the honey-haired cherub must [illegible] the little girl's head every [illegible], must be fussy about the shampoo medium she uses. Only the blandest soap will be safe; strong ones can dim the golden thatch. Cream shampoos are recommended, as they are easily rinsed away. Few children regard the head-washing session as a treat or a pleasure.

The true blond, with fair skin and blue eyes, may keep her golden glints until nearing middle-age, though she is the exception. Along in the late twenties the hair is likely to darken. Something has happened to the tiny pigment cells that supply the shafts with coloring. Why these changes take place nobody knows, as nobody knows why the [illegible] turns grey.

Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

The hair is likely to darken during the late twenties

This color change occurs first at the roots of the shafts, the ends retaining the pristine hue, making for appearance that may be disturbing to the light-headed sister. In the course of time the entire growth may be drab, even light brown. The poor dear who must endure this state of transition feels that she is no longer a blonde, nor is she a brunette. She considers herself a betwixt-and-betweener.

At one time or another, she is likely to coquette with the idea of taking to the peroxide bottle. If she attempts the bleaching [illegible]tment herself, chances are [illegible] will be pouring troubles on her head. The trick can be turned but only by experienced operators. There is the important matter of timing, about which the novice is not familiar.

Nature knows nothing about what is going on, keeps pushing out the darker shafts. That means that the first bleaching session is only a start on a long term of slavery in the cause of good looks. Every six or eight weeks there must be a touchup.

Only the new growth must be treated. If applications of peroxide overlap, the hair may be streaked. Not only that, but the shafts will become weak and jute-like. Soap suds will run from them like water from a duck's back, in which event one must resort to the egg shampoo.

Most of us remember the platinum frenzy. Hair was bleached to the limit, until it was more [illegible]e than blonde. The fad was [illegible]rt-lived, as over-bleaching proved devastating. The shafts broke at the touch of the comb.

Instead of applying liquids beauticians use what they call white henna. There is no such herb; that is a trade name. Peroxide is mixed with magnesium carbonate, in proper proportions, ammonia is added and the mixture applied.

FATAL FLIGHT

Three men left Spitsbergen July 11, 1897, in a balloon headed for the North Pole. They were not found until Aug. 6, 1930, when their remains were discovered 117 miles from their point of departure.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Mother With a Daughter-in-Law Problem

A widow with one son is heartbroken because the girl her boy has married refuses to be friends with her. More than that, the young wife appears to be making a definite effort to alienate her husband from his mother so that she can keep him, his thoughts, and attentions wholly for herself.

This mother writes:

"When my son married, I turned over to him money from his father's insurance so that he could have a lovely home. I am a saleslady in a store and live with a woman friend.

"Since my son married, I have never been asked to his house for a meal. If he comes to our apartment, his wife telephones, and rants and raves and swears at me. She makes fun of me behind my back and if I have anything new she says it is in poor taste.

"I have tried to think this out and I can see she is influencing my son, as he is rude to me now himself. My friends says she is jealous of me. I love my son, and he is all I have. I must see him. What can I do?"

The letter goes on to say that this widow has had several offers of marriage.

It is extremely likely that what this woman's friend says is true, and her daughter-in-law is one of those young wives who is jealous of her husband's mother. My correspondent says that she has done everything she can to win the girl's friendship, if not affection, but has been unable to make any headway.

"That being the case, I think her best plan is to abandon any further efforts in this direction and leave the young people to their own devices, turning all her attention to making an interesting life for herself. This might have more effect upon the son than constant pleading with him to do something about the situation.

Of course a mother, especially a widowed one, feels that an only child is all she has and cannot bear the thought of being estranged from him. But in a case of this kind, no amount of arguing and pleading is going to accomplish anything except to make the son feel his mother is a burden, a nuisance and a drag upon his happiness. He will think far more of her and be much more anxious to see her if she lets him and his wife go their own way and she goes hers.

As for whether or not she should accept one of the offers of marriage she has had, that obviously would entirely depend upon whether or not any one of the men who has made such an offer appeals to her sufficiently so that she would find prospect of life with him attractive. It would be foolish to marry merely for the sake of being married. To do so would only invite the possibility of more unhappiness than she has now.

I think she should first of all make up her mind to concentrate on developing new interests of her own and making all the new acquaintances she can. With an interestingly busy and independent life, she is far less likely to care whether or not she is married or whether or not she is being neglected or badly treated by her son and his wife.

IVANHOE

Film Strips Suggested As Aid In Teaching

Ivanhoe— A meeting called by Mr. A. McGuire inspector of public schools in Centre Hastings, was held on Friday evening, June 16th, in Ivanhoe Town Hall.

One purpose of the meeting was to show what is going on in the schools in regard to musical education for the children.

Mr. Herbert Burke acted as chairman for the following musical numbers.

West Huntingdon school, two Negro spirituals, "Swing Low Sweet Chariot," solo by Leverne Pounder; "Standing in the Need of Prayer."

Ivanhoe school—seniors "Good-Bye, My Lover, Good Bye"; juniors—"Day Time Lullaby".

Thomasburg—"Sailor Life"; 2 part alto and soprano "Heave Ho, My Laddie"; junior room "Fiddle Diddle Dum", "The Birds".

White Lake — Senior room, "Come Lassies and Lads". Junior room, "He Didn't Think", and "The Wasted Crust".

Fuller—"Dinah"; Solo by Ronnie Kellar, "Good Night" and "Bells of St. Mary's."

Ridge Road—In 3 parts tenor, alto and soprano "Polly Wally Doodle," "Coming Through the Rye". Solo parts taken by Ronnie Munro and Sharon Hammond.

West Huntingdon school brought this interesting and entertaining program to a close with two numbers in two part singing, soprano and alto with Marilyn Fitchett taking the solo parts, "Living for Jesus" and "Trusting in Jesus."

Parents' Co-operation

The chairman expressed words of appreciation and urged the fathers and mothers to co-operate with the teachers and music teachers.

Mr. McGuire thanked all for coming to give their support in this undertaking. He said, "We need your support and it is gratifying to see we are getting it." He also voiced praise and appreciation to Miss M. McKee the music teacher. Although the splendid results are largely due to the music teacher, Mr. McGuire mentioned the co-operation and willing spirit of the school teachers, and trustees, without whose support the projects could not be carried out.

Film Strip Project

The second purpose of the meeting was to bring before the school boards a new project, the use of the film strip projector as a better means of teaching. This projector will be provided by the trustees and will be the property of the school. Each week films would be mailed to the next school. Mr. McGuire emphasized these films were not for entertainment but for education.

The lessons would be illustrated and urged the schools to join in this fine project. Two or three films were shown to the audience.

This meeting was largely attended by hundreds of school children, teachers, trustees and proud parents.

New York Debates Measures To Curb Teen-Age Warfare

By STUART UNDERHILL

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York (CP)— A group of youngsters tussle on a New York street. A gun cracks, a knife flashes, and another victim is added to the casualty list of teen-age warfare that has cost 11 lives in the last year.

Law enforcement authorities, who have found youth gangs one of the most difficult post-war crime problems, differ on the means of dealing with it. Some advocate a tougher attitude, others an expanded program of social work that would give the youngsters an outlet in athletics.

Magistrate Benjamin Brenner of Brooklyn minced no words when a dozen boys appeared before him after an outbreak of knife and gun fighting on Memorial Day, a national holiday

"If you act like hoodlums you'll be treated like hoodlums." he said. "I want the gangs of Brooklyn to know that we are going to get tough too. . .we're not going to treat you like kids any more."

Unite in Groups

The boys, swarming out of slum districts, often unite in groups of from 50 to 100 for the pitched battles whey call "rumbles." There have been so many frays in Brooklyn's Prospect Park that a slope there has been named "massacre hill."

A favorite weapon is the "zip-gun," a home-made contraption that fires real cartridges. But knives, brass knuckles, clubs and rocks come into play when the gangs clash. Often innocent bystanders are the victims.

Police say that girls are the chief cause of fights, but sometimes battles break out over racial issues, imagined insults, or "just for fun."

The gangs have such names as Greene Avenue Stompers, Nits, Chicos, Gay Nineties, Tigers, Slickers and Naturalistics.

Some of them affect fancy clothing.

The Be-Boppers, blamed for many nighttime fights outside dance halls, wear peg trousers in vivid colors, with knee-length jackets of conflicting hues.

The Police Athletic League, which has given many underprivileged youngsters a chance to blow off excess energy in sport, hopes to widen its program in this direction. Police Commissioner William P. O'Brien said recently that the gangs were "the fringe we have not yet reached" in work of this sort.

Develop Rackets

Some of the gang develop rackets" as well as fighting with their contemporaries. In one district they are said to extort money from householders and apartment house superintendents to guarantee that garbage cans won't be regularly upset.

Police say that many youngsters are forced into gangs by ring-leaders. Alternatively, they are beaten or robbed of their school lunch money.

Social workers study the problem constantly. Some hope that New York will set up special youth courts where offenders would be handled by child specialists rather than by police magistrates.

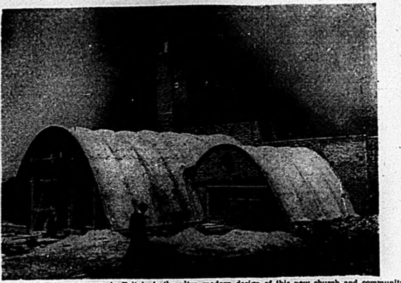
SHAPE OF CHURCHES TO COME? WELL, MAYBE



Subject of controversy in Britain is the ultra-modern design of this new church and community centre, now nearing completion at Lawrence Weston Estate, near Bristol. Designed by a Bristol, architect, and looking not unlike an army quonset hut, it is expected to cost $20,000. — Central Press Canadian.

Social Activity Primary Therapy in New Hospital

London (Reuters) —A Viennese doctor, who came to Britain just before the war, has revealed to psychiatrists and health ministry officials secrets of a new-type hospital here which claims to mend broken hearts, wipe out frightening blitz memories, and cure anxiety neuroses.

This pioneer hospital, at Hampstead, London, has been incorporated into Britain's national health service and its success will lead to the opening of similar hospitals elsewhere.

The doctor, Joshua Bierer, believes thousands of men and women are certified insane and sent to mental hospitals when two weeks of sympathetic treatment might make them normal citizens again.

Social activities are one of the most important methods in Dr. Bierer's treatment. Patients invite friends to social clubs. Often nobody knows who are the patients among those present.

Dr. Brierer has supplanted the verbal method of analysis and explanation of cause by a method of treatment by experience which is known as "situational treatment."

The special needs of each patient are subtly planned in a scheme to draw patients into social activities with each other. Often they are drawn naturally into doing things of which they believe themselves incapable.

By these methods, Dr. Brierer claims to have cured broken hearts caused by grief, nervous breakdowns resulting from domestic unhappiness after effects of wartime experiences anxiety neuroses and nervous disorders, shyness and blushing.

Children Helped

A child guidance clinic attached to the hospital claims similar successes with children—many of them victims of wartime evacuation from the cities, who believe their parents abandoned them through lack of love.

Dr. Bierer served in the British army during the war and dreamed then of the project which he has since supervised. He established his pioneer hospital in 1947, taking patients on a day-to-day, non-residential, basis.

Later the hospital was taken into the National Health Service, but an institute for social psychiatry attached to it is still run independently. This organizes after care treatment, research and a chain of thereapeutic social clubs in many parts of London.

The whole conception is being steadily enlarged as research goes forward.

Dr. Bierer believes mental strain retards the recovery of at least one in three patients in ordinary British hospitals.

His deputy, Dr. E. N. Snowden, told visitors to the hospital:

"We catalogue everything about our patients—all aspects of their attitude to life and environment. Then we bring them into the scope of social activities like drama, music appreciation, are and handicrafts."

Senator Iva Fallis (PC—Ontario) and Senator Horner took exception to Senator Roebuck's charge about the Progressive Conservative attitude on conscription. Senator Horner demanded a withdrawal but none was forthcoming.

Asked to Withdraw Remark

Later Senator Horner, obviously incensed, termed Senator Roebuck's charge a "base lie" and a "slander".

Called to order, he was asked to withdraw his remark.

"I'll withdraw when he does," retorted Senator Horner and sat down.

The bill was given second and third reading along with measures consolidating the military codes of the armed services and bills to amend Canada's Citizenship Act and approve new Canadian-United States taxation agreements.

Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader, in moving second reading of the defence supplies and projects bill noted that Canada at present is living in peace. But she was by no means free from the threat of aggression.

Senator Haig protested that the bill mage "one man all-powerful" He believed the minister should get the approval of the cabinet and possibly parliament itself because "war is not going to come that quick."

Supports Opposition

Senator T. A. Crerar (L—Manitoba,) a one-time Liberal cabinet minister, supported the opposition. He did not see any immediate prospect of war and was against concentrating power in the hands of one man in peacetime.

Senator Roebuck said he could not get as alarmed as others about the bill. He believed there woud be conscription in the next war and the leader of the opposition would approve of that.

Senator Haig said he had never said that.

Then Senator Roebuck said the record of the Progressive Conservative party showed it tried to defeat voluntary enlistment in the last war to bring on conscription.

Senator Horner demanded a withdrawal and promptly moved several seats farther away from Senator Roebuck.

"Take him outside," called a Liberal senator as the Speaker called for order.

Replies to Request

In the commons, Mr. Martin, replying to opposition requests for federal aid for incurables and incapacitated persons, disclosed that the provinces are launching—at federal expense—a "sickness survey" to determine the number of incurables in Canada and the number of persons earning no income. This would provide the basis for an intelligent approach to the problem.

Opposition speakers coupled requests for greater federal aid in health fields with criticism of the government's expenditures on publicity, information services and travelling.

Earlier, the chamber completed study of labor department estimates and heard Labor Minister Mitchell report that sales of government annuities have dropped 30 per cent since the interest rate cent several years ago.
ctnt several years ago.

May Increase Grants

In the health debate, Mr. Martin promised to consider a suggestion by Ross Thatcher (CCF—Moose Jaw) that federal health grants to the provinces be increased and put on a more liberal basis.

Mr. Thatcher suggested that the grants, which now go to provide for hospital beds, if the provinces match them, should be extended to cover provision of laboratory services, operation rooms, x-ray equipment and dietary kitchens. The dominion should pay one-third of new hospital construction.

Dr. W. G. Blair (PC—Lanark), progressive conservative medical critic, urged the government to finance more research into the cause of cancer, infantile paralysis heart disease and other ailments. Policies should be directed to making treatment available to all.

Wants Scholarships

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, sought wider support for Canadian schools of social work. Scholarships should be provided.

Solon Low, social credit leader, felt the Department's nutrition service should be integrated with those of the agriculture department and the National Research Council.

Replying to criticism of the department's travelling expenses, Mr. Martin said much of the money was spent in getting Indians to hospitals for proper treatment. Travel of departmental officials was essential if they were to be familiar with health problems.

GM WORKERS

What It Provides

No general basic-wage figure could be obtained owing to the differing work classifications.

The new contract also provides:

1. Hours of work are to be progressively reduced from 44 to 40 a week over five years.

2. Increased life insurance, accident and sickness benefits are provided under the company plan at no additional cost to employees. The company will share the cost of hospital and surgical care for employees and members of their families.

3. Employees with 15 years or more service receive three week's paid vacation annually.

4. All non-productive workers (the union estimates 45 per cent are in this category at Oshawa) will receive a general increase of five cents an hour, in addition to the three-cents boost.

5. Wages will continue to be adjusted quarterly in line with changes in cost of living, based on the Dominion index.

a total of $100 a month from both

The pension plan permits the company to reduce its contribution by a maximum of $10 a month under certain circumstances. It provides that if a government pension plan without a means test is introduced, employees will be permitted to receive a total of $100 a month frmo both sources without any reduction in the company payment. But insofar as the government pension exceeds $45 a month, the company's contribution will drop to keep the total sum received by the pensioner at $100. But the maximum reduction permitted the company is $10.

Notable Growth Of N.Z. Maoris Belies Forcast

By J. C. GRAHAM

(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Auckland, N. Z., — (CP)—New Zealand's native Maori race is increasing so rapidly that opinions are being drastically reuised as to its future.

Less than half a century ago it was being confidently predicted that the Maoris were doomed to extinction within a short time. Then came a remarkable revival and it was considered that the race would survive until its eventual inevitable absorption by the European inhabitants. Now, with its numbers increasing faster than ever, it shows every sign of living on as a separate entity playing on increasingly important part in New Zealand life.

Some estimates place the number of Maoris when Europeans discovered New Zealand as high as 200,000. The introduction of European weapons among a warlike people and the introduction of European diseases played havoc with the race.

By 1858 the Maori population had dropped to 58,000. At the end of the century the number was down to 39,000 and few people held out any hope for the race's future.

But the end of tribal warfare, the gradual acceptance of European medicine, and a revival in spirit under the influence of a series of notable leaders, brought a turning point.

116,000 Maoris

By 1936 there were 82,000 Maoris and today the population exceeds 116,000. It is increasing two and a half times as fast as the European population.

About half the Maori population today is of mixed descent, as Maoris inter-marry freely with Europeans. But with the revived pride of race, half-castes are increasingly identifying themselves with the Maoris and many of them are marrying back among the native people.

Half-castes are often more typically Maori than those of full blood, having a fierce pride in their ancestry and a determination to retain traditions.

With the vigor of the racial revival showing no signs of diminishing it seems doubtful whether the Maoris will be absorbed in the European population.

POPULATION BOOST

Canada's birth rate increased by one-third between 1938 and 1948.

PINE PORTAGE
Generating Station

On June 21, the Pine Portage Generating Station on the Nipigon River will swing into operation to supply 80,000 new horsepower to speed the development of Ontario's store of forest and mineral wealth. This is the second of three new generating stations being officially opened this month by the Honourable Leslie M. Frost, Prime Minister of Ontario, to provide all Ontario with 216,500 additional horsepower immediately, and a total of 616,500 new horsepower by the end of 1950 or early in 1951.

Ontario Hydro extends sincere thanks to the men of labour throughout the province, to our suppliers for meeting the demands made upon them, and to local Municipal Systems and consumers for conserving electricity for production purposes. Their assistance was of inestimable value in speeding to completion the 1950 portion of our huge expansion program, which will ultimately provide all Ontario with over 1,600,000 additional horsepower.

June 1950, is an important month for Ontario Hydro. On June 14, the Tunnel Generating Station near Thessalon was put into operation, supplying 56,500 horsepower to further the development of Ontario's vast mineral and forest resources. On June 21, the Pine Portage generating station will commence supplying 40,000 of 80,000 new horsepower to the Lakehead area. On June 28, the first of eight generating units of the giant new Des Joachims Development on the Ottawa River will be put into operation supplying the first of 480,000 new horsepower to meet the record demand for electricity in both Southern and Northern Ontario.

Hydro-electric power safeguards the continued prosperity of this province and we are proud of the part played by the Commission's personnel in bringing these plants to production in record time in the face of difficulties arising out of the shortage in manpower and materials.

Beyond The Law

Mary Imlay Taylor

"Laure," he moaned, "Laure!" Over and over again, the same battle, his duty and his sudden overwhelming attachment for the woman. Then, when he felt her cooling hand on his hot forehead, or tasted the water she pressed to his parched lips, he raised glazed eyes to her and murmured broken, unintelligible words.

Hour after hour thus, and then, at last, voices, figures, moving before his fevered vision, strange shapes, fresh thrills of agony at a new touch on his swollen arm and his wounded head, a strange voice.

"Give me more light here! And a basin of hot water."

The words trickled through his consciousness. A glare shone in the room. He tried to rise and was thrust back into — nothingness.

It was morning when he opened his eyes again. Through the door of the outer room he heard a kettle singing loudly on the stove. Then he suddenly was aware that his broken arm lay in splints, and that his head had cleared. Dimly things came back to him. A doctor had been summoned for him from somewhere.

Where were they now, the doctor and the woman? O'Hara lay still, watching the door. Presently he heard soft movements, then a shadow fell across the rectangle of light.

"Laure!" he breathed.

"You're awake, m'sieur!" She was smiling; there was something like a thrill of joy in her voice as she knelt beside him, lifting a cup to his lips. "You must eat something now, and get strong again."

The hot broth tasted good after his long fast. He finished the cup

"The pain in your head isn't so bad now, m'sieur? Your fever's almost gone, and you've slept off the medicine too." She was close, bending over him, and the light from the other room touched her face with a softened glow.

He lifted a fold of her dress to his lips and kissed it humbly. "you've been an angel to me. Forgive me for all I've done!"

She rose from her knees, flushing and trembling, but her eyes were shining. "The doctor said you must be quiet, m'sieur."

"Where is he?"

"He—he had to go back," her voice faltered strangely. "He had another patient. Jacques took him It was a lucky chance to have a doctor anywhere out here."

As she spoke she moved toward the door, carrying the empty cup. But he called to her in a low strained voice. "They're gone— and you stayed here with me?"

"Of course, m'sieur, you needed someone."

"You stayed because I needed you?"

"Are you not suffering m'sieur? And I'm a woman! I had to stay."

"You had to stay? No, Laure." His lips compressed to a grim line, but this was self hatred. When he spoke again his voice was harsh. "Why did you let pity keep you here?"

She turned back and stood looking down at him, pale and calm. "Would you rather have me desert you now, m'sieur? Leave you to suffer alone until the doctor returns, to thirst with fever, to starve?"

He nodded slowly, firmly. "I prefer it, Laure! Let me fail, attempting duty, rather than succeed—"

Shocked protest was mirrored in her features. "No, no, m'sieur! Even if you hated me, even though you charged me with crime, you could not wish to be left alone thus!"

"You don't know all!" he cried abruptly. "Tell me, what day is it?" Friday, m'sieur."

His tension relaxed— but this was hopeless. Inspector Macdonald knew everything by this time. Listlessly his craggy face suddenly seemed years older, O'Hara turned his face toward the wall. "I have done it—betrayed you," he muttered.

There was a moment of silence then her voice still sweet and modulated, "I know all, m'sieur. You told me in your fever."

"You knew the inspector will send an officer here, now I have failed to bring you in?" he gasped, in fresh agony of soul, "you knew?"

"I know, m'sieur."

"You knew and you stayed? When you could have gone with Duval—You stayed to wait on me?'

He caught at her hand and drew her nearer, lifting fevered eyes to the calm beauty of her face. "Laure, tell me about this man, Duval. He's devoted to you like a faithful dog—"

She dragged her hand away, gently. "It's quite simple about that, m'sieur. When I came here a bride, Duval's young wife would have died one night but for my care. I went a few miles through the snow to help here. He loves her m'sieur, and thinks I saved her life. That is all."

O'Hara uttered a sharp cry. "I know now," he said with a rasp of threat. "I know! ! Duval brought you here. He found the girl, believed your husband false and in revenge he killed them both!"

She fell upon her knees beside him, catching his fevered hand and holding it. "No, no. Before the good God, Duval is innocent! He never came here while the girl was here. He never saw her —even dead!"

"He did! You want to save the man because he's been faithful, or some other senseless reason! Gharian was cruel to you, they've told me. He deserved to die. I swear it! But you must be cleared. I'll have to take Duval. He's the guilty one, but I don't blame him—"

She dropped his hand and wrung her own together. Sobs of terror shook her. "He's innocent! If you accuse him you're a wicked man! Duval saved you; be grateful and just to him!"

"He didn't save me; you did! I know now you're innocent; I'd stake my soul on it! It's the man who did it. He must pay for it, not you."

"M'sieur, Duval's innocent; there's no clue which can lead you to him. You know it!"

"You can't deceive me now, Laure! Don't remember how you begged me not to try Creuse on circumstantial evidence? One of those two did it, Laure, and one of them must pay—if not your halfbreed, then Nicky Creuse. He had the motive, he was taken haunting this house, and there's only one link missing. He seems to have been at Churchill. Well, he wasn't that all. We've miscalculated the time. He got here in time to fulfill his threats. As soon as I'm up I'll nail him!"

She drew a long breath, her eyes shining strangely, but she did not move. "You'll do this because of me?" she whispered. "To save me you'll send that boy unjustly to the gallows?"

He did not answer. A startled light of sanity shot through the madness of unreason in his eyes, however, as he stared at her.

"And what if I swear to you that both are innocent, Creuse, and poor Jacques?"

"I know you can't, Laure. I— I'm sure of it, for one of them had to do it; there can be no one else." Yet in that second instinct told him he erred.

"Except Gharian's wife, m'sieur the one whom you suspected first, the one whom you hunted first!"

"Come nearer," he pleaded. "Let me look into your eyes — Laure!"

"Yes, m'sieur." She knelt beside him, looking at him with soft, melancholy eyes.

"Look at me, Laure," he whispered hoarsely. "Hear me" as God is my judge, I believe I was mistaken. You're innocent! I— I love you!"

She was so close that his well well hand touched her flushed cheek, but she evaded him and rose to her feet. For an instant she stood thus, looking down, and then she hid her face in her own hands and burst into bitter, passionate tears.

"Laure," he cried hoarsely, brokenly, "forgive me! I had no right to tell you, but I couldn't keep it back. From that first moment at French Pete's I've loved you more than any other woman on God's earth! That's why I left that letter with the chief. I was afraid my heart would fail. But I put the service before my own life, before yours. I can't betray my trust, but I deserve to die, Laure; kill me!" He half rose to his elbow. "Kill me, Laure and escape! I can't give you up!"

"See what harm you do yourself, m'sieur; your head is burning, the doctor said you must be quiet!"

She put him back among his pillows, but he caught at her hand again and held her captive, voicing his love and his faith in her.

"Laure," he whispered thickly. "do you—care?"

She bent over him gently, looking into his grief-stricken face, then she stooped and softly pressed her cool lips against his hot cheek.

"Laure——"

The room swam in glory to his eyes. He tried to draw her to him, but she slipped from his hold and stood, listening.

"Hark, m'sieur, there's someone at the door."

He almost shouted. "Duval! He shall tell me the truth, Laure!"

But she turned quietly and looked at him with a wan smile. "Not so, m'sieur! They've read your letter. It's one of your comrades—come for me!"

"This is tough luck, old chap!" Gayle was a big broad shouldered officer, red with the biting cold. "I understand now—" he cast a quick glance over his shoulder at the figure of the woman in the outer room "—why you didn't bring in your prisoner in six days! Old Mac got worried, thought something had happened —must had had a hunch, eh?"

O'Hara groaned. "Listen to me, Gayle," he whispered hoarsely. "Did the chief tell you what I'd written in the letter?"

Gayle nodded. "Sure! How else could I carry it out if you failed? I know—" he lowered his voice, "—about her. Great Scott, man, she's beautiful!"

SUN SUIT FOR JUNIOR: "I cannot find a good sun suit pattern for my year-old baby. Can you tell me where I can locate such a pattern, how much material it will take, and what is the best material to use?"

We have just finished making sun suits which are cut all in one piece, fit like a charm, and are made of yellow terry-towelling. It's a McCall pattern — 1256 — and takes one yard of material for a one-year size.

SUMMER CAMP FOR GIRLS: "I have twin daughters, 12 years old. Can you recommend a good camp, run by some church organization, where I could send my daughters? What is the price?"

The United Church of Canada have an excellent camp at Sparrow Lake. The Junior Camp for girls from 10 to 12 and below Grade 8 in school operates from June 30 to July 15, and the fee for this period is $29.75. Actually, this camp is filled, but there is a waiting list, and the girls may have a chance of getting in. The teen-age camp for girls runs from July 15 to July 29, and is actually for girls from 13 to 16. However, if a girl is 12 years old and is in Grade 8 or higher, she is eligible for this camp. The fee here is $26.50.

For further information and application forms, call Mrs. Bennett at GLadstone 2741. She will be happy to be of assistance to you. I know your daughters would love Sparrow Lake.

GREAT MANHUNT SEEKS SLAYER OF TWO MEN

Bill to Amend Indian Act Will Be Withdrawn

Citizenship Minister Makes Announcement in House

Ottawa, June 22 (CP)—Citizenship Minister Harris announced in the Commons today that the government is withdrawing a bill amending the Indian Act from further consideration at this session of parliament.

He said the bill, put forward by the government as a "new deal" for Canada's 136,000 Indians, was being withdrawn to allow more time for study by various Indian bands. He assured the House it would be reintroduced early in the next session.

Three Main Problems

Mr. Harris said when took over administration of Indians Affairs three main problems stood out in regard to Indians — giving the Indian the vote, further financial assistance and revision of the Indian Act.

The first two points had been dealt with and he hoped the third revision of the act, might be carried out at this session. However, many representations had been received from various Indian bands regarding the bill, some urging it go forward and some that it be delayed until next year.

He hoped those Indians who favored immediate passage would agree with him that in view of the fact some bands had not yet had time to consider the bill, it would be best not to proceed with the measure now.

Loud desk-banging on all sides of the House accompanied the minister's announcement.

Made Overnight

The decision to withdraw the measure was made overnight. Yesterday opposition parties, attacking the measure, tried unsuccessfully to give it a six-month "hoist"— Parliamentary device for killing unwanted legislation.

In a late hour division, a motion by E. D. Fulton (PC—Kamloops) urging that the bill, up for second reading, be read "six months hence" was defeated 90 to 39.

Two Liberals—H. A. MacKenzie (Lambton-Kent) and William Mott (New Westminster)—joined the Progressive Conservative, C.C.F. and Social Credit parties in supporting Mr. Fulton's motion.

The bill, heralded by the government as a new deal for Canada's Indians, was the target of almost six hours of opposition criticism that it did not go far enough along the road to citizenship.

Many Indians, delegates to a convention of the North American Indian Brotherhood, sat in the galleries as the debate unfolded.

THIRTY PERSONS HURT, PLASTER FALLS ON PATRONS

Redwood City, Calif., June 22 (AP)—Thirty persons were hurt in an accident which dumped some 10 tons of ornamental plaster on movie-goers in the balcony of the Sequoia theatre here last night.

Fifteen required hospital treatment, but only one was in serious condition early today. The others needed only first aid.

Mrs. Vangie Case, 34, of Redwood City, was unconscious in Palo Alto hospital several hours after the accident. She either jumped or fell from the upstairs loge seats in front of the balcony. She was not in the area where the plaster fell.

Her husband, Dr. Robert Case, said her injuries consisted of a possible concussion, possible internal injuries and a broken finger.

None of the injuries, other than those of Mrs. Case, was considered serious.

The accident occurred about 11:45 p.m. when most patrons had left.

The crash of the ornamental plaster and wire lath reinforcing came suddenly with a "roar like thunder" and seemingly dropped in a single sheet, said police officer William Goldsmith, who was attending the show. A brief panic among patrons resulted.

TB Prevention Is Actuality Statistics Show

Halifax, June 22 —(CP)— A stepped-up program of tuberculosis control, based primarily on the family unit and aimed at early detection of more cases and prevention, was advocated by Dr. C. J. W. Beckwith, head of the Halifax Tuberculosis Hospital, here yesterday at a meeting of the Canadian Medical Association.

Progress being made in Tuberculosis control is illustrated by the drop in death rate from 200 per 100,000 in 1900 to a current rate of 30 per 100,000. Only 10 percent of the cases diagnosed at present are in far-advanced stage and about 50 percent are in minimal stage, Dr. Beckwith said.

"Prevention is an actuality as evidenced by a Progressive reduction in the number of positive reactors and because of this the day-to-day concept of prevention in practice becomes of urgent importance," he said.

"The practising physician has it within his power by using available services and his own good judgement to make a more vital contribution than ever to the benefit of public health through his endorsation and practice of the search for tuberculosis."

THE WEATHER

Toronto, June 22 (CP)—Synopsis: Skies are generally cloudy over Ontario this morning and showers or thundershowers are occurring near Lake Superior. The cool weather of the past day or so will end over most of the province this afternoon as warmer air spreads in from the midwestern United States.

Sunny and very warm weather is forecast for Southern Ontario on Friday while cloudy weather with showers is expected over northern sections of the province.

HARRISON MILLS STILL SORE SPOT IN FLOOD SCENE

Peak of Flood in Fraser River Valley Near End

Vancouver, June 22—(CP) — The major rivers of British Columbia, their offensive anticipated for two reasons, today could claim but a shadow of their 1948 victories.

Word from most areas was that the flood peak was near or past.

The mighty Fraser River was held back by a multi-million dollar chain of dikes. But the lesser Harrison River battled against stubborn flood fighters.

For the second straight night at Harrison Mills, 40 miles east of here, dike workers labored under the glow of searchlights to stem the Harrison River. The Harrison meets the fraser at Harrison Mills.

A major victory was claimed there yesterday after men and machines plugged a breach in the dike which had threatened to let water run over 1,500 acres of farmland, severing rail and highway links.

The situation again became tense last night when winds rose and exerted water pressure against the five-mile-long dike link. At some sections water was washed over the protective wall.

Can Hold Dikes

J. B. Carswell, chairman of the Fraser Valley Diking Commission, said yesterday: "if we can sweat it out for two more days, we can hold the dikes."

Seepage remained the big danger.

Early today the Fraser River level dropped at Mission, 45 miles east of Vancouver. At 4 p.m. PDT yesterday the official reading was 24.10 feet; at 10 p.m. it was 24.01 and at midnight, 23.98. Flood level is 20 feet.

"We're pretty sure we have the floods beaten," said flood commander W. L Hicks at Agassiz, 65 miles east of Vancouver and centre of the $30,000,000 floods of 1948.

North of Vancouver, the Skeena River was dropping. Danger was past.

The Columbia River continued a belated rise at Trail. Smelter City 250 miles east. Flood control officials said "a few" people were evacuated yesterday as water seeped into low-lying basements.

It was hoped that the Columbia was near its peak but flood officials said heavy rains could change the picture.

$200 TO EXCHANGE TEACHERS

Toronto, June 22 (CP)— The Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario announced today $200 each will be given 23 exchange teachers here from Britain, South Africa and Australia "to promote even more cordial relations with the women teachers of the Commonwealth countries."

Two Who Saw Bandit Kill Pursuers Were Almost Added to List of Victims

Simcoe, June 22 — (CP) —Two youthful farmers who saw a sten gun-wielding bank robber kill two pursuers yesterday were almost added to the list of victims.

"We're lucky we ran," said Ray Tressey, 18, who saw the shooting from a nearby field with Robert Nobles, also 18.

"I saw a car go into the ditch and started to run across the field towards it. Then I heard shots and saw the dust flying up in front of me.

"I ducked through the willows and ran towards the house. The last thing I saw was a man heading into the bush, jumping over the fence as he went."

Nobles was slightly ahead of Tressey as they ran towards the car.

"I almost ran past the dust spurts caused by the bullets before I saw them," he said. "I dropped flat on my face. I was plenty frightened. Then the shots stopped. I looked up and saw a man get out of the front car.

"He walked to the other car and opened up with his tommy-gun through the side windows. He fired a long burst and then jumped over the fence. I ran back to the house without going up to the car."

Archie Van Horen, a taxi driver in Langton, said he was sitting in his cab a few doors from the bank when Arthur Lierman and William Goadyn, the men killed, hopped into a car to follow the bandit.

"They were about half a mile ahead of me and I could see the bandit's car about a couple of hundred feet ahead of that. When they turned off at Frogmore I went up to the next concession and cut over, hoping to intercept the fleeing car at the Kinglake crossroad.

"Then I turned down the concession from Kinglake to Frogmore and saw the two cars on the road. I stopped and saw the bullet-riddled windshield and the two men slumped on top of each other in the front seat. I also saw the money in the getaway car.

"I didn't waste much time in starting up and getting away from there. I kept cruising until the police arrived but I never saw any sign of the gunman."

Bloodhound Pushes Through Tangled Swampland to Follow Scent of Armed Killer

Langton, Ont., June 22 (CP) — A Michigan youth with a keen young bloodhound today pushed through tangled swampland near here with a posse of police and armed citizens hunting a killer with a submachine gun.

Behind Cliff Fanning, 16, of Mount Clement, Mich., and his bloodhound, went provincial policemen with rifles and tommy-guns, farmers with shotguns and rifles and a handful of other district residents familiar with the terrain. The size of the posse was variously reported at 60 to 200 persons.

The hunt was concentrated this forenoon on the farm of Howard Holmes. But, all through this tobacco-growing district of southwestern Ontario police were questioning travellers and checking on tips they hoped would lead them to the man who yesterday stole $23,000 from a bank here and killed with a sten gun two men who pursued him.

Believes Killer Near

Some farmers suggested that the killer had fled from this district overnight but Fanning told them:

"The dog says he's still here and he must be getting pretty tired. I found his knee marks in some spots and the dog sniffed his way along the tracks under some logs where he had to crawl through on his belly."

The dog tugged his slightly-built master up and down the side of mosquito-infested Matthew Creek, which flows through a gully about 200 yards from where the men were riddled by machine-gun slugs.

The 2½-year-old dog raced here and there through clusters of poison ivy, rotting logs and fallen trees, splashed through the creek and plodded across a tobacco field.

"Some of his trouble is coming from drifting scent," Fanning explained to reporters. "With this wind, scent can drift a fair distance and take him a bit off course but he is a good dog."

A provincial policeman watching boy and dog plunge down a steep hillside and into thick underbrowth along the creekside, exclaimed:

"Look at that kid. He's poking his nose through all that stuff, not knowing whether he'll fall over a man with a tommy-gun! It doesn't seem to bother him at all."

U.S. Proposes U.N. Establish Authority to Control Ordinary Arms and Armed Forces

Lake Success, N. Y., June 22 — (AP) — The United States asked the United Nations today to set up an International Authority to check on the reduction and regulation of ordinary arms and armed forces.

The proposal has been circulated among delegates to the U. N. Commission for Conventional armaments.

Conventional arms are rifles, artillery, naval and aircraft and almost all other weapons except the atom bomb and weapons of mass destruction.

The U. S. document proposes that a conventional arms administration should be made up of countries represented in the U.N. Security Council. It would receive information on arms from each country, check on the information, and report violations of the arms code as they are found.

The administration would operate on simple majority rule, without any veto power, but its decisions would have to be passed on by the Security Council, in which the five big powers and permanent members have a veto.

The Arms Commission is one of the 30 U. N. organizations hit by the Soviet walkout - strike over refusal to unseat Nationalist China and admit the Chinese communists.

The Russians disagreed with the western powers, however, on how to cut armaments and armed forces even before they walked out. The cold war has stymied the commission since its start in 1947.

Says Two Youths Threatened Him In Hospital

Brampton, June 22 — (CP) — A crippled youth who was stripped and covered from head to foot with shoe polish then beaten, said in court yesterday that two of his assailants entered the hospital where he lay recovering and threatened to "get him" if charges were laid against them.

Donald Manderson, 19, partially paralyzed, told of being picked up by a gang of young men in Streetsville, June 4, and taken to a secluded lane where he was undressed, covered with polish, whipped with branches from a tree and punched.

He said that Norman and Harold Leslie, who are charged with assault along with Murray Glover saw him in hospital and said a gang would be waiting when he got out if he pressed charges against them.

Manderson said the gang accused him of stealing money from them. A charge of theft of the money against Manderson was withdrawn as the case opened. The trial will resume next Wednesday.

GIRL OF 14 RECAPTURED

Vancouver, June 22 (CP)— A 14-year-old girl, the youngest person in British Columbia court history to be convicted of narcotics possession, was recaptured yesterday at nearby Steveston, B.C.

She and two other girls fled Sunday from the Girls Industrial School here, where she is serving an indeterminate sentence. The others, 15 and 13, are still at large.

Youth Wounded, Two Captured By Windsor Police

Windsor, June 22 (CP)— One Windsor youth was shot and seriously wounded and two others were captured early today when police surprised them during an attempt to rob a grocery store owned by Lawrence Tetley.

Shot in the arm and side as he attempted to escape was Clayton Rye, 21.

Hospital officials listed his condition as "serious" and an operation to remove the bullets was performed shortly after 5 am.

Captured were Gordon Kerr, 18, and Donald Brown, 18.

The store owner notified police when the burglar alarm sounded and a police cruiser with constables Sidney Stuart and Robert McGee sped to the scene.

Canada is Land Of Opportunity

Windsor, June 22 (CP) —Canada was described as a "land of opportunity with vast undeveloped natural resources in oil, ore and farm land," in an address last night by John L. Stuart, president of the Windsor Chamber of Commerce.

Speaking to the Windsor Lions Club on his recent trip to England and Europe, Mr. Stuart said Canada needed people from the United Kingdom and the United States for a type of financial expansion which Canadian interests cannot supply.

TWO FIREMEN REPORTED KILLED IN RAIL ACCIDENT

Two Trains Collide West of Port Arthur

Winnipeg, June 22 — (CP) — Two Canadian National Railways firemen were believed killed today in a head-on collision of two trains near Abiwin, Ont., about 135 miles west of Port Arthur.

Rail officials said Fireman J. C. Conrad and Fireman R. J. Young of Port Arthur were fatally injured. A third man — engineer H. M. Hunnycutt of Port Arthur, suffered a broken arm.

Hunnycutt was the engineer on an eastbound mixed train travelling from Atikokan to Port Arthur. Conrad was on the same train.

Young fired a westbound extra freight.

No further details were available.

Attlee Calls For Showdown On Schuman Plan

London, June 22 — (CP) — Prime Minister Attlee today called on parliament for a vote on confidence in his Schuman plan policy.

Attlee and five of his ministers placed before the house of commons a motion asking unqualified support of the government's decision to remain out of the six-country talks in Paris on pooling western Europe's coal and steel industries.

The motion was signed by Attlee, Herbert Morrison, the deputy prime minister, Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, Philip Noel Baker, Minister of Fuel and Power, and George Strauss, Minister of Supply.

The motion is in the form of an amendment to a motion submitted two days ago by conservative leader Winston Churchill and liberal chief Clement Davies.

Cabinet ministers decided the government should move an amendment to the Conservative-Liberal motion calling for participation in the six-power talks on the Shuman Plan now proceeding in Paris. The amendment will ask parliamentary approval of the way the government has handled the situation.

Defeat of the government on such an issue would almost certainly mean its downfall—and a new election — but the cabinet, assured yesterday of the almost complete backing of the parliamentary Labor party, is confident of victory.

Cabinet circles think a number of Conservatives, uneasy about merging British steel and coal resources with those of Europe, will refrain from voting for the combined Conservative-Liberal motion.

SUDDENLY REGAINS SIGHT

Hull, Yorkshire, England, June 22 — (Reuters) — Told by doctors he would never see again, Herbert Howlett, 39, said today he had regained his sight suddenly Tuesday night—less than 48 hours after being released from prison because he was blind.

Howlett had served about half of a five-year prison sentence.

Personality of Car Drivers Shown In Distinct Relation to Accident Total

Halifax, June 22 — (CP) — There is a distinct connection between the personality of a car driver and the number of accidents he has, Dr. G. E. Hobbs of London, Ont., told the Canadian Medical Association today.

Studies showed that high-accident group individuals were "in revolt against authority."

One group of 96 drivers with records of four or more accidents was compared with 100 drivers in a similar age control group.

The histories of individuals in each group were checked with social agencies such as the courts, credit bureaux, and family welfare offices.

Two-thirds of the high-accident people were known to these agencies, said Dr. Hobbs, as compared with nine per cent of the control group. Among control individuals none had more than one contact with the social agents, while among the high-accident group, a large majority had two or more contacts.

Members of the high-accident group usually left home early. Their school days were marked by lying, stealing and truancy. As adults they had few children and a high divorce rate.

Lone Bandit Flees To Bush After Holding up Bank

Pursuers Killed During Chase Near St. Thomas

Langton, Ont., June 22 — (CP) — Police armed with rifles and tear gas and aided by a bloodhound and walkie-talkies combed through a two-square-mile stretch of rocky, scrub bushland today hunting a bandit who killed two pursuers while fleeing after a bank holdup yesterday.

Farmers and residents of this district, prepared to shoot to kill if necessary, reinforced about 100 police in what has become one of Ontario's greatest manhunts.

Spearheading the search was a bloodhound brought from Mount Clemens, Mich., with his master, 16-year-old Cliff Fanning The bloodhound sniffed through the bush throughout the night after getting a scent from the abandoned getaway car. Young Fanning was confident early today that the killer was still in the bush.

Aircraft Used

Aircraft circled overhead as the manhunt grew in intensity. Roadblocks were set up in a broad half-circle around the area and cruisers roamed rural roads. Motorists were warned by radio not to pick up hitchhikers anywhere in the Lake Erie area.

The killer was believed to have the Sten gun with which he shot down Lierman and Goddyn and police believed he would not hesitate to kill again.

Painstakingly they searched for a cold-blooded killer who fired at least 27 bullets from a Sten gun into a car, killing Arthur Lierman and William Goddyn. The two men had chased the bandit after he held up the Imperial Bank yesterday afternoon, making off with $23,000. The money was left in the getaway car as the bandit fled into the thick bush after the vehicle careened into a ditch.

Bad Territory

"It's bad territory in which to find a man," said one provincial police constable. "The Kinglake district is rocky, scrub brush country with plenty of cover."

At 1:45 the search was still going on amid light rain. Police said they believed the killer still was hiding in the district, since there were no reports of cars stolen overnight and all district roads are being closely watched for hitch-hikers.

The bush in which the murderer vanished is 27 miles east of St. Thomas a few miles north of Lake Erie. It is from two to three miles long in places and about a mile deep.

During the night, bloodhounds led police to a little rural schoolhouse near the scene of the killing but the posse found no trace of the bandit. Another lead that proved fruitless was a report by a United States tourist that a lone man had been walking along highway 3, the Courtland-Tillsonburg link, but the man was found to be a district resident.

Roads were sealed and police cruisers roamed the rural roads, drawing a tight ring around the area where the killer was believed to have hidden, some six miles north of Lake Erie. Police broadcast warnings to motorists not to pick up hitch hikers in the Lake Erie area.

FLEES FROM SCENE—Page 10

HOUSE SHORTAGE IN GREAT BRITAIN WORST IN YEARS

London, June 22—(CP)— Britain's housing shortage is so bad that authorities have been instructed not to destroy existing properties unless they are dangerous.

Dr. Cyril Garbett, Archbishop of York, considers that never in the last 100 years has the country had such great areas of slums and such overcrowding.

These points emerged last night from key speeches in a House of Lords debate on housing. Veteran reporters described the debate as among the most depressing they have ever covered.

Fron late afternoon until an hour before midnight, the Peers argued the problem in an atmosphere of defeatism which was typified in a statement by Lord Morrison, under-secretary for the works industry:

"There is not a single member of this house who could put his hand on his heart and say that he could solve this problem within the lifetime of the youngest member present."

The youngest Peer present was Lord Montagu of Beaulieu, who is 23.

Paymaster Lord Macdonald, last Governor of Newfoundland, said that he could offer little encouragement about slum clearance. Action could not be taken if it would prejudice the building of new houses.

Lord Balfour of Burleigh said the size of London's problem was equal to its greatness in every respect.

After a generation in the streets children became "little townies and, I think, lost souls. London is a great octopus which has us in her grip, and she will not easily relax."

Sam T. McGuire Honored By Staff of T. Eaton Company

Tuesday evening a dinner party was held in Christ Church Parish Hall in honor of Mr. Sam T. McGuire, who is retiring after 41 years of business service in drygoods merchandise, part of which was spent with the former Ritchie Company, and the remainder with the T. Eaton Company, of this city. Mr. McGuire is now a member of the Eaton Retirement Annuity Plan, in consideration of his years of faithful service.

The Parish Hall was tastefully decorated for the occasion with banners of the Sunshine Club displayed at various positions on the walls, and pillars, while on the stage, placards with the inscription, "Life of Sammy", and Sunshine Crests were placed at strategic points and around the room were streamers of red and blue.

The dinner table, in the form of a horse-shoe, was graced with bouquets of summer flowers, including roses, pansies and peonies, interspersed with tall pink candles.

Mr. Harold Amos, assistant manager of the T. Eaton store, was chairman, and Mr. Douglas Tufford, a staff member, presided as master of ceremonies over an enjoyable and hilarious program which consisted of songs by Miss Marilyn Eggleton, who pleasingly rendered "Lilac Time", and "Pretty Girl is Like a Melody."

Following the community singsong, Mr. A. M. Francis gave a brief address of appreciation to Mr. McGuire, and presented him with three feather light aluminum lawn chairs, for which Mr. McGuire voiced his sincere thanks for their great kindness. Mrs. McGuire was also presented with a beautiful bouquet of red roses by Mr. William Murdock on behalf of the assembly.

With the singing of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow", the remainder of the evening was spent in novelty dancing and mirth provoking, musical selections provided by the Peach Fuzz quartet of Ron Buskard, Bill Barrett Leo Buckley and Paul Delaney, who sang a special song, dedicated to Mr. McGuire.

Three girls costumed like the gay 90's, Miss Betty Anderson, Miss Barbara Armstrong and Miss June Masson, also rendered one in his honor, followed by the Teco quintet, composed of Doug Tucker, Mike Tomaso, Mr. H. Amos, George Ward and William Murdock, who rendered a group of pleasing old time songs.

Dancing to the strains of the Etonia orchestra with its various instruments and gay outfits in cowboy style, brought a memorable event to a close.

Some Impressions a Stranger Might Receive on Visit to City

A stranger in Belleville sees and hears a lot of things to wonder about. A walk down the main street is enough to start a curious mind working on where all the pigeons come from that roost on the house just west of Upper Bridge, on the north shore of the river.

The layout of the city itself is encouragement for speculation. There are the dinky little one-way streets obviously designed for the horse and buggy days, and a myriad of alleys running down to the river from behind main street stores. And at night, the peace of the city is typified by a father and son washing the new family car on the shore. The car is backed into the water, and the rubber boots come out.

Possibly one of the most striking things about the city is the way people pronounce its name. Many say "Belleville" in a way that reminds one of the South Seas, because the "Belle" part of the word is pronounced the same as the "Bal" in "Bali". Ask people about that, and they look at you in a strange way. "Who says Balville?" they say. "Not me."

And if Oshawa and Belleville were to fight it out on the basis of trains running down the middle of city streets, Oshawa would win out. While the Motor City has freights moving down its main street at all hours of the day, snarling traffic by the minute, Belleville can only lay claim to the odd freight puffing down Pinnacle Street on the city branch line.

Along the street, there are the displaced pieces of curbstone in the road to guard the city's fire hydrants. They seem simple prevention when the stranger remembers how motorists slip in to park in front of hydrants in other cities.

And above all, the peace and quiet of the city is the biggest and best thing. Nobody pushes, nobody presses, and life still goes on though at a faster tempo much as it must have done a long time ago, when there were no fast cars, no huge transports booming through the middle of the city, no noon whistles, no juke boxes and no city.

Purchases by American Buyers Deplete Stocks of Canadian Lumber

Prediction that by the end of the year lumber supplies will be practically non-existent with next year's requirements to be dependent upon the coming winter's cut, was made today by a well-known lumber merchant.

Depletion of the Canadian lumber stock as the result of a terrific demand for lumber in the United States with American buyers coming to Canada and paying fancy prices in British Columbia and in the Ontario northland was given as the reason for the scarcity.

A representative of the Houston Lumber Company stated today that American buyers were paying as much as $20 more per thousand than the prevailing price.

In fact wholesale prices had risen so sharply that the local firm said they were currently selling lumber for less than it would take to replace stocks.

It was stated that supplies of Western lumber had been completely cut off due to shipments to the United States, while the local source of supply was also affected by the higher prices offered from across the border. In selling to American buyers suppliers also had the advantage of the 10 percent premium on American funds.

A 60 percent upsurge in residential building in the United States, together with a 30 percent increase in Canadian building has been responsible for the scarcity which had developed within the past month.

The local dealer would not hazard a guess as to the possible price increase for lumber stating that this would be decided at an emergency meeting of the Ontario Retail Lumber Dealers' Association called for Monday. Builders in Toronto and Windsor said that the cost of houses in the fall will jump about 10 percent as result of the lumber price increase.

Miss Mary Duff Heads Wellington Unit of FWTAO

The June meeting of the Wellington unit of the Federation of Women Teachers of Ontario was held at Victoria school where they were the guests of Mrs. D. Redner.

During the business period the teachers agreed to contribute $10 to the cancer research fund. Miss Mary Huff is to be a delegate to the F.W.T.A.O. convention in Toronto in August. The report of the nominating committee was also given.

Mrs. Redner presented a program, the highlight of which was a talk and a moving picture on a "Holiday in Bermuda." It was given by Mr. Builder, of Trenton, who spent a few years in Bermuda. Mrs. Vos from Holland sang two lovely solos and a nautical duet by two of the school's boys was greatly enjoyed.

Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Redner and her committee. Miss C. Tait moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Redner for a very enjoyable evening.

The report of the nominating committee and list of officers for 1950-51, is as follows:

President— Miss Mary Huff; vice-president—Mrs. Walt; secretary treasurer—Miss Catharine Tait; Pianist, Miss Lois Doxsee; Finance, Mrs. E. McFaul; Research, Miss I. Strawberry Crop Not as Heavy As Anticipated

Despite a heavy blossoming period and early indications of a plentiful crop, the current strawberry crop is not living up to expectations according to farmers attending the local produce market today.

Although there was a fairly large number of farmers offering berries the quantity each offered was small and well before noon practically all had been bought up. Price asked generally was 35 cents per box or three boxes for a dollar, while a few farmers with lower quality berries asked 30 cents per box.

Lack of rain and sun was given as the main reason for the small quantity of berries picked. One farmer said he expected 300 boxes on Wednesday but only 100 boxes were picked. And the berries picked were indicative of an advanced season rather than one but one week old.

Lack of moisture is also expected to reduce the pea crop, according to the weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, while the apple set has been much lighter than last year with prospects of but a light crop. The cherry crop should be about average, it is stated.

White Shrine Of Jerusalem Holds June Tea

The home of Mrs. Arthur Naylor, Bleecker Avenue, was most attractively adorned with spring flowers and peonies for the June tea held yesterday afternoon under the auspices of Bethlehem Shrine No. 11, White Shrine of Jerusalem when many guests and friends assembled to enjoy a most pleasant afternoon.

Receiving at the door was the hostess, Mrs. Arthur Naylor, the Worthy High Priestess, Mrs. H. Reed, and the wife of the Watchman of Shepherds, Mrs. L. Grey.

The tea table with its pretty lace cloth, was centered with a misty bouquet of peony buds and green leaves flanked with matching green candles in silver candelabra, and here and there, the dainty sandwich plates with their centres of roses and orange blossoms.

Mrs. D. L. Storey invited the guests to the tea room, while those who presided at the silver services included Mrs. J. McEwan, Mrs. Fleming, Mrs. S. Cherrie, Mrs. G. Adams, Mrs. C. Barragar, Mrs. R. Anderson. Those who served, were Mrs. W. Ironside, Mrs. Archard, Mrs. McFaul, Mrs. I. Slavin, Mrs. G. Patrick, Mrs. W. Ashby and Mrs. J. Darvell.

Replenishing the oft emptied plates of flower-like sandwiches and minute cakes, were the faithful servers, Mrs. H. Elvidge, Mrs. V. Lough, Mrs. W. Broad, Mrs. W. Follwell and Mrs. A. McGlashon, while those who assisted in general included Mrs. A. Briens, Mrs E. Murphy and Mrs. F. Westover.

A lovely pale-pink iced cake upon a rose-decorated plate, was won by Mrs. W. Harrison, and donated by Mrs. L. Austin, who also sold tickets for it.

The home cooking table was most bountifully supplied with all manner of delectable pies, cakes, cookies, tarts and little cakes. In charge of this were Mrs H. Stevens, Mrs. J. Armstrong and Mrs. P. Boulton.

The candy table with its little cup containers and boxes of fudge, creams, chocolates was convened by Mrs. W. Adams, while Mrs. V. Harkins and Mrs. E. Stewart had charge of the greeting cards.

The treasurers for the afternoon were Mrs. J. Lazenby and Mrs. B. Moorman, and the general conveners, Mrs. R. Sargent and Mrs. E. Stewart.

A charming tea from start to finish with as many as 20 being served at one time, and many more on the waiting list.

Gross Indecency Brings Jail Term Of 18 Months

Pleading guilty to two charges of gross indecency involving two young boys, Garnet Bond, 20, formerly of the RCAF at Trenton, today in magistrate's court was sentenced by Magistrate T. Y. Wills to 18 months definite and six months indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory.

A concurrent sentence of the same period was given on the second charge.

The charges against Bond, who comes from Nova Scotia, were laid by provincial police as result of offences which took place late in May. J. D. O'Flynn, local solicitor, appeared in behalf of the accused.

Failure of the Crown to prove that the provincial police brake testing machine was in proper working order resulted in the dismissal of a charge again Benson French of operating a motor vehicle with inadequate brakes.

Police said they had tested French's emergency brake and found it failed to meet with specifications set by the Highways Department. However, no evidence was produced to show the brake testing machine had been checked for accuracy and the charge was dismissed.

Department regulations call for an emergency brake to stop an auto in 60 feet at 20 miles per hour.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 22 — (CP) — Prices were carried slightly higher on the Toronto stock exchange today following a strong upsurge in the previous session. Profit-taking appeared in mid-session and there was some reducing of advances by market leaders.

Volume for the first three hours was 2,449,000 shares.

Leading industrials jumped strongly ahead at the opening in what appeared to be a continuation of yesterday's advances into new high price ground. Profit-taking increased on signs of the upturn and losses began to appear in mid-session. However, a handful of key stocks managed to hold their gains and the list climbed further ahead.

In base metals Ascot Corp., a feature of recent markets that has been sliding for two days as traders realized profits, resumed its advance today with a small gain. United Keno Hill also attracted considerable attention.

Golds highlighted yesterday's market with a sudden upsurge following several weeks of decline. Junior producers opened higher but sagged as the session progressed.

Western oils continued a slow advance.

SHOCKING HIGHWAY TOLL

The month of May was a black one as far as the record of motor fatalities goes. It reached a new high of 67 the highest for any month in the motoring history of the Province. It is something to be deeply regretted. The figures should not fail to impress everyone who has occasion to drive or ride or walk on the highways, roads and streets of the Province. Last year the same month showed a downward trend with 44 the total of casualties.

The Highways Minister the Hon. Geo. H. Doucett commenting on the loss of life referred to drunken drivers, saying that the government will "get tough" with them. Rising casualties he indicated would mean the stiffening of penalties for drunk driving.

The increase should impress itself on the minds of every person, drivers, passengers and pedestrians.

Every user of the roads and highways should take these tragic facts to heart. They point a lesson which calls for never-failing vigilance on the part of every person, driver or pedestrian.

Sixty-seven persons would make a fair-sized community or settlement, one that would exert an influence on a wide neighborhood.

EARLY HISTORY UNCOVERED

One unexpected result of all the damage done in Great Britain by German bombs during the war is that it has enabled archaeologists to uncover a good deal more of Britain's early history. One of the places where they have been able to explore ground that had been built over for centuries before the bombs came is the famous cathedral city of Canterbury. Nine acres of the centre of that city suffered very bad damage and has now to be rebuilt.

Hundreds of years before the Romans were in Britain, Canterbury had been occupied by a Celtic tribe and, before that even, in the Iron Age, people had settled there. It has been lived in continuosly for many more than 2,000 years. During the last five years thousands of coins and pots and brooches and pins have been uncovered, and recently the most remarkable find of all has turned up. It is the remains of a Saxon settlement as early as the middle of the fifth century A.D., and the evidence seems to show that the Saxons may have been using Roman coins and living in a Romanized civilization. The discovery is exciting, because up to now almost nothing has been known of this period of history, between the end of the Roman occupation and the beginning of the Saxon conquest.

Few classes of people can be as busy as archaeologists are in many parts of the world where there is probability of finding new data on the manner of life of those who lived many hundreds of years ago. In the Near East in and around the country where stood the mighty Babylon of old excavation and exploration have been intense with the result that the present age knows more of the far-distant past in that part of the earth than any generation knew except the people themselves who lived so long ago. In and around the Greek islands of the East Mediterranean there have been amazing finds which have greatly widened modern knowledge of the manner of life and attainments of the people who until a few generations ago had not been heard of or were known only in a hazy manner.

All this new knowledge is extending interest, for the new facts go back farther than the ancient historical accounts.

British discoveries have naturally special interest for the English-speaking peoples for the far distant past has been dim. In recent years however new facts have come to light. Descendants of the British tribes who founded what is modern England take an interest in the new history that may be written on the new knowledge respecting the early settlement of the islands.

BASEBALL, FOOTBALL AND HOCKEY

Boys in Europe and Asia should be taught baseball, football and hockey. That would be far better than putting the youngsters in uniforms and having them marching the streets like imitation soldiers.

It is pitiful to think of little Russian lads being dragooned into squads and drilled for troops. The same goes in Japan. And, in the Soviet-dominated parts of Europe the boys are given military training.

In Great Britain, the United States and Canada, the boys play games. They don't want to be soldiers, because they think the world should live at peace. Yet, if necessary these boys can become fighting men without equal.

It would be so much better if they could only get boys in Europe to play games, instead of playing soldier.—W. L. Clark in Windsor Star.

So act that your principle of action might safely be made a law for the whole world. — Kant.

THOSE LIBERTY BELLS

The song of freedom from its tongue
Rang out when first the bell was rung,
And now its replica again
Sings nation-wide the glad refrain.

Today in every state is heard
The tone which our forefathers stirred,
Singing for all exultantly
The glorious song of liberty.

I took the purple rope in hand
With all the strength at my command,
And, as the old bell-ringer, tried
To crack the new bell's precious side.

Old man, thought I, who years ago
Dealt freedom's bell its final blow,
I wish this hour I could repeat
Your ne'er to be forgotten feat.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE ESSENTIALS

We clutter up our lives, I fear, with too many non-essentials. Many a college graduate enters practical life with a great deal of accumulated knowledge, but with few of the essentials on which success in life is founded. Willingness to work at anything, regardless of compensation, for example, just to gain experience.

A carpenter needs at least three tools—a saw, hammer, and plane. Much can be done with these but as he progresses he needs any number of associated tools to make him an outstanding performer, but he must be an expert with those three tools.

In his interesting book "Lay Morals" Stevenson has this to say: "Benjamin Franklin went through life an altered man because he once paid too dearly for a penny whistle. My concern springs usually from a deeper source, to wit, from having bought a whistle when I did not want one." Most of us can appreciate that statement. We are forever buying, or aquiring, many a thing that does us no good, or which only serves to slow our progress or growth.

Ideas are among the greatest of essentials for any one's success in life, but they are useless if they are not put to test and to work. Among the essentials that go to make a great athlete are patience, control and courage. And these are as essential for any task in life. Keeping ones' temper always under control is an essential that pays big dividends all through life.

One of the greatest essentials for success at any endeavor it to want to succeed. With initiative big things can be accomplished. Mistakes are common to us all, but to learn from each one enables us to make fewer and fewer ones as we go along.

To have an objective in life, and to pursue it under all circumstances, with one increasing purpose, is an essential that is sure to bring it reward, sooner or later. Another valuable essential is to early form a personal philosophy —one of patience, faith, tolerance, and leisure for maturing, as well as a belief in one's self, and the over-all goodness of God.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

OBSCURITY BROUGHT FAME

William Law lived in England the latter part of the seventeenth century and for about two thirds of the eighteenth. He is the author of one of the most widely read devotional books ever written—"A Serious Call to a Devout and Holy Life." Thousands of copies are still sold every year in England and America.

Law prepared himself to be a minister in the Church of England, but because he felt that George I was not the legitimate successor to the throne of Great Britain, he would not take an oath of allegiance to him and therefore could not serve as a minister in the state church. Just as Sir Thomas More had bowed his neck to the block almost two hundred years before rather than acknowledge the ecclestiastic claims of Henry VIII, so Law refused to swear the oath of allegiance to a king who had been put on the throne ahead of the prince whom Law considered the legitimate heir, Bonnie Prince Charlie, son of James II.

Law went into obscurity and poverty after he had made his decision. But looking back now we can see that as a minister of a large congregation of his day he would undoubtedly have been forgotten. Poverty-stricken, outcast William Law set himself to writing and among other things produced "A Serious Call."

The lesson seems to be that we obey our conscience, we can leave the future and all its events in the hands of God.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

In the United States, the chief promotors and propagandists of outdoor sports are the manufacturers of guns, ammunition, fishing tackle, engines, boats and all the countless gadgets of camping and touring.

In Canada, the chief promoters of outdoor life are the tourist resorts, the provincial and federal tourist bureaus, the railroads and hotels.

In the United States, merchandize is what they are selling. In Canada, it is accommodation. It is true a few gasoline companies and breweries in Canada are boosting the out of doors in the interests of their wares. But the basic distinction between the motive forces in the exploitation of the out of doors in the two countries is clear. They are as different as could be. And they have nothing at all in common.

The sporting goods and tourist industry in the United States is capitalized at hundreds of millions, perhaps a billion or two, of dollars. To thrive, this abounding industry must continue to sell ever greater quantities of the goods devoted to the reduction of the fish, game and other wild life of the continent.

The tourist accommodation industry of Canada is now capitalized at many millions, perhaps some hundreds of millions, of dollars. To thrive it must remain attractive to an ever-increasing mutitude of people interested in the out of doors. And the core of its attractions is the sense of wilderness imparted by reasonably abundant fish, game, wild life and unspoiled forest.

Thus we have, before our very eyes, two mighty dollar powers at war with each other. It is true the people involved do not yet realize it is war. But money makes ruthless war, regardless of the people involved. And the money in the gun-ammunition-tackle business can have no other goal but the destruction of fish and game; while the money in the accommodation industry must, at all costs, preserve its fish and game. If that is not war, what is?

Argument Winner Will Have Won Major Victory

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The cold war between the western democracies and Russia develops some extraordinary and contradictory situations.

The current fight over the Soviet demand that the Chinese Nationalist delegation to the United Nations be replaced by the Chinese communists is part and parcel of the cold war. The winner of the argument will have achieved a major victory.

However, the British government — one of those most interested in seeing the west win the cold war — is reported preparing to take an active part in the campaign to oust the Nationalist Chinese and seat the reds. London as far back as January severed relations with her wartime ally. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, and recognized the reds in Peiping.

These facts are not cited in the way of criticism, but as presenting a picture of fighting fire with one hand and feeding it with the other. This attitude naturally is based on the contention that the communists are the actual rulers of the Chinese mainland and will be universally recognized in that role eventually.

It is true that the Soviet-supported Chinese communists have conquered the mainland militarily. Whether they also are the "rulers" is in question.

U. K. Supports Red China

Britain already has announced that she will support red China for membership in the Security Council. Seven of the 11 votes of the council are needed to seat the communists but thus far only three — Russia, India and Yugoslavia — have supported the Peiping membership bid.

The United States has announced that it won't vote for red China but will not try to veto a majority decision. France, under attack by the communists in French Indo-China, is withholding support.

The slender backing thus far for the proposal to seat the reds has given rise to the assertion in some diplomatic quarters at Lake Success that the U. N. is drifting into "Hooverization."

That is to say, the peace organization is heading towards a split into two separate sections — the democracies in one and the communists in the other. This characterization is inspired by the speech of former U. S. President Herbert Hoover in New York April 27 when he called for scrapping the present U. N. and the creation of a new one with the communist countries shut out.

Niagra Falls Man Loses Fight To Get Property

Toronto, June 22 (CP) —David B. Bawtinheimer lost another round Wednesday in his bid to get back land which would give him virtual control of one end of the Rainbow Bridge at Niagara Falls.

The Niagara Falls, Ont., business man once owned a half acre which now is part of the Rainbow Bridge plaza. The Ontario government expropriated it in 1940; in January 1947, the Ontario municipal board awarded Bawtinheimer $23,181 as compensation.

Later he brought an Ontario Supreme Court action for repossession of the land, where he formerly owned a group of stores and a parking lot. It was dismissed.

His appeal against that decision was dismissed today by the Ontario Court of Appeal. It ruled that the Minister of Highways "acted in good faith" in expropriating the property.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis, or treatment will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letter should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address: Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

HEALTH EXAMINATION NOT A "CHECK-UP"

In your column recently you advised a physical examination each year, also a dental examination. I have been wondering how often one should have one's eyes examined. Some say once every ten years, others every five years. (M. W. M.)

The doctors here send patients into the hospital for complete physical check-ups. Do you think it can be done satisfactory in local hospitals or is a place like (the best advertised clinic) preferable? Also, please tell me what a complete check-up should include and about how much it should cost. (R. J. P.)

Personally, I wouldn't give a nickle or my time for an eye examination at any time unless I had eye trouble or reason to think I might need glasses.

It must make the local doctors tired when you smart shoppers go traipsing off to the better advertized "clinic" for your "checkups."

People are funny that way. The farther they go from home on shopping expeditions the more they are willing to pay for all the Rube Goldberg tests the well known "clinic" sells 'em. If the local doctors find this or that laboratory test advisable these funny people submit to it grudgingly and suspect the doctors of "running up a bill." Far away from home at the "clinic" they get a ..thrill out of any and all the machinery the "clinic" racketeers please to put them through and pay for it proudly—it will be something to talk about for years, especially when or if some "ordinary" doctor has the temerity to make his own diagnosis.

Evidently I failed to emphasize, or perhaps my article was too long to print, the importance of sticking to your own doctor for your periodic health examinations, for the records of your previous examinations are valuable for comparison with your present condition. You may say, if you are fond of travel, that they can keep records at the "clinic" too. Yes, maybe. And some bright clerk or attendant there may even remember you. But even that would hardly make it worth the money. Your case would have to be unique indeed to make any lasting impression on the mind of any of the medical employees of the "clinic." To them you are just customer M-C-2162-W. To the doctor at home you are a person.

In any periodic health examination, that is, a voluntary visit to the physician for examination at certain intervals after forty, one of the essentials I mentioned in the article titled Consult Your Physician When You Are Well is inspection of the eyeground or interior of eyeball for early cardiovascular degeneration. The physician sees the minute arteries in the retina or sensitive film in the back of the eye, and the process of arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries) is evident in these arterioles long before any general manifestations develop. The physician uses an ophthalmoscope to look into the eye, but any general practitioner uses this instrument just as he uses stethoscope.

Theoretically or ideally it might be an excellent rule of health that every one undergo a general physical examination each year. Practically it seems neither necessary nor feasible, as we shall explain in talks to follow. .

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Elaborate Harness

I have asked several times whether you approve of women wearing corsets and elaborate foundations, but have never seen the subject mentioned. (Mrs. H. A. S., Jr.)

Answer—No.

Polio Is Infantile Paralysis

Please explain what, if any, difference there is between polio and infantile paralysis. (. H.)

Answer—They are the same—acute anterior poliomyelitis, which means acute inflammation of the forward columns or horns of gray matter (pathways of motor nerves) in the spinal cord. Polios is Greek for gray. As every one knows, nearly as many youths and adults have epidemic poliomyelitis as infants and young children.

Vitamin Bunkem

Difference of opinion as to the value of mineral concentrated vitamins compared with those from vegetable sources. (C.W.A.)

Answer—You may search me. I don't even know what "mineral concentrated" means.

Liquor to Blame For Crackups Says Magistrate

Kitchener, June 22—(CP)—Liquor, not the "other" man or woman, is to blame for most family crackups in Kitchener and Waterloo.

Magistrate H. R. Polson told the North Waterloo Medical Association annual meeting Wednesday night that seven of 10 family trouble cases in the twin cities can be traced to drink. Another man or woman is responsible only for 10 per cent.

"To my mind the old time bar room was the best temperance legislation we ever had in this province," he said. "There were no seats. If a man went on a binge you knew you could usually find him in one of the eight or 10 licensed hotels. Now he might be in any one of 200 places."

Five Schools Participate In Track and Field Meet Staged in Bain Memorial Park

Trenton—(Special)— Even the weatherman had a hand in the success of yesterday's track and field meet at Bain Memorial Park in which over 2,000 Trenton school children took part when he failed to deliver his promised scattered showers and substituted bright sunshine.

Five elementary schools participated in the meet: College Stree, Dufferin, North Trenton and Breadner Public Schools and also St. Peter's Separate School. The 27 sporting events on the program included high jumps, shot put, running and relay races and broad jumps, with a potato sack race for the men teachers and a running race for the lady teachers thrown in for good measure.

Feature event of the day, as far as the younger fry were concerned was the treasure hunt for Grades one, two and three. No sooner had the loudspeaker announced that the hunt was about to begin than Recreation Director Jack Dean who was in charge of the day's events, was surrounded by dozens of excited kiddies who were too eager to be off on the search to listen to Mr. Dean's instructions.

Each Given Map

Those tracking down the treasure were given a map telling them where to go and find another map which in turn directed them to another hidden cache of maps. They were seven of these chart depots and Jack Dean was soon besieged with toddlers asking if the treasure was "a button", or "another piece of paper."

One unfortunate drew a blank map but quickly snatched another. One little lad standing aloof from the milling mob of youngsters reaching for the magic maps like young robins after worms said skeptically, "Aw they've already found it. It's an old box down by the shore." He was right about the location but to claim the treasure the kiddies had to play fair and follow instructions.

A Game Bunch

The youngsters were a game bunch though and most of the starters were still in the hunt when Glen Farrell found the mother lode, a sea sled donated by the Trenton Recreation Commission.

The judges' stand did double duty as a lost and found department and bureau of missing persons, for more than one young adventurer was brought to the stand crying lustily after having lost his mother or teacher in the crowd. The announcer could hardly find time to keep up with the events as he was forced to give a running commentary on lost articles — "a little black purse has been lost with 25 cents in it," or Mary Jones has lost her red sweater," however before the day was over, most of the lost articles had found their way back to their owners.

Several special buses were available to help people get to and from the park and since it was Wednesday, many of the parents were able to attend in the afternoon.

Finals in Afternoon

The day started off with eliminations in the various events beginning at 10 a.m. and the finals took place in the afternoon starting at 2 p.m. From Grade 1 to Grade 8, there was at least one race for every boy and girl, and even the teachers managed to get into the act. E. H. Bonter of Breadner School won the men teachers' potato sack race with his colleague, W. F. Roblin, running him a close second, while Miss Judge and Miss Jackson of Dufferin Street School were winner and runner-up in the lady teachers' running race.

The winners: Pole vault, Sr. boys, C. Burleigh; boys 6 and 7, 50 yd. dash, Teddy Thompson; girls, 6 and 7, 50 yd. dash, Leone Little; boys 8 and 8, 60 yd. dash, John McCalla; softball throw, Sr. girls, Norma Carswell; girls 8 and 9, 60 yd. dash, Aletha Richardson; boys 10 and 11, 75 yd. dash, Billy Waldron; girls 10 and 11, 75 yd. dash, Rene Simmons; shot put, Sr. boys, F. Clarke; boys 12 and 13, 100 yd. dash, Ron Davis; girls 12 and 13, 100 yd. dash, Clarabella Wood; shot put, Jr. boys, C. Gungea; boys 14 and up, 125 yd. dash, Bob Kennedy; girls 125 yd. dash, 14 and up, Geanetta Wood; relay, Jr. boys, 220 yd., College 1st, Dufferin 2nd, Breadner 3rd; Jr. girls' relay, 220 yd., College 1st, Breadner 2nd, Dufferin 3rd.; Sr. boys' quarter mile relay, Dufferin 1st, College 2nd, St. Peter's 3rd; Sr. girls' quarter mile relay, College 1st, Dufferin 2nd, Breadner 3rd.; girls' high jump, Shirley Vieau.

Loblaw Opens New Super Market Many New Features Introduced

Trenton (Special)—Over 800 early-bird shoppers were waiting in line when the new Loblaw Super Market on Dundas Street West opened for business for the first time at 10 a.m. this morning.

The first first day customer to pass through the doors was Mrs. S. Westfall, 135 Byron Street, who arrived at the store at 8 o'clock. When asked if she came early in order to be the first customer to enter the new groceteria, Mrs. Westfall said, "I wanted to make sure I would be the first one in". Mrs. Westfall celebrated her 88th birthday on Sunday.

Trenton Lions Club Boys' Band entertained the opening day crowd outside the store for an hour before opening time. The first 300 customers to pass through the eight checking systems were given a free pound of coffee. Late comers seeing the long lineup on Dundas went around behind and started lining up at the rear entrance.

Modernistic Type

One of the most impressive and modernistic stores on the main street, the Dundas frontage is attractively finished in yellow and black macotta and has a neat brick red striped awning.

Boasting a number of firsts in Trenton, the new marketeria has the only completely self-serve meat counter between Toronto and Ottawa. The only counter that is not 100 per cent self-serve is the coffee counter where a girl attendant is available to grind fresh coffee.

There are two customer entrances to the store—the main one on Duudas and another at the rear which opens on the market square. Eight checking systems are in operation to provide fast moving service, three are located at the rear and five at the front entrance.

Most Modern Store

"It is most modern food store between Toronto and Ottawa and a wonderful asset to the town," said Manager C. E. Gilbert just before the doors opened this morning. Mr. Gilbert who has been manager of Loblaws in Trenton for the last nine years, promises to provide "service second to none."

The yellow and white interior is air-conditioned and daylight lighting is provided by banks of fluorescent fixtures. There are four display islands on the 41 by 147-foot floor that are divided by three 12-foot aistes running the length of the store. Indirect lighting has been installed behind the black and white signs that identify the several departments. Two conveyor belts are in operation to carry merchandise to the second floor storage warehouse, as there is no basement in the building.

Mr. S. R. McCory of Belleville and Stirling was the general contractor for the construction of the newest addition to Trenton's fine stores.

Girl Guide Activities

A year marked with splendid achievement by Company 2, Belleville Girl Guides, was brought to a close Thursday evening, when badges and awards were presented at an enjoyable outdoor meeting at the cottage of Mrs. C. T. Penney, on No. 2 Highway. The Guides left by truck about seven o'clock and the mothers came out later in cars.

All were very glad that the distrist commissioner, Mrs. John Watson, was able to be present.

The early part of the evening was spent outdoors playing Guide games in charge of Patrol Leaders Carolyn Little and Jessie Seames, and Second Beverly Faulkner.

After the games were over, a log-fire was built in the huge fireplace in the cottage. This served as a camp-fire in front of which the Guides formed their "horseshoe" and the mothers gathering in the rear where all joined in singing songs. Following this singsong presentation of Guide badges took place with the district commissioner presenting the following badges: Second Class Badge to Beverly Faulkner; Child Nurse Badge to Dorothy Penney; First Aid Badges to Frances Ann Mitchell, Beverly Faulkner, Jessie Seames and Hilda Morris;; Hostess Badges to Barbara McLuskie, Jessie Seames and Dorothy Penney; Laundress Badge to Dorothy Penney; Life Saver's Badges to Carolyn Little, Beth Wilbur and Dorothy Penney; Needlewoman's Badge to Dorothy Penney; Fire Brigade Badges to Jessie Seames, Frances Ann Mitchell, Barbara McLuskie, Dorothy Penney, Jean Keegan, Carmel Lewis and Hilda Morris; Hikers Badges to Ann Briens and Dorothy Penney; Cook's Badge to Dorothy Penney; Reader's Badge to Ann Briens; Homemaker's Badge to Dorothy Penney; Sick Nurse Badges to Beverly Faulkner, Jessie Seames, Dorothy Penney, Frances Ann Mitchell, Hilda Morris and Jean Keegan; Dancer's Badge to Barbara McLuskie; Swimming Badge to Dorothy Penney; Health Badge to Barbara McLuskie; Minstrel Badge to Ann Briens; Little House Emblem to Barbara McLuskie. and Dorothy Penney. This badge is presented to Guides after they have received six Homecraft Badges. First Class Badge to Jessie Seames. Dorothy Penney and Carolyn Little will have earned their First Class Badge as soon as they pass one more test.

The Lieutenant then presented 17 Service Stars to those who had atended 75 per cent of the meetings.

The eagerly awaited announcement of the year's winning patrol was made by the Lieutenant. The Pimpernel Patrol was the winner with 269 points. Their leader, Jessie Seames, was presented with a haversack and a "Be Prepared" pennant, and the Guides with haversacks. There were two prizes given for 100 per cent attendance these prizes going to Guides Hilda Morris of the Pimpernel Patrol and Beverly Faulkner of the Dandelion Patrol.

At the conclusion of these presentations, the Commissioner led in the Guide prayer. The Patrol Leaders and Seconds then served refreshments to the Guides.

A hearty vote of thanks was given by the Commissioner to Mrs. Penney for the use of the cabin for the evening. Patrol Leader Jessie Seames thanked Mrs. Penney for the treat of ice cream and Patrol Leader Carolyn Little thanked Mr. Seames for donating the truck to transport the Guides.

The evening was brought to a close with Acting Lieutenant Ann Briens leading in the Guide evensong and "taps".

So good-bye for another year. Will be seeing you all again in the fall.

St. Andrew's W.A. Holds June Tea at 'Alameda'

A dainty tea and sale of home cooking was held yesterday afternoon at "Alameda," spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. George K. Graham, Trent Road, under the auspices of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Women's Association, convened by Mrs. J. W. Kinnear. Mrs. G. K. Graham, the gracious hostess, and Mrs. W. N. Ponton, group leader, received the several guests at the door, welcoming them into surroundings, rich in old, world charm, and fragrant with the perfume of peonies, iris, phlox, coral bells, daisies, and orange blossoms.

Here, the guests either gathered in small groups, renewing acquaintances, or sauntered leisurely about enjoying the Spanish architecture, while others again could be seen about the expansive lawn, viewing the lovely rose beds, or underneath the trees beside the water. In the home cooking room, which at other times was the music room, knots of eager customers were busily engaged in purchasing date bread; star-like short breads; raspberry tarts, taffy tarts, little jam turnovers that were light as fairy cakes; and melted in the mouth, sugar-glazed buns, and nut-topped cakes, and many others.

In charge of this delectable display, was Mrs. J. Alexander, assisted by Mrs. A. Kidd, Mrs. A. Perry and Mrs. A. Mitchell.

The tea room, with its dark, rich furnishings was artistically decorated with iris, peonies, and columbines of many hues. Columbines were also used as the central theme of the tea table between two long runners of Chinese lace, while tiny pale blue holders of columbine, two on either side of the centre piece, repeated the floral motif. Mrs. R. D. Ponton, and Mrs. A. Williamson were the tea room hostesses, while Mrs. A. Gillen, Mrs. H. Legate, Mrs. J. G. Hornsby, and Mrs. Elvidge poured during the afternoon.

Those who assisted in serving the delicious sandwiches and the dainty cakes, were: Mrs. A. G. Freeman; Mrs. Mackenzie Robertson; Mrs. Lorne McDougall; Mrs. Gordon Robertson; Miss Edith MacLean; Miss Jessie Hay, and Mrs. C. E. Argue, Miss Jessie MacLean acted as treasurer for the tea.

A lovely afternoon, beautiful surroundings, and a charming tea daintily convened, all combined to make the day a memorable one.

2ND THURLOW

Mr., Mrs. Allen Buskell Honored With Shower

2nd Thurlow—A large number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. MacNeill on Wednesday night in honor of their daughter, June, and husband, Mr. Allan Bushell, who were recently married, and presented them with a miscellaneous shower.

They were asked to seats of honor and an appropriate address was read by Mrs. Ken Duesbury, expressing the good wishes of the community.

After unwrapping of the gifts, June and Allan, thanked all for their lovely tokens of esteem.

Cards were enjoyed and a social time spent.

Refreshments were later served by the hostess and her assistants.

Miss Edith Aston Gives Talk On Physiotherapy

The Women's Hospital Auxiliary monthly meeting was held in the Nurses' Residence on Tuesday with the president, Miss I. Dickens, presiding. The secretary, Mrs. P. T. Seibert, read the minutes of the last meeting. Miss Dickens, in the absence of Mrs. M. Robb, treasurer, read the treasurer's report.

Miss Dickens mentioned how much the Auxiliary will miss the five members who are leaving the city: Mrs. Ashton, Mrs. Kelsey, Mrs. Hunt, Mrs. Imlah and Mrs. Peterson.

Miss Dickens expressed hope that the Auxiliary may get more new members. Mrs. H. Wray was tentatively named chairman of the nominating committee with Mrs. W. C. Mikel and Mrs. Scott assisting.

Mrs. Sillitoe reported that the Opportunity Shop is now closed for the summer, to reopen early in the fall.

Super-Loafer Chairs

It was decided by the members to buy four super-loafer chairs, with two trolleys, which will enable the chairs to be used as wheel chairs when needed. Also six deck chairs will be purchased for the verandas of the hospital.

Sympathy was expressed by Miss Dickens on the passing of a member, Mrs. Galloway, and to Mrs. Scott on the loss of her father.

In the absence of Miss Potts, who is attending the Canadian Nursing Association Convention, Miss Hatcher introduced Miss Edith Aston, physiotherapist. Miss Aston gave an interesting talk on "physiotherapy" saying that there is an urgent need for physiotherapy in a modern hospital of today. Stating that the types of equipment used in a physiotherapy department are varied, such as the short wave diathermay to relieve muscular spasms and pain; ultra violet lamps for skin diseases; Faradic and Galvanic batteries, which are used to stimulate muscles in the case of nerve paralysis.

The whirlpool back is used for stimulating the circulation and softening up the tissues in the case of stiffened joints.

One of the most important things is to give the patient confidence in himself, to show him how he can work to make himself better.

It is the duty of the physiotherapist to keep up the morale and physical condition of the patient, stated Miss Aston.

The necessity to restore function as completely as possible after illness or injury cannot be underestimated. A gymnasium is essential in the department, Miss Aston believes. For a patient to be able to come down out of hospital atmosphere into a room with parallel bars; stall bars, bicycles, weights and pulleys, the patient loses his apprehension and joins in with his fellow patients to strive to help themselves get better.

Thanks were expressed to Miss Aston for her interesting talk and the meeting adjourned.

Tea was served by Miss Hatcher and student nurses Miss Lewis, Miss Pearsall and Miss G. Sheppard.

DIED OF FUMES

Canon City, Colo., June 22 — (AP) —Charles Mueller, 80, sealed up in a room in his house, emptied two cans of insect poison into a sheet, wrapped the sheet around his head and died of the fumes.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

The price of pepper reminds one that pepper was once used to ransom Rome.

It hasn't quite attained that value today, but the inflated price of pepper is now at the highest figure in modern times. Pepper that cost 4 cents a pound wholesale before the war is now bringing $1.44 per pound.

In spite of this fact the Munitions Board has had the temerity to decree that pepper is a non-essential item. The board agreed that pepper was a desirable commodity, but ruled that it could not be considered absolutely essential in the kind of emergency that might be created by the next war.

Pepper partisans insist on grinding their own. To enjoy the fresh aroma of pepper like the fresh aroma of coffee, you should use a small wooden pepper mill which can replace the pepper shaker on the table. For this purpose you will need whole black pepper called peppercorns.

You'll want the pepper mill when you make yellow split pea and tomato soup for a main dish.

Yellow Split Pea and Tomato Soup Serves 4-5.

Melt 2 tablespoons fat in a large saucepan or soup pot. Add ½ cup diced onion, ½ cup diced celery and 1 clove of garlic chopped fine. Simmer over a low flame until onion turns yellow.

Add 2 tablespoons flour, mixing well. Add 1 small bay leaf, 1 cup washed quick-cooking yellow split peas, an 8-ounce can of tomato puree and 6 cups of soup stock or 6 cups of hot water with 4 bouillon cubes. Add 1 small ham bone if available.

Bring soup to a boil. Reduce flame so that liquid merely simmers. Cook for 1 hour or longer or until peas are very soft. Stir frequently. Remove bay leaf and ham bone. Force soup through a food mill or sieve.

In a separate saucepan drop ¼ cup vermicelli into 1 quart of boiling salted water. Stir well. Boil rapidly until vermicelli is tender about 5 minutes. If vermicelli is unobtainable, use thin spaghetti. Drain vermicelli. Rinse in hot water. Cut into pieces approximately 1 inch long.

Add vermicelli to strained soup. Skim of any excess fat. Add salt and freshly ground pepper to taste.

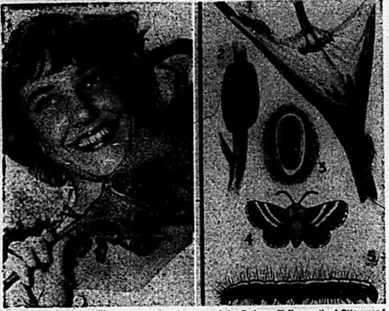
CATERPILLARS MUNCHING HALF-MILE PATH TO OTTAWA



Hordes of tent caterpillars are ravaging the trees of the Gatineau Valley north of Ottawa and are munching a path two miles long by half a mile wide toward the capital. Melba Cottrell holds a section of branch which contains a caterpillar in the cocoon stage, at left. Development of caterpillar is shown at right. Cocoons that will be built within the next two weeks will produce moths that will then lead to another invasion. Ottawa will probably be besieged by the "army" in spite of the counter-attack being waged now by millions of black flies, foes of the caterpillars. According to reports, the flies are hardly making a dent in the caterpillars. — Central Press Canadian.

100 Newfoundland Miners Will be Placed in West

Ottawa, June 22—(CP)—Labor Minister Mitchell today announced that 100 Newfoundland miners are moving westward to take jobs arranged for them in hard-rock mines in North - Western Ontario and Manitoba.

This was the first organized movement of miners between Newfoundland and the mainland, Mr. Mitchell said.

The men were selected by Harlow W. Wright, assistant to the executive director of the Canadian Metal Mining Association, in co-operation with the special services branch of the Labor Department, and with National Employment Service offices in Newfoundland.

Most of the men are experienced miners from Bell Island and the Conception Bay district. Ten of them are qualified as carpenters for underground work.

"All applicants for these jobs underwent a strict physical examination," Mr. Mitchell said, "and about 17 per cent of those examined were rejected on physical grounds."

NOVEL SYSTEM

Toronto, June 22—(CP) — A swimming club owner has evolved a novel system of setting guest admission fees for his pool. Marshall Foss of suburban Thorncrest village has set up a dial indicating the water temperature. When it moves between 60 and 70 degrees members may bring in guests free; between 70 and 80 degrees, the charge is 25 cents; 80-90 degrees, 50 cents.

LIFE OF PARTY

Toronto, June 22 — (CP) — Lady Burnham, wife of Lord Burnham, director of the Daily Telegraph, London, stole the show Wednesday night at a dinner tendered delegates to the Seventh Imperial Press Conference by the City of Toronto.

After the dinner the guests spontaneously broke into community singing and, at the request of Mayor Hiram McCallum, Lady Burnham sang "Shenandoah," an old sea chanty. Later she led the guests in "Pack Up Your Troubles."

Wanted Better Course

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, expressed "bitter disappointment."

The legislation should have been delayed in the hope that "some better "course" could be worked out.

John Blackmore (SC—Lethbridge) suggested that the bill was an "entirely negative act" apparently designed to govern "an inferior and subordinate race and to keep them inferior and subordinate."

Others opposing the Indian bill included A. L. Smith (PC—Calgary West), Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary East), O. L. Jones (C.C.F.—Yale), H. W. Herridge (C.C.F. —Kootenay West), H. O. White (PC—Middlesex East), John A. Charlton (PC—Brantwentworth), Gordon Higgins (PC—St. John's East) and C. W. Jodgson (PC—Victoria, Ont.)

Two Liberals — Don Brown (Essex West) and George Murray (Cariboo) — urged that it be adopted, though they conceded that it was not perfect. However, it could be amended later.

Study Estimates

The chamber also opened study of finance department estimates and heard J. M. Macdonnell (PC—Toronto Greenwood), Progressive Conservative financial critic, suggest that the strength of the Canadian dollar now should allow Finance Minister Abbott to take further steps to free it from exchange controls.

Two bills making minor changes in the trust companies act and the loan companies act were adopted. A third bill amending the judges act was given first reading.

Third reading was given another measure giving Canadians the right to sue crown corporations without the necesity of obtaining government permission.

Prime Minister St. Laurent tabled correspondence in which Premier Johnson of British Columbia suggested social security be on the agenda of the fall Dominion-provincial conference.

Not Disappearing

In the debate on the Indian Act, Mr. Harris said provision is being made for the individual Indian to be enfranchised with or without his lands.

The popular conception that the Indian was disappearing was not correct. They were increasing by about 1½ per cent per year. They now numbered about 136,000 including some Nomadic groups.

Mr. Harkness suggested the debate be adourned and that at the next session the government bring in a bill that would include the recommendations of various Indian bands.

He said it took the government two years to draft the proposed amendments, but the Indians. many of them illiterate or semi-illiterate had been given two weeks in which to study the changes and make recommendations.

The Indian was to be given the right to drink in beverage rooms and cocktail bars. He believed that the Indians should be given the same drinking privileges as the "white man." If the government's policy was accepted, Indians would drink too much in beverage rooms and bars and would be in trouble as soon as they reached the reserve where all drinking was banned.

Mr. Coldwell said he had hoped that additional work would have been done in the field of education. There were some advances in the bill, but he had hoped they would be "much greater." Some consideration should have been given to the Indians who sought the establishment of non-sectarian schools. The Indians should have the right to decide the type of education for their children.

Bill Not Carried Out

More attention should have been paid to the committee's recommendation for a commission to deal with treaty rights. This had been a sore point with the Indians for years.

Mr. Blackmore said he was "bitterly disappointed" when he looked on the "contemptible thing we have before the House today."

The committee on Indians affairs had been told it was to do something to help the Indians help themselves. There was no evidence of that in the bill. Nor was there any evidence of a plan to set up a claims commission.

Something should be done and done soon for the "thorough rehabilitation" of the Indians to help them to get ahead. There was no provision in the ordinary life of the Indian for his rehabilitation.

There should be a large revolving financial fund from which young Indians could borrow money to buy stock and set themselves up.

There also should be provision for "more and more" self-government for Indians and for better educational facilities for Indian children.

The Indians should have the right to "remain Indians." The whole policy seemed to be aimed at submerging the Indians assimilating them into the white population.

Had Some Value

Mr. Brown, co-chairman of a parliamentary committee which investigated Indian affairs, said that while the amending bill did not contain all the recommendations of the committee it did contain some things of value.

He believed members should accept it and then work hard to bring about the economic assimilation of the Indians. He disagreed with those who suggested that the bill should be postponed until representations have been received from Indians across the country.

He believed the government would have made a good move if it established a commission to deal with the Indians claims of injustices under various treaties. The commission could settle the claims once and for all. Indians were not satisfied with the present arrangement under which they had right of recourse to the Exchequer Court.

Mr. Brown suggested that all Indian affairs should be handled by a three-man commission, including one Indian.

Deserve Square Deal Claim

John A. Charlton (PC-Brant-Wentworth) said he did not want to see the bill "forced through" the House when the Indians had been given only two weeks to study it.

Only the government could say why the bill was being "rushed" to adoption at this time. The Indians deserved better treatment. Some of them had fought in two world wars.

H. O. White (PC-Middlesex East) said the Indians, the "original" citizens of this country, deserved a "squarer" deal.

In the field of education, they should be given the same opportunity as those given to white children. Many of today's problems would disappear when equal opportunity for education was provided.

C. D. Hodgson (PC-Victoria, Ont.) said he thought the time was overdue for Indians to get the vote.

Some of the Indians had been great athletes. If they had deteriorated in any way, it was not their fault, but the fault of the white man.

FLEES FROM SCENE

The first scene of the bloody tragedy was played out here in the sleepy hamlet of Langton, about eight miles east of the scene of the double slaying.

At 2:45 p.m., an armed man walked into the Imperial Bank branch in the heart of Ontario's tobacco-growing country. He escaped with $23,000.

Ten minutes later Art de Lierman, 31-year-old insurance agent and William Goddyn, 24-year-old operator of de Lierman's tobacco farm, took up the pursuit. They were among five customers in the bank at the time of the holdup.

Plunges Into Ditch

The chase ended between 3.15 and 3.25 p.m. The pursuers punctured the bandit's car rear tire with a shot from an old service rifle. The car plunged into a ditch.

The bandit greeted the pursuit car with a withering blast of sten gun fire which ripped out the rear window of his own auto. Then he walked up close to pump several more rounds into the death car before fleeing on foot.

Twe young farmhands, Ben Nobles and Ray Pressey, saw the killing. They were working in a nearby field when they heard the first shots. They dropped flat to the ground in the thought that the shots were aimed at them. Nobles said he saw the killer step up to the De Lierman car and fire the second murderous blast.

Police counted 12 bullet holes in the windshield of De Lierman's car which Goddyn had driven at breakneck speed over the twisting country roads to catch up to the bandit. There were 10 bullet holes in the hood.

When the bandit fled into the bush, he left behind the $23,000 in loot, in a shopping bag in the car which had been stolen in Windsor. He also left behind a revolver, taking the sten gun with him into the bushland.

De Lierman, father of two children, and Goddyn, father of four, were transacting business in the bank when the bandit pushed open the door. He levelled a gun at the six members of the staff and the five customers and announced in a soft low-pitched voice: "This is a holdup."

Ordered to Open Vault

He ordered H. W. Thompson, accountant, to open the vault.

"I'm not fooling," said the man. "Open it up if you don't want to get a sore head."

Thompson obeyed. The bandit herded staff and customers into the vault. He scooped up money and put it in two shopping bags. He backed out of the vault and looked around. Lambert Van Hooren, a garageman, and Cecil Aspeden, a bus driver, were peering in. He ordered them into the bank and then into the vault. He slammed the vault door but did not lock it.

Outside, one of the shopping bags broke and money spilled on the street. The bandit paused and scooped it all into one bag before getting into his car and driving off.

Travel at High Speed

De Lierman and Goddyn took up the chase without telling anyone of their plans. There was shooting during the pursuit. Farmer Harry Manary said "They were shooting when they went past my place."

Others who saw the chase said the cars were travelling at a "terrific pace."

The Imperial Bank is the only one in Langton, a village of about 250 persons.

It was robbed of $34,000 on Sept. 12, 1945, by three armed and masked men who escaped in a waiting car, driven by an accomplice.

Four days later four men were arrested in connection with the robbery, three in Windsor and one in Ottawa.

The four, Gail Hastings, 23, Gerald Blackburn, 28, Dominic Minille, 30, and William Vance, 26, pleaded guilty to charges of armed robbery. Hastings was sentenced to 12 years, Blackburn and Minille 10 years each; and Vance, driver of the car, two years less one day definite and two years less one day indefinite in Guelph Reformatory.

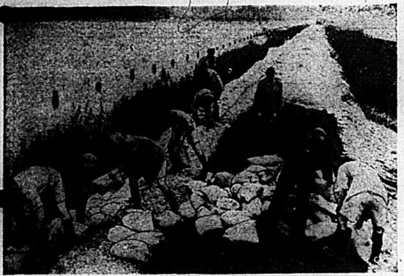
FLOODTIME AGAIN



Sandbagging brigades are back in action again — this time in British Columbia as the Fraser River, which went on a $30,000,000 rampage two years ago, rises steadily. Reminiscent of 1948 is this scene at Agassiz, 65 miles east of Vancouver, as army engineers sandbag the dike holding waters back from the town and surrounding farmland. — (CP Photo.)

Govt. Proposes to Set Up 'Indian Register' in Canada

Ottawa, June 22 (CP)—Citizenship Minister Harris announced in the Commons yesterday the government proposed to set up an 'Indian Register' in which all persons of predominantly Indian blood will be recorded. Those predominantly non-Indian will be excluded.

Announcing details of wide amendments to the Indian Act the statute governing Canada's 136,000 Indians, the minister disclosed they will clarify the definition of "Indian", simplify and clarify procedures regarding management, surrender and leasing of reserves simplify provisions for management and control of Indian moneys and adopt a uniform system of electing chiefs and councillors.

Modify Tax Exemption

The exemption from taxation of personal property held by Indians on reserves will be modified so as to apply only to those who served in the Canadian forces.

Provision is being made for the individual Indians to be enfranchised with or without his lands.

In his 15-minute explanation of the Indian bill, Citizenship Minister Harris made no reference to his two-hour closed session last night with an Indian delegation representing the North American Brotherhood. They told the minister that they wanted time to study the bill but he said the government intended to proceed with it.

Mr. Harris told the House that one of the most difficult problems was determining who is and who is not an Indian. Thus provision had been made for an Indian register and already provisional lists for approximately 85 per cent of the Indian population had been received. Provision was being made to exclude from reserves quarter-bloods born of marriages entered into after the coming into force of the new Act.

No one of quarter-blood status at present living on a reserve would be affected. Nor would the provision be allowed to adversely affect anyone entitled to protection under the present Act.

Provision was being made for simplifying and clarifying the procedure to be adopted with respect to management, surrender, leasing and disposal of Indian reserves and surrendered lands and "to give the Indians through their elected band councils greater control over the reserves upon which they reside."

There is provision for the granting of certificates of possession and occupation to individual Indians.

Extends Powers To Councils

Under the bill powers of the band councils will be extended to "bring them more into conformity with those ordinarily exercised by municipal authorities."

The taxation provided for in the bill would only apply to personal property of Indians and not reserve property which is held in trust by the Crown.

In the enfranchisement of Indians with or without his lands, the usual procedure was for the Indian to dispose of his lands to a member of the band. Where a whole band was enfranchised — the only such case was that of the Wyandots of Anderson in Southwestern Ontario — the land goes with the franchise.

The provisions with regard to enfranchisement had been retained in principle and improved.

Liberal Leader Quebec, Resigns, To be Organizer

Montreal, June 22 — (CP) — Georges Emile Lapalme, recently-elected Quebec liberal leader, last night announced his resignation as federal member of parliament for Joliette-L'Assomption Montcalm.

The 43-year-old lawyer made the announcement at a banquet tendered him by Monteal liberals.

He told more than 1,600 persons that George C. Marler, member of the legislative assembly for Westmount-St. George, will remain the party's house leader.

Mr. Lapalme said he will devote his time to rebuilding the party's fortunes in Quebec.

His resignation will necessitate a federal by-election.

He said last night he had reason to believe that the provincial riding of Montcalm, part of the riding he represented in the federal house, soon will be opened. He did not elaborate. He stated it did not mean he would contest the seat.

"I'll choose the seat I wish to contest," he said, "not Premier Duplessis."

(The Quebec Premier said recently that his union nationale party would not contest Mr. Lapalme's election if one of the eight liberal members would resign his seat.)

The union nationales sweep of the 1948 provincial elections cut liberal strength in the legislature from 34 to eight. Mr. Duplessis' party holds 82 seats. Adelard Godbout, former liberal premier, later was appointed a federal senator and Mr. Marler took over the Quebec liberal leadership.

Of Mr. Duplessis, Mr. Lapalme said: "He'll try to trap me into seeking a seat somewhere, but I find myself in the fortunate position where I'm able to see through his designs and avoid the consequences."

Captive World Is too Weak To Seek War

Tokyo, June 22 — (AP)—John Foster Dulles said today that the "captive world" of communism is too weak to seek war now with the free world.

The republican adviser to the United States State Department told the American Chamber of Commerce that the immediate danger to free countries is that they may be taken over from within by small, disciplined communist minorities.

Dulles said:

"Any struggle that openly pitted the full might of the free world against that of the captive world could have but one outcome. That would be the total demolition of the artificial, rigid and relatively weak structure that Soviet communism was built. That is why the most well-informed people do not expect war. The position basically is too one-sided.

He cited three basic weaknesses of the communist world.

It is weak politically, he said, "because it is ruled from the top and has no broad popular support."

"It is shot through with distrust and suspicion; no one even in high authority, feels safe."

It is weak economically, he asserted, after 30 years of successive "five-year" plans.

Radio Network Program Allowed To Proceed

Flint, Mich., June 22—(AP)—A circuit court late Wednesday dismissed a temporary restraining order which would have sought to stop a (NBC)radio network program—the "Big Story"—from telling how a Michigan woman slew her husband and two children.

Judge Clifford A. Bishop took the action with consent of Joseph Chranoski, lawyer who filed the suit. Chranoski said he would immediately start action in federal court.

In New York, N.B.C, said the radio drama "Big Story" went off as scheduled at 10 p.m. EDT. NBC said it customarily did not use the real names of the principals and did not do so Wednesday night.

Mrs. Julia Kulinich, now 34, sought the court order, claiming that dramatization of the triple murder of her children and husband would be an invasion of her "right to privacy" and would cause her "harassment, ridicule and humiliation." She said she is "paying society".

Mrs. Kulinich is serving a life term in Detroit's House of Corrections.

Barrie, June 22—(CP)—Sleeping in the back room of his jewelry shop here, William Kosman was wakened at 5 a.m. Wednesday by a crash. Parade of New Confessions Can be Expected in Moscow After New Ruling by Stalin

New York, June 22—(AP) — Now that Prime Minister Stalin has laid down the law on Russian language policies, a parade of new confessions can be expected in Moscow.

Stalin made known his views on language Tuesday in the communist party newspaper Pravda. Exactly what his words meant is subject to varying interpretations, but this appears obvious: He laid waste the school of Linguistics which has ridden the crest of popularity in the Soviet Union.

Nikoli Yakovlevich Marr, the philologist hailed only recently as "inspired Soviet scientist and founder of the new materialist teachings on language," was not only wrong in many of his conceptions, but was un-Marxist, said Stalin. The Soviet leader thus entered—and probably ended—a debate on Linguistics which has been going on for months in Moscow.

If the communists run true to form, this will bring a parade of confessions in the form of "Bolshevist criticism and self-criticism", from persons like Academician I. I. Meshchaniov, a leader of the Marr school, who in an academy discussion in April proclaimed Marr a model scientist "combatting hostile, idealist theories" of languago.

Others had joined joyfully in singing the praises of Marr, who died in 1934.

Stalin wrote in Pravda that Marr's theory that different classes develop different languages was absurd; Marr's notion that language was merely a cultural superstructure which would change swiftly with revolution was not true. Further, the Prime Minister deplored that the Marr school gave Soviet philology a regime under which scientists were demoted or fired for criticizing Marr's teachings.

Not Going Well

This appears to mean that the imposition of Russian language or orthography upon subordinated peoples is not going so well. The Marr adherents dreamed that one day there would be a world language of revolution and that language would be basically Russian.

One speaker at the April Academy discussion of Marr's merits indicated what had been done. According to accounts of the meeting in the current digest of the Soviet press, a review of the Russian press translated in the United States, this speaker said Russian language "has exercised and is exercising a beneficial influence on the Kazakh literary language.

The Kazakhs speak Arabic, but, said this speaker, "the contemporary Kazekh alphabet and orthography are built mainly on the correct principle of completely borrowing the Russian alphabet while taking into account the phonetic peculiarities of the contemporary Kazakh language."

"This," said the speaker, "is precisely the kind of language construction to which N. Y. Marr was summoning us."

Marr stood for the application of artificial means to speed up a common world language. Stalin blasted this idea.

In short, perhaps the Russians are finding out what the peoples under their domination are being stubborn about speaking their own languages.

Noted Canadian Sculptor Dies

Ottawa, June 22 (CP)—Cleophas Soucy, whose ornamental carvings in Canada's parliament buildings won him international recognition, died unexpectedly at his home last night.

Official sculptor at the parliament buildings, the 71-year-old stone carver began working on the buildings under John Pearson architect of the present buildings. In the last 30 years his deft fingers, which in spare moments played the clarinet, fashioned hundreds of designs and figures both inside and outside the buildings.

He wrought delicate friezes designed from Canadian animals and flowers. Wolves, moose, lions and unicorns, as well as regiments of dragons, gnomes and weird little caricatures of statesmen of the past took their place around the buildings' gothic arches and high marble corridors and in the Peace Tower.

All of his work was in the gothic style.

Mr. Soucy's delight was doing stone carvings in and around the main building.

"Nowhere," he once said, " is there a building better suited to display the work of a Canadian sculptor for his work is not merely in it but a part of it and a monument to Canadian culture and tradition."

Native of Montreal, Mr. Soucy came from a family of sculptors A brother, Elzear, and a nephew. Donat Soucy, are prominent sculptors.

Store Employee Loves Sculpturing

Toronto, June 22 — (CP) — Stephen Trenka, 40, who was Wednesday named winner of the $1,000 prize for designing a new Canadian five-cent piece, is a Toronto furniture store employee whose first love is sculpturing.

Mr. Trenka came to Canada from Hungary 21 years ago. He said he tried 40 designs before finally settling on the one, representing a nickel refinery.

He said he used as his model for the refinery a smelter in Welland, a town he visited while courting the girl who later became his wife.

"It feels good to know I have done something for Canada because Canada has done a lot for me," he said. "This is a great country which gives an opportunity to all immigrants."

Mr. Trenka is a member of the Ontario Society of Sculptors. His pieces have won acclaim at many exhibitions, including the Centenary of Canadian Art at the Tate Gallery in London, England, and, in 1938, at the New York World's Fair.

Mountie Brings About Arrest Of Three Agents

Toronto, June 22 — (CP) — A mountie who posed as an underworld "customer" bought about the arrest of three agents of an international counterfeit network, it was disclosed in court Wednesday.

William Ignat, 33; Douglas Gordon, 39; and Charles Cipolla, 37, pleaded guilty to a charge of conspiring to distribute bogus money and were remanded to June 27.

The trio was arrested here May 30 after R.C.M.P. detective Sgt. P. C. Brooks of Winnipeg arranged with Ignat to buy $18,000 in counterfeit currency for $3,000.

Ninth-Inning Gremlins Grin At Batawa as Kingston Leafs Score 8-7 Win in Last Heat

The Batawa Shoemen, rapidly acquiring the name of the "hard luck team" of the Central Ontario Baseball League, dropped their second game in two nights by one run as they fell before Kingston Disney Leafs 8-7 last evening in a league fixture under the lights at Kingston's Megaffin Stadium. It was the fourth time this season that the tail-end Shoetowners have lost by one run.

The end came suddenly in the ninth frame when Bill Reardon rifled one off the centre field fence to score Gilmour from second with the winning run. Batawa, whittling away at a five run lead which the Leafs had erected in an horrible third inning, had knotted the ball game in the top of the ninth on a double by Watson and a single by Bridgeman.

Leafs core 5 in Third

Batawa put together three Leaf errors in the second frame to count one run. The Leafs, taking full advantage of three walks, a hit batsman, a wild pitch, an error, and a single, poured over five runs in the bottom of the third.

The Shoemen closed the gap in the fourth with singles by Peacock and Solmes, and walks to Rankin, Carson, and Bush accounting for two runs.

The Leafs spurted ahead again in their half of the fourth with Allan and Gilmour, who had walked, riding in on Joe Levandoski's double to the barrier in centre field. Art Wright came on to relieve starter Don Semark and over the rest of the route stifled the Leaf bludgeons until the fatal ninth when his only walk and two of his four hits counted one run to beat him.

Batawa chissled at Jack Stone for single runs in the fifth, sixth, seventh and ninth with their best batting display of the current campaign but wilted in the stretch to see victory escape them once again in that fatal ninth.

Semark toiled the first three and a third innings walking eight, striking out four, and being tagged for one hit and seven runs. Wright went the rest of the way on one walk, four hits and one run to be charged with the loss.

Stone worked the route for the winners walking five, whiffing one, and surrendering 10 hits for seven runs.

Best at the plate was left fielder Cec Solmes of Batawa with two doubles and two singles in five tries.

Picton Athletics scored their third successive win last night when they swamped the Brockville Memos under a 15-2 avalanche in Picton.

GAME CALLED OFF

Cooperstown, N.Y., June 22—(AP) — It rained so much this spring that the International League exhibition game played each summer in baseball's home town has been called off.

Ernest A. Lanigan, historian of baseball's Hall of Fame, said yesterday a suitable date for the game planned between Syracuse and Springfield could not be found. Too many league games have been postponed.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

SUPPORT THE CUBS

Tonight the Belleville Cubs meet a stern test in their clash with the Point Anne squad in a Belleville District Baseball League game. The St. Louis Cubs came up with the best performance of their 1950 season in their last game against the Cannifton Clippers, which included an infield performance that some of the higher bracket teams would do well to emulate. The Cubs' bludgeons were busy too and this with the four-hit twirling of the veteran Chuck Barriage gained for them a well-deserved victory.

* * *

Tonight they will be gunning for their fourth straight victory and if they maintain their last-game form they should cop the nod. Point Anne, however, has a strong team and will give the Cubs a stiff battle before the final out. Don't know who will get the chucking assignments but it will likely be Bobby Moynes for the Cubs and Johnny Green for the Ox Pointers. In any case it should be quite a tussle and the fans should not pass it up. The Cubs are deserving of support as they started on a shoestring and the crowds to date have not increased the stature of the financial shoestring to any appreciable extent. Right now they are playing an excellent brand of baseball and some extra moral and financial support, especially the latter, will be greatly appreciated.

PROBS — HOT, WITH THUNDER

The master-minds of the Central Ontario Baseball League go into solemn conclave in Kingston tonight where a number of important wrinkles will go on the ironing board. It is expected there will be some rather frank discussions garnished with some hot argument especially in the case of players straying from the home pasture to throw in their baseball lots with outside teams. The important question to be debated or rather discussed is the eligibility of Belleville players playing with Picton etc. Twill likely wax warm argumentatively before Prexy Bob Nesbitt sounds taps. Vice President and OBA convener Jack Devine, yours truly and probably past-president Don Thomas will take in the proceedings This column will carry a full report of the goings on, tomorrow.

STUNNING STEVE

'Twill be a spectacle of the beauties and the beasties, so to speak at Memorial Arena come Friday night. Two startling contrasts in masculine architecture will parade for the faithful in the wrestling ring. The Joes will likely snort, but the Janies will 'Oh!' and 'Ah!' with not a few likely, pulling the swoon act, or an unreasonable facsimile of same. For isn't the first and last word in American manly beauty, Steve Stanlee, dubbed Uncle Sam's handsomest, whichever way you look at it, coming? And alongside him in the masculine good-looks parade will be Timmy Geohagen, the Pride of County Leitrim and the strongest man, bejapers, Ould Oireland has seen since Danny Muldoon kicked a turret off Castle Donegal.

* * *

In direct contrast to this masculine splendor will be the scowling Hi Lee, the Terror of the Ozarks, and "Da Preem" Carnera, once top man in the heavyweight boxing division and who is hailed as the Pride of Italia, the only son of sunny Italy who is on bowing terms with the highest peak in the Alps. This clash of the human skyscrapers should write something like history in local wrestling archives. There'all be nearly 600 pounds of snarling, scowling bone and muscle in the ring when the two clash and if the faithful carry periscopes it should get a fairly good close-up of what is going on up there. Should be quite a night. The golden-haired Adonis Stanlee meets one of the best young wrestlers to appear here in years in Johnny Barend, out of Rochester. Johnny is no joker as far as good looks is concerned, although he is not yet in the cheesecake class. Timmy will clash with one Bell in the opener.

DOTS AND FLASHES

On one of Britain's warmest racing days, the 3.30 race at Lews, Sussex, was won by a horse named Too Hot. The jockey was T. F. Burns . . . Belleville baseballers are doing right well with the hickory for the Picton COBL squad . . . Against Napanee the other night Vern Goyer hit a homer and single; Dick Fitzpatrick connected for a triple and single and Jackie Wardhaugh got a brace of bingles . . . Harold Wilson and 'Miss Canada IV' had better look to their engines. From Seattle comes word of a mystery boat being groomed to beat the world's record, and which has flitted over the water at a speed of well over 150 mph . . . More details later . . . Steve Hook, former local softball hurler, established a league record for the Montreal Snowden Fastball Loop the other day when he struck out 15 batters . . .

* * *

Turk Broda's All Stars augmented by Russ Johnson, one of Canada's outstanding softball hurlers were defeated by a Windsor team the other day by a 4-3 score . . . Weather reduced the spectators to a meagre 300 . . . Broda and company will perform in Tweed on July 3rd . . . Donkey baseball is being brought here in the near future by the Kiwanis Club . . . The mules will cavort on the Fair Grounds under the arcs . . . George Formby, the Lancashire comedian and party of English music hall artists from over 'ome, will play in the Arena in mid-September . . . And the good Lord willing, Santa Claus has been booked for December 24th for a midnight show . . . Bay of Quinte Country Club golfers tee off on Sunday against the Cataraqui Club, Kingston, on the latter's links in an inter-club tourney . . . Pickerel are taking everything in sight in West Lake and Baggott's Bay over yonder in Prince Edward County . . . Not so good in the northern district haunts, we are informed . . . Timmy Geohagen's promised stunt of holding a motorcycle by means of a rope in his teeth was called off last Friday on account the limbs of the law said "Nay" . . . "Doesn't the fact that your house is on top of the pig-pen bother you any?" asked the health inspector. "Nope", drawled the pork-chop producer, "ain't lost a hawg yit".

Jersey Giants In Third Place Of International

(By The Associated Press)

Chet Laabs, the toast of St. Louis in 1944, is the No. 1 citizen in Jersey City today.

Laabs who slammed two home runs in the final game of the season six years ago to clinch St. Louis' only American League pennant, is socking the ball far and often for the International League Giants.

The 36-year-old slugger was coaxed out of retirement after drawing the pink slip from Toronto a few weeks ago and both Laabs and the Giants have been happy ever since.

Laabs socked his sixth and seventh home runs of the season last night to lead the Giants to an 8-4 victory over Rochester Red Wings. His second homer decided the game.

The score was tied at 4-4 and the Giants had the bases loaded and two out in the last of the ninth. Laabs belted reliefer Mike Schultz' pitch out of the lot to break up the game.

The victory moved the Giants from fourth into third place, 2 1-2 games behind the Red Wings and Springfield Cubs who are virtually tied for first place.

Springfield dropped a 10-8 decision to Toronto Maple Leafs and their margin over the Wings dipped to five percentage points.

The Leafs enjoyed a 6-0 lead going into the last of the fifth when the Cubs tied the count with a six run rally that Jack Wallaesa featured with a grand slam homer. The Leafs however, came back with two runs in the sixth and seventh innings to win.

The last place Buffalo Bisons turned back Baltimore Orioles 5-1 behind the six-hit pitching of Charley Harris. The Bisons also collected six hits off a trio of pitchers but two of the blows were home run blasts by Harry Minor and Cy Block.

Syracuse's Chiefs edged Montreal Royals 3-2 to pull into a fourth-place tie with Baltimore and a two percentage point edge over the fifth place Royals.

Veteran Bud Byerly limited the Royals to six hits in gaining his eighth. The Chiefs snapped a 2-2 tie in the seventh inning on Carden Gillenwater's run-scoring single, his third hit of the game.

George Cruickshanks and Lew Landess notched a pair each for the winners, while Jerry Fitzgerald and Jim Kinna each scored twice for Peterborough.

In the only other O.L.A. contest of the night, Hamilton Tigers edged Mimico Mountaineers 8-6 when Tommy Love scored a pair of goals late in the final frame.

They were his third and fourth counters of the night.

Ready to Attack Speedboat Record

Seattle, June 22 — (AP) — If Lake Washington doesn't stand on end again today Stanley S. Sayres will cut his boat free for its first crack at the world's speedboat record of 141.74 miles an hour.

He and the boat—named the "Slow-Mo-Shun" by his teasing wife, —waited all day yesterday for calm weather.

So strong was the breeze that barges set up to mark the course dragged their anchors. Sayres hoped for enough flat water in the next two days to permit an attempt to crack the mark set 11 years ago by the late Sir Malcolm Campbell. He must make two runs along the statute mile, one in each direction.

Guelph Leafs Win Second Game in Row

(By The Canadian Press)

Appearances may be deceiving, but it looks like Guelph Maple Leafs have finally licked the jinx that has followed them all season in the Senior Intercounty Baseball League.

Guelph won their second straight game Wednesday night, blanking Brantford Red Sox 3-0 behind Jeff Shelton's six-hit pitching. It was the sixth win of the year for the last-place Maples.

Shelton and Alf Gavey staged a neat pitching duel over the nine innings, but Leafs managed two runs in the fourth on a hit batsman, a walk and two of the seven hits Gavey allowed. The insurance marker came in the seventh on a single, a walk, a sacrifice and an outfield fly.

Guelph performed spectacularly in the field despite two errors. Nick Cinai, Don McCabe, and Dick Osmer made next-to-impossible catches in the outfield to save Shelton's shutout. Ciani also had two hits.

The fast-travelling Stratford Nationals continued their hot pace Wednesday, edging out Galt Terriers 6-5 in 10 innings. London Majors drubbed the league-leading Waterloo Tigers 4-1, and Kitchener Legion nipped St. Thomas Legion 6-4.

Tony Busco twirled an eight-hitter for Stratford in his first Intercounty start. The game was featured by three home runs over the newly-shortened left-field barrier n the Galt park.

Two Belt Homers

Sam Sporn and Bob Wagner each belted four-baggers for Stratford, driving in four runs. Bill Hornsby hit a grand-slammer for Galt in the sixth.

The winning run came when Bill Klim bobbled George Frankos' slow roller to allow Sporn, on third, to cross the plate.

London's Tommy White tamed the powerful Waterloo Tigers with a four-hitter in Majors' 4-1 win. White bested Al Dumouchelle in another mound duel, the Waterloo tosser also giving up only four safeties.

Majors took the lead in the first inning with two walks, a single by Joe Bechard, and an outfield fly netting two runs. They added singles in the eighth and ninth. Waterloo counted its only run in the third.

Kitchener Legion scored their ninth victory of the year when they downed St. Thomas Legion in St. Thomas. Don Lavelle, a righthander, overcame streaks of wildness to go the route for Kitchener. He allowed only five hits.

St. Thomas committed five errors behind Pat McCullough and Lefty Wilson. The winners were paced at the plate by Manager Bobby Schnurr and Shorty Miller, each of whom had two hits.

All-Star Soccer Team Ends Tour, Plays Sweden

Montreal, June 22 — (CP) — England's all-star football Ambassadors think they have planted a soccer seed in Canada which may grow into a tree of professional calibre.

The footballers, fresh from a tour of Canada and the United States, play their final game against Sweden's Jonkoping team here tonight.

Sponsored by the English football Association, they came to Canada to boost soccer. They consider the trip a success.

"There is a good possibility, now, of professional Canadian soccer once it is properly started in schools and playgrounds," says H. H. Hughes, association vice-president tavelling with the team.

"There are a lot of Canadian boys interested in the game. All you need is a steady source of these players to build up the game and you will have a professional league."

Members of the 18-man team admit that spreading good will and promoting soccer is harder than just playing.

Fred Rose of the London Daily Express, who travelled with the team, said:

"You've the longest-winded after dinner speakers we've ever seen. They're so worried about what they're saying they are afraid to be funny."

Walter McKeller of the Canadian Soccer Association said incomplete figures indicated that "we won't lose money" on the tour.

"The team made more than its guarantee in all but two provinces—Alberta and Saskatchewan" he said. "We hope to repeat with something similar next year."

The players sail for home tomorrow. They'll all be wearing 10-gallon hats—given to them in Calgary.

Senators' New Rhumba Team, Consuegra and Marrero, Cool Tigers With Fine Pitching

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Bucky Harris' new rhumba team—Consuegra and Marrero—have mucho stuffo on the old apple. Just ask Detroit.

The Tigers saw Sandalio Consuegra yesterday and Conrad Marrero Tuesday. They haven't seen the ball yet.

Consuegra and Marrero pitched for Havana in the Florida International League (class B) last year. Consuegra had a 6-5 record in 11 games. Marrero had a 25-8 record for a 1.53 earned run average. Three years in a row he was the top winner in the league.

Harris wasnt too keen on his Cuban talent during spring training. Consuegra got into an argument with owner Clark Griffith of Washington Senators about paying off an old Venezuela contract and went home. He was just called back from Havana this month. In his first start he shut out Chicago, St. Louis knocked him out and then he whipped Detroit yesterday 12-4 with only five hits.

Marrero, like his countryman a righthander, now is a regular starter with a 4-2 record. Half his victories are over Detroit's first-place Tigers.

Consuegra had plenty of help from a 14-hit barrage that unhinged Hal Newhouser, Montreal's Paul Calvert and Saul Rogovin. Starting with Sam Mele's three-run homer in the first inning, the Senators never let Detroit get started. Consuegra chipped in two singles and drove in three runs.

Indians Move Up

Cleveland, moving up fast in the American League race, saved Detroit's hide by whipping the second-place New York Yankees 5-1.

Billy pierce followed up his recent one-hitter against New York with a 3-1 victory for Chicago over Boston Red Sox. Pierce yielded seven hits but he struck out eight, getting Ted Williams twice.

Philadelphia Athletics tagged St. Louis 4-2 to keep two games ahead of the last-place Browns.

Once again the National League is all snarled up with St. Louis and Brooklyn tied for the lead. Cincinnati rallied with three runs in the ninth to nip Brooklyn 6-5 yesterday while St. Louis pulled up even with the Dodgers on a 14-6 romp over New York.

Pittsburgh gained a 5-3 verdict over Philadelphia, costing the Phils a chance to close in on the Dodgers.

Vern Bickford's five hit pitching was wasted as Chicago blanked Boston 3-0 behind Johnny Schmitz. Bill Serena's two-run homer in the fifth broke a 0-0 tie. They added another in the ninth.

Wotta Man!

Here he is, gals, Mr. America himself. A superb chunk of masculine pulchritude guaranteed to make feminine hearts from nine to ninety do handsprings. He's Steve Stanley, blond Adonis who has the teen-agers of two nations in a tizzy with his marvellous physique and good looks. He is here Friday night on the Memorial Arena wrestling card. So is handsome Timmy Geohagen, Irish contender for strength and good looks. On the other side of the picture looms the herculean huskies Prime Carnera and Ski-Hi Lee, in the main bout. 'Twill be an evening of thrills.

Harness Horse Racing Moves Into Big Time

By The Canadian Press

Canada's harness horse racing moves into the big time July 3 with a 42-day meet over a built-in half-mile oval at Thorncliffe Park, on the fringe of northeast Toronto. Everything about it is big-league.

Operated by the Thorncliffe raceway with Herb Hatch, wealthy Toronto sportsman as its head, promoters will spend more than $500,000 on the meet before the first sulky moves with the mobile starting gate opening day.

Purse money totalling $210,000 already has been put up with the Aug. 9 Canadian Cup for pacers, worth $15,000 to the winner, the choice tid-bit of the program.

The Canadian Professional Golfers' Association annual championship will be played Au.g 20-21 over the Montreal Summerlea course, the C. P. G. A. executive announced at Montreal Wednesday.

The tournament will precede by a few days the 1950 Canadian open to be played at Royal Montreal.

This year's C.P.G.A. championship will be fought out over 54 holes instead of the usual 72. The executive said that because of lateness of arranging the dates between the Ontario open and Canadian open, it was felt best to cut the distance. On the opening day, a Sunday, 18 holes will be played; 36 the following day .

Placing the C.P.G.A. tournament close to the Canadian open was said by the executive to be a good-will gesture to Western Canada golfers.

The westerners claimed that the gap between the Canadian open and the C.P.G.A. show—usually the case in recent years when both tournaments were in the east—means too great an expense in making the trip east twice.

At Montreal managing director Frank Selke picked Wednesday—first day officially of summer —to announce that 40 players will report Sept. 18 for hockey fall training at Montreal Canadiens' camp.

The camp this year will be right in Montreal, at the Forum. Last year the squad trained at St. Hyacinthe, 35 miles away.

Not on the list issued was the name of Bill Durnan, the veteran goalie who last season announced he planned to retire at the end of the 1949-50 campaign.

Also missing were the names of defenceman Roger Leger and forward Bobby Fillion.

Suspension of Hugh (Scotty) Campbell by the Ontario Racing Commission Wednesday brought to three the number of jockeys suspended at Toronto this week.

Commission officials said Wednesday night that jockeys Charlie Bright and Vic Polk, suspended Tuesday for "conduct prejudicial to the best interests of racing," could not be found to be informed officially of their suspension.

Two owner-trainers were also suspended as a result of the Commissions investigations of a race run during the 1950 season. They are A. Graffaganini and William Russell.

The Commission gave no details of circumstances leading to the suspension of the riders or the owner-trainers.

SUSPENDED IN TURF INVESTIGATION

The Ontario Racing Commission has investigated the record of Ontario tracks this season and announced the suspension of two trainers and two jockeys, one of whom was Charlie Bright, shown here aboard Hey Day. The announcement, which gave no reason for the suspensions, followed rumors that many "false favorites" had won during the last two weeks of racing in Toronto. Another rumor circulated among track followers was that bookmakers had been playing the ponies themselves and, by good judgment of course, had picked a number of winners. — Central Press Canadian.

Sports Roundup

BY HUGH FULLERTON Jr.

New York, June 22 — (AP) — You can find many angles in the proposed shotgun wedding between the International Boxing Club, sometimes known as "one big happy monopoly," and the outfit known as the wrestling "trust" .... Some see it as merely a threat to Charley Johnston, local wrestling promoter and head of the Recalcitrant Managers Guild. .... Others find significance in Jim Norris' statement: "We are in business to make a profit and wrestling is profitable." .... It also could show how far boxing has gone down or how far wrestling has come up .... Another angle is that boxing is just about dead and this move could kill wrestling, too.

Officer, Do Your Duty

Mushky Jackson's reaction to the plan to put boxing and wrestling on even terms in the Garden was: "Now if dey could only bring de girl rasslers into New York, dat would be a sensation" . .

Quote, Unqoute

A St. Louis baseball writer: "I saw a real doubleheader the other night—the Cardinals in Brooklyn in the afternoon and 'Death of a Salesman' at night."

Sportsmention

Dutch Dotterer, the Reds scout, had a problem when his son, John, a swell college catcher at Syracuse, wanted to turn professional. Pop wanted the kid to get his education, but he was afraid some other scout would nab him. So young Dutch signed up with the Reds.

Electric Lassies Defeat Grafton For 5th Win

Pounding out eleven safeties two of them for extra bases, the Northern Electric ladies softball squad won its fifth victory in sixth starts when they defeated the Grafton team 14-8 in a Lakeshore Ladies Softball League game last night.

The win consolidates the Electric lassies' grip on first place in the eastern section of the loop.

Kernigan of Grafton was nicked for 11 hits. She whiffed one and walked five.

Grafton held a 4-2 lead going into the fourth when the Electrics bats suddenly exploded. Errors and five hits sent nine runners scampering across the plate and the game was in the bag. Hollywood, June 22 — (AP) — So Society Kid Hogan, who is more than slightly allergic to work, goes to work at a job for which he is seemingly quite suited — that is, playing a Damon Runyon character.

Now I hasten to add that Society or Kid or let's call him Hogan, was actually what he calls a "buddy-pal-chum" of the deceased writer. He looks like a Runyon character and sounds like one.

The fact that Hogan is working may cause some large tears around Lindy's because Hogan has long been an apostle of doing as little labor as possible. He figures a man should retire the first 50 years of life and work the rest.

Now a Worker

Now Hogan has passed the half-century mark so that puts him in the working class. Even so he does it Hogan-style, by that I mean he works at the $10 window at Chicago race tracks in the daytime and at similar pari-mutuels at harness tracks by night. That way he works twice as hard for six months and then loafs the other six months of the year.

Hogan is cutting into his vacation to do a job at $125 a week for the Paramounts. Having copped a load of lettuce with "Sorrowful Jones," the studio is putting its Mr. Robert Hope into another Runyon opus, "The Lemon Drop Kid."

"I'm helping with the script," explains Hogan himself. He will also play a role in the flick.

Now Hogan's real name is Salvatore de Lorenzo but he gets the Kid Hogan from a sports writer and the Society because his first fight is for a society charity.

They Die Broke

After quitting the fight game in 1924, Hogan takes his time about finding his mission life.

Hogan finally takes up as a half-year mutuel clerk, having found out the hard way what his pal Runyon expressed many times. That is that all horse players die broke.

"You got to go broke," he says. "One type that sometimes might make some money fa them people who bet $10,000 or $20,000 on some horse like Citation to show. We call them 'bridge-jumpers.' If the horse don't show, they jump off a bridge somewheres."
